When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the need for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation, that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

W. B. Caldwell M.D.
AT AGE 87

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

FINAL LITERATURE LECTURE AT OSGOOD MEMORIAL

The last lecture in the series of Dr. Gerard Jensen was given in the parlors of the Osgood Memorial parish house Friday evening, the subject being "What Literature Can Do For Us. In part Dr. Jensen said:

The printing of books dates from the invention of movable type by Gutenberg about 1450. His Latin Bibles sold for a reasonable price in his day but now a good copy may cost $150,000. Yale college is the fortunate possessor of one of these historic volumes.

We of the western world have had only five hundred years of the printed book yet nowadays no one need complain that he cannot afford books since the Everyman Library sells at seventy-five cents a volume. If something more expensive is desired the Elliott five-foot shelf will supply the need and one may be intelligent ever after.

Though we speak of only five hundred years for the printed book we must remember that literature has existed for five thousand years. Oral tradition preserved the earliest folk lore; then came bricks, stones, papyrus and animal skins or parchment. Paper was invented by the Chinese about 1350 and by way of the Arabs was brought to Europe. Some parchments extant are three thousand years old. The great Greek literature was written upon parchment. The term is derived from Pergamum a city which made it. Another term is vellum referring to the skin of the calf—veal.

The Latin word for book-liber—refers to the inner bark of a tree. Tablet meant a board and album was a contraction for the term "white board." The German "buch" means not only book but beech tree.

The value of literature is that it satisfies the mind, heart and spirit. The heart craves an outlet for its emotions and every work of art shows the heart of its creator. The poets deserve our commadeship. Literature is filled with characters that have made themselves our friends. Illustration—Dickens' Great Expectations. A great book bears rereading whether fiction, drama or poetry.

Literature affords an outlet for the heart. Illustration—The King of Boyville by William Allen White.

The mind craves knowledge. The intellect is always engrossed in acquiring more complete knowledge of the world of nature and of man. With Kipling we go to India "On the Road to Mandalay" or with Dante visit Purgatory and Paradise.

The mind craves an understanding of human society; science does not satisfy the heart; literature achieves that fulness that satisfies.

Literature is concrete; it helps us to understand properly the social order. value of simple living and simple thinking; it teaches us also the sorry side of life. Illustration—Thackeray's Vanity Fair, a tale of two insignificant people existing on almost nothing a year.

Tennyson makes us see the value of useful work; Browning the value of love to the ordinary human being.

The hopes and desires of men are most satisfactorily presented in literature. Illustration—Macbeth, the folly of ambition King Lear, the folly of an old man and the base ingratitude of his daughters.—Romeo and Juliet, the romantic passion.

In drama, lyric poetry or fiction we learn how others live, desire, philosophize, feel.

Literature gives us historical perspective; it is not local but universal, limitless, ageless. It has to do with transfiguring life, it shows the "glory that was Greece" and the glory that was Charlemagne. The story of King Arthur may be transferred to modern times. The account of the ancient Hebrew shows the same hopes and defeats as the present day.

Our striving should be not to be novel but to say what we have to say beautifully. Literature sharpens our critical faculties; we get the principles of art and a prophecy of the future of humanity. In short the aim of literature is magnanimity. Illustration—Father.

Literature teaches us how human being may live with one another but more than that, its prime value is that of the spirit. Beauty and truth are two chief sources of strength for the soul of man.—its chief spiritual manna. Literature feeds the soul supremely. Some people think philosophy will do this but literature overcomes the barriers in involved thought. It is free of difficult mental exercise, free of ritual which cloaks truth and beauty. Literature reflects the ideals of men, the spiritual forces in our lives. The underlying ideals are Hellenism, Hebraism, Renaissance, Age of Romance, Nature, Democracy.

In the art of letters you can get spiritual perspective; it teaches there is divinity in us, that our path is spaceless and timeless. The beauty of the soul of man is the beauty of the soul of the universe.

The final reading was from Emerson's Nature and Sir Walter Raleigh's definition of literature, "the record of man's adventures on the fedre of things."

CORONER McKAY FINDS DRIVER WAS NEGLIGENT

Negligence is charged by Coroner Edward G. McKay in his finding in the death o Nellie Beckwith, 14, of Waterford who died from injuries received when she was hit by a machine driven by Louis Perkins of Waterford. The accident occurred March 3rd.

On that day, the girl and several friends were returning to her home at Waterford after attending church services at New London. When the group had reached a point known as Mallory Hill, the Perkins car, traveling at a fast rate of speed, ran into them, causing fatal injuries to Miss Beckwith and painful injuries to four others. In their investigation of the accident the state police found Perkins was intoxicated at the time and was operating a machine owned by his father without the latter's permission. He was arrested on a manslaughter charge and is being held under bonds pending his presentation in court.

HONORS PAST WEEK IN EGG LAYING CONTEST

During the twentieth week, the hens in the egg laying contest at Storrs came through with a production of 4,459 eggs, which is 137 more than for last week and 266 more than for the corresponding week last year. The birds have a grand total of 81,398 eggs or an average of a little better than 81 eggs per bird. In comparing this year's records with those of last year, we find that the hens in the present contest have averaged 12 eggs more.

A pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Donald I. Goodenough of Torrington, Conn., came through with the same production as last week, namely, 63 eggs. This time, however, it tied for first place with a pen of White Leghorns entered by Wm. L. Gilbert Home, Winsted, Conn. George Lowry's White Leghorns from West Willington, Conn., were second with a score of 62 eggs. Third place for the week went to Toivonen Leghorn farm from Girard, Pa., and a pen of the same breed owned by Fox & Sons, Little Falls, N. J. These pens produced 61 eggs each. R. C. Cobbs' Barred Rocks from Littleton, Mass., captured fourth place with a lay of 60 eggs. This pen holds the lead in the Barred Rock class.

As a breed, the Barred Rocks have the highest per cent. production with a score of 65.6 per cent. The Rhode Island Reds were second with 65.5 per cent., while the White Leghorns were third with 63.1 per cent. Then followed those classed as other varieties with the White Rocks and the White Wyandottes in the order mentioned.

The only breed in the principal varieties that seems to be having a hard time in deciding who will stay on the man is the Rhode Island Red Class. F. S. Chapin's pen from Longmeadow, Mass., has chased J. Z. LaBelle's birds from Ballouville, Conn., off the front page. Every week there seems to be a scramble for fourth place.

EASTER CHARITY CALL OF CATHOLIC BISHOP

A circular letter to pastors read in every church of the Diocese of Hartford at all the masses Palm Sunday was a reminder to the 500,000 Catholics of this state that Bishop John J. Nilan appreciates their generous response to his appeal for diocesan charities each Easter. Thousands depend upon this generosity—foundling, orphan, delinquent, wayward, sick and poor. The Easter offering means everything, in many instances to family and child.

The dependent belongs to Christ, Rev. John J. Reilly declared to the enormous congregation at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday. The Catholic church is outstanding for charity; love of neighbor as enjoined by the Saviour is the first inclination of our spiritual head; his pocket-book must be ever open, since thousands look to him for very existence. And this purse, upon which there are so many urgent calls, becomes empty until replenished by the generosity of the faithful each Easter. Father Reilly cited homes for the aged, orphanages, hospitals and similar institution toward which Catholics, especially those of means, should give of the abundance which God has given them, in response to this annual call. The poor were Christ's; He has passed the heritage on to us; the obligation must not be neglected or ignored.

At this mass the junior choir sang "Jesus, Saviour," "Mother of Christ, What Shall I Ask of Thee" "Praise the Lord" and other hymns. The offertory was Faure's "The Palms," beautifully sung by the organist, Henry J. LaFontaine, to his own masterly accompaniment.

TO RESUME TRIAL OF DAMAGE SUIT TUESDAY

Dyson, of Noank, will be resumed. The evidence is now in and the arguments will be started Tuesday morning. The younger Benson sues as the result of an automobile collision on the New London-Hartford turnpike near the intersection of the turnpike and the Norwich-Colchester road on Nov. 5, 1927.

REV. ARTHUR C. ADAMS SPEAKS AT Y. M. C. A.

Practically all of the chairs in the large gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. were occupied Sunday afternoon on the occasion of the weekly service at 4 o'clock. Louis Mell officiated at the piano and rendered the gospel hymn, "My Jesus I Love Thee" in solo. After the scripture reading, Rev. Frank Palmer offered the prayer. The audience sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The last four reels of Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Les Miserables" were shown and greatly impressed the large audience. The lesson of forgiveness was strongly taught by Jean Valjean, in the picture story.

During the service Rev. Arthur C. Adams, recently returned from South Africa gave a brief and interesting talk. Mr. Adams stated that while in England he was told by an Englishman that America had no ideals, but said the speaker, he was wrong, for although sometimes we do not demonstrate our high ideals they are in us just the same.

We have more to do with than other peoples; everything at our arms length so to speak and probably we are liable to forget at times the more worthwhile things, yet underneath it all we do for the most part follow fine ideals. I like to see the bright colors in dress etc. It indicates happy life in a way, but there are of course deeper and more worth while things than material things.

Christianity is more than outward show; it is that which dominates the inner life, and more and more we need to embrace Christianity in its fullest sense. This being "Holy Week", we should all be thinking much of what this season means to the world and to the individual."

Lathrop Appeal Denied

The appeal of Harry L. Lathrop from the adverse decision of the first selectmen on a permit to erect a gas station on his property abutting at No. 271 Washington street was denied Saturday by the joint zoning board of the city and town of Norwich after a hearing Friday afternoon in the court house. The action was taken by the board after a majority of the 75 persons present voiced their opposition to the petition. Mr. Lathrop sought to change his property from the Class B, residential zone, to the business district, in order that he might erect the gas station.

Recall E. C. Power Stock

The directors of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. have voted to call in all outstanding 7 per cent preferred stock of the company. The stock is called at $120 a share and accrued dividends as of May 1, 1929. The stock will not be replaced by any other issue of preferred stock. The amount of issue is $1,500,000.

The action in calling this stock without replacement of an issue of lower rate, establishes a precedent in Connecticut public utility financing according to the best recollections of investment bankers and others of long experience. Greenwich Water and Gas company called its outstanding 7 per cent preferred stock a few years ago but replaced it with 6 per cent stock.

NORWICH TOWN

ADDRESS ON PHILIPPINES BY REV. FRANCIS H. ROSE

Before a large and appreciative congregation in Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening, Rev. Francis H. Rose gave his lecture on "The Philippines." The lecture was illustrated with stereopticon pictures, many of them taken by Professor Rose during the course of service as a missionary in Central Philippine college. Professor Rose told many interesting things about the school and its advancement since he took up the work, about ten years ago. The students and graduates of the college are giving now largely to the support of the institution which was started by the Baptist Mission board. Professor Rose has been in the United States since last July, on a furlough. He arrived in Norwich Town Saturday night from Chicago, as he has been taking a special course in the University of Chicago for another degree. Following the lecture, he was given an informal reception by many friends, who have followed with interest his work as a missionary. The stereopticon machine was operated by Ralph Smith. The pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, had charge of the opening service and presented the speaker.

Juniors Lead C. E. Hour

One of the best services held during the C. E. hour in the Methodist church was conducted Sunday night by the Junior Epworth league, with the superintendent, Florence M. Bennett, in charge. The service opened with the singing of "O Master Workman of the Race," followed by the song "I Would Be True." Prayer in unison preceded "The Lord Be With Us as We Bend," sung by the congregation. The scripture was read by three Juniors, Mary Waters leading. The story talk was given by Mary Waters. A duet was sung by Virginia Ward and Florence Gembel. The meeting closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds." There was a large attendance.

Methodist Every-Member Canvass

At the morning service before a congregation of 75, the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, preached on the theme "Honor the Lord," his text Proverbs 3:9, "Honor the Lord with thy substance and with the first fruits of all thy increase." The sermon was along the line of stewardship. The pastor announced that the every-member canvass for the budget for next conference year would be made this week by the finance committee. During the service a children's story was told by Helen Haviland Potter. The Junior choir, directed by Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, sang "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes Unto the Hills." Virginia Ward rang the offertory solo, "The Palms."

Scouts Find Trail

In spite of the rain, Saturday, Scouts of Troop 2 connected with the Methodist church were successful in finding the trail laid by Scoutmaster Potter, thus advancing.

No woman with a diamond necklace is afraid of getting a sore throat.

TO HOLD SPECIAL TOWN MEETING TONIGHT

The principal matter of business to be taken up at the special town meeting this (Monday) evening is action on a petition sent in by George E. Pitcher and signed by 55 others, asking for action "as they see fit on the grand list as left by the board of relief and as now appears." Three other matters are in the call, but these are expected to be disposed of without opposition.

At the meeting a number of resolutions, which are now being prepared, are to be presented and these, it is said, will call for the appointment of a taxpayer from each district in the town to serve on a committee. The duty of the committee, it is understood, will be to investigate the grand list as left by the board of relief and make a report of recommendations at another special town meeting.

Roy of Merchants avenue followed by a solemn high mass of requiem at Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock. The officers of the mass included Rev. Omer T. Mandler, celebrant; Rev. Frederick R. DesSureault, deacon and Rev. Francis X. Chicoine, sub-deacon. The musical part of the mass was in charge of Miss Alice Frechette, the church organist. Included in the large attendance at the church was a delegation from the Childern of Mary Sodality, of which the deceased was a member. There were many beautiful floral tributes. The bearers were Julian Dion, George Adams, Jr., Harold Corcoran, Theodore Benac, Albert Gaffney and Theodore Pepin. Interment was in Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike where Rev. Father DesSureault read the committal prayers assisted by Father Chicoine. Dougherty Bros. had charge of the funeral arrangements.

The monthly Rocknook Well Child conference was held Friday afternoon under the auspices of the United Workers of Norwich in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building. The conference is usually held on the last Friday in the month but because that day this month would be Good Friday, the clinic was advanced a week. A large number of mothers brought their children for examination by Dr. Geo. M. Thompson and for advice from the doctor and the public health nurses in charge.

There is such a thing as being too persistent at times.

DRASTIC DROP IN QUOTED VALUES OF LEADING STOCKS

Speculators Felt the "Money Squeeze" When Call Loans Were Advanced From 9 to 14 Per Cent—Selling Orders Washed Away Hundreds of Millions of Dollars in Quoted Values—Nearly 100 Individual Issues Sank to Low Levels For the Year.

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—A "money squeeze" in which the rate on call loans was advanced from 9 to 14 per cent, the highest in nine years, today brought about the most drastic reaction of the year on the New York Stock exchange in which prices were slashed right and left as speculators and investors scrambled to get out of the market.

So great was the volume of selling that the ticker ran for 58 minutes after the closing gong had sounded. The day's sales of 5,860,210 shares have only been exceeded on two other days this year—March 1 and March 18—on both of which occasions the price movement was upward.

Nearly 100 individual issues sank to new low levels for the year during the session. Two issues showed outstanding independent strength, International Telephone, which was marked up $9 a share to a new high record at $247 and retained most of its gain, and Radio Corporation common, which closed $4.25 a share higher at $91.50.

Hundreds of millions of dollars in quoted values were washed away by the flood of selling orders which poured into the market today from all sections of the country and from European, Latin-American and Far Eastern capitals. Final quotations disclosed a long list of net declines ranging from $1 to $20 a share. Two stocks, Adams Express and Equitable Trust, in which the turnover was small, lost $44.25 and $53 a share, respectively. On the New York curb market, Ford Motors of Canada dropped $40 a share, and scores of others $1 to $10 a share. Similar recessions took place in other securities markets.

The Associated Press indices of 50 leading industrials dropped 6.6 points, 20 rails 2.2 points and 20 utilities 5.3 points, with the railroad figure at a new low level for the year. This was the sharpest break since Dec. 7 last, when the industrials dropped 7.7 points, the rails 3.4 points and the utilities 8.6 points.

Today's reaction comes as a climax to a series of official warnings against the excessive use of credit for speculative purposes and an increasing credit stringency. On Feb. 7, the Federal Reserve board issued a warning which was virtually disregarded by Wall street as prices subsequently advanced to record high levels, and only last week the Federal Reserve total of brokers' loans was boosted $166,000,000 to the highest level in history.

During the past week, however, the credit reservoir which Wall street has been using to finance its "bull" campaign has been steadily drained. Bankers' acceptances were advanced 1-4 of 1 per cent last week and another 1-3 of 1 per cent today, placing them 1-2 of 1 per cent above the prevailing Federal Reserve rediscount rates.

Today, for instance, the rise in call money from 9 to 14 per cent was accompanied by the calling of only about $20,000,000 in loans, a nominal amount in a period of ordinary credit conditions.

SEC'Y MELLON DEFENDS SINKING OF RUM SHIP

WASHINGTON, March 25—(AP)—The sinking of the British schooner I'm Alone in the Gulf of Mexico was defended today by Secretary Mellon who, as the supervising head of the coast guard service, held that the patrol boat Dexter had been within its rights in pursuing the suspected rum runner and firing upon the craft after its refusal to obey a summons to heave to.

At the same time the British and Canadian governments made known through their diplomatic representatives in Washington that they were prepared to protest against the action should the circumstances warrant.

While Secretary Mellon has defended the action of the Dexter in sinking the vessel, which resulted in the death of one British member of the crew of the I'm Alone, both the British and Canadian viewpoints are to the effect that the incident will be a serious one, if the current newspaper reports on the matter are correct.

The coast guard report submitted to the state department said there was a continuous pursuit of the I'm Alone from within the 12 mile imaginary line off the Louisiana coast by the Walcott until the vessel was sunk by the Dexter some 200 miles off the coast. The coast guard report contended that this pursuit was justified under international law.

The known British and Canadian positions on the international doctrine of pursuit at sea are that this pursuit must begin within the three mile limit of the coast—the only territorial waters limit recognized by international law.

AIR PILOT AND THREE PASSENGERS KILLED

MT. GRETNA, Pa., March 25—(AP)—John L. Campion, well known pilot of St. Louis and three passengers were killed today when their Ryan monoplane crashed to earth here near the Pennsylvania National Guard Encampment reservation.

Passengers were Charles Stewart, Columbus, Ohio and Harold Lloyd, 21 and Paul Wager, 21, of Worthington, a suburb of Columbus.

Under favorable atmospheric conditions the plane took off from the Norton flying field at Columbus early today, and apparently was experiencing trouble when it was first sighted over the military grounds. Campion seemed to be seeking his location as he flew over the tree tops of the wooded country.

Observers said the ship circled a picket twice and while immediately above the stretch of dense undergrowth it suddenly started toward the ground at great speed. A wing of the plane, bearing the numerals 7268, struck a limb and at once there was a loud crash as the motor buried itself in the earth.

All four men were dead when searchers reached the plane.

The cause of the accident is undetermined.

BARN IN MANSFIELD WAS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

WILLIMANTIC, March 25—(AP)—During an electric storm here late this afternoon, lightning struck the main barn on the dairy farm of Robert E. Stearns at Chestnut Hill, in the town of Mansfield, causing a fire which destroyed the dairy machinery and killed two horses and 11 cows. Twenty-two cows were saved by Stearns' neighbors. Stearns estimated his loss at $17,000.

Telephone and telegraph wires were seriously affected by the storm, and the two telephone wires leading to Stearns' house burned. Stearns, who was in North Coventry at the time of the fire, did not learn of it until late tonight when he returned.

SEVERE ELECTRICAL STORM IN WATERBURY

WATERBURY, March 25—(AP)—Traffic was halted temporarily and electrical and telephone lines were seriously affected by the first thunderstorm of the season shortly before 7 o'clock tonight. Rain fell in torrents for about 20 minutes, during which time street cars were put off schedule, telephones went out of order and many places were in momentary darkness due to the failure of the electric current.

MAYOR HAGUE DECLINES TO TELL OF BANK ACCOUNT

TRENTON, N. J., March 25—(AP)—Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, leader of New Jersey's democratic forces and a vice-chairman of the national committee of his party, declined today to inform the McAllister legislative investigating committee whether he had an account with "six figures" in the National City bank of New York.

The committee, which was reorganized by the 1928 legislature, has been investigating for a year charges of a slush fund and political irregularities in Jersey City and Hudson county, the seat of Hague's leadership.

The interrogation of Mayor Hague was based chiefly on the testimony of other witnesses and inquiries made by investigators of the committee. The questions put to him concerned the collection of funds in Jersey City, taxation, purchase of property in condemnation proceedings, and relatives of the mayor on public pay rolls. To most of the questions the witness referred Russel E. Watson, chief of counsel to the committee, to the head of the municipal or county department or board concerned.

It was the mayor's second appearance before the committee. Last fall he defied its subpoena and was arrested on a charge of contempt. Habeas corpus proceedings in which he obtained his freedom are now before the court of errors and appeals at the behest of the legislature.

DANBURY RE-ELECTS ITS DEMOCRATIC MAYOR

DANBURY, March 25—(AP)—Anthony Sunderland, democrat, was elected mayor of Danbury for a fourth two-year term today. He received 3,734 votes, or a majority of 510 over his republican opponent, F. Ward DeKlyn.

The aldermanic and councilmanic election produced an unusual political situation, in which the democrats will have the upper hand. As a result of the election to the board of aldermen of one democrat and one republican and to the council of two democrats and two republicans, both parties are now equally divided as to political faith. There are two of each party among the aldermen, and four of each on the council.

The joint sessions will have six republicans and six democrats, and resulting ties would be broken by the mayor, a democrat. The joint sessions are for the election of superintendents and department heads and for general business.

GROWTH IN LOANS AT FED. RESERVE MEMBER BANKS

WASHINGTON, March 25—(AP)—A rapid growth in loans at Federal Reserve member banks in principal cities throughout the country between the middle of February and the middle of March was reported today by the Federal Reserve board in a summary of the next issue of the Federal Reserve Bulletin.

Investments of reporting banks declined during the period, while borrowings from Federal Reserve banks were nearly $80,000,000 larger March 20 than they were four weeks previously. Security holdings showed little change.

The board found that production of the country continued at a high rate with a record automobile output during February and an unusually high daily average production of copper, iron and steel. Preliminary reports for March indicated further expansion in automobile and iron and steel production.

MISS EARHART FORCED DOWN BY THUNDER STORM

UTICA, N. Y., March 25—(AP)—Forced down by a thunder and hail storm, Miss Amelia Earhart, the first woman to fly across the Atlantic, landed safely in a cornfield near here this afternoon with her tiny biplane and surprised her sister, Miss Muriel Earhart, a teacher at a private school.

After wading ankle-deep in the mud to turn around her ship, an English Avro, to protect it from the fury of a gale, the famous aviatrix made her way to a nearby farmhouse and telephoned for aid. Later her plane was hauled by truck to the Utica airport. She plans to take off early tomorrow morning for Buffalo where she is scheduled to speak at an aviation show Tuesday night.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

AMOY, China, March 25—(AP)—Twenty-two ships of the United States Asiatic fleet, going north from Manila, arrived on scheduled time to carry out a three day maneuver in Amoy waters.

SEVILLE, Spain, March 25—(AP)—The famous Spanish aviators Jumenez and Iglesias left here aboard their plane "Jesus Gran Poder" for Rio Janeiro at 8:45 p. m. yesterday. The plane, loaded by 4,200 litres of gasoline and 200 litres of oil with a total weight of 5,000 kilograms made a perfect start and rapidly rose to an altitude of 1,000 metres.

HOOVER'S CABINET WILL BE COMPLETED TODAY

WASHINGTON, March 25—(AP)—President Hoover's official family will be completed tomorrow with the arrival of Henry L. Stimson, the new secretary of state, who was summoned to the cabinet from the governor-generalship of the Philippine Islands.

Although originally expected here today, Mr. Stimson found upon reaching New York that he would be obliged to postpone for 24 hours the time of his coming to the national capital. He will be Mr. Hoover's guest at the white house for the remainder of the week.

A busy schedule of conferences on the nation's foreign problems, including many changes in diplomatic assignments has been prepared for the new cabinet member. He will go into these subjects in detail with the president and is expected, too, to consult at length with Secretary Kellogg, who retained the state portfolio until his arrival.

Furthermore, Mr. Stimson probably will go over the disarmament question with Hugh Gibson, the American ambassador to Belgium, who is about to sail for Europe to represent the United States at the coming session of the preparatory commission of disarmament, of the league of nations.

Until the present, Mr. Hoover has devoted his attention almost exclusively to domestic problems and, with the exception of the Mexican revolution which called for immediate action, has postponed all consideration of foreign affairs until he could confer with Mr. Stimson.

Many changes in the personnel and assignments of the diplomatic corps and some among high officials of the state department are expected to result from his conferences with the president.

LIQUOR STILL BEING TRANSPORTED IN MAINE

TRENTON, N. J., March 25—(AP)—Federal Judge Bodine seemed surprised when he learned today that liquor still is being transported in Maine, despite four score of years of prohibition in that state.

The revelation came when Emanuel J. Alexander of Bloomfield and Peter Demas, of Elizabeth, who had gotten into trouble over the bail bond of a friend, wanted in Maine on charge of liquor transportation were up for sentence.

"How did it happen?" inquired the judge solemnly, "that he was indicted for transporting liquor in Maine—why they've had prohibition up there for about 80 years."

"Yes, but there are still some bad boys up there," explained former United States Attorney Walter G. Winne, counsel for the two men. Thereupon Mr. Winne made an impassioned plea for his clients.

Alexander was placed on probation for one year and Demas for two years. The offense was that Alexander, having gone bail for his Maine friend, wanted to discharge the bail and get Demas to represent himself as the friend.

CONNECTICUT RIVER CONTINUES TO RISE

HARTFORD, March 25—(AP)—Slowly the Connecticut river continued to rise all today reaching at 10 p. m., a height of 18.9 feet above the zero level and continuing upward, according to measurements taken at the South Meadows plant of the Hartford Electric Light company. Late in the afternoon a drizzling rain was punctuated by a brief thunder and lightning storm, the first of the season.

The added height of the river increased the flood conditions on Brainard field to the extent of definitely marooning the hangors of the L. & H. Aircraft corporation and the Curtiss flying service. Air service was carried on by both of these companies which hangared their planes in the hangar of the Interstate Airways, Inc.

Another state road was put out of commission by the rising flood which inundated about 1,000 feet of the Cromwell-Middletown road, closing it to traffic which was forced to use back roads. Nearly three feet of water rested upon the Glastonbury-Portland road, blocking it until the waters have receded, according to George E. Hamlin, superintendent of the state highway department.

BATH AND BECKER HELD AS FUGITIVES FROM JUSTICE

DANBURY, March 25—(AP)—George Bath, Hartford and Roland Becker, Worcester, wanted by Pawtucket, R. I., police had their cases continued for thirty days when brought in court today. Both are held under $5,000 bail as fugitives from justice pending warrants from Pawtucket and Hartford.

When arrested here last night in an automobile the driver was without a license and police suspected them as the slayers of Lester Jacobs, chain store manager of Bridgeport, last Saturday. A 13-year-old boy, witness of the shooting, failed to identify either Bath or Becker when they were placed in a lineup today.

Prosecuting Attorney Norman Beers said that he would ask to have their bail increased to $10,000 each.

CREST OF MISSISSIPPI RIVER RISE HAS PASSED MEMPHIS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 25—(AP)—The crest of the first spring rise in the Mississippi river passed Memphis early today with indications that it would reach Helena, Arkansas, at a stage of a little more than 50 feet tomorrow. Flood stage at Helena is 44 feet.

Cresting overnight at 40.9 feet, 5.9 above flood stake, the Mississippi recorded a fall of one tenth of a foot here today. The river now is falling at all points north from Memphis to Cairo, Ill., and Cape Girardeau, Mo.

MEX. REBEL LEADERS TO HOLD AMERICAN FLIER

NOGALES, Ariz., March 25—(AP)—An about face in their attitude toward G. K. "Buzz" Morrison, captured American aviator, was announced late today by Mexican rebel leaders at Nogales, Sonora. They stated that he would be held pending final disposition of his case by Commander-in-Chief General Gonzalo Escobar.

Mexican Federals In Control Of Mazatlan

Intermittent Fighting H[illegible] Been Going on For [illegible] Hours—58 Rebels Killed.

(By The Associated Press)

Seventy-two hours of intermittent fighting for Mazatlan, most important strategic point in the west coast campaign, has left the city still in the hands of its federal garrison with 58 known rebel dead on the field and three wounded. Resumption of sniping prevented clearing the battlefield of additional dead and wounded.

A message from General Carillo, garrison commander, timed 8 a. m., yesterday, brought first definite word of the casualties to Mexico City. Federal losses were put at three dead and seven wounded. Sixteen civilians were wounded.

Federal reinforcements were less than 40 miles away and the government was confident the insurgents would be beaten off.

Ambassador Morrow yesterday telephoned Secretary of State Kellogg that he understood Mazatlan still to be in the hands of the federals and that fighting was over for the present.

Rebels under General Topete were reported closing in on the border town of Naco, Sonora, where a federal force is intrenched.

At Juarez supplies and ammunition were being loaded on General Escobar's train as the insurgent commander-in-chief prepared to move south to rejoin his troops in the state of Chihuahua.

Negotiations had begun at Nogales, Arizona, for release of King Morrison, American aviator serving with the federals, who was captured by rebels when he made a forced landing within their lines.

INTEREST IN BRITAIN OVER "I'M ALONE" SINKING

LONDON, March 25—(AP)—The I'm Alone rum-running affray has stirred greater interest among the British public than any incident since the Anglo-American treaty of 1923 which was designed to curb the illegal landing of liquor on American shores.

In London streets, restaurants and clubs, the I'm Alone's adventures form one of the principal topics of conversation. The newspapers givethe story big headlines with emphasis on Captain Randall's defiant attitude and such details as the crew being placed in irons.

British officialdom does not share the excitement, although admitting the apparent seriousness of the case, if advance reports should be substantiated in the official reports of Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador, to the foreign office. It is anticipated that the British government will call for further investigation of events.

One point in the affair being discussed here is whether revenue cutters have the right to chase, challenge and fire on a rum-runner outside of an hour's steaming from shore after the suspected rum-runner has first been challenged within the admitted limits of territorial waters.

The British government never has admitted this as a revenue cutter's prerogative and it is understood that the point never has been settled between Washington and London.

PREMIER OF SPAIN TO RELINQUISH DICTATORSHIP

MADRID, March 25—(AP)—Miguel Primo de Rivera Y Orbaneja, Marques de Estella, and premier and dictator of Spain since a coup d'etat in September 1923, finds that he has grown old in five and one-half years of dictatorship and today indicated in a semi-official note that he might take his farewell of power before the date he had himself foreseen.

Youth and youthful strength are necessary for successful dictatorship and the man who has single-handed changed the course of history in Spain feels that fifty-nine is too old for what he described today as "the hard and wearisome task to which I have submitted during five years."

The cabinet was tonight meeting in a council presided by the premier. Madrid evening newspapers commenting on his note, considered it probable that the dictator would retire from power shortly after the close of the great expositions at Barcelona and Seville.

Several important Spanish groups have issued a note, signed by Senor Dominic, head of the Petroleum Trust, asking everyone in the country to give his adherence to the dictator's policies.

HELD ON CHARGE OF MURDERING HUSBAND

HARTFORD, March 25—(AP)—Mrs. Harry E. Adams, wife of the United States weather man here, who was found dead of chloroform poisoning in his bed early Sunday, was held by the Hartford police this afternoon on a charge of murder. Detectives said Mrs. Adams had made a confession in which she declared she had "finished him."

In her confession, according to the police, Mrs. Adams accused her husband of having had affairs with two other women and with being cruel to her. Mrs. Adams told the police the names of two women with whom she felt sure the meteorologist had been on familiar terms and she spoke of one occasion on which her husband had brought one of these women to their home and forced his wife to cook dinner for the visitor. The wife also said she suspected that her husband had had women visitors in his office.

COMMITTEE DRAFTING NEW FARM RELIEF BILL

WASHINGTON, March 25—(AP)—A start was made by the senate agriculture committee today on the drafting of one of the major pieces of legislation to which the Hoover administration has been pledged—that of farm relief.

The committee assembled with a view of expediting its work so that a new farm bill, a substitute for the twice vetoed McNary-Haugen measure, will be ready for the seventy-first congress when it convenes in special session April 15 to consider the farm question along with that of tariff revision.

PICKED MURDER SUSPECT OUT OF LINEUP OF 15 MEN

BRIDGEPORT, March 25—(AP)—Leo Romano, 13, eye witness to the shooting of Lester Jacobs, chain store manager, by a bandit Saturday night, tonight picked John "Spirits" Fellovic, out of a lineup of 15 men, as the one who had held up the store and fatally wounded Jacobs.

Four Miners Crushed [illegible] Snow Avalanche

[illegible]uccession of Slides Demolished and Buried the Camp in Colorado.

GUNNISON, Colo., March 25—(AP)—Great avalanches of snow, tumbling from high peaks of the Rockies, took a toll of four lives today and spread havoc in a sparsely settled area of the continental divide where King Winter continued in full reign over a vast domain in the mountain fastnesses.

Trapped as they slept in a bunkhouse at a secluded mining camp 13 miles from this city, four miners were crushed to death when hundreds of tons of snow demolished the camp and buried it under a succession of slides which continued intermittently during the night.

Approximately 30 slides of various proportions severed communication with several villages when telegraph lines were torn away and lines of transportation were blockaded. The bodies of the four victims of the slide were taken by couriers on skiis to the nearby mining town of Lake City.

A thundering roar awakened the mining camp where the four miners were killed, but the great speed of the slide, which ran in the wake of a new storm, unloosed tons of snow that had accumulated over the winter. There was not time enough for all persons in the camp to vacate their sleeping quarters. Two women cooks at the property and four other miners who slept in bunkhouses directly at the base of a mountain narrowly escaped death.

Officials believed that only the four men whose bodies were recovered, were victims of the avalanche, although fears were felt that other bodies might be found buried under the mass. Frame shacks, bunkhouses and the camp's office building, were shattered under the impact of the slide. The miners were employed by the Empire Chief Mining company.

Farther south, near the Colorado-New Mexico boundary line, Silverton, the "Sky City" of the Rockies, was buried under three feet of snow and shivered in ten below zero weather early today.

DIRIGIBLE AND PLANE ON LONG DISTANCE FLIGHTS

By the Associated Press

The 1929 long distance flight season was opened with a bang yesterday with three major endeavors in progress.

The Spanish aviators, Captains Francisco Iglesias and Ignacio Jiminez who left Seville, Sunday afternoon in an attempt to reach South America without refueling their airplane Jesus Del Gran Poder, were reported at 4:39 p. m., Greenwich mean time, last evening over Cape Blanco, Mauretania, West Africa, at about that point they were to swing out over the Atlantic for the long sea leg of their voyage.

The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, veteran of a round trip flight to the United States completed yesterday its Italian tour which occupied the first day of its scheduled four day, 5,000 mile flight over the eastern Mediterranean. Its take-off from Friedrichshafen was timed at 54 minutes after midnight and it was circling over Naples at 5 o'clock in the Neapolitan evening. From there its over-water stretch began which would carry it past Cyprus to Palestine.

The Uruguayan aviators, Berisso and Otero, who are making a round about good will flight with many stops from Montevideo to New York yesterday completed another stage. They flew from Santiago, Chile, to Antofagosta in northern Chile in about 12 hours, landing at 5 p. m.

MOTHER AND THREE CHILDREN FOUND DEAD IN THEIR HOME

TOLEDO, Ohio, March 25—(AP)—Mrs. Gaylord Steger, 25, and her three small children were found dead at their home five miles northeast of Maumee, a suburb, late today and authorities were working on the theory that they had been slain and their house set afire.

Coroner Kreft said Gaylord, Jr., 5, had been beaten on the head before the house was set on fire. Howard, 4, had two cuts above the right eye and kerosene apparently had been thrown on Marie, 1, and lighted while she was in bed.

The coroner also found what he thought was finger prints on the woman's throat.

Gaylord Steger, husband of the dead women, returned home just a few minutes after the fire had been subdued. He said all of his clothing, his guns, a radio, and his trunk had been taken from the house.

Steger said he had been in Sylvania, 15 miles away, all afternoon helping an acquaintance trade horses. He said that so far as he knew he had no enemies and was positive that his wife did not kill the three children and then set the house on fire.

CAPTAIN OF RUM SHIP WINS HONORS IN WAR

HALIFAX, N. S., March 25—(AP)—Captain John T. Randall, of the British schooner I'm Alone, which was sunk as a rum-runner off Louisiana, Friday by coast guard patrol boats is known in British admiralty circles as a lieutenant commander who received the Distinguished Service Cross after a sea fight during the World war.

He also received the Croix De Guerre with two palms for his battle service and since the war has distinguished himself as an Arctic explorer. He was in command of the schooner Moorso on an expedition to the so-called Barren Lands of the Arctic last summer.

At that time he would explain only briefly the episode for which he received the Distinguished Service Cross.

"Oh I got into a mixup off the coast of Norway," he said, "captured a couple of German ships and sank two or three more."

FEAR THAT VICE RING IS HOLDING MISSING GIRL

MONTREAL, March 25—(AP)—Fear that a vice ring in Montreal might be holding Barbara Pitcher, McGill university arts student, missing since last Thursday morning, was expressed today by police officials. It is believed the girl has been kidnaped and is being held not far from the university.

A reward of $5,000 has been offered for definite information leading to the restoration of Miss Pitcher to her parents alive. The girl's uncle, Dr. A. S. Eve, director of the Physics building at McGill, is directing the search.

CELEBRITIES GATHER FOR FUNERAL OF FOCH TODAY

Each of the Allied Nations of Europe Has Sent High Civilian Delegates and Military Detachments to Attend the National Funeral in Paris—Only 5,000 Persons Will Be Admitted to the Requiem Mass—Reservations For Vantage Places to View the Funeral Procession Have Been Sold by Thousands For as High as $50 Each.

PARIS, March 25—(AP)—Marshal Foch will be laid to rest tomorrow near the tomb of Napoleon under the golden dome of the Invalides chapel.

All the nations of Europe whose armies were allied with France under Foch's command have sent high civilian delegates and military detachments to attend the national funeral which his grateful country has prepared for him.

Never in ancient or modern times have so many peoples mourned together over the body of a soldier as will join with France in the requiem services at Notre Dame tomorrow and in the solemn procession that will escort Foch's body to its final resting place.

So great is the number of persons of official rank delegated to attend the ceremony at the cathedral that no place at all has been left for the general public within the Gothic walls of the great national Basilica whose towers have looked out over Paris for nine centuries. But the people of Paris who made a pilgrimage numbering more than a million souls to salute the bier of a great soldier under the Arc De Triomphe Sunday will watch the funeral procession along the mile and one half route it is to follow. Reservations for vantage places in windows and on rooftops along the line of march were sold today by thousands, for as high as $50 each. And tonight there were no more even of these.

Only 5,000 persons will be admitted to the funeral mass at Notre Dame. The great portals of the cathedral were closed from noon today to permit workmen to prepare the edifice for the marshal's obsequies. From 6 a. m., until noon the public was allowed to pass by the flag-covered bier, which was guarded in the black and silver draped chapel by two priests who were at the front with Foch and by two boy scouts.

Under the arches of the cathedral will be gathered such a group of the world's celebrities as even Paris has rarely known.

The Prince of Wales will be there to represent King George. Prince Charles, second son of King Albert, of Belgian army, will represent Belgium.

The protocol prevents King Albert and his queen from attending the mass at Notre Dame, but they will attend memorial services in Brussels.

Ambassadors accredited to France will be present in full uniform except Ambassador Herrick who will represent democratic America in simple black and white evening dress.

Each of the allied nations has sent to Paris the pick of its troops to March behind the gun carriage that will carry the marshal to the Invalides chapel.

The British field marshals Lords Plumer, Alleny, Methuen, and Trenchard, with Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss who was a cosigner of the armistice with Marshal Foch, arrived here at 9:00 p. m. to attend the funeral tomorrow. They were escorted by 50 aviators and 50 highlanders.

The Italian military detachment is headed by Marshal Caviglia, whom Premier Mussolini sent here immediately after he learned of the death of Marshal Foch. Belgium sent 50 of her finest grenadier guards. From Czechoslovakia came not only a detachment of soldiers led by General Syrovy, chief of staff, and General Vezeniek, but also Prime Minister Udrzan. There were other military delegations from Serbia and Rumania.

The distance prevented Japan and the United States from doing the same, but the United States army had General John J. Pershing as its representative and the American colors will be carried in the funeral procession by 20 officers and former officers led by Colonel Richard T. Ellis and Major James Ord. The Paris post of the American Legion will provide a color guard and a group of five veterans will represent the legion of the United States.

Japan will have a resident delegation of army and navy officers. Pope Pius XI will be represented by the Papal Nuncio.

While Notre Dame, the hotel De Ville and other great buildings of Paris were draped in black and silver nothing will be done to alter the somber everyday aspect of Les Invalides. As the bier is brought into the court of honor there, 40 war orphans for whom Marshal Foch had special affection will sing ancient Georgorian chants. The funeral oration will be delivered by Premier Raymond Poincare, one of the greatest living masters of the French language, and then only a few privileged persons will witness the last act of all-the placing of the coffin in its vault.

GOV. TRUMBULL TO ATTEND REQUIEM MASS FOR FOCH

Members of the American Legion and other war veterans and city officials will attend the service as specially invited guests.

PLANNING FOR RELIEF OF FLOOD SUFFERERS

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 25—(AP)—With the death toll at 34 from spring floods in southeastern Kentucky and northeastern Tennessee the last three days, and property damage running into the millions, plans for the relief of the destitute went forward today.

The Tennessee general assembly late today appropriated $20,000 for flood relief, and Governor Flem D. Sampson of Kentucky issued a proclamation calling upon Kentuckians to contribute liberally of money and clothing and other supplies to their local Red Cross chapters.

While the Tennessee legislators were voting they could see the Cumberland river from the capital as it steadily increased its overflow of the low lying sections of the city. A crest of 50 feet is expected by tomorrow, which will flood thickly settled sections. Already houses and factories near the river are under water.

With the exception of the Cumberland and Tennessee, all other Tennessee streams were falling.

The dead included seven Boy Scouts and their scout master who were drowned when a week-end camping party of 21 was swept away early Saturday by a cloudburst near Rockwood, Tenn.

Six deaths and property damage estimated at $2,000,000 was the toll of flood waters of the Kentucky Cumberland and Big Sandy rivers which swept mountain communities in Kentucky.

REPORTS OF WRECKAGE OF PLANE UNFOUNDED

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., March 25—(AP)—Officials of the Curtiss flying service called Bethany Beach, Delaware, today and were told by a storekeeper that no airplane wreckage had been found there. The navy department at Washington had been informed that boys had found wreckage that might be from the missing Sikorsky amphibian. The storekeeper said the town was so small that he would be sure to know about it if anything had been found and expressed the opinion that the report was a hoax.

Curtiss officials next telephoned the coast guard station at Ocean City, Del., close to Bethany Beach, and were told that the report of plane wreckage had been investigated and proved unfounded. The coast guard had been informed of the report by wireless from Washington and instructed to investigate.

RUMOR THAT POPE PIUS WILL BLESS 1,000,000 PERSONS

ROME, March 25—(AP)—A strong report in circulation is that the pope will bless 1,000,000 persons on Ascension day, May 9, from the Church of St. John Lateran.

The first exit from the Vatican of Pius XI, breaking the 59 years of voluntary imprisonment of the heads of Catholicism, has been a puzzle, as to time and place, which diplomats and politicians as well as courtiers of the pope and king were interested in solving. All sorts of suppositions were afloat but so far it was only a question of guessing, since no one knew when the event would occur which will remove the last trace of the Roman question.

The pope is now reported to have said, "I hope that my first visit outside the vatican will be to St. John Lateran."

This is the first of Christian churches, having been conferred by Emperor Constantine on the Bishop of Rome (the pope) as his episcopal residence. St. Sylvester, 34th in the chronology of the Roman pontiffs, was said to have dug with his own hands the foundation for the historic Basilica, which is known now as "the mother of all churches of the Eternal City."

TESTIMONY IN DIVORCE SUIT OF WALKER P. INMAN

RENO, Nev., March 25—(AP)—Alleged clandestine meetings between Mrs. Helen Garnet Paxton Inman and John Steele, vaudeville singer, were given further airing here today in the divorce suit of Walker P. Inman, stepson of the late James B. Duke, tobacco magnate.

Mrs. Fay E. Hancock, a witness for Inman, testified concerning visits of Mrs. Inman and Steel to her New York apartment where she said several "wild parties" had taken place.

The intimate details were reserved for the jury and court officials. Newspaper men withdrew at the insistence of Mrs. Hancock while she told part of her story.

Previously she had testified to finding Mrs. Inman and Steele together in a room in what was described as an indiscreet situation.

Several flashes of intractability were exhibited by the witness under cross examination. Asked to draw a plan of the apartment, she started the sketch and then tore it up, declaring that she could not complete it.

Counsel for Mrs. Inman asked that she be adjudged in contempt of court. A recess was taken after which Mrs. Hancock returned to the stand more composed and drew the plan.

WESTERLY

JUDGE WILLIAMS FAR-SIGHTED, AS INCIDENT PROVES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 26—Judge Oliver H. Williams of the Third judicial district court of Westerly the past week-end added to his reputation for clear and far-sighted vision, which must undoubtedly come from many years of viewing from the bench such evidence and transgressors as come before him. This time he was not seated upon the bench but on the seat behind the wheel of his Ford car and proceeding along Canal street at the legal rate of between 12 and 15 miles. The driver of the car following was suddenly surprised to hear the brakes of the judge's car grind on, the door of the car open, the judge cross the street and pick up a $1 bill which lay folded upon the sidewalk, and then return to his car.

Taxi Driver Joe Lupinazzo, who was on the sidewalk at the taxi stand, was beside the judge's car by the time the door was closed. The judge inquired if the bill belonged to him. "No," was the response, "but I'd like to know just where you get your eyeglasses, for I have stepped over it just twice." Whatever was the "opinon" handed down by the judge, Joe has since been practicing. He reports that he has progressed as far enough with the "references" that on Monday he was able to look across the street and see a one-cent piece lying between the car tracks, which he has added to the receipts of the day, in hope of a time when he may become as proficient as the Judge.

COLUMBIA

NO DECISION ON ROADS—MEANTIME MUD DEEPENS

A special town meeting was held Saturday afternoon in regard to road repairs. Last October the town voted to purchase a truck for road repair work, and engage a roadmaster to be in charge of operations. At the town meeting held March 2, this vote was rescinded, and it was voted to leave the matter of highway repairs in the hands of the selectmen. Twenty-one voters of the town immediately petitioned for a special meeting, which was held Saturday. It was voted to rescind the vote taken March 2, and a new proposition was brought before the voters, to buy a second-hand truck. This was lost by a small majority, and a committee was finally appointed by the chairman of the meeting, Eugene Winter. Philip Isham, Robert Cobb and Mrs. Hubert Collins, to work in conjunction with the selectmen to devise some satisfactory method of coping with the road situation. The meeting adjourned for two weeks, at the end of which time there will be another town meeting, at which time the committee will bring forward their proposition to be voted upon. Everyone is convinced that something must be done in regard to the care and repair of the dirt roads in town, to keep them fit for travel, but there seems to be many different opinions as to the best method of reaching the desired end. At present the country roads in this town, as well as probably every other town, are nearly impassable due to the deep mud. The only method of transportation is by horse or shank's mare, the auto is out of it entirely. It is believed that the mud season is about at its worst and must begin to improve before long, as the frost is practically out of the ground now.

DANIELSON

BANK BUILDING IS SOLD TO G. A. LACLAIR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 25—The most important real estate deal this year to date in Danielson was consummated this afternoon when the Windham County Savings bank building was sold for the Brooklyn Savings bank by J. C. Witter to George A. LaClair of South Main street, West Side. The building is a three-story brick structure in the heart of the business section and in one of the most advantageous locations in town. It is understood that Mr. LaClair has arranged to lease the large store, occupying the entire street level floor, to a large commercial concern for a long period of years, and that alterations to meet the needs of the lessee will be undertaken in the immediate future.

The building for a long term of years was occupied on the lower floor for banking purposes. The structure came into possession of the Brooklyn Savings bank when that institution absorbed the Windham County Savings bank, about 13 years ago. The Brooklyn Savings bank preferred to ease the former banking quarters of the Windham County Savings bank and retain its own quarters in the Phoenix building. For a number of years up to last fall the former banking quarters were under lease for office headquarters for the Danielson division of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, but was vacated for that use when the power company occupied its own building late last year and has since been vacant.

The second floor of the building, quite occupied is divided into offices, and Leo J. L'Homme post American Legion occupies the entire third story for its headquarters.

Mr. LaClair is arranging for the changes that his lease requires prior to occupancy, and the assurance is given that there will be another high grade improvement in the business section when the work is completed a few weeks hence. The vault is to be removed and other major changes made on the lower floor.

These attending the 36th annual state conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution at Windsor from Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., of this town were: Mrs. Lena C. Tripp, regent; Miss M. J. Mendell, vice-regent; Miss Marion D. Chollar, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Albert S. Field, registrar; Mrs. E. H. Keach, Mrs. J. H. Milligan, Mrs. Harry E. Back, Mrs. Mary Taynton, Mrs. Harold Taynton and Miss Elizabeth R. Woodworth. Aside from the business sessions, at which various important matters were considered, a pageant and pantomine of Scenes in Old Historic Windsor was a feature. The sessions of the conference were held at the First Congregational church, founded in 1630. An act of special importance by the conference was a vote to purchase 5,000 acres of forest land adjoining the People's forest along the Farmington river, this area to be set aside as a state D. A. R. park. The visitors from this town at Windsor were entertained at dinners and luncheons during their stay. A report on the conference has been given to the members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter at its meeting late the past week. Of interest at this meeting was a roll call relative to Beautiful and Historic Brooklyn and Killingly. The hostesses were Mrs. George O. Thomas, Mrs. Lena C. Tripp, Mrs. Lee Carpenter, Mrs. Frank T. Preston, Mrs. Helen S. Dowe and Mrs. Heath. A guest at the meeting was Mrs. W. H. Putnam, formerly of Danielson and member of a chapter of the D. A. R. at Hartford.

It appeared today that it may be necessary for officers to check up on dogs that are at liberty to determine whether all have tags attached to their collars showing that they have been vaccinated, have completed a 21 days' quarantine period and have a right to be at liberty. Within the last two days reports have come in of numbers of roaming dogs, and expression of the belief that not all of these have been vaccinated. Officials point out that violation of the quarantine regulations is rather a serious thing, and that every effort to check it will be made.

Members of Killingly High school's band were a bit disappointed this afternoon. PUTNAM

PUTNAM MAY BE DISTRIBUTING CENTER FOR BEACON OIL CO.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 25—If an understanding can be reached between the common council and the Beacon Oil Co. of Everett, Mass. Putnam will become a distributing point for the Beacon Oil products in eastern Connecticut. This was the information released this afternoon by Frederick W. Seward, agent of the Cutler property on Main street, the choice of site selected by the authorities of the refining company for the establishment of their Connecticut branch.

It was definitely stated this afternoon that officials of the oil company have come to terms with the owners of the Cutler property for the sale of the land. Plans, outlining the construction of giant oil and gasoline storage tanks, have been submitted to the common council and will be acted upon at the April meeting of the board of aldermen. The confirmation of the project will also depend upon the state officials of the department of safety, issuing a permit to the company to operate such a plant in this state.

The Cutler property is situated on North Main street near the intersection of Main and May streets. The ice offices of Medbury-Trowbridge have fronting on Main street while directly in the rear is a large dwelling house. There is also a large barn which was formerly used for the storage of automobiles. These, Mr. Seward said, will be razed in the event the real estate sale transpires. A railroad siding for the unloading of oil tankers will be constructed along this boundary with piping facilities to drain the contents of cars into the proposed storage tank. Mr. Seward said today that the oil concern has provided for the erection of concrete cylinders to surround the steel gasoline tanks. In the event fire should take to the tanks, the effects of the blaze would be confined to an air space within the concrete enclosure, thereby affording complete protection to surrounding property.

It will be remembered a few years ago that a fire broke out in the distributing tanks of the Standard Oil Co. on Mechanic street, causing considerable damage by fire and for several hours threatening explosion before the flames consumed the gasoline and burned out. If all legal grants are obtained the Beacon Oil Co. will start construction on the project at once.

The local enrollment work for the Citizens Military Training camp is being carried out by G. Stanley Shaw, commander of the Ansiem Mayotte Post American Legion. Mr. Shaw has urged that boys obtain the applications at once, since a limited number of students can be accepted.

Two Putnam boys have completed the "blue" course or fourth year of training and have received certificates of graduation, which in reality are commissions in the Officers Reserve corps of the United States army. They are Lieut. Jerome W. Andrews and Lieut. Harold A. Arnold. Mr. Shaw of the local bureau will provide any boy with necessary application blanks for admission to the part in the government's vacation programme, via the Citizens' Military Training camps.

S. Yarock, of 202 Providence street, was injured in an automobile crash which occurred in Oxford Sunday evening. Mr. Yarock was proceeding to Putnam from Worcester when he came to an intersection in the town of Oxford which is guided by a traffic beacon. According to the Putnam driver the flash light in the tower of the beacon was not functioning, and as he approached it, the lights of another vehicle blinded him causing him to swerve his car into the traffic guide, dismantling it and the impact of the crash knocking it several feet from its position in the highway. Mrs. Yarock and two children were slightly injured by the effects of the sudden shock, but were not victims of any crashes. POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Mother

I see her moving, with a sunlit face
Each pleasant morning in that fragrant place
She calls her garden, clipping here and there
A sprig of heliotrope for us to wear
Or spray of white verbena that has spread
Too far beyond the borders of its bed.
And while she loosens soil and tweaks a weed
And marks a poppy that will go to seed
To flame again next year—she smiles to see
How clamorous a garden spot can be;
Crying her care like children she has known
With tugging hands, that are too early grown.
And now she spends her lonely tenderness
Upon the flowers catching at her dress.

—MILDRED WESTON, in "The Singing Hill."

Belling of the Stags

My joy it was to rise
With the early morning skies
All alight,
And to climb the dew-wet slope
Where the crested deer did troop
Out of night.

At least two hundred head
By the lofty-antlered led
They would leave their bracken bed
For the day;
And the stags in grand array
With their deep low-breasted cry
Fling their breath into the sky
From the brae.

No organ sends a roll
So delightful to my soul.
As the branchy-crested race.
When they pause in their proud race.
When they pause in their proud pace
To bellow in the face Of Ben Dorain.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

How many members of the Wide Awake circle know that the most exquisitely dainty home built by the bill and feet of birds is that of the ruby-throated humming-bird. When completed it is scarcely larger than an English walnut and is usually saddled on a small horizontal limb of a tree or a shrub frequently many feet from the ground. It is composed almost entirely of soft plant fibers, fragments of spiders' webs sometimes being used to hold them in shape. The sides are thickly studded with bits of lichen, and practiced indeed is the eye of man who can distinguish it from a knot on the limb. The eggs are the size of quinine pills.

Although the humming birds nest is exceedingly frail, there appears to be nothing on record to show that any great numbers of them come to grief during the summer rains. It is, however, not called upon for a long tenure of occupancy. Within three weeks after the two little white eggs are laid the young have departed on their tiny pinions.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

The Paper Mill

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the third time I have written to you. I am going to tell you about a visit to a paper mill.

The 27th of February two other boys and I went to the paper mill at Andover. It is a new mill, which was just completed about a month ago. They have from 10 to 12 men working in it. First the paper is put into sort of a tank where it is chopped up. It then comes out looking something likecement. It is then run through a pipe to three large tanks where it is mixed with other things. It intercomes out in sheets and is dried on cars, which run on tracks and which are pushed into rooms where it is dried. It is then taken out and soaked in water and then put on three rollers called calendars. There are two of these which press the paper out. It is then cut off and tied in bundles which are loaded on to trucks and taken to other places. While we were there a truck load left the mill for Hartford. I hope the Wide Awakes have enjoyed my story.

In The Haunted House

Dear Uncle Jed: One pleasant July morning my friend, Roberta, came over to my house. After swinging idly in the hammock for a while I suddenly had an idea. "Oh! let's go over to the haunted house," I cried, "and we'll look it over. There's nothing there to hurt us," I said, as I saw a look of doubt pass over my friend's face. After kissing mother good bye we started for the haunted house. It was a tumbled-down structure about half a mile from our house. It had been deserted for over 25 years. After reaching it we boldly entered the first room. The ceiling was covered with cobwebs. In a corner of the room was a huge open fireplace. With oh! and ahs! we went from room to room examining the musty old articles. We had just come to the last room when we heard a scratch. We were terribly frightened! Suppose it was a ghost! We looked toward the corner where the noise had come from and we saw a figure draped in white!

Starting to run from the room we heard a laugh behind us, and there stood my brother, the figure that had been draped in white. He had learned from mother where we had gone and had come to frighten us. After getting into the fresh air we all had a good laugh at "our day's adventure."

The Price of Disobedience.

Dear Uncle Jed: Kathleen Wilson was a stenographer in one of her grandfather's business firms. Her grandfather was a millionaire and at his death Kathleen inherited one-half of his money and property. He also gave her a treasure map, which, he said, led to an unknown treasure cave. Kathleen and her brother were to have this cave.

Now Kathleen was a very rich girl and she immediately arranged for a trip to Europe. Her brother reasoned with her and told her, as we ourselves know, that news travels fast and undoubtedly some robber must have heard of their newly acquired wealth and the map and would try to take them away. Kathleen, however, laughed at his fears and told him he was a silly, superstitious little boy and she was determined more than ever to have her own way.

No sooner had she arrived in Europe than she was kidnapped by a band of border ruffians. They took the treasure map and started for the cave.

Kathleen wired to her brother about the loss of the map and he immediately summoned the police. Luckily, also he had traced the map on a sheet of paper and with all possible speed hastened to the cave. Unfortunately for the robbers they were too slow and Kathleen's brother arrived there first, got the treasure, and, when the ruffians came along, seized and imprisoned them.

Kathleen now resolved to let her brother be her guardian and she would obey his every wish. "And remember, Sis," her brother gaily said as he helped her off the boat in New York, "Keep away from strange people, they're unhealthy."

Little Bird Recovers.

Dear Uncle Jed: One time as I was coming home from school my attention was attracted to a little bird which was lying in the middle of the road. Going up to the bird I picked it up and brought it home. Mother thought it wouldn't live, but with hope and courage it soon became well. I don't think I would want any boy or girl to hit or throw stones at my dogs, so I guess I wouldn't want to see any little animals hurt or stoned.

The Old School.

Dear Uncle Jed: I received the book which you sent me and thank you very much for it. I have not read it as I have just come home from my vacation of which I am about to tell.

I am sure you all like to take a trip back to the old school which you used to go to. Back to the old schoolhouse and also to see my old schoolmates. Early Saturday morning I got ready to start on my journey. It did not take long for my trip as I was home, soon eating my breakfast. Soon it started to grow dark and before I knew it I was eating my supper. After supper I went to bed and was soon in dreamland. Next morning very early, having my lunch up, I started to school with my friend. Walking very fast these thoughts were going through my head. Would I see my old friends? Who was the teacher? We soon reached the school and once more I was having a gay talk with my friends. Although there were new friends I soon got acquainted with them all. How strange the schoolhouse seemed. Soon I heard a sound of an automobile and who could it be but my friend's teacher. Soon the bell rang and we were going up the old stone steps and as we went up I thought of "The Schoolhouse By the Road," which I love to recite. The first thing I noticed was where I used to sit and keep my books. Was it changed? No it was the same old desk. Recess came soon and we had a jolly crowd talking. I was asked many questions of where I lived and how I liked to live here. So many were flashed at me I could not answer them all at once. What could I tell them when they asked me how I liked to live here. With a good proud laugh I told them I lived in the most beautiful city they would ever see. They were all glad to hear this and said they would certainly like to visit this place. I can not tell what else happened that day as the clock soon said 3 o'clock. Leaving my friends behind I soon trudged along the same familiar road. The thing that seemed the strangest to me was that the children were little taller and I could not tell them from one another. This is all for this time and will bid you all farewell and Uncle Jed also.

Making a Snow Man.

Dear Uncle Jed: After church Sunday I came home and changed my good clothes and put on my old everyday clothes. I did a little work in the house and then went out and my sister and I said we would make a snow man. We rolled one big ball and set it up, but when we rolled the next big ball to set it on top of the other big ball we had a very hard time, because my sister is small and she could not lift it. After a while we got it up on and then we made the head, for the eyes and nose we had nuts. For the mouth we had a long stick. We had a pipe for him, and an old grey hat. After a while our friends came to play with us. The sun had shone on it for a while and it was bending over, so we began to throw snowballs at it and after a while we knocked it over. Then we came in and ate our dinner and did the dishes and stayed in the rest of the day.

Princess Delight's Holidays.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is an original story. It was Monday morning. Princess Delight did not have to go to school. She went to ask her mother if she could go to visit her grandmother for a week. Her mother consented. Princess Delight started out in a chariot with some dresses wrapped in. When she got to her grandmother's her grandma was very glad to see her.

Princess Delight went out to seek her chum Lady Tiphane's daughter, Dorothy Anne.

"Let's go for a walk!" exclaimed Dorothy Anne when they got together.

"Where!" exclaimed Princess Delight.

"Why out to the Sugar Maples," said Dorothy Anne.

Every day the two little girls had something pleasant to do or exciting. When the last day came for her to go home she did not want to, but she did. Her chariot came for her to go home, so she ended her holiday happy but very tired out.

Helping Mother.

Dear Uncle Jed: After the snow storm I helped my mother make paths from one place to another. From the house to the woodshed and from the woodshed to the well and to the henhouse. My sister swept off the porch and shoveled the snow off. After we helped our mother she said we could go out, so we went out and played snow balls. It was great fun. Then when we had played a little while my mother said it was time for dinner and after dinner my mother washed the wishes and we went outside and played with three boys. After a while they had to go home. So we made a fox-in-the-ring, and played in it and when night came we brought in the wood and then went in for the night. We ate supper and did the dishes. When we finished we took a bath and went to bed.

My First Letter.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide-Awakes. I would like to be a member of this circle. I am going to tell you about my vacation last summer. My aunt and uncle came down from Worcester, Mass., in their car and got me. I stayed there three weeks and had a very nice time. My uncle took me to Green Hill park to see the buffalos. I went in bathing every day with the other girls. I also enjoyed myself helping my aunt around the house. There is a store right near them where I used to get ice cream or soda every day. When my three weeks were up they brought me back home. I expect to go up there again this summer on my vacation. I go to school and am in the second grade.

My Foolish Fright.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first story that I have written to you and I hope that I will receive a book. My story is "My Foolish Fright."

One morning very early, I awoke and I heard a strange noise. I listened attentively. I had many foolish thoughts. My first thought was about the cat down in the cellar. My second thought was about the pans in the pantry.

I gathered up my senses and thought of what I could do. I went to my mother and told her about the strange noise. She told me that I was dreaming, but I said that I was wide awake and not dreaming. She told me that she would see about it in the morning so I went back to bed. When I got up that morning my mother told me that the noise was from the neighbors. He is an expressman and he was unloading iron pipes and that was the strange noise that I heard.

I hope that you and the Wide-Awakes will enjoy my story.

Went to Fair.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you in a long time. I always read the Wide-Awake stories and enjoy them very much.

Last September I went to the fair with some friends. I never went to the fair before. I rode on the merry-go-round several times. Some demonstrations were given by 4-H children. We took our lunch with us. After lunch we rode on the ponies. I rode on them three times. When the horses were racing one horse grew lame. I felt very sorry for it. Before we went home I had a ride on the ferris wheel. I did not like it at all.

I hope the Wide-Awakes will all have a chance to go to the fair.

Snow Birds

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to you for a long time and hope that you and the Wide Awake members will enjoy my story. I am going to write about the Snow Birds.

It was a cold day and snow was on the ground. I saw some snow birds on the ground looking for something to eat. I took some bread and a dish full of water and put them in the yard and went away to let the birds come down. A flock of snow birds came down and ate all the bread.

My Pet Cats

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to you about my pet cats. One is named "Jenny" and the other "Whitey" on account of its white fur. Jenny is named after my doll because they have the same nature. I will write some other time about him.

An Exciting Adventure

Dear Uncle Jed: I went in the woods one day with my friends, Eloise and Pearl. We came to a nice shady place and talked for a while. We then began to eat. When we finished we walked around for a while. Elois asked me to take one path, while she took another. I walked a little too far and was lost. I called for them, but it did no good.

Thinking of a scheme I followed my dog Toddy, until we came to a house. I knocked and asked the lady where Pleasant View school was. She said to walk straight and I'd get home. I thanked her and walked along the road. Soon I saw familiar sights and knew I must be near home. I soon saw the girls walking by the car tracks When they saw me they told me they had been hunting for me. I went home and my mother said not to separate again when we were in the woods.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about a contest we had here at a store. For every thing we bought we got a certain amount of votes. The contest lasted from October 30, 1928, to February 28, 1929. We turned our votes in every week. I had the most votes and I won a nice bicycle. The prizes were given out last Friday. Several other prizes were given. Last Thursday I turned in 15 million votes. I hope the Wide-Awakes will enjoy my story.

The Snow Storm.

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you about the snow storm last Saturday. It began snowing early in the evening. It was still snowing when I went to bed.

All the trees were bent down. And in a short time Sunday morning the sun came out and spoiled the beautiful sight.

On Rainy Days.

My Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and the Wide-Awakes. I am going to tell you what I do on rainy days. On days we don't have school and it rains I play with my dolls or sew. Sometimes my mother and I go to the city and shop. When I come home I play school or read a book. I am in the fourth grade and have lots of studies to do. One afternoon it rained I read a book. The name of the book was "The Camp Fire girls in the Woods. My father gave it to me for Christmas. It was about Little Bessie who lived with the Hoovers. They made her work like a slave. She had to chop wood, and do the dishes. One day while she was doing the dishes she was slow, so she got a beating. It was an interesting story. I think you and the Wide-Awakes will like it if you read it.

An Adventure

Dear Uncle Jed: One bright summer day my brother, sisters and some friends of mine went to the woods to pick flowers. As we were picking we went further and further. At last we came to a road which went through a field. My friend said, "Where is your sister?" I said she was somewhere picking flowers, but we called and nobody answered. And my friend's brother was gone, too. We were frightened and dropped the flowers and went looking for her brother and my sister.

At last one of my friends said that there was a camp of gypsies not far from there and maybe they took them. So we went there but didn't go to the camp first, but hid in the bushes and watched what was going on. Then to our surprise, we saw two gypsies with my friend's brother and my sister walking into camp.

My sister seemed tired and didn't care to walk fast, but he lashed her with a whip and she started to scream but he stopped her by putting his hand over her mouth. Then they brought them to a wagon where they locked them up. As the gypsies passed us we jumped behind the wagon where they couldn't see us. We unlocked the door and took them out, closed the door again and went home tired and happy. My friend said the gypsies will be surprised when they find them gone.

Going on a Hike

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about "going on a hike." One summer morning my friend, Dorothy, and I planned to go on a hike. We started about 7 o'clock in the morning. As we were walking along we admired the sun, which was so red and looked like a ball of fire. We climbed a hill and when we looked down we felt dizzy. Then we felt hungry and ate our lunch, which we took along. We came to a road and on a sign it said, "five miles to Norwich." We turned back and arrived home glad and tired at six o'clock. We ate our supper and went right to sleep.

A Hunt in the Woods

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you many times and I think I will write to you again. Today I will tell you how some boys and I made a hut in the woods.

One day last summer I asked some boys to help me build a hut in the woods. All the boys were willing to help me. First I told each one to get a hatchet, and some nails. I took a hatchet also. Some of the boys also brought some sandwiches. After everything was ready, we started off.

It took us about two minutes to reach the woods. Then all of us started looking for a place to build the hut. In about a half hour, we found a good spot to build one. I told the boys to get some sticks and branches for the frame, and little branches and leaves for the top. I made the frame, and the boys helped me to cover it up. In a coup of minutes everything was done. Then we went in and started to eat our lunch. We were about to finish our lunch when we heard some noise like rain, above our heads When we came out, it was starting to rain hard. We ran to see if the rain went through, but it did not. So we stayed in until the rain stopped. After it stopped, we went home.

Cat's Name Snowball

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to the Wide-Awakes circle.

I have a little white pussy cat and its name is Snowball. Every day it has a blue ribbon on its neck, but on Sundays it has a pink one. My mother told me to sell it. JEWETT CITY

BURNS GETS OFF EASY ON TWO SERIOUS COUNTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 25—Jewett City people are considering the fine of $1 and costs, and a suspended jail sentence, which was imposed on John Burns, of Jewett City, Monday, in the Sprague town court by Judge Henry Adams. Burns entered a plea of guilty to driving under the influence and operating a car without a license. Local Police Officer Henry Viegarde brought Burns to Jewett City, Monday afternoon, where he was locked up in the police station. Tuesday or Wednesday he will be presented in the Griswold town court before Judge John T. Barry, charged with the theft of an automobile, the property of Dona Dugas, of this place. Information relative to the arrest near Baltic Sunday afternoon, is to the effect that Deputy Sheriff John P. McGuire, after hearing the complaint that 12-year-old Edna Wilcox had narrowly escaped being run down, took Burns into custody on Pautipaug Hill, two miles from Baltic.

Mrs. Anthony is in New York and will bring back the latest Easter hats.—adv.

The big fire whistle appeared again Monday afternoon in the "Wolf, Wolf," role, when linemen working on the cables blew a few erratic circuit-breaker alarms. One fireman figured that he should sleep with his service boots on, with his scaling ladder handy.

Friends are pleased to learn that Mrs. E. F. Burleson, who has been a patient in the Backus hospital following a major operation Feb. 25, is at her home in Sylvandale, with every condition favorable for complete and speedy recovery.

Quarantine Lifted

State Health Officer Dr. Lanpher of Hartford and Lisbon Health Officer F. L. Kanahan visited George Kennedy's home in Lisbon Wednesday, and pronounced the family out of quarantine for small pox. About eighty school children have been vaccinated.

Circuit League Meeting

The Quinebaug Circuit league met Friday evening at the M. E. church. Owing to the absence of five of the seven leagues of the circuit, no business was transacted. A delightful program was given by Mrs. Ella Geer, Miss Bessie LaLiberte and Everett W. Thornton. There was also a reading by Miss Gillan, of Norwich Town. Rev. George Warren Potter, of Norwich Town, gave a fine talk on "Where, the Perfect Epworth League?" He exhibited a large placard with the letters contained in the words Epworth league, displayed without arrangement. He explained the meaning of each letter and when put into its rightful place spelled the name Epworth league. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served under the direction of Miss Bessie LaLiberte. The games were in charge of Irving M. Thornton. There were four present from Danielson, and ten visitors from Norwich Town.

Delwyn Martin, of the Dudley Bible Institute, is at home here for his Easter vacation.

Allen Gay Thornton, of Pawtucket, R. I., was a week-end visitor with his sister, Miss Ruby C. Thornton.

FARM LEGISLATION.

In less than three weeks the 71st congress will assemble in special session for the purpose of giving consideration to farm relief and tariff revision. It is not improbable that there will be action in addition to that but no one knows what, since the effort will be to do only what is really necessary.

Farm legislation has been before the national legislature for a long time, much longer than should have been necessary and much longer than would have been required had there not been such insistence for the equalization fee. That fee has been the cause of two vetoes, sensible ones, and there is no chance that it will be enacted, but there has been a call from certain of the leaders, seeking farm legislation for a statement of the administration's views. That is something which should be expected to come in a presidential message, but the desire was to get some idea through an expression by Secretary Hyde of the department of agriculture. The desire seems to be to get an outline of the administration's principles.

As the result of this appeal it was set forth that it was not the purpose of the president to set forth a detailed programme for farm relief for the guidance of the special session. There may be such an outline of principles as has been referred to but beyond that the president will look to congress to determine what is needed and the means of providing it. This evidences the unwillingness of the president to act as a dictator to congress. This doesn't mean that he will expect the equalization fee to be revived but it would indicate that he would be ready to use his influence for or against certain features after he has had a chance to study proposals which are advanced for such a purpose.

If the impression had been gained that the president proposed to set forth in black and white just what must be done in the way of farm legislation the response to the appeal for the administration's views would seem to completely upset it. That however doesn't mean lack of interest or willingness to aid on the part of the chief executive.

SAMUEL REA.

Another of the great railroad leaders has been taken in the death of Samuel Rea, for more than a half century identified with the Pennsylvania system and of which he was president at the time of his retirement.

Beginning as a boy of 16 he was thoroughly grounded in railroading. He made his way up the ladder steadily as his ability became evident and he concluded his career at the head of one of the country's greatest systems which had been growing greater under the skillful guidance. The influence which he shed during the years he was in an executive capacity there will long remain. This can be appreciated when it is realized that it was through his direction the Pennsylvania made its entrance into New York city through the tunnel under the Hudson and connection was made with the New Haven system by means of the great Hell Gate bridge. It was for this linking up of the systems that it was possible to overcome the hurdles around New York city by passenger trains going beyond that city.

It is one thing to conceive such a way around difficulties and another to carry them out so successfully as has been done in this instance. This part of the country is thus directly concerned in the passing of a man whose railroad accomplishments had so great an influence upon its railroad service. His work in that particular illustrated that capabilities of the men and demonstrated most convincingly why he should have been able to get to the top of the ladder which he started to climb from such a humble beginning. His place among big railroad men of this country was long ago established and history will keep it conspicuous.

THE DANGEROUS CANOE.

We have only stepped across the threshold into spring and we are far away from the days when crowds will gather at the bathing beaches, but we have already gotten a lesson thus early in the advisability of keeping out of canoes unless you are able to swim. Even then the dangers of such a craft are many and serious.

On the Charles river at Boston there are always many who are using canoes. That might be expected to be the place where they would be expert in handling the cockleshells and also clever in avoiding and escaping from upsets. To some extent that may be true, but that is the locality where the first life has been lost this year from the upsetting of a canoe and where many are drowned every year because they are unable to take care of themselves after being thrown into the water from such craft.

Canoes haven't taken on any new frailty in recent years. The fact is that through different devices there have been valuable contributions to increased safety. And yet they are far from what might be called safe. They are subject to all kinds of influences such as sudden gusts, choppy waters, the disturbance of the balance and once they get started there's no stopping them. They are the most treacherous craft and yet they are highly popular. Those who know the least about their peculiarities are often the most eager to risk their lives in them. They take the greatest risks because they have no fear, and yet the great number of instances where people have been drowned from canoes furnish a warning that ought to impress itself upon the weakest of memories.

How long the list of persons drowned from upset canoes will be before the season ends is problematical. It will probably average with other years, and yet it represents a needless loss of life which should to a great extent be prevented.

Knowing how to swim will not furnish the complete answer for there are circumstances under which swimmers succumb. It is nevertheless a decidedly wise precaution, a protection which should be insisted upon by all those whose work or pleasure takes them about the water. If only those who can swim ventured into canoes there would be few cases of drownings in connection therewith.

RAISING TREES.

In the belief that seeing is believing, towns and states have sponsored the idea of setting out certain areas to trees. These efforts at forestry serve as demonstration plots. They show what can be done and they encourage others to do likewise. The idea is to set the example and with the aid of other influences to hope for the best. There is need for such efforts and there are opportunities on all sides for responding.

Just the same as there are those who want to see what can be accomplished there are those who also want to see what someone has actually accomplished in the way of returns. Trees, they say, look good but is there a market for the product?

Out in Barry county, Michigan, according to the Detroit News a farmer has kept accurate tabs on his woodlot for a period of 20 years. He is not a novice at the business and his experience is interesting. According to the News, "From a tract of ten acres of mixed forest trees, this farmer cut 14,000 board feet of timber in 1910; 18,000 in 1912, 7,000 feet in 1918, 27,000 feet in 1926 and 2,000 feet in 1927. This was accomplished not by clearing but by taking merely the mature trees. The owner has been offered $2,500 for the timber considered now fit to cut. In addition he has had as a by-product of the lumbering the fuel necessary for his farmhouse and has made maple syrup from the sap of the maple trees. The total value of the products from the ten acres has been an average of $36.50 per year, the farmer estimates."

If that can be done in Michigan it can also be done in Connecticut. We have the land that ought to be put to use, we have the farmers who would be willing to accept the additional income, we are able to get the trees reasonably and we are in position to market the crop.

No reference is made to the time given by the Michigan farmer to his woodlot or the expense involved in taking care of it for the score of years, but it cannot be imagined that it was extensive in either case. It is one of the examples, nevertheless, which ought to stimulate thought in connection with the big acreage in this state which is available for just such purposes.

THE NEW QUOTA PLAN

In view of developments there seems little doubt but what President Hoover will ask the extraordinary session of congress to further postpone the date for making the national origins quota plan effective.

Because it was obligatory he has issued a proclamation making the new arrangement effective the first of July. Strong efforts were made in the last congress to postpone the date when it would go into operation, as has been done twice before, but they failed. There is still an opportunity for this to be done at the special session. Floor Leader Tilson of the house has declared that the house would consider it if it should be sent to it from the senate, but it is in the senate where it encountered obstruction in the last session.

By this new plan it is expected that there will be a reduction of about 14,000 in the number of immigrants admitted. Objection arises to the method that is being employed because it is believed that it will cause much confusion and prove cumbersome. The chief trouble threatens to come from the difficulty in getting at the pedigree of every American citizen in order to learn whence his parents came for the number to come in from the various countries would be in accordance with the percentage of their nationals already in the country. The percentage of English, French or German or other nations would indicate the percentage of those nationalists to be admitted of the 150,000 immigrants yearly.

The scheme is what is encountering the trouble for it is believed impractical, but it rests solely with the special session to stop it from going into operation now.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Was it the breaking up of winter or just the enthusiastic entrance of gentle spring?

The man on the corner says: In these days only part of the carefully carried packages contain eggs.

General Escobar declares it is war to the end. Some of the rebel leaders have already reached that goal.

These are the days when the weatherman can quickly clean out the coal bin or help to carry some over to another winter.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, March 25—New England men will be the leaders of the republicans in the 71st congress which convenes April 15th. President Hoover refers to the session in its technical and correct tern of "extraordinary session", and not with the abbreviated term of "extra" now in common use. In fact Mr. Hoover bids fair to be quite punctillious in his language and unless this correspondent loses his Yankee guess, the coming year will show a marked difference in the publicity and news-giving methods between the western president, Mr. Hoover, and the eastern president, Mr. Coolidge. Before election they were often referred to as of the same type, but although it is too early to predict what the new administration will adopt as to methods and manners, already the two men show entirely different traits and type. While Mr. Coolidge was always quietly persistent, there is general feeling here that Mr. Hoover will be equally persistent but more aggressive and out-spoken in making his views known. So the administration "as is" is quite likely to be a different proposition for news gathers to handle, than the administration "as was".

Col. John Q. Tilson, member from the 5th Connecticut district was overwhelmingly the choice for floor leader for the 71st congress. In fact no other name was even mentioned in that connection. Tilson has been so fair, so sensible, so openly positive without aggression or offense, that every one in the house admires him, and he has the respect and regard of all of the 435 members regardless of partisanship.

Over in the senate it was Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire who won an equally complete victory for reelection as president protempore and chairman of the all powerful rule committee. So the two biggest positions went to Connecticut and New Hampshire without opposition.

The forestry commission, as under the Weeks act, made a fine showing in the report submitted a short time ago, especially regarding the conservation of New England forests. Senator Keyes of New Hampshire is chairman of that commission and was highly gratified with the extensive purchases made in the White Mountain region. In the so called Mad River region much land of great scenic beauty was acquired.

With this tract was acquired 33,324,000 board feet of hardwood timber and 231,000 cords of pulp wood. The virgin timber contributes largely to the scenic beauty of the Notch and other famous points in the White mountains.

The White mountain purchase was second in the high price paid for land. It was acquired at a price of $47.57 an acre, while the top price of $[illegible] purchases was a tract in West Virginia, especially selected as a nursery site, and bought at $97.22 per acre.

During the past year 14 tracts were purchased in the White mountain area which now has a total acreage of 314,934 acres. The commission expects to acquire additional lands at the headwaters of the Swift, Sawyer and Pemigewasset rivers. It also hopes to find an increased market for its timber and do much in the way of stocking cut-over land with seedlings.

The so-called progressive group in the senate is likely to find its wings clipped in the 71st congress. The political makeup of that body, as it now stands is 54 republicans, 39 democrats, 1 farm-labor and 2 vacancies. One is caused by the refirement of Vice President Curtis from the senate and the other to the failure as yet to seat Senator Vare.

The republicans will number 55 without the seat of Vare, while the best the opposition can muster is 40. Senator Shipstead, farm laborite, who sits on the republican side but more often votes with the insurgents or democrats, no longer will hold the balance of power, as he did in the 70th congress. Even if the insurgents, hold their own, they can cast but eight votes at the most, so there is every probability that President Hoover will get a pretty good margin for whatever he desires to have go down in the name of the administration, provided he holds to party principals himself, and does not now too much independent action to please the old time regulars. In other words, President Hoover is likely to be free from many of the perplexities that met President Coolidge in congress, as the margin of republican votes in the senate was then reduced to one, and in the absence of any republican senator, threw the balance overboard in the twinkling of an eye.

Thanks to the Hoover landslide a great number of democratic senators vacated their seats on March 4th.

Prominent among them was Gerry of Rhode Island, who thus left Walsh of Massachusetts the only New England democrat in that body. Other democrats defeated and so retired March 4th are Edwards of New Jersey; Bruce of Maryland, whose son married the only daughter of Secretary Mellon; Bayard of Delaware, whose picturesque flowing necktie is the most "artistic" of anything seen on the floor of the senate since the days of James Hamilton Lewis, famed for georgous tie and "weskit" as he always pronounced those remarkable vests he wore; Mayfield of Texas gives place to a brother democrat, even though brotherly love plays no part in the transaction. Mayfield wears a five gallon hat, and frock coat of the typical "southern gentleman".

The ways and means committee of the house steps on the gas, when a large group of witnesses are waiting to testify on the proposed revision of the tariff. Chairman Hawlet is a quick worker, when it comes to dismissing a witness after his testimony is seemingly at an end. If fact, he makes some of them almost jump out of the boots. The other day a witness stopped to catch his breath, when Hawley rattled off, with precision and speed "The committee thanks you for the information you have given. Next witness please!"

One day it happened that Congressman Crisp of Georgia, one of the most brilliant and valuable democrats of the house, had intended to ask the witness some questions, but was one jump too late. So he said "I had a question I wanted to ask". In double quick time Hawley said "The witness will return to the stand". It was rapid fire and sounded like one long word. For a minute Crisp looked embarrassed then laughed and said "You were so quick, Mr. chairman, that I have lost my bearing and can't think what the question was. "In a twinkling and without blinking an eye lash Hawley turned to the witness and said "The committee thanks you for the testimony you have given, who comes next?". But if Hawley kept a straight face, the committee and the crowded room failed to do so, and the next witness took the stand before the grins of the onlookers had been smoothed out.

ENTERTAINING EGBERT

"What Donald needs," said Donald's father, saxely, "is somethinx to engaze his attention and occupy his time."

"Harmlessly," amended Donald's mother.

"Naturally," agreed Donald's father, somewhat briskly. "Now if he had a train set—a complete one—run electrically——"

"He would have the time of his life throwing the cars one by one out of the window," interrupted mother.

"A train—a really good one," continued father, not to be discouraged, "would be instructive as well as entertaining."

"As long as it lasted," murmured mother, retrieving a section of dismembered train track from a pot of English ivy, where Donald had stuck it, trellis fashion.

"I am speaking of a really high class set," retorted father. "You must study a child's psychology. A child senses inferiority, and destructiveness is often merely an expressioin of displeasure."

"I must say that I wish Donald hadn't been displeased with my Venetian glass candlesticks," sighed mother. "Personally I thought them anything but inferior."

"The train set I had in mind is a beauty," said father, vainly trying to curb his enthusiasm. "It has figure eight tracks a station, an automatic stop and a sure-enough signal tower, block lights that flash off and on and crossing gates that really lower when you press a button."

"Thrilling," tactfully enthused mother. "And just when did you say it was to be delivered?"

"Tomorrow," confessed father. "I thought it would be nice to have a new toy to help entertain Egbert when his father comes over to talk business this week-end."

"Now don't let Donald open the package when the train set is delivered," cautioned father as he left for tow nearly in the morning.

"But opening a package is half the fun of getting a present," protested mother.

"This set is entirely too good to risk in Donald's hands until I have thoroughly explained the mechanism, and even then I think he should not play with it except under my supervision," said father. "So be sure to put the box out of his reach when it arrives."

"Yes, dear" dutifully answered mother.

"You see, McLaren," said Donald's father to the father of Egbert, "the tracks have small patent latches so that when the train attains a high speed the sections of the track do not spring apart and derail the engine."

"A regular block signal system," commented Egbert's father admiringly. "And crossing gates—do they work, too?"

"You bet," answered Donald's father. "Throw the switch for the current, press that little button on the left, and down go the gates. Pretty neat, eh?"

"I'll say! And does the train stop and start automatically?"

"Press the button on the right—the green one—that starts the train. The red one on the left stops it."

"Well, I declare!"

"The yellow one controls the gates—see?"

"By Jove, the block signals work too—well, well, well."

"Take a turn at the buttons," magnanimously offered Donald's father.

"Hmmm. Stop—go. Well, well, well!"

"Wouldn't the set work?" anxiously inquired Donald's mother as the McLaren car drove away. "You promised to call the children when you had it put together and running." Father looked guilty. "To tell the truth, McLaren and I were so busy talking we never gave a thought to the youngsters. Business, you know, is business," he added, impressively.

"And train sets are train sets," cryptically answered mother. "However, it's quite all right. Both the children were happy and good as lambs. Donald had a new interest to engage his attention and occupy his time."

"Don't tell me you bought still more toys," exclaimed father. "You know I rather plunged on his train set."

"I suspected as much," said mother. "For my part I plunged 30 cents—bought a bound of lathing nails and two tack hammers. The children spent the afternoon pounding nails into Donald's old wooden blocks. Egbert said he hadn't had so much fun since the day he caught a snake."

"Humph," said Donald's father. "Children are certainly queer."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Just Boys

Mr. Editor: I question as to whether there is a man anywhere who doesn't love to travel back along life's trail, or doesn't love to recall some boyish prank, that, as he moves along with the years, seems to have been just a happy inspiration. We, even today, have to laugh to ourselves when we think of the comical side of what is nothing more or less than one of life's comedies. We recall some times when we would do something that would at the time seem harmless, at least to us, but as we see them today we look upon it with a certain amount of disfavor. But then we were only a bunch of "kids," care-free and irresponsible. We were always looked upon with a certain amount of suspicion, and now we have taken the place of the others and we in turn give the boys of today the once-over. Walk along the street and we may meet up with a bunch of boys and some among them have a suspicious bulge in and around the waist band of their trousers. No doubt they have been on a foraging expedition and have made a raid on someone's apple orchard. Don't be too inquisitive. They were secured somewhere and somehow, but how! Now just search your own memory and see if you didn't do the same and I am sure your answer will be yes. For this is a sure sign of youth, for no apple that was bought could equal an apple in flavor that was secured—somehow. Many boys have been into an apple orchard and when they have come out have been surprised to find their shirts filled out with apples, but how this self-same fruit came into our possession was a mystery—weren't we a bunch of innocent "kids"? Never mind, you did the same.

Many years ago there was a fine apple orchard at the corner on Prospect and 12th street, opposite the home of John Service. These trees belonged to a man named Crowley and they were mostly all Baldwins, and many times I walked by this orchard pretty fast so I wouldn't be tempted to climb over the high board fence with wire strung along the top as an added protection to keep us boys out. But we used to get over somehow.

I suppose someone will say, they must have been pretty bad boys. Well, rather than stop the show I will admit you are right. But didn't some of you fellows do the same? And if you didn't you missed one of the finest things in life, a boy's dream; an apple that was secured somehow, and it surpassed in taste anything that could be purchased. This is taken from the past that is rich in the memories of boyhood days.

I wonder if today the old New England custom is still in vogue of ringing the bell at 9 o'clock. How well do I recall the fact that the hours would be tolled on the bell in the Shetucket mill every hour from 9 o'clock until the early hours of morning. This was the custom of many years, and the ringing of this bell could be heard all over the village. This gave us a warning that the night was getting along. It seems the Pilgrims brought this idea with them and I have heard this sweetly and to me solemn sound in many a New England village. And you will recall Longfellow tells this in his poem, "The Bells of Lynn," and how it sounds on the still air of night across the intervening space and the echo returns again in all its sweetness, and its harmony. As we heard this bell toll the hour of 10 it seemed as though it was a command to go home, for it seemed to exhale a silent and calm authority, and soon the streets would be deserted. How many among you have been cautioned when you left the house in the early evening: "Be sure you be in at 9 o'clock"? Doesn't that sound rather natural, Old-Timers?

Among the many things that were a source of endless delight, was the village blacksmith and perhaps the one who has lingered longest in my memory was John Wilbur, who was also the village constable. How we would hang around the door and watch him when he would take a horseshoe from the glowing fire. As he struck it with his hammer, how the sparks would fly like so many shooting stars. Perhaps you young folks of today have never taken any notice of anything like that. Still we of yesterday were very much interested and yet perhaps you may have at some time read "The Village Blacksmith" and could see in a mental picture the interior of the shop, and in the semi-darkness could see the gleam of the fire. There was the smith with his leather apron, with his sleeves rolled up and his brawny arms and face covered with the signs of honest toil. All this is a picture of yesterday. Times have changed, and as we look back those folks of the other days seem rather old-fashioned. And still those people were wholesome and God-fearing. And I, in looking backward, don't think I would care to retrace the trail to yesterday for now, with our steam-heated rooms, what a contrast to when we went to bed in a room where oft-times we would find snow on the floor that had sifted through a crack in the shingles! But after we crawled into bed we were rather comfortable, for we could hear the wind rattle the blinds on the house, and with the patter of the rain on the roof, it sang a sweet lullaby. A hot brick wrapped in an old piece of cloth warmed our feet, although we didn't dare to stretch out our full length in bed. Still we wouldn't swap places at that particular moment with anyone for we snuggled down under the warm blankets and slowly fell to sleep amidst pleasant dreams.

This, dear reader, is but the memory of yesterday. The boys of those days were no different than those of today, for they were just boys.

Bacteria Multiply When Chilling Causes Increased Nasal Secretion

(By E. C. Franing, M. D., Galesburg, Ill.)

One does not have to get cold from someone else but can produce one himself by producing abnormal conditions of the mucous membrane of his air passages.

In some people a "running nose" is produced very easily, in others it is very hard to produce. Allowing the whole or any part of the surface of the body to become chilled may produce an extra amount of secretion on the mucous membrane of some part of the respiratory tract. This produces an extra amount of food for the bacteria that normally live there and produce no trouble. This extra amount of food increases these bacteria by millions. The action of these increased millions of bacteria, and the toxins they produce from their growth, produce irritation and inflammation of the mucous membrane of the air passage and one has what is called a cold.

Riding in an open car or a closed car in drafts causing chilling of a part or all of the body surface causes colds. Sitting in cold or drafty rooms, "getting hot" or "warm" by active exercise, dancing and cooling quickly—for the reason above, these give one a "cold."

Active physical exercise in any weather and with most any amount of dress very seldom produces colds. The football player never catches cold no matter what the weather or his dress so long as he keeps playing, but his spectator often does.

The lesson to be learned is that anything that wil cool or chill the whole or any part of the surface of the body will cause an extra amount of secretions of the mucous membrane of all or some part of the respiratory tract. This in turn causes an increase by the billions of the ever present harmless bacteria living there. This immense increase becomes pathogenic (diseased producing), and causes inflammation of the mucous membrane, and the person has a "cold in the head," "sore throat," "bronchitis," or possibly a pneumonia.

If industrial institutions would see to the comforts of their employes as to drafts, dress, etc., while on duty, their respiratory infections would be cut down over 50 per cent. If homes could be heated more evenly and the occupants dressed for comfort while in the house—not too hot nor too cold—if public buildings, schools, churches, theatres, street cars, autos, if all could be kept heated properly and the occupants dressed accordingly, the number of common colds, sore throats, bronchitis and pneumonias could be cut down to a comparative few. It would naturally follow that the complications that often follow, such as ear infection (which causes much deafness), heart disease and rheumatism, could be much reduced.

Farmer Brown's Boy Becomes Suspicious

Suspicion often clouds the mind,
And to the truth makes people blind.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's Boy had watched Jimmy Skunk disappear back of the henhouse. After a few minutes he decided to go over and see what Jimmy was doing. When he turned the corner of the henhouse Jimmy was not to be seen. Farmer Brown's Boy kept on and turned the next corner. Again Jimmy was not to be seen, very much to the surprise of Farmer Brown's Boy.

"Well, well, what do you know about that!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "Now where did that little rascal go? There isn't a thing for him to hide behind or hide under. Ha, what's that?

"That" was a little pile of freshly dug sand, close to the henhouse, about halfway along. Farmer Brown's Boy hurried over to it. It required but one look to be certain that that hole had been dug by Jimmy Skunk.

"So that's it!" said Farmer Brown's Boy. "You've gone under my henhouse. Now what have you gone under there for? That's what I want to know."

Then a sudden thought popped into the head of Farmer Brown's Boy. He tried to get rid of it, but it stuck there. Could it be that Jimmy Skunk was the one who had been stealing those chickens? If Farmer Brown's Boy had been as observing as he usually is, he would have noticed that that hole had just been dug. He would have noticed that the sand thrown out was absolutely fresh. But he didn't notice this. Slowly he turned back to the house.

"I hate to think it," he kept saying over and over to himself. "I hate to think it. And yet—well, those chickens keep disappearing and Jimmy Skunk is living under that henhouse. What else is there to think? But I wouldn't have believed it of Jimmy. I don't want to believe it now. No, sir. I don't want to believe it now. And yet"——

It certainly did look bad. I don't wonder that Farmer Brown's Boy had become suspicious, do you? It all goes to show how easy it is to be suspicious of people without real cause. If Farmer Brown's Boy had known all the facts, he wouldn't have been suspicious. No, sir, he wouldn't have been the least bit suspicious. It is knowing a little, and not all, that makes people suspicious. And suspicion is a very dreadful thing sometimes.

Farmer Brown's Boy had a very sober face as he went back to the house. Mother Brown noticed it. "Well," she said, "where did Jimmy Skunk go?"

Farmer Brown's Boy hesitated. Then he blurted it out. "Under the henhouse," said he.

Mother Brown guessed just what Farmer Brown's Boy was thinking. "Do you think he has been under there before?" said she.

"I don't know," replied Farmer Brown's Boy. "Probably he has. Probably he has been living under there."

"If that is true, there is no need to wonder any longer where your chickens have gone," said Mother Brown. "I guess you have had too much confidence in Jimmy Skunk."

"I hate to think Jimmy has been taking those chickens," said Farmer Brown's Boy, miserably. "I thought better of him than that. The question now is, what can I do about it?"

"I guess you will have to kill him," said Mother Brown, and if Farmer Brown's Boy had only seen it, there was a mischievous look in her eyes.

"No such thing!" declared Farmer Brown's Boy, indignantly. "If he is killing my chickens it is because he doesn't know any better. It will be easy enough to catch him in a box-trap without hurting him. Then I can take him off somewhere and let him go. I guess this is what I shall have to do." Farmer Brown's Boy sighed as he said it.

"MY MASTER AND BROTHER"
Memory Verse for Tuesday

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself" (Mark 12:31). (Read: Mark 12:28 to 34.)

MEDITATION: Self love is assumed. It is made the norm by which is measured and tested all my human relations. Of course I must love myself. To hate one's self would be the sign of a deceased mind. Do I love my neighbor equally? That is not inevitable nor is it easy. But it is necessary if I would solve my own life and find joy and peace. It is also necessary if I would find the satisfaction of being useful. I cannot do much for myself; selfishness always defeats itself. I can do much for others, forgetting myself for their sakes.

PRAYER: Heavenly Father who hast called me into the fellowship and service of Thy Son, grant that the same spirit which was in Christ Jesus may be in me. Put the law of kindness in my heart that with good will and eager feet I may follow where the Master leads. In His name. Amen.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 25—This prohibition thing has amazing ramifications. Take the so-called deciduous fruit freight rate fight now before the supreme court for decision, by way of example. Who would suppose offhand that it all grows out of prohibition? Yet that seems to be the case made by carrier counsel in attacking a 12 to 13 cent cut in rates on deciduous fruits under the Hoch-Smith farm relief resolution of 1925.

It works out this way, according to the carriers: "juice grapes," as distinct from table grapes, make up 54 per cent of all deciduous fruit movements. The carriers claim an annual loss, due to service below cost under the new rates, of $240,000. They challenge as illegal the interpretation placed by the interstate commerce commission upon the Hoch-Smith resolution. Both contentions are denied by counsel for the commission and for intervening California grape growers.

Decision Probably Soon

So the supreme court probably will hand down a decision of importance in connection with the freight rate aspect of farm relief measures, just about the time President Hoover's special farm relief session of congress gets going April 15.

A decision adverse to the commission presumably would undo whatever relief in the marketing of surplus crops the Hoch-Smith resolution may have afforded. What the extent of that may be the Bystander does not know. It is reasonably certain, however, that congress would add another attempt at a freight rate approach to the farm surplus problem.

Charge Over Production

The carriers contended that the surplus problem of the deciduous fruit industry in reality was due to overproduction of juice grapes. In other words, they have informed the supreme court either in oral or written argument that failure of the consumers to take up all the increased output of juice grapes from California created the deciduous fruit surplus for which the lower freight rates sought to find a cheaper road to market. And they made it clear that all this took place on the heels of prohibition, implying at least that the market for consumers of juice grapes is the home brewer.

So there you are: prohibition, farm relief and freight rates all tangled up together. The opening of the special session will add the ingredient of politics to this ever-boiling kettle and what the results are going to be nobody can say certainly.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Too Much For Daddy.

As the members of the family were returning from a drive one evening they passed a building with a large smoke stack.

This was spied by Laura, age four, who shouted: "Oh, look, mother, daddy couldn't smoke that pipe, could he!"

Sundown.

A woman who had occasion to visit a public ground called the superintendent and inquired:

"Will it be open this afternoon?"

Being informed that it would be open, she asked: "Will it be open until late?" The superintendent replied: "It will be open until sundown."

The woman again inquired: "Will that be according to daylight saving time the sun goes down."

NOON MEETING AT RADIATOR PLANT

Monday at the noon hour representatives of the local Y. M. C. A. conducted another meeting at the Richmond Radiator plant in Thamesville. Rev. Charles H. Ricketts was again the speaker and he spoke in part as follows: "I want to speak to you today on Palm Sunday and the events leading up to it. Palm Sunday was one of the most talked of events in history. The Master had been having a strenuous time and just previous to Palm Sunday He and His disciples had retired to a small village to rest. At this place He seemed to gain a peculiar strength, and His disciples noticed a sort of halo about Him that they had seen before; He was different. Jesus evidently made a certain conquest for Himself on this occasion.

"About this time the mother of James and John asked of the Master that her two sons might have prominent places in His kingdom, which she and they thought would be a temporal kingdom. Jesus in answer to this request said to the mother, "Thou knowest not what thou hast asked." The other disciples were somewhat offended at the attempt to secure for James and John the prominent places. About nightfall on Thursday, He and His disciples stayed overnight about 15 miles northwest of Jericho and next morning they journeyed to Jericho, where two significant things happened. As He entered the place a blind man cried with a loud voice for Jesus to have mercy on him; the crowd told the man to keep still, but Jesus asked them to bring him to Him. Then as He was leaving, the Zacheus incident occurred, when Jesus seeing him gazing at Him from a tree, stopped and commanded him to come down, which he did and Jesus went home with him and the result was a changed life.

"In due time after a visit overnight to the home of Lazarus, where Mary did the beautiful act of annointing the Master's body with precious ointment, they wended their way to Jerusalem. The friends of Jesus did Him great honor as they waved the palm branches, etc., as they entered the city. They did this to show their deep appreciation for what Jesus had meant to them. As they neared the city it looked most beautiful as the bright sun shown upon it, but the Master saw what they did not see; He saw the wickedness and the final downfall of the city, as He uttered those pathetic words: 'O Jerusalem, how often would I have gathered thee as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, but ye would not, behold your house is left unto you desolate.'"

TORREON, A MIDDLE WEST TOWN IN MEXICO

Torreon, focus of both federal and revolutionary armies in Mexico, is described in the following bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"In contrast to most of the important towns of Mexico," says the bulletin, "Torreon has no evidences of age—no churches built by the padres who followed Cortez, no solid forts or dwelling houses dating back to Conquistadores who pushed northward among the Indians. For Torreon, like many a city of the American west, grew up like a mushroom when two railways crossed on its site some forty years ago, and the great Mexican Laguna cotton district developed at its doorstep.

"The comparison with cities of the United States is closer still. Torreon, seems to have borrowed the spirit of the Yankee railroad men who were in at its birth, and had more of an atmosphere of bustle and development than almost any other Mexican town. The city is of great importance as a mercantile and distributing center. From it great quantities of dry goods, groceries, hardware and machinery find their way into the surrounding country.

"Most important to Torreon is the Laguna cotton district to the immediate north which stretches for a hundred miles seast and west and 75 miles north and south. Ninety per cent of Mexico's cotton is grown in this small area. In Torreon some of this cotton is made into textiles in large mills. Among its other manufacturing enterprises are soap factories, breweries, brick plants, and one of the republic's largest factories for making rubber from the guayule plant which grows in the semi-desert regions nearby. Much silver and copper ore from the mountains to the south and west is smelted in Torreon.

"The site of Torreon is as level as a table. At the edge of the city flows the Nazas river, in some seasons a sizable stream. The rough, hilly, desert country begins close to the south of the town; to the north stretch level plains.

"Torreon is always a strategic center in Mexican revolutions, since it is a railway junction of consequence, and lies midway between Mexico City and important border gateways. To the northwest lie Juarez and El Paso, and to the northeast Porfirio, Diaz and Eagle Pass. Through Monterrey to the east, railway lines also connect with Laredo and Matamoros.

"The town lies in the southwestern corner of the state of Coahuila and in many ways is more intimately concerned with the adoining state of Durango to the west than with the hinterland of its own state to the east. For some years Torreon has been closely approaching Saltillo, capital of Coahuila, in size; and now probably ranks in magnitude, as it certainly does in business transacted, as first city of the state. It is situated about 250 miles south of the 'Big Bend' of the Rio Grande river, which marks the closest United States territory. It is nearly 500 miles south of El Paso by rail, however. When the United States forces under General Pershing entered Mexico in 1916 in pursuit of Villa, they struck deenly into the republic toward Torreon but stopped short of that town, at Paral.

"A traveler notices the American influence in Torreon in its wide streets and the American goods in its stores. He realizes that the influences have struck deeper when he finds that the favorite sport of the boys of Torreon is baseball. Good teams are maintained, and play a series of games each season with teams from the border towns.

"There is usually a considerable foreign element in Torreon. The hotels are often filled with American mining engineers and executives and commercial travelers, bound to or from the mines and cities farther south. In addition there is a large colony of German importers and merchants. In the past Torreon was a center for Chinese, but since the massacre of 1911 when, in the course of a revolution, several hundred Chinese were killed or driven out, few are to be seen in the town.

"A former American resident of Torreon declarmes that its artisans and laborers seem to be musicians by avocation. When Americans wish to give a dance they recruit an orchestra in a few minutes from the nearest boot-blacks, taxi-drivers, barbers and bartenders. Dwellers in Torreon find the heat intense in summer, and they seldom know freedom from dust because of the almost constant winds and the dry region surrounding the city. Globe-trotters who have fought the grit of Bazdad, Cairo and Teheran give Torreon the palm as 'the dustiest town in the world.'

The body will not be well formed and maintained without ample supplies of certain mineral salts. Calcium or lime helps to make bones and teeth, and is found in milk, cheese and leaves, as well as in lettuce, spinach, cabbage, turnip and beet tops.

HORTON SMITH EARNINGS FOR THE WINTER ARE VERY CLOSE TO $21,000

(By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—Horton Smith, the most successful pro for his years in the golf business, has set a winter record for profitable golf shots. The Missouri youth, who has lived up to the best traditions of a state that insists upon being shown, will not be 21 years of age until May 22 and his golf earnings since last autumn probably are not far short of $21,000—a "grand" a year.

Before he celebrates his 21st birthday the boy from Joplin hopes to play a prominent part in the Ryder cup's team invasion of Great Britain and the British open championship.

His victory in the La Gorce open at Miami Beach gave him in a righ reward of $5,000 and his Florida record reads four out of five. Previous triumphs were registered at Pensacola, Jacksonville and Fort Myers.

In 18 tournaments since he started his westward and southern trek in October, Smith, who bears a grand golfing name but is not a member of the family boasting Willie, Alex and MacDonald, has a record of six firsts, four seconds, three thirds and two fourths. Only twice has he been over 300 for 72 holes and his grand average, thanks to a short course in California where he had two 63s, 61 and 58, is under fours.

Smith, a native of Springfield, Mo., and educated at the Teachers college there, has been playing competitive golf since 1924 when he reached the semi-finals in the western junior championships. He left college in 1925 to give serious attention to golf and developed his game until he qualified for the open in 1927 although qualifying was as far as he got. However two years ago he was good enough to finish third in Oklahoma open, an event he won this year, and tie for second at San Diego. In 1929 he held undisputed possession of second place in the latter event. He was eighth at La Jolla then and runner-up this year.

He was not so good in 1928 but a year later went over his same route and in every case improved on his previous performances. Twentieth at the Los Angeles open, he was fourth this winter, and from fifth at Long Beach he advanced to third. He was 14th when the Texas open returns were compiled in 1928 but in 1929 he was second. His best in the South Central open of 1928 was seventh but in 1929 at Hot Springs, Ark., he was in a triple tie with Bill Mehlhorn and Bobby Cruickshank for first. Mehlhorn won the play-off with Smith second, two strokes back.

The Missourian has a chance to win another title before he sails away with the Ryder cup players—the North and South at Pinehurst where fast, sand greens will bring grief to many a good golfer. Smith has more than a speaking acquaintance with sand greens, as was shown by his performance at Hot Springs, where his score for five rounds was two over 48.

He should be a great golfer when he grows up.

HORTON SMITH FAVORED TO WIN NORTH AND SOUTH OPEN

PINEHURST, N. C., March 25—(AP)—Horton Smith, lithe greyhound of the professional golf pack, ruled a hot favorite tonight to win the 27th North and South open which gets under way here tomorrow.

The young Joplin, Mo., sensation, who has been burning up golf courses from California eastward this year, made his Pinehurst bow today with a neat 71 over the treacherous No. 2 course on which the historic match will be played.

Smith showed the same form that won him first money in the $15,000 La Gorce open at Miami last week and golfers here do not hesitate to express the opinion that if the westerner maintains his present pace tomorrow and Wednesday the tournament is his.

Seventy-four of the leading pros and amateurs are here to compete with Smith for the $2,500 purse. Some of the headliners are Johnny Farrell, United States open champion; Walter Hagen, British open champion; Leo Diegel, P. G. A. champion; Billy Burke, of Westport, N. Y., defending champion; R. H. Swoope, of Philadelphia; William O'Brien, Detroit; Eddie Held, of New York; George Voigt, of Washington, and John Dawson, of Chicago.

Ross Somerville, of London, Ont., Canadian amateur champion, also is entered.

Burke won last year's event with a 291 for the 72 holes. Tommy Armour ran second with a 296 and Johnny Farrell was one stroke behind Armour.

While Farrell's 68, shot in an exhibition match this afternoon with Glenna Collett, the woman champion, Helen Hicks, the New York sensation, and Smith, was the best individual round of the day, some other creditable marks were registered.

Walter Hagen went directly from the train to the links and collected a 77. Tommy Armour matched this. Billy Burke turned in a 71 along with Joe Turnesa and Al Ciuci. Henry Ciuci came through with a 72 and Rodand Hancock, of Lynchburg, Va., who almost won the National open last summer, went around in 80.

PADDOCK PROPOSES PLAN TO KEEP AMATEURS HONEST

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—Charley Paddock bobbed up here today with a novel proposal for making "honest professionals out of dishonest amateurs" which had amateur athletic union officials awarding him the blue ribbon as the world's fastest thinking human.

The former champion sprinter's cure-all for commercialism and kindred ills of amateurism as laid before Dan Ferris, A. A. U. secretary-treasurer, provides for "open competition" between pros and simon pures. Further, it would limit the activities of star amateur track and field athletes to the sectional and national championships and force those electing to compete in other meets, styled "fly by night" affairs, to turn professional, the idea being to prevent promoters from offering financial inducements to amateurs.

Paddock said he had outlined his plan at a meeting of the Southern Pacific association at Los Angeles and had been authorized to bring it to the attention of Mr. Ferris and of Avery Brundage of Chicago, National president of the A. A. U. whom he expects to see on his way back to the coast.

While pointing out objects to some of Paddock's recommendations, Mr. Ferris said they would be sent to Mr. Brundage and at his discretion might be included in a questionnaire which is to be sent to persons interested to determine what if anything is wrong with amateur athletics.

CARDS WALK AWAY FROM YANKS IN EXHIBITION

AVON PARK, Fla., March 25—(AP)—The Cardinals scored more runs against the Yankees in two innings here today than in the entire world series of 1928, defeating the champions by 14 to 8 in the opening game of the spring exhibition series. The Hugmen employed five pitchers, and all were more or less wild.

The score.

BRAVES RALLY IN LATE INNINGS TO BEAT DODGERS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 25—(AP)—Rallies in the seventh and the eighth innings enabled the Braves to defeat Brooklyn by 8 to 6 here today in the first game of their series. Dazzy Vance started for the Robins, and proved effective, but McWeeny and Dudley were ineffective.

The score:

Brooklyn (NL) 110 400 000—6 13 3
Boston (NL) 010 103 12x—8 14 3

GAR WOOD SETS NEW MARK FOR MOTORBOAT SPEED

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Mar. 25—(AP)—Gar Wood, driving "Miss America VII" set a new world's speed boat record of 93.123 miles an hour here today.

Wood flashed to his new record over the measured mile course in Indian Creek after adverse weather conditions had prevented him from much high speed for several days.

The record officially was timed by Odis Porter, timer for the A. A. A. and the American Powerboat Association. Summaries:

First trial, time 38.25 seconds for average of 94.12 miles per hour.

Second trial, time 38.56 seconds for average of 93.261 miles per hour.

Third trial, time 38.73 seconds for average 92.851 miles per hour.

Fourth trial, time 38.63 seconds for average of 93. 192 miles per hour.

Fifth trial, time 38.93 seconds for average 92.474 miles per hour.

MEEKER, CINCINNATI PITCHER, DIED OF HEART ATTACK

ORLANDO, Fla., March 25—(AP)—Roy Meeker, left handed pitcher of the Cincinnati national league club, died suddenly in his hotel room here today from a heart attack.

Meeker was 28 years old. He had been with the Reds for three years, having gone from Kansas City to the major league.

Meker, whose home was at Kansas City, Kansas, came to the Reds in 1927 from the Portland, Oregan, club, but was farmed out to the Columbus Ohio, American association last year.

Meeker worked this morning at the camp, returning to his room about noon. He died shortly afterward. Associates said he had complained of not feeling well this morning. He had an operation last year but had fully recovered.

The body will be sent to Kansas City, Kansas, for burial.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—The solution of the big Cornell football mystery may turn out to be the selection of Harry Stuhldreher, head man of Notre Dame's famous "Four Horsemen," to succeed Gilmour Doble as head coach and chase away the gridiron gloom above Cayuga's waters.

It has all been a dark secret so far that Doble, after five disastrous seasons and under some pressure, was prepared to resign—a secret, that is, to everyone but those who not only seem to accept the Dour Scot's retirement at Cornell as a fact but who also appear to know the exact date on which official announcement will be made. If, as they expect, such announcement is made this Wednesday, it will no more than confirm their previous understanding.

At least it has been no secret that Cornell's alumni were showing signs of dissatisfaction with the way the football situation was drifting under the veteran's direction. They may not have been quite as openly critical as those Ohio state partisans who sought the scalp of Dr. John W. Wilce—and got it—but they have nevertheless been insistent that something be done. Apparently something has been done, for in taking leave of Cornell after some eight years "on the hill", Doble surrenders a contract having five more years to run.

Stuhldreher's entrance as the probable successor of Doble, however, comes as something as a surprise, although Cornell never has committed to a policy of graduate coaching. It indicates, principally, the desire to rebuild the Big Red gridiron fortunes with one of the younger and most successful members of the modern coaching school in charge.

There is no question of the high place Stuhldreher has gained as a teacher of the game since he left Notre Dame with All-American honors. They think so well of him at Villanova college, where he has coached since leaving Notre Dame, that he was signed under a new five year contract that still has four years to run. Presumably this obstacle, as well as the balance of Doble's contract at Ithaca, has been overcome, if the expected exchange is to take place.

Stuhldreher, now only 27, made the four horsemen famous from 1922 to 1924. He was a favorite with Rockne from the moment he stepped into gridiron togs at Notre Dame. They said of him, as they did of Howard Harpster of Carnegie last season, that it was like having another coach on the field.

The final drama of the professional hockey world's series this spring seems like to involve two clubs of the same division, with the New York Rangers meeting the Boston Bruins, who already have disposed of the Canadiens, winners in the rival division.

This is like having two American league clubs fight it out in baseball's world's series. Last fall, for instance and to carry out the analogy, the Yankees, by taking four in a row from the Cardinals, then would have been obliged to play the club surviving playoffs among the second and third place teams. It would be possible for a club finishing third in the regular standing at the close of the season to become world's champions.

Baseball fancies no such involved process but to stimulate the flagging spirits of clubs without any pennant chance toward the close of the campaign, a slice of the world's series melon goes to the first four teams, on a graduating playoff scale.

Texans who know their Jack-Rabbits assert, on the basis of actual tests, that they have been paced traveling 45 miles an hour in the wide open spaces. This is at a rate of a mile in 1:20 and, in the list of "fastest" miles, puts Brier Rabbit ahead of anything on legs that has so far been clocked. The best mile for a running horse is 1:34 4-5. Only on wheels or in the air has man exceeded the rabbit's pace.

PORTLAND BEAVERS WIN EXHIBITION FROM PIRATES

ANAHEIM, Calif., March 25—(AP)—The Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast league, treating the offerings of Lee Meadows with little regard, defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 4 to 3 in an exhibition game here today.

While youthful Leroy Mahaffey, former Pirate, was pitching great ball for the Beavers, his team mates got to Meadows early in the game and sent the bespectacled gentleman to the showers in the fifth. Brama relieved Meadows only to have the winning run scored off him.

A home run by Artell in the sixth gave Pittsburgh two of its three tallies, Stromer, third sacker, going home on the blow.

Portland (CL) ....011 110 000—4 10 2
Pittsburgh (NL) .000 012 000—3 8 1

Mahaffey and Sanders; Meadows, Brama and Hemsley, Linton.

LOUGHRAN AND WALKER TAPER OFF FOR BOUT

CHICAGO, March 25—(AP)—Tommy Loughran and Mickey Walker begin the business of tapering off tomorrow for their world's light-heavyweight championship bout, opening the Chicago stadium Thursday night. They indulged in their last hard work-out this afternoon.

Walker was on the road for four miles, breezing through nine rounds of gymnasium work and punched the light bag for two rounds before boxing. He stepped two rounds with Tom Jones, a Negro warrior who is just the size of Loughran, and three rounds with Tom Kirby, Boston Irishman. He then whaled away at the heavy bag for two rounds. He scaled 166 1-2 pounds.

DEMPSEY-FUGAZY CO. SIGN FOR SCHMELING'S SERVICES

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—The new team of Jack Dempsey and Humbert J. Fugazy, dedicated to fistic promotion, added itself today to the list of those who hold one claim or another on the services of Max Schmeling, German heavyweight clouter now visiting in his homeland.

The new combination signed a contract with Arthur Buelow, German manager, who brought Max to America only to have the fighter refuse to continue under his direction, hiring Schmeling's services for a match with any opponent, anywhere outdoors, sometime in June. The document adds a final kink in the German's tangled affairs.

Fugazy explained that the contract was signed with Buelow because the New York state athletic commission recognizes him as Schmeling's manager despite the boxer's repeated declaration that he will fight only under the direction of the American manager, Joe Jacobs.

Intercollegiate Golf Tourney

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—The Intercollegiate Golf association championship for 1929 will be played at the Hollywood Golf club, Deal, N. J., June 26-29, it was announced today.

FIELDS BEATS THOMPSON: PANIC IN CROWD HALTS BOUT

COLISEUM, Chicago, March 25—(AP)—Jackie Fields, sheik, appearing Jewish fighter of Chicago, left hooked his way to recognition as world's welterweight champion tonight. He decisively defeated the sinewy Negro from San Francisco, Young Jack Thompson, called the closest approach to Joe Gans, in a thrilling ten round battle that came near ending in a panic among the spectators, in the eighth round.

As Fields and the Negro stood fighting toe to toe in the eighth, a thunderous rumbling sound, growing in volume every second, suddenly started from the south end of the Coliseum. In a twinkling the crowd of 10,000 was in a riotous uproar, with hundred dashing out of the exits and others storming toward the ring. A hundred or more, panic stricken spectators climbed or crawled over the ringsiders and swarmed between ropes, filling the ring.

The battle had to be stopped until police and firemen restored order. Twelve to fifteen persons were injured in the crush. Two were reported to have suffered broken legs. Newspaper correspondents at the ringside trying to report the battle lost their typewriters in the jam and telegraph wires were broken. After the police and cooler heads restored order, the battle was resumed with the boxers finishing the eighth round. In the excitement of the situation, however, nobody knew whether fields was fighting the eighth or ninth.

A fight betwee na Negro and a white spectator in which a gun was drawn, was said to have started the stampede. The spectators in the immediate vicinity of belligerents, fled in disorder. This started an uproar which increased when the cry swept through the building that animals belonging to a circus quartered in an annex had broken out of their cages.

The crowd was brought under control remarkably quickly however, almost as soon as the stampede started.

Fields proclaimed welterweight champion of the National Boxing association was presented with Promoter Jim Mullen's $5,000 diamond studded belt emblematic of the title. The presentation was made by Paul Prehn, president of the N. B. A., and chairman of the Illinois state athletic commission.

Thompson, although always willing and piling into whip over the right cross that gave him a two round knockout victory over Joe Dundee, the dethroned title holder here last summer, was unable to overcome the early advantage that Fields' smashing left hooks gained. Fields took the offensive from the start and had Thompson on the verge of a knockout in the first two rounds.

Harry Schuman of Chicago and Jack Kearns, Omaha, lightweights, drew in four rounds in the opening bout.

Johnny Sherrod of Ft. Worth, Tex., weighing 158 pounds outslugged King Levinsky of Chicago in five rounds.

Jimmy Mollett, Negro of Chicago, defeated Andy Sollitie of Atlantic City in five rounds, flooring him twice in the second.

Al Greenfield of Chicago won the verdict over Louie Avery, heavy handed slugger rf Tulsa, Okla., in five rounds at 130 pounds. Haakon Hanson, Norwegian middleweight was held to a drew by Mike Saur, of Duluth in another five rounder.

PLAINFIELD TO PLAY SO. MANCHESTER WEDNESDAY

In answer to an urgent request from the fans of eastern Connecticut who are supporters of the Plainfield Pros Manager Salisbury has signed the South Manchester club for the game Wednesday evening. For several years the majority of the players on the South Manchesters team were members of the Plainfield club and the argument has arisen that they were just as good as the team now representing Plainfield. To prove that his selection of players was good Manager Salisbury is stacking his club up against his former team.

The Manchester team includes Harry Benson, Noris, Madden and Stavinitsky who played at Plainfield for several years. There is no doubt but they were exceptionally good men and Wednesday night's contest will settle a doubt that has been in the minds of many this season.

For the preliminary the Buddies will clash with some fast eastern Connecticut five.

POETRY

Fools

I

In the last trench of all,
Our general lies.
No thunderous shells appal
There are no enemies;
In life's calm, evening peace, he dies.

II

Who watch unseen around his bed?
The gallant souls he led,—
Living and dead.
Some, still pressing through the strife
Of human life.
Some, who the weary battlefields once trod,
But through the gates of War have found the peace of God.

III

His eyes are turned away from earthly things,
From diplomats and kings,
From plots and counterplots and wild imaginings.
No maps spread out before him, marking roads;
He sends no messages by secret codes;
The way lies plain before him, and his Guide
Waits by his side.
One who once stilled the sea's strife—
The Way, the Truth, the Life.

IV

Now the old warrior must go forth alone,
In the rich glories of the setting sun.
His work is done,
With all earth's honors on his breast,
This is his greatest fight and best,
The prelude of eternal rest.
In the last trench he lies,
Where no fierce guns appal,
Waiting with calm, with fearless eyes,
Death's bugle call.

Boil It Down

If you've got a thought that's happy—
Boil it down.
Make it short and crisp and snappy—
Boil it down.
When your thought its coin has minted,
Down the page your pen has sprinted,
If you want your effort printed—
Boil it down.

Take off every surplus letter
Boil it down.
Fewer syllables the better—
Boil it down.
Make your meaning plain. Express it
So we'll know—not merely guess it;
Then, my friend, cre you address it,
Boil it down.

Cut out all the extra trimmings—
Boil it down.
Skim it well—then skim the skimmings—
Boil it down.
When you're sure 'twould be a sin to Cut another sentence in two,
Send it on, and we'll begin to
Boil it down.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The whole life of the Chinese is dominated by the dead. The air that he breathes is the breath of his dead.

No house in China is built until the necromancers have been consulted. Its position depends on the airs which they pronounce to be favorable.

All China is like one continuous altar. Everywhere, night and day, sticks of incense burn, in every store open to the street, in every home.

The essence of modesty for a Chinese woman is to conceal her feet, the symbol of her sex. Missionaries, instead of asking their Chinese converts, "Have you sinned in lust?" say, "Have you looked at the feet of women?"

Dirt is universal in China, the fifth element. Sewage stagnates in the city streets, round the tumble-down palaces, close to the grandiose temples.

Confucianism, the religion of China is more deetailed, more meticulous and more precise than any other code anywhere imagined by man.

Confucianism, although destitute of any devine sanction, has remained the unchangeable basis of Chinese life for centuries.

Confucianism contains no trace of egoism or harshness. It is full of indulgence and kindly moderation in all things. It is the instinctive gesture of a well-born soul, of a gentleman, affable and sociable.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

SHARP BREAK IN STOCK MARKET WAS CAUSED BY DEARTH OF CALL MONEY

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—The stock market today experienced the most drastic break since last December.

The supply of call money was virtually cut off, forcing the rate up to 14 per cent for the first time since July, 1929. The rate mounted to that level from renewals of 9 per cent on moderate callings of loans, estimated at only about $20,000,000. One of the large banks was said to have placed a substantial sum at 14 per cent, but shortly before the close, no money was available at the loan desk even at that figure.

The acute money situation was intensified by the success of officials of the Chicago Stock Exchange in inducing mid-western corporations and others to bring funds from the New York call loan market back to La Salle street to support the Chicago market, which has suffered severely from the flow of funds to New York, attracted by higher interest rates than are permissable in Illinois.

Bankers believe the 14 per cent rate will bring in enough funds to alleviate the situation, although only moderate improvement is hoped for, because of the approach of the April 1 quarterly settlement period. Corporations are conserving their funds to meet interest and dividend payments, and Federal Reserve officials apear to have won or forced the cooperation of member banks in checking the flow of credit into the stock market.

While business operations lately have been maintained at record levels in many lines despite the high interest rates, a few recent developments have caused fears that the credit stringency is gradually undermining the business structure. Building permits in February dropped 22 per cent under that month last year. Farmers are said to be buying less fertilizer than last year. Automobile dealers are reported to have large stocks of cars on hand, and the buying of automotive materials by manufacturers is said to have slackened in a few instances. Bankers acceptance rates were again jacked up today, an increase of 1-8 of 1 per cent, placing them at the highest levels since December, 1920.

Pools made a few futile efforts to bring forward leaders during the forenoon, but as call money scared after midday, they stepped aside and let the market skid directly downhill. Scores of issues sold at the lowest prices of 1929. The selling became an avalanche late in the session, and the ticker ran for 48 minutes after the gong. A little short covering at the close caused several rallies of 2 or 3 points from the day's lows. A total of 5,800,210 shares changed hands during the session, the third largest day's turnover of 1929. Adams Express broke 49 2-4 points to 551, and among other volatile issues, Hudson Insurance lost 30 points, and Otis Elevator 19. Coppers were particularly hard hit. Greene Cananea tumbled about 15 points to a new 1929 low at 164. Anaconda and Chile lost about 10 points, and several others 5 and more.

Johns Manville dropped 9 points to a new low at 70, and such standard industrials as American Can, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, and Westinghouse Electric sold off 4 to 7 points. Merchandise shares developed conspicuous weakness. Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, National Bellas Hess, and Macy going to new low figures. In the utilities, American and Foreign Power sold off 15 points, American Power and Light and Detroit Edison 7 and more. Even the oils, for which the outlook has brightened of late, showed little resistance. The Associated Press index of 20 rails again recorded a new low for the year. Canadian Pacific sold down nearly 8 points.

Among a handful of stocks which moved higher, International Telephone was a brilliant performer, mounting nearly 9 points to a record price, at 247. Radio was also powerfully supported, mounting more than 4 points. International Nickel's market sponsors shouldered a huge volume of selling and kept the issue fairly steady around 50.

The commodity markets were quiet and rather unsettled. Cotton closed 50 to 70 cents a bale lower on selling by stock exchange houses. Grains ruled lower most of the session, but closed slightly higher on good buying late in the session.

Foreign exchanges held steady despite the high interest rates in New York. The Dutch Guilder again turned upward, reflecting the Bank of Holland's increased discount rate. The Japanese yen mounted nearly 1-8 of a cent to 40.78 cents.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of Our Dear Brother
WILLIAM E. BROSOFSKE
Who Passed Away Five Years Ago Today, March 26, 1924

Safe and lonely, softly sleeping
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we love so dearly
In his lonely, silent grave.
More and more each day we miss him;
Friends may think the wound is healed.
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within our hearts concealed.

MR. and MRS. WM. BROSOFSKE and CHILDREN.

Friedman, 22, of Colchester, was arrested Sunday at Bozrah charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, destruction of private property and resisting an officer. He will be presented before Justice of the Peace Jeremiah Sullivan in Bozrah tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock. Friedman was drinking the greater part of yesterday and during the afternoon he drove to the farm house of Sam Bergman, in Bozrah. Friedman's conduct was such that it became objectionable and when the Colchester man was remonstrated with, he became ugly and abusive, provoking a fight, in which Frank Davis and George Harris participated, besides Bergman and Friedman. During the brawl, and primarily the cause of the fight, Friedman smashed a door to the Bergman residence. While the battle was in progress the state police barracks, Groton, were notified and Officer William MacKenzie was dispatched to the Bergman farm. OCEAN BEACH COTTAGE FIRE STARTS FROM FIREPLACE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 25—The cottage at 99 Bentley avenue, Ocean Beach, owned and occupied by Morris Gordon, was slightly damaged by fire early today, but the blaze caused Gordon and his family much alarm for it was feared that the flames would spread throughout the building and result in its destruction.

Gordon and his family moved into the cottage Saturday and yesterday they had a fire built in a fire place that was not equipped with suitable protection. The heat from the fire caused the flooring to be ignited, but the fire was not discovered when the family retired. Shortly before 1 o'clock Gordon was aroused by the house being filled with smoke and discovered that flames were beneath the flooring. The fire apparently gaining headway, Gordon had an alarm rung in from Box 515, corner of Bentley avenue and the approach to the boardwalk. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and Niagara Engine company, the Pequot and Ockford Hose companies and the Allen Hook and Ladder company responded. On the arrival of the department, a quantity of chemicals sufficed to extinguish the blaze. The damage, it is believed, will not exceed $100.

JOSEPH KONIECKO, NORWICH, TOO SPEEDY FOR STATE COP

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 25—One of the Ford roadsters used by the state police, Groton barracks, was damaged early today when it was crashed into by a truck driven by Joseph Koniecko, R. F. D., No. 3, Norwich. Koniecko was arrested on charges of reckless driving, operating a truck equipped with defective brakes and with defective lighting equipment. In the Waterford town court this forenoon the charge against Koniecko of reckless driving was amended to that of speeding and the other charges were nolled. On the former charge a fine of $25 and costs was imposed. Koniecko was driving through Waterford at 1.55 o'clock and at a rate of speed estimated at 45 miles. Officer Joseph King was on duty on the Boston Post road and when he observed the truck being driven at a high rate of speed and without proper lights he decided to intercept it. King drove about 200 yards in advance of the truck and pulled up along the side of the highway. As the truck approached, King signalled Koniecko to stop in attempting to do so, Koniecko's foot slipped from the brake and landed on the accelerator, with the result that the truck again speeded ahead and crashed against the roadster, the latter car getting a disfigured rear fender and bumper and a damaged body.

AAPPROPRIATION ORDINANCE HEARD BY CITY COUNCIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 25—A special meeting of the city council was held this evening, that the annual appropriation ordinance of the city might have its first reading. The document provides for an appropriation of $1,705,867 to meet the expenses of the city during the ensuing year. Of this amount $61,078 is for administration; $321,652 for the finance department; $301,469 for education; $275,490 for public safety; $111,688 for public welfare; $265,565 for public works; $162,000 for water department. A public hearing on the ordinance is to be held on the 3rd day of April and after that the approved ordinance will be enacted and published.

An even dozen permits for building and alterations were granted, five being for dwellings.

The council voted to buy 200 lengths of six-inch water pipe of cast iron from the Providence Pipe and Sprinkler company at a cost of approximately $164.66.

An ordinance amending an ordinance reorganizing the police department was read for the first time. It provides for the appointment of eight sergeants instead of seven as at present. It seeks to increase the number of patrolmen of the public safety committee, to contective sergeants instead of one as at present. The period of probation officers is changed so that they shall serve until appointed patrolmen, and the appointee as patrolman may be chosen for his ability and efficiency rather than because of his seniority of appointment as supernumerary. In other words a supernumerary who has served one year may be advanced if he shows efficiency over a supernumerary who has served a much longer term.

The council, on motion of Councilor May, passed a resolution to the effect that the clerk express to the family of the late Councilor Edward L. Streeter, Jr., the sympathy of Mr. Streeter's former associates in the direction of city affairs. Councilor May paid a well expressed tribute to the dead councilor, in moving the adoption of the vote which he offered.

Councilor Twomey pointed out that the zoning ordinance had been published only in part and asked the director of law to give the council an opinion as to whether the publication was in compliance with the charter of the city. This is to be furnished at a meeting yet to be held.

The council adjourned for a meeting of the public safety committee, to consider an ordinance providing for the appointment of an inspector of electrical appliances, as applied to residences and business places of the city. The Manufacturers' association and the electrical supply companies of the city are represented by attorneys before the committee and a rather warm session was anticipated. When the ordinance was read for the first time a week ago there was strenuous objection by the Manufacturers' association when attorneys claimed that the contractors were restricting the rights of employers to Broadway Theatre.

Presenting Norma Talmadge in a role which only an actress of her sheer artistry would dare portray, and crammed with some of the most powerful situations ever shown on the screen, The Woman Disputed, Miss Talmadge's United Artists triumph, opened at the Broadway theatre Sunday evening.

Not only does The Woman Disputed lend itself perfectly to the magnificently dramatic genius of the star, but it provides her and her large cast of players with a spectacular vehicle which holds the audience's attention from the first flash to the final fade-out. After essaying tom-boyish roles, be-jeweled characterizations and flashing-eye, dance-hallish types during the past couple of years, Norma returns, in The Woman Disputed, to the kind of picture in which she is at her very best.

The cast of hundreds, including Gilbert Roland, Arnold Kent, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Michael Vavitch, Boris de Fas and Gladys Brockwell, is in keeping with the high standard set by the entire picture. Henry King and Sam Taylor's direction seems inspired, and the photography could not be improved upon. Settings are lavish, the war scenes awesome.

Some of the finest acting ever seen on the screen is a feature of this picture. The love scenes between Miss Talmadge and Gilbert Roland are especially touching. Magnify the most passionate screen moments you have ever witnessed and they'll fall short of those in this movie romance.

The Woman Disputed must be ranked as one of the year's outstanding screen offerings.

Breed Theatre.

The latest company to release sound pictures is Rayart Pictures who, with Producer Trem Carr, have just made their first venture in the talkie field with Should a Girl Marry? which will arrive here next week at the Breed theatre. This amazing expose of modern youth has a complete musical score, dialogue and sound effects, the dialogue vastly emphasizing the dramatic highlights of the production. Helen Foster is the lead, with Donald Keither, Wm. V. Mong and Dot Farley in the principal supporting roles. It was directed by Scott Pembroke, responsible for many of Rayart's silent successes.

Included on the same bill are five Filmtone novelty acts by artists well known to vaudeville and radio fans.

A resolution changing the name of Tannar street to Case street was then adopted.

To Sell Bean Hill School

Selectman William S. Murray called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock and Town Clerk Harold S. Burt read the warning. The first matter taken up was action on the sale of the school property. Selectman Murray stated that the old Bean Hill school has been discontinued by the school board and that the board had turned the property over to the selectmen to dispose of.

W. T. Camp presented a resolution authorizing the selectmen to sell the school building and property to the highest bidder. There were no remarks on the resolution, which was unanimously adopted.

Julian Street Accepted

The next matter was action on the acceptance of Julian street as a town highway. Patrick F. Sweeney introduced a resolution accepting the street. Hibberd R. Norman spoke briefly in support of the resolution. Mr. Norman said that the residents on that street feel that it is no more than fair that the town take the street over. The resolution was adopted.

Tannar Street Petitioners Withdraw

The meeting then proceeded to the Tanner street discussion. According to the warning the meeting was to act on the proposal to change the name of the street to John Birchard lane.

As soon as this matter was called up, G. Warren Davis presented a petition and a resolution. The petition, signed by well over a score of citizens, read by the clerk, was to the effect that the signers understood at the time they signed the petition, that the name of Tannar street was to be changed to Birchard street. Then it developed that the street was to be known as John Birchard lane, to which they were opposed. The petition stated that the signers wished to withdraw their names from the original petition and asked that Tannar street be changed to Case street. Those who withdrew their names from the original petition were: Mrs. Margaret Mara, Isabella Mara, Cornelius P. Sullivan, Barbara F. Sullivan, John F. Sullivan, James B. Chapman, Louis S. Vergason, Katherine I. Keating, Nora E. Keating, Timothy Fields, Mary A. Fields, Jennie Haffner, Mrs. Pauline Haffner, Mrs. L. A. Duch, Leo A. Duch, Anthony Duke, Louis Ranger, Mrs. Edward Greene, Edward Greene, W. D. Thacher, Winifred Keating, Maud R. Dawley, David A. Kinney, Thomas Mara, Elizabeth Mara, Mary Louise Mara, John J. Mara, L. A. Fenton. The resolution, as read by the town clerk, authorized the change to Case street.

Mr. Davis, speaking in behalf of the resolution, said that the residents of that locality were evidently misinformed when they signed the original petition. They understood the name was to be Birchard street. Later it developed that the name was to be John Birchard lane, in memory of an old-time resident. Mr. Davis said there is an awkwardness to such a name as John Birchard lane, and that it was almost as long as the street. He spoke of Mr. Case as another old-time resident, who operated a tannery in that locality and gave work to many people there. The resolution was then unanimously adopted.

Resolution to Investigate

The final matter on the warning was the proposed grand list investigation. According to the warning, the meeting was to take such action as it saw fit on the grand list as left by the board of relief. This came before the meeting through a petition signed by George E. Pitcher and others.

G. Warren Davis introduced a resolution naming the following as a committee to investigate the legality of the grand list of the town as left by the board of relief: John H. Barnes, George E. Pitcher, Hyman Schwartz, Michael Campion, R. C. Dion, Hermon Gibbs and Joseph Pysyk.

Supports Resolution

Mr. Davis spoke in favor of the resolution. It is quite a thing to revalue the property of a community or town, he said. We have been in this procedure for I don't know how many years. Mr. Davis then inquired of Town Counsel H. H. Pettis as to when it was that the revaluation was started, and was informed that it was about six years ago. Albert Boardman volunteered the information that it was in 1912.

Well, anyway, it was quite a while ago, said Mr. Davis. The revaluation cost a lot of money. There has been and is a great deal of dissatisfaction with the result of the revaluation.

First we spent $6,000 for a tax map; then we spent $6,000 more for the map and finally $8,000 additional, making a total of $20,000 for the map. Then the Manufacturers' Appraisal Co. came in and we paid them $28,000 more, making a total of $48,000.

Mr. Davis said that if the revaluation had been satisfactory, he doubted if the petitioners would have signed the petition. He said the revaluation is not satisfactory. A great many people almost besieged the board of relief, he said. Therefore we come with this petition.

Mr. Davis said that the revaluation cost $48,000 and that if it cost $1,000 to inquire into it it would be fair to spend another $1,000 or even $2,000.

Geo. H. Gilman Opposed

I am against this resolution, said Atty. George H. Gilman. It is a waste of time and a waste of money to appoint any such committee, he said. Mr. Gilman went on to say that we have just been through the appointment of a fact-finding committee. We had a good committee, they worked hard and made a good report, he said, but added that their report had no effect. He referred to the $20,000 appropriated for the tax map for the assessors. Then we spent $28,000 more to help the assessors do their duty, he said. Mr. Gilman said a good many went to the board of relief and that afterwards we had a town meeting and laid a tax. He said that before the meeting asked the proposed committee to devote their time to an investigation it should inquire as to what effect their report would have. He called attention to the fact that anyone who feels aggrieved can take an appeal from the board of relief to the superior court.

Asks Name Be Removed

Abner Schwartz, one of the signers of the petition, requested that his name be removed from the petition. He signed under a misapprehension, he explained. I see now that they are trying to throw over all the work of the revaluation, he said. Mr. Schwartz stated that although his assessment had been raised one and one-half times, he was perfectly satisfied because he knew it had to come.

Dr. James J. Donahue likened the proposed investigation of the grand list to the proposed further investigation of prohibition. He said it is true that there are some injustices and inequalities but that they are bound to be ironed out. To throw away this $48,000 would make us look like school boys, he said. Dr. Donahue then moved to indefinitely postpone the matter. His motion was adopted.

Henry G. Peck moved that the meeting adjourn and the motion was carried, the meeting having been in session about a half hour.

CHURCH AND STATE UNITED IN POMP AND MAGNIFICENCE OF MARSHAL FOCH FUNERAL

The Republic of France and the Church of Rome Joined in the Show of Solemn Splendor—Ten Nations Heaped Honors Upon the Bier of the Great Warrior—Most of the Civilized World Was Represented at the Church Ceremony and in the Funeral Procession—More Than a Million Heads Were Bowed During the Passing of the Cortege.

PARIS, March 26—(AP)—Marshal Foch was laid to rest today near the tomb of Napoleon.

More than a million heads bowed as the great soldier was borne on a gun carriage from the stately gothic nave of Notre Dame cathedral to the simple and severe chapel of the invalides.

Church and state, separated in France for more than 20 years, united for the day to provide the devout Christian soldier with a national funeral unparalleled in pomp and magnificence. The world has seldom seen its like before and it is not probable that such a show of solemn splendid will be repeated in this age.

The republic of France and the church of Rome, were joined by ten nations whose armies Foch commanded in the World war in heaping honors upon the bier of the modest master of ten million warriors.

Most of the civilized world was represented at the church funeral ceremony and in the cortege that moved with military pomp and precision through the streets and squares of Paris from Notre Dame to the golden dome of the Invalides. It was the fifth day on which France had mourned her "greatest soldier" of modern times.

Premier Poincare, who was president of France during the war, said in his brief funeral address that Foch had had no other ambition than to serve and had wished no other recompense than the assurance of having accomplished his duty.

Paris put aside both her work and her pleasures to pay her tribute.

Many other cities did the same. In provincial cities and every town and village that supports the church, services were held for the man who delivered France from the invader. In Paris, stores were closed in the morning during the funeral services and theaters did not open in the afternoon or evening.

Paris Up Early

Paris was up early and dressed in the most brilliant of her more serious garb for the unforgettable funeral. At two o'clock in the morning, people began to take their places along the route between the cathedral and the tomb. Soon after dawn the streets over which the gun carriage was to bear Foch to his resting place were strewn with clean sand. Soldiers with fixed bayonets formed an aisle more than a mile and a half in length through which the cortege was to pass.

By eight o'clock half of the 5,000 persons admitted to the funeral services had taken their places at Notre Dame. At 8:30 six carriages, their black curtains drawn, brought to the cathedral the widow, brother, two daughters and the grandchildren of Foch together with other relatives and his close friend, General Weygand.

Prince Charles of Belgium, representing King Albert, arrived a few minutes later.

Immediately after, the Prince of Wales stepped from his automobile, shook hands with members of the French cabinet on the cathedral steps, and took his place well down the nave near the catafalque.

Promptly at nine-thirty the carillon of the cathedral rang out in the foggy morning air.

President Doumergue arrived as the official representative of the whole of France. He was received by Cardinal Dubois and conducted to his place in the president's chair in front of all the people, even in front of the Foch family.

Scene in Notre Dame

The carved portals of Notre Dame was then closed, the organ sounded the solemn music of the "De Profundis" and the funeral mass began.

Seldom, even in the times of the kings of France, had the light, filtering through the stained glass windows and flickering from a thousand tapers, revealed such a scene of color and ceremony as met 5,000 pairs of eyes that looked upon the funeral mass of Marshal Foch.

Save for the feminine members of Foch's family, a few women in the high galleries along the outer aisles and a few nuns who had seen service as nurses during the war, it was a masculine assembly. Most of the men were in uniforms, military, naval or diplomatic, and the rest in full evening dress.

All the living marshals of France were there in their blue uniforms, gold braid and red topped kepis and all the marshals of Britain with their batons and their plumes. Three French cardinals sat in the choir, surrounded by two-score bishops and monsignors in red silk capes, each with a biretta on his head.

Near the Catafalque sat the Prince of Wales, clad in the red coat of a colonel of the Welsh Guards weighted with golden epaulets and braid and holding his beaver bubby in his nervous hands.

Next to him was Prince Charles of Belgium in simpler khaki.

Nearby sat General Pershing in general's uniform, the Papal Nuncio Maglione in red robes, the military attaches of 30 countries in military dress, and the ambassadors of almost all the lands of the earth in gorgeous array. Ambassador Herrick was an exception and like President Doumergue wore a black swallow-tail coat, white waistcoat and white tie and a top hat.

In the nave were scores of French generals, colonels and lesser officers, members of the government and groups of ex-soldiers from all the allied countries.

The catafalque was a pyramid of silver and black standing 20 feet above the floor and lit by candles and the flames of four funeral torches. High above it, sixty feet or more, a great dome-like Baldachin was suspended, with long streams of black and silver cloth sweeping from it in great curves which [illegible] the Gothic columns that form the entrance to the transcepts.

Hundreds of candles brightened the high altar before which low mass was said by Canon Vertrie, pastor of Foch's parish church. All during the ceremony the organ played and the choir sang, save at the sacred moment when the host was consecrated and 5,000 heads bowed low in silence.

Along Route of March

Outside, along the route of march between the cathedral and the Hotel de Ville, detachments of French and allied troops took their places in line in front of the French "75" cannon which was to carry the coffin behind six black horses.

At ten o'clock, just one hour after mass had begun, the coffin was brought out of the central portals of the cathedral and placed upon the gun carriage.

Trumpets sounded "Aux Champs" ("to the fields") as the soldiers waiting in the great square presented arms and sabres, and the republican guards were brought to a rigid salute.

In front of the coffin Cardinal Dubois and Arch-Bishop Binet took their places, the long violet trains of their robes held by choir boys. Behind them marched bishops and prelates of various ranks. It was the first time in many years that the church had been represented in such a manner in an official state ceremony in France.

On either side of the gun carriage walked the pall-bearers, General Pershing leading one file and the British Field Marshal Lloyd the other. The pallbearers included three French marshals, three British field marshals, an Italian marshal and one member each from the French Academy and the Academy of Sciences to which Foch had been elected when he returned victorious from the front.

Funeral Procession

A little after ten a. m. the cortege moved on its way through streets lined with French soldiers, some in khaki, some in horizon blue. Back of them were packed uncounted hundreds of thousands of spectators, all silent now and with little color in their great mass except for the occasional bright sweater of a child.

In the cortege were the Republican Guards of France all riding with drawn sabres. The red-coated and blue-trousered Cold Stream Guard of England, with golden epaulets and two foot fur bubbys, marched with their right arms held behind their backs and left arms holding their rifles reversed, muzzles pointing downwards. The kilted Lowland Scottish followed, the skirling bagpipes draped in black.

American Officers in Khaki

In sharp contrast with their military splendors was a little troop of 20 American officers in plain khaki uniform, preceded by the American Legions host's color guard.

General Pershing who marched beside the coffin wore no other decoration than the red sash of the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor.

A platoon of Italian Alpine Chasseurs wore gray-green uniforms and feathers in their hats, the Czech detachment was in white with black brassards on their arms. Belgium's soldiers were in khaki.

There were other military detachments from Rumania, Serbia, Japan and other allied nations, men from the Polytechnic school, Foch's Alma Mater, marched in a square of moving black, ten abreast and ten deep. The whole cortege marched with military precision except the government ministers and diplomats who made up in color what they lacked in style.

Between the richly robed prelates and the rumbling gun carriage, Foch's fanion was carried, followed by his charger, the horses head and body were nearly hidden under a hood of black and silver.

As the procession passed the gilded statute of Joan of Arc, who exactly 500 years ago delivered France from the invader, the bands played the Marseillaise. The national air sounded again as the cortege, crossing the Place de La Concorde, moved by the statue of the City of Strasbourg, which Foch brought back to France after nearly half a century's separation.

The procession cut diagonally across the place. Then up the Champs Elysees and down the Avenue Gallieni between the Grand Palais and the Petit Palais. It crossed the Seine to the left bank and halted before the Invalides, where the body was again placed on the catafalque and Premier Poincare delivered his oration.

The Tomb of Foch

The edifice where the marshal's last journey ended today is known as the Hotel Des Invalides or "Old Soldiers Home."

Under the golden dome of its chapel, alongside Napoleon and Napoleon's brothers Jerome and Joseph, next to Marshal Vauban and across an aisle from the monuments containing the remains of the great Turenne and the heart of Latour D'Auvergne, the tomb of Foch will recall to future generations the history of the third French republic and the greatest of all wars.

Louis XIV built the Invalides and Napoleon richly endowed it at a time when he could little foresee the circumstances under which he himself would be taken there.

Napoleon had, during his first years of repose there, men who had fought under his command as a guard of honor. It will be likewise with Foch.

In the mosaic pavement of the crypt are inset amid laurel wreaths the names of Napoleon's battles, Rivoli, Marengo, Jena, Wagram, the Pyramids, Austerlitz, Friedland, Moskowa, and Brodino. Some day there will be added to them the names of the battles of the Marne, the Yser, the second battle of the Marne, the Armonne, the second battle of Champagne and the final battle of Deliverance.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, March 27—(Wednesday)—(AP)—The dowager marchioness of Cambridge, sister-in-law of the queen, died at midnight from septic pneumonia.

LISBON, Portugal, March 26—(AP)—The Portuguese minister of finance, in view of the situation in the treasury, has decreed that interest on government treasury bonds shall be reduced to 6-1-2 per cent. The government recently has been paying 10 per cent. interest on these securities.

TENTH ARREST WAS MADE FOR DIAMOND SMUGGLING

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP)—Government agents who have been working for two years to break up an international diamond smuggling organization, made their tenth arrest today, their prisoner being the third ocean steward to be seized as a gem carrier.

The man arrested was Charles Ward, chief steward of the Cunard liner Ascania. Assistant U. S. Attorney Sylvester announced that Ward confessed to transporting smuggled diamonds while he was steward on the Cunarder Aquitania but said he "quit the racket," when he was transferred to the Ascania.

When he quit, Ward said, after carrying diamonds valued at $250,000 on 20 voyages, he passed the smuggling job along to Leslie Metcalfe, chief second cabin steward on the Aquitania, who was arrested last week.

The first steward to be arrested was William Ballyn, of the Berengaria. Others arrested are City Patrolman John T. McIntyre, Morris Landau, jeweler, his daughter, Frances, other jewelers, and James S. Steel, a Boston lace merchant.

When the agents boarded the Ascania today they had with them a man they said was an agent of the smugglers and whom they referred to both as "King" and "Steel" but they did not say whether he was the lace merchant. Ward's confession was said to have been made when he was confronted by Steel.

Ward was reported to have said that each time he brought over a package of diamonds, Patrolman McIntyre would board the ship and take the package, giving him $100 in cash for his part in the operation.

The case of the alleged smuggling was called in court today and was marked ready for trial, which will begin as soon as another action now under way is completed.

INCENDIARIES BLAMED FOR FIRE ON STEAMER EUROPA

HAMBURG, March 26—(AP)—Incendiaries were blamed tonight for fire which today badly damaged the new 40,000-ton North German Lloyd liner Europa.

All reports agreed that the blaze originated simultaneously in several different points. The investigating authorities, officials of the shipbuilders, Blohm & Voss, and of the North German Lloyd company, have not, however, found a definite clue.

Representatives of the North German Lloyd company and of Blohm & Voss were the first persons permitted to board the still smouldering vessel which was to have been queen of the German trans-Atlantic service.

The Blohm & Voss company made an official statement that although they anticipated great loss from the fire, interior decorations of the cabins and saloons had not as yet been started and the stern of the vessel as well as the entire machinery and boiler installations had been repaired.

Amidships, however, both port and starboard, everything had been destroyed and much of the iron framework warped.

HOOVER MOVES TO BREAK UP POLITICAL SECTIONALISM

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP)—President Hoover took a sweeping step today in his campaign to break up political sensationalism south of the Mason and Dixon line.

In his first purely political pronouncement since entering the white house, he bluntly informed the old organizations in South Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi that they had lost the administration's confidence because of abuse in handling federal patronage and called upon the people of those states to build new organizations.

Conversely he commended the leadership in the other southern states on the effort "to broaden the basis of party organization by the establishment of advisory committees of the highest type of citizenship to deal with administrative questions and who will also co-operate with independent democrats." The organizations, the recreation of which was decreed by the president, are headed in South Carolina by Joseph T. Tolbert, for many years national committeeman, and in Mississippi by Perry Howard, a Negro, who also has had long service as a national committeeman and who now is awaiting trial in connection with patronage distribution.

STIMSON IN CONFERENCE WITH PRESIDENT HOOVER

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP)—Henry L. Stimson lost little time after his arrival here today from New York in beginning the task of acquainting himself with the questions with which he must deal as secretary of state.

Within less than half an hour after he arrived he was in conference with President Hoover and then spent the remainder of the afternoon at the state department conferring with Secretary Kellogg and Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, head of the American delegation to the preliminary arms conference to open next month at Geneva.

Mexican affairs and the arms conference were the first subjects to which Mr. Stimson gave attention as they are the most important of the current problems. Later he will take up such matters as reparations, the World Court and state department and diplomatic shifts and appointments.

Mr. Stimson, who will take the oath of office late Thursday, is to be a guest of President Hoover at the white house during the remainder of the week.

CONTINUE SEARCH FOR MISSING PLANE AND MEN

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP)—Boats and planes and searching parties afoot continued to hunt the New Jersey forests and the coast line from Norfolk to New York today, but not a sign was found of four men who took off early Friday morning from the Virginia city in a Sikorsky amphibian and disappeared.

The missing plane was chartered last Thursday in Miami by T. Raymond Finucane, wealthy Rochester, N. Y., sportsman. It was piloted by Harry Smith, Curtiss flying service veteran, and was occupied also by Frank Abele of Mineola and Robert Boyd of Portland, Me.

Border Attack By Mex. Rebels Imminent

Squads of U. S. Cavalry and Infantry Patroling Naco, A[illegible] the Border in Arizona.

(By The Associated Press)

Action in the Mexican revolution switched sharply Tuesday from the west coast to north central Mexico where the insurgents concentrated heavily as the federals drove northward.

The town of Jimenez in Chihuahua, on the road to the American border, was heavily bombed by four federal planes, four insurgents being killed and 17 wounded.

General Escobar, rebel commander-in-chief, left Juarez from Jimenez to take personal command of the main rebel army there.

Meanwhile the insurgents apparently were preparing for a counter-offensive in the air. One pursuit plane piloted by an American reached Jimenez and others were said to be on the way.

A rebel attack on Naco along the border seemed imminent after many days of delay. The insurgents were reported only ten miles from the town which has been heavily entrenched by the loyal troops stationed there.

Squads of United States cavalry and infantry were deployed in the streets of Naco, across the border in Arizona, for police duty in the event of fighting.

Mazatlan, after several days of heavy fighting, was still in federal possession. The defenders reported that the attackers had fled northward, but the insurgents claimed that the siege had not been lifted.

In central Mexico the government forces under General Calles were continuing preparations for a northward drive, to force the insurgents into Sonora where the federals hope to bottle them up.

MEX. REBELS RELEASE AMERICAN AVIATOR

NOGALES, Ariz., March 26—(AP)—G. K. "Buzz" Morrison, Reno, Nev., aviator, employed by Mexican federal forces, who was captured by Mexican rebels recently when he made a forced landing in rebel territory near Cananea, Sonora, was released today. Morrison crossed the international boundary line into American territory and announced he had agreed not to participate in future Mexican military activities.

MEX. REBELS TO ATTACK BY AIR AND CAVALRY

JUAREZ, Chihuahua, March 26—(AP)—Subjected to another air attack by government aviators who took a toll of four dead and 17 wounded, insurgent forces of the main revolutionary base at Jimenez, Chihuahua, tonight were believed to be prepared for their long-heralded offensive against the steadily advancing army of Gen. P. Elias Calles.

Gen. Jose Gonzalo Escobar, the insurgent commander-in-chief, left Juarez to return to active duty at the head of his command. In the revolutionary chieftain's absence, Jimenez twice was attacked by the federal airmen, and rebel leaders indicated today that General Escobar planned to retaliate with a combined offensive by air and cavalry.

Capt. R. H. Polk, an American aviator, was declared to have been named to head a "Yankee Doodle" squadron of airmen, in which there will be at least three other American airmen.

Captain Polk, who arrived at Jimenez yesterday, said he would lead the flyers in rebel planes into the war zone of southern Chihuahua. Two airplanes owned by the rebels in Juarez have been converted into bombers.

All the victims of the attack on Jimenez yesterday were reported to have been soldiers.

General Escobar departed on a special train reported to have carried a large quantity of arms, ammunition, and supplies. Rebel leaders here declared General Escobar was equipped for three months of fighting.

TESTIMONY IN CASE OF DEFRAUDING INVESTORS

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP)—Testimony that the wife of George F. Shurtleff, one of five men accused of defrauding Canario Copper stock investors of $5,000,000, had obtained 30,000 shares in payment of a loan and then received $101,100 for the securities from the Bank of Greenwich, Conn., was given by Shurtleff in federal court today.

Shurtleff said his wife's loan was made to Cameron Michel company, the brokerage house through which the government charges a national mail sales campaign was fraudulently carried on. Shurtleff said he was in the west at the time of the transaction.

The witness gave his testimony under cross-examination in another phase of which Shurtleff said he did not recall making a statement that Cameron Michel company was financed by two New Jersey banks. He said, however, that there was a syndicate arrangement involving some 400,000 shares of stock, but he added he did not know the details.

Two Men Killed By Nitro-Glycerine Blast

Parts of Three States Were Shaken by Explosion at Gibbstown, N. J.—Detonation Alarming.

PHILADELPHIA, March 26—(AP)—Two men were killed and parts of three states were shaken today as 5,000 pounds of nitro-glycerine exploded in the plant of the Du Pont Powder company at Gibbstown, N. J., 18 miles south of Philadelphia.

The dead were:

John Kern, 55, a widower, of Paulsboro, N. J.

Liuti Pizzadrilli, Norristown, Pa.

The explosion occurred in a small frame structure in what is known as the Repauno dynamite plant of the Du Pont company. Because of the nature of the product the frame building was surrounded by high earth banks.

Kern was known as the operator of the plant and was the only man employed in the building. Pizzadrilli was known as a "wheeler" who was engaged in taking material to and from the building.

The nitro-glycerine, which was being prepared for use in the manufacture of dynamite, was contained in lead tanks.

The cause of the explosion probably will never be known as no one else was near the building at the time.

Other buildings in the plant were slightly damaged and many windows in the area were broken. Company officials said the property loss wou' be about $20,000.

The explosion caused much excitement in Gibbstown, a mile away, and in Paulsboro, about two miles distant. In the public school at Gibbstown a number of children were cut by flying glass, but the children, who have heard explosions before at the plant, marched out of the school in more or less orderly fashion and none was injured.

The explosion was felt as far south as Vineland, N. J., and as far north as Mount Holly, N. J. It also was felt in upper Delaware and in Philadelphia windows were broken in the southern part of the city.

Thousands of telephone calls came into newspaper offices and police stations. All sorts of reports were in circulation and some attributed the noise and the concussion to the firing of a salute at the Philadelphia navy yard in memory of Marshal Foch whose funeral was held in Paris today.

MANY FRENCH-CANADIANS ARE FACING DEPORTATION

MONTREAL, March 26—(AP)—Commissioner H. B. Landis of the United States immigration department was asked today about a statement credited to United States Marshal Alfred Chretier of Manchester, N. J., that 200,000 French-Canadians faced deportation under the new immigration ruling and replied that the statute becoming effective July 1 would be fully enforced.

"The marshal has put the situation rather dramatically," he said. "but he is just about right. All persons, not only French Canadians, who have entered the country since June 3, 1921, the date of the first quota regulation, and cannot produce the proper entry papers, will be liable to expulsion."

Commissioner Landis said a distinction would be made between those who try to help and those who try to hinder. Persons who before being deported will be examined at the border for immediate re-entry, there being no quota regulation for born Canadians, even though the manner of first entry was technically illegal. Those against whom deportation warrants have to be issued, however, Landis said, will never be allowed to enter the country again.

19 CHARGES AGAINST GOV. LONG OF LOUISIANA

BATON ROUGE, La., March 26—(AP)—Nineteen charges, ranging from a plot to murder a state representative to malfeasance in office, were filed against Gov. Huey P. Long, 36-year-old executive of Louisiana, in an impeachment resolution read late today in the state house of representatives.

The resolution was presented after efforts had been made by the governor's friends to forestall it with a motion to adjourn sine die. The motion was lost by a vote of 38 to 55 after three hours' debate, in which the rule holding an adjournment motion nondebatable was disregarded.

The resolution was laid on the table to come up tomorrow.

COMMITTEE VINDICATES SENATOR RICE OF OKLA.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 26—(AP)—The Oklahoma senate late today adopted a motion holding that no evidence had been revealed to substantiate statements in a letter written by Senator John L. Rice, hinting at attempted bribery of senators who voted in the court of impeachment to retain Henry S. Johnston as governor.

An order was submitted by a committee providing for Senator Rice's suspension from office.

DETAILS OF DAY IN GENERAL ASSEMBLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

HARTFORD, March 26.—The day in the house was productive of nothing of special interest.

Mrs. Russ, of Shelton, chairman of the committee on human institutions, on reporting unfavorably on the bill that authorized the purchase by the state of the land and buildings of the Veterans' hospital at Allingtown, stated that it was the unanimous opinion of the committee that the money that would be required had much better be used in expanding existing tubercular sanatoriums. Speaker Eddy called attention to the fact that in a friendly state the people were mourning the loss of a great world figure and suggested that the house arise for a moment and stand in silence as a mark of appreciation.

The messengers and doorkeepers of the house and senate organized today by selecting temporary officers as follows: Chairman, Andrew G. Littlefield, Lebanon; committee of arrangements for a dinner to be tendered the comptroller, Leo P. Flamion, of Hartford; Roy L. Andrews, of Norwalk; Robert D. Chapman, of Westbrook; Paul D. Leopold, of New Britain.

One of the bills passed will be of interest to all the towns of the state. It relates to the status of town paupers who have removed from a town and later returned. The bill provides:

"Section 1. Any person, having had a settlement in any town in this state who shall have returned to the state after an absence of four years, shall be deemed to be a state pauper if he shall become a public charge within a period of four years from the date of such return.

Section 2. Section 1656 of the general statutes is repealed."

The meeting of the committee on towns held in the hall of the house was not very largely attended. It had two bills before them. An act amending the law pertaining to the manufacture and sale of mattresses and an act concerning bake shop licenses.

The fish and game as usual had a large attendance when matters concerning shad were heard. They had bills before them that would extend the fishing privilege one more day in the week. Another bill prohibits the taking of shad in the Scantic river by any other way than with a scoop.

SALES OF 8,246,740 SHARES IN CRISIS IN STOCK MARKET

Record-Breaking Turnover Was Caused by Increasing Rate of Call Loans From 12 to 20 Per Cent—As High as 25 Per Cent Was Demanded in the "Outside Market"—Sharp Rise in Money Terrified Both Large and Small Speculators and Large Blocks of Stocks Were Disposed of "At the Market," to Halt Rapidly Vanishing Paper Profits or Limit the Steadily Mounting Losses.

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP)— The worst credit crisis in nine years in which the official rate on call loans was jacked up from 12 to 20 per cent, and as high as 25 per cent. was demanded in the "outside market" today brought about one of the most turbulent sessions in the history of the New York stock exchange. Prices crashed $5 to nearly $35 a share, and then rebounded in almost as spectacular fashion, on a record-breaking turnover of 8,246,740 shares.

The previous record was 6,942,500 shares on Nov. 23 last.

The credit stringency was the indirect result of the federal reserve board's policy in seeking the cooperation of member banks in curtailing the volume of credit on speculative collateral. This has resulted in the heavy withdrawal of funds from New York by out-of-town banks during the past week, and the disinclination of New York bankers to meet the deficiency.

Call money renewed today at 12 per cent jumped to 15, then 17 and finally 20 with only a nominal amount of loans called. New York bankers are reported to have supplied some funds at the 20 per cent. level to keep the rate from going higher although they will shortly be called upon to meet unusually large April 1, dividend and interest disbursements.

The sharp rise in money threw a terrible scare into thousands of small speculators, most of whom had never before experienced a credit crisis, and into some of the large traders as well, with the result that large blocks of stocks were dumped overboard "at the market" in order to conserve rapidly vanishing paper profits, or limit the steadily mounting losses.

The late rally of $5 to $26 a share in some of the high priced stocks resulted in relatively little change being shown by the stock market prices. The Associated Press figure for 50 leading industrials fell only 1.2 points, as against 6.6 yesterday while the indice of 20 rails dropped only 3-10 of a point, although it set a new low level for the year. As a group, the public utilities were the hardest hit, the index of 20 leading issues dropping 4.8 points as against 5.3 points yesterday.

The market had opened fairly steady, with opening prices irregular. A rally started soon after the opening but this was checked when the call money renewal rate was posted at 12 per cent. Large offerings then began to appear and prices rapidly melted away, with the selling movement gaining increased impetus from each advance in the rate.

Such a gigantic accumulation of orders poured over the brokerage wires from all sections of the country, and by radio and cables from abroad, that the ticker fell hopelessly behind the market. Word came back from the floor around 11 o'clock that the ticker was nearly 25 minutes late. The delay was increased to 40 minutes at noon, 55 minutes at 1.30, 64 minutes at 2 o'clock and 93 minutes at 2.30, with the usual last minute rush of buying and selling delaying the printing of the final quotation until two hours and 14 minutes after the market had closed.

This was the longest delay on record, the previous record of two hours had 3 minutes having been established on Nov. 16, 1928.

Today was the first time since the post-war deflation crisis in 1920 that Wall street has seen 20 per cent money. On February 5 of that year, call loans renewed at 17 per cent, and advanced to 20, although an official rate of 25 per cent. had been established a day or two before the highest call money rate since the federal reserve system was established was on Nov. 12, 1919, a period of commodities as well as securities inflation, when a charge of 30 per cent. was made on day to day loans. In the panic of 1907, call money was practically unobtainable at any price, and the rate quoted as high as 125 per cent when bankers organized a "money pool" to relieve the situation.

PANDEMONIUM ON FLOOR OF THE STOCK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP)—Pandemonium reigned on the floor of the stock exchange today as brokers struggled and shouted themselves hoarse to execute the orders which all but overwhelmed them. On opposite sides of the exchange floor are two large call boards used to signal brokers to answer the direct telephones from the floor to their offices, and the flapping of these signals sounded like heavy machine gun fire. On one of the upper floors, far removed from the turbulent trading area, seventy telephone girls worked at top speed to supply member firms with quotations on the floor which were in greater demand than usual because of the lateness of the tape. It is estimated that the girls answered 100,000 inquiries during the day, or double the usual amount.

A roar of laughter swept over the floor when the electric board on which the money rate is posted blew out a fuse when the operator attempted to change the figure from 17 to 20 per cent. The defect was quickly remedied. The closing gong was greeted on the floor by a combination roar of cheers and whistles.

TALK OF REVISION OF RUM-SMUGGLING TREATY

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP)—Revision of the rum-smuggling treaty between the United States and Great Britain and her dominions to make it more effective and eliminate future differences over its provisions was foreseen tonight in official and diplomatic circles as a possible outcome of the sinking of the British rum-runner I'm Alone by a coast guard patrol boat.

State department officials expressed the opinion today that the technicalities involved made the case one for international lawyers and it is even believed possible that present unofficial differences of opinion on points under the treaty might necessitate the submission of the case to arbitration if it is pressed.

PROPOSAL OF PLAN TO SAVE THE SPOKEN DRAMA

MERCHANTS VOTE AGAINST ANOTHER SPECIAL SALE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 26—A proposition to stage another sales promotion project in the near future was voted down at one of the largest attended meetings of the Willimantic merchants held in the chamber of commerce offices this forenoon on the grounds that "in the opinion of the retail merchants' division of the chamber the plan under consideration would be detrimental to the best interests of the merchants and the general shopping public of the greater Willimantic territory". This action was taken with but one dissenting vote. President James H. Hurley presided at the meeting during which the sales event was thoroughly discussed. It was pointed out that in view of the successful experience of the merchants during the past year in cooperating an effort would be made to encourage plans seeking to further co-ordinate merchandising events. The value of newspaper advertising was strongly stressed and mention was also made of mailing lists and special features of an active retail merchants' division.

Field Secretary Russell J. Blair of Hartford, who is supervising the work of committees on preparing for the big Christian Endeavor union convention to be held here April 5, 6 and 7, said today that the most serious problem at hand was the housing of about 500 young people who will be overnight guests in town Friday and Saturday nights. All available hotel reservations have already been taken up and the committee is now turning to private homes. The success of the convention depends largely on the securing of rooms for the visitors according to committeemen. A moderate sum is allowed each person furnishing room and breakfast for a delegate. To date accommodations have been secured for only about one-third of the number who will be here during the two evenings. The committee, assisted by the chamber of commerce is bending every effort to secure rooms as it is felt that with the coming of the biggest convention ever held in Willimantic the good name of the city is somewhat at stake.

Police Court News.

A fine of $100 and costs was imposed in police court this morning in the case of Zigmund Sokolowski of 57 Chapman street, charged with maintaining a place where liquor was reputed to be sold. Through Attorney John T. Barry of Jewett City, the accused pleaded guilty to the charge. The case was a continued one, the original charge having been one of keeping liquor with intent to sell. Sokolowski was one of three arrested in Saturday night raids staged by the police two weeks ago.

Ernest Bellevance of 31 North street, who was booked on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, secured a continuance of his case until Tuesday, April 2. Bellevance was arrested after midnight this morning after his sedan had collided with the rear of a Ford delivery truck owned by Carl Sharpe of Abington on Maple avenue, near the foot of Oak street. The truck was in charge of Martin J. Walsh of 19 High street, and was parked on the avenue at the time of the collision. Both machines were damaged. Further continuances were granted in the cases of Ovila Martin, charged with non-support of his wife, and of George Morin, Jr., charged with operating a motor vehicle without a license. The cases will be taken up Thursday of this week and Tuesday, April 2, respectively.

In connection with the fire which destroyed the main barn with much of the valuable contents on the Robert E. Stearns farm in Mansfield early Monday evening, it was established today that the fact that the two telephone lines leading to the Chestnut Hill section of Mansfield were put out of commission by the lightning storm proved a serious handicap to securing help. The same bolt of lightning that set the Stearns barn ablaze is believed to have put the telephone lines out of commission. Mrs. Stearns and two children were alone on the place at the time and upon discovery of the fire it was necessary to send a courier to a neighbor, one half a mile distant, ot secure the use of a telephone. Once the phone was put to use, effective work, through the cooperation of the local operator, was done in rounding up neighbors who came from miles around to assist at the fire. Two horses and eight heifers in the basement of the building and four milch cows on the ground floor perished. The volunteers saved 22 valuable head of cattle, however. Some 20 tons of baled hay and a large number of farming implements as well as most of the dairy machinery were also destroyed.

The barn was one of the largest in the town of Mansfield, measuring about 60 by 50 feet. Expensive equipment and pedigreed stock made it a model dairy barn. The approximate loss of $17,000 is partially covered by insurance.

ALBERT E. LAVERY SPEAKS TO LOCAL ROTARY CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 26—Representative Albert E. Lavery of Bridgeport, former governor of the 30th Rotary district delivered an inspiring Rotary address at the weekly luncheon-meeting held in the Nathan Hale hotel today. He was introduced by Justice George E. Hinman, chairman of the club service committee. In outlining the background of Rotary the speaker pointed out that Rotary International statistics showed that 85 per cent of the 141,500 Rotarians of the world own their own homes. There are 96 per cent. of them married and over 90 per cent. have two or more children. The former district governor found occasion to compliment the city and the club members on the splendid hotel built up since his last visit to the city.

Representative Lavery was given a rising vote of thanks. Guests at the meeting were Captain Henry E. Barker of Clifton Springs, N. Y., and Edward Strandhaven of New London. President Raymond A. Parker called for a moment of silent prayer in noting the death in France of Marshal Foch. Among announcements made by the president it was stated that Willimantic ranked tenth in attendance for the district during February.

The two electrical storms experienced here Monday evening and early this morning rate as a most unusual occurrence for this time of the year. The first storm, which broke at 6.30 o'clock, lasted about a half hour and was accompanied by several heavy peals of thunder. The second came after midnight to the tune of pelting rain that washed down large quantities of debris from the hill section onto Valley and Main streets. Two telephone cables one in Windham and the other the Ash street terminal, were affected by the storm. This morning repairmen started out to restore 25 lines, comprising 136 stations, that were out of order in the city.

JOHN BURNS BOUND OVER—TAKEN TO NORWICH JAIL

In Griswold town court Tuesday morning Deputy Judge James H. Shea bound John Burns over to the next term of the criminal court, after the accused had entered a plea of guilty to the charge of the theft of an automobile, Sunday. The car is the property of Dona Dugas. Burns, not being able to furnish bail, Officer Henry Veglard took the prisoner to the Norwich jail to await trial. After pleading guilty to the charges as presented by Prosecuting Attorney R. J. Dudkowski, Burns told the judge that a number of men, he has since learned, stood on the pavement and without making any move to prevent it, saw him try to start first one car, then another, and finally were witnesses to his getting away in the Dugas machine. All these actions on his part, Burns said, was an entire blank, he being unable to recall any of the happenings during his wild ride. He told the court that someone should have thwarted his drunken designs, even at the cost of any necessary forceful interference. Attorney Dudkowski, while admitting the evident truth of the statements of the accused, said that those conditions were a matter concerning only the witnesses themselves, and could have no bearing on the circumstances of the offense or its obvious penalty. Much of interest had developed in the case, which was evidenced by the crowded courtroom, mainly because of the fact that, in Sprague town court, Burns when pleading guilty to two serious charges had been given the nominal fine of $1 and costs.

MISS HELEN BAKANOWSKI UNDERGOES OPERATION

Reports this afternoon from the Backus hospital, Norwich, are to the effect that Miss Helen Bakanowski is progressing finely after a major operation for a serious internal injury, which operation was performed Monday morning.

Miss Bakanowski, a Jewett City girl, is a senior in the Posse-Nissen school, Beacon street, Boston, where she is the captain of the school's famous basketball team. She has qualified and made good in several recent athletic games and aquatic contests, giving plenty of substantiation to the statements of the college experts that she is one of the foremost young women athletes in New England. Friday, at Boston, during a swimming contest in which Miss Bakanowski was selected to champion Posse-Nissen, she had taken the 50-yard swimming race with no point where opponents were considered dangerous. Entering the 50-yard aquatic sprint race and when in sight of probable victory, the swimmer suddenly gave evidence of acute point, her struggles indicating that something serious had happened. Instant assistance was necessary to prevent actual drowning. Being lifted from the tank, Boston doctors worked two hours to bring about such relief as was possible. The decision was reached that she could be brought to her home in Jewett City, a distance of 85 miles, which was covered by automobile, with her brother at the wheel. Dr. J. W. Callahan, of Norwich, was immediately summoned to Jewett City with the result that the necessary operation was performed Monday, which also included removal of the appendix.

Examination ratings required by the school stand as evidence that Miss Bakanowski has in no degree allowed her love for athletics to interfere with the routine business of education, and she is to be graduated with full honors by Posse-Nissen this June.

The patient expressed herself Tuesday as being especially gratified to learn from the surgeons that there seems evidence that recovery will be so complete that there will be no permanent set-back in her favorite diversion. A future filled with promises of excellence is to be the sure reward for her long and strenuous months of training.

Neither driver was hurt. The Chevrolet was considerably smashed forward, with slight damage to the Hudson. Officer Henry Veglard was notified and checked up on the mix-up. THE Feast of Easter becomes a more joyous occasion when Berry Spring Ginger Ales are served. Their sparkling clarity and tangy flavor add new enjoyment to every festive occasion.

AND the food itself, becomes, not only more enjoyable, but more digestible. The valuable fruit acids and mineral salts add materially in the digestion of heavier foods, rich in protein content. Another feature of Berry Spring Beverages is that through expert blending of purest ingredients and proper ageing under ideal conditions, there has been developed in each bottle a most valuable energizing food known to science as invert sugar.

YOU need not wonder that Berry Spring Ginger Ales are famous for their health properties. The water that is the base of all Berry Spring beverages, bubbles clear as crystal and icy cold from the rocky depths of our own spring. From Jamaica comes the ginger root and this is percolated especially for Berry Spring beverages in our own laboratory. Carefully the spices are chosen, the pure fruit flavors, the purest of granulated sugar. There is nothing synthetic, nothing artificial that can qualify as a Berry Spring ingredient.

THE same care and skill is used in their blending, in accordance with an exclusive formula, developed during a lifetime of study by a student of dietetics. The bottling, as well as other manufacturing processes, are carried out in a modern sun-flooded plant. Thorough ageing adds to the rare flavor of the beverages and to their healthfulness.

DANIELSON

CONN. MILLS CO. OPERATED AT A LOSS OF $228,707

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 26—Operating losses of $228,707, including an increase in the deficit during the past year due to sales of real estate and machinery at Danielson and Taunton is shown in the statement of condition of the Connecticut Mills company just ahead of the annual meeting to be held in Boston on April 2. The operating losses were incurred at Decatur, Alabama, where the company is now operating its new plant, yet President Obadiah Butler in a statement to stockholders says that the first two months' operation for the year 1929 showed a profit above charges, including depreciation and the cost of carrying the idle plants here in the north. Meanwhile the Danielson mill of the company has been purchased by Powdrell and Alexander and is being made ready for operation by that concern.

President Butler's statement says that the result of operations in Alabama improved consistently throughout 1928. In the first quarter of last year the loss down there was $114,556, the loss in the second quarter $59,808, in the third quarter, $33,678 and in the last quarter of the year the loss was reduced to $20,870, this quarter to be followed by the profitable months of January and February of this year. Mr. Butler says that losses during the early part of 1928 at Decatur were due largely to lack of housing facilities. This difficulty has now been remedied, production has increased each month, with consequent lowering of costs, and the mill is now running on a profit producing basis. Mr. Butler also points out in his statement that the differential between raw material and finished fabric prices, which during the greater part of 1928 was the lowest in the history of the tire fabric industry, has materially improved, and the indications are that the corporation will show a substantial profit after all charges for the year 1929.

A consolidated balance sheet as of January 3, accompanying notices of the annual meeting received by stockholders here today, shows assets of $2,647,-122.98. Real estate and machinery is listed as, less depreciation, $1,381,937.24. Under the list of liabilities is the notation that accumulated dividends on Jan. 5, 1929, amounted to $179,942 on the first preferred stock and to $661,-210.66 on the second preferred stock.

LIGHTNING SETS FIRE TO SHEET IN CLOUTIER HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 26—After enduring for hours, Danielson's first prolonged electrical storm of the season came to an end during the early hours of this morning, much to the relief of a great many people. One terrific flash of lightning at about midnight came close to producing disastrous results. Edward Cloutier, who lives at 15 South Main street said this morning that lightning, entering the room where his daughters, Louisa and Alexandria, were sleeping, found either an outlet or a combat spot on an electric light fixture. There was a vivid flash, a roar and the room was filled with smoke as a sheet on the bed blazed and two very frightened young women leaped screaming to the floor. They were uninjured, but note having experienced a narrow escape. Some telephone lines, though no great number, were put out of service by the storm, radio sets were damaged in some instances and other minor injuries to property, caused. From the last roll of thunder shortly after 6 o'clock Monday night the storm continued intermittently for about eight hours.

The prospect of $20,000 in back taxes being charged off the accounts of the town of Killingly has brought an interesting explanation from Attorney E. L. Darbie, chairman of a special committee of the town on audit, as to why a goodly proportion of this sum never has been collected, and never will be. Various reasons enter into the failure to collect. Some of the uncollected sums represent duplications in assessment, and really are not owed to the town. For instance a man may own an automobile, horses, wagons, a business wagon the tax lists are filed on October 1 of any given year. Before the time for collecting the taxes in April and May rolls around this man has sold his property or his business and has left town. Again a person may own real estate and sell it just prior to October 1. He may not report the sale, is assessed as still owning the property while the new owner also files a list on it. Here a duplication occurs. The town is entitled to collect only one tax. Again, and as to motor vehicles, the motor vehicle department files with the proper officers of the town a list of automobiles to be taxed in Killingly. Numbers of cases have been found in the past where car owners giving their address as Danielson really are residents of the West Side, a part of the town of Brooklyn, where their cars are taxable and not in Killingly. Yet these errors pile up to increase the uncollected tax list. Circumstances pointed out by Attorney Darbie such as these account for a very considerable increase in the amount of uncollected taxes listed, taxes that are neither due nor can be collected. However, in accord with the action of the special town meeting last evening, the selectmen and tax collector will within the next 60 days scrutinize the uncollected tax list with great care, with a view to collecting every dollar that possibly can be obtained for the town.

This morning from the home in Moosup the funeral of Koral Kopecki was held, with a solemn high mass of requiem at All Hallows' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Philip Massicotte, Rev. Harry Chagnon and Rev. J. H. Quinn, Waureegan, were the officers of the mass. Burial was in All Hallows' cemetery. The bearers were Frank Plex, Jacob Byczr, Peter Pietras, Frank Zerowski, Joseph Thervha and Christopher Garcie. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Of particular interest, and one that won him hearty applause, was the statement of Town Treasurer Frank T. Preston to those attending the special town meeting last evening that during the six years covered by the recent audit of his accounts by certified public accountants he has handled in excess of $1,900,000 for the town of Killingly. The only discrepency found between his records and those of the banks with which he did business was one of $3.68, and a check up of this showed that the person to whom a check or town order for that amount was given never had presented it for payment. The statement of Mr. Preston, who has been town treasurer for 43 years, came about as a result of a discussion of accounting methods in use in the treasurer's office and with suggestions for making some changes in them. Mr. Preston has made a remarkable record as town clerk and treasurer, a fact that is fully appreciated by his fellow citizens, who are keenly alive to the value of the public service he has rendered. His long and continuous record of faithful and efficient service is equalled by very few similar officials in New England.

Henry W. Chapin was in Worcester this afternoon to attend the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Frank Pearl, 58, who died Sunday in a hospital in that city. Mrs. Pearl, for years a teacher in the schools of Stamford, occasionally visited in Danielson and has numbers of acquaintances here.

Easter Sunday is to be observed at the Westfield Cong. church with a special service in the morning and with a communion service in the evening, when several young people of the congregation will unite with the church. Mrs. Harold Atwood and the Girls' choir will sing at both of these services.

PUTNAM

LIGHT AND TELEPHONE SERVICE INTERRUPTED BY STORM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 26—This city was swept by its first electrical storms of the spring season last evening and by one, the severity of which, was not surpassed during the entire summer season last year. The first effects of the storm were experienced shortly before five o'clock, when a few bolts of lightning, accompanied by a number of claps of thunder were seen and heard. No damage occurred from this storm. The second storm passed over about nine o'clock, causing little or no damage, but the third and final act of the freakish thunderstorm arose about 11:30 o'clock, accompanied by several sharp snaps of lightning, hail and heavy downpours of rain at intervals of about 20 minutes apart. Electric light service throughout the city was interrupted for about ten minutes, when a bolt of lightning struck carrying lines, and over seventy-five telephone stations were cut off from the central offices of Danielson, Putnam and Moosup districts according to a report of Wire Chief Jones at Putnam today. The hampered telephone stations were quickly repaired and communication restored and a report late tonight was to the effect the service had been restored to normal.

In the surrounding towns of Woodstock, Thompson and Pomfret a number of buildings were struck by lightning, but no fire or any great damage resulted. The final of the season's first electrical storm endured for nearly two hours, while thunder rolled until early morning. A check-up this morning failed to reveal any damage caused by lightning in Putnam today.

G. Stanley Shaw, commander of the Anslem Mavotte post of American Legion today said that the local branch of the ex-soldiers organization have organized another branch of the order. The new subsidiary of the post is to be known as the American Legion Emergency Relief corps. The members of the Anslem Mavotte post will constitute the personnel of the new branch. Commander Shaw said this afternoon that the purpose of the new organization is to extend relief in the time of an emergency or when the forces of nature should revolt to cause havoc and excite disaster, such as is now being experienced in the Mississippi valley states. A number of staffs such as traffic, to be called upon to move traffic and transportation in the event of a crisis; medical department, a committee of men appointed in charge of bringing up medical supplies and necessities to care for the injured; home relief, a committee of ex-soldiers appointed to provide housing conditions for the homeless. One of the most important detachments of the emergency corps, will be a group of lezionnaires appointed to carry out the food relief and direct the issuing of rations to victims if a time should ever come when Putnam or surrounding districts should become devastated. The organization meeting has only recently taken place and other committees will be added from time to time as the branch grows stronger, Mr. Shaw said today.

Commander Shaw, who is devoting his efforts to bringing the Anslem Mavotte post on par with the greater posts in the state, said that the emergency corps of the legion is a nationwide movement started by the national chapter of the Legion. In the flooded areas of the states of Alabama and Mississippi where the waters have swept everything before them, and left thousands homeless, the new branch of the Legion posts have already proved their worth and efficiency by cooperating with their other national emergency organizations in affording relief to the suffering humanity in the devastated regions of the country.

Funeral services were held this morning at St. Mary's church at eight o'clock for Joseph Barrett, who died Sunday in Norwich. A high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. U. O. Albert Gregoire, an employe of the Providence street taxi of this city, was arrested early this morning by State Officer Elton T. Nolan of Danielson barracks for driving without a license. Gregoire it was alleged took a cab after hours and drove to Dayville. While on his way to Putnam he was stopped by the officer and was placed under arrest when he failed to produce his driving license. In city court this morning before Judge Geissler, he pleaded guilty and received a fine of $2.00, in addition to costs of court.

Stanton of Putnam, who was third in the race in the 1928 tournament will also take part in the activities this year. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at nine o'clock this morning at St. Mary's church where funeral services for Joseph Durocher of Smith street were held. Rev. Ernest J. Boileau, curate at the church was celebrant at the mass. The service was largely attended by members of the city highway department fellow workers of Mr. Durocher. The bearers were Albert H. Miour, Edgar Lucier, Fred Bonneville, Henry Benoit, Augustus Giraca and Henry Gagne. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. The committal service was conducted by Rev. Ulderic O. Bellerose.

A fire of undetermined origin was discovered last evening in the carding rooms o the Adams Manufacturing company on Main street. The cotton fibre in the machines was subjected to flames as a blaze swept out of a corner of waste in the large room. The chemical company at the central fire station was summoned and with the aid of foamite extinguishers quickly subdued the flames. Little property loss was experienced. THE I'M ALONE AFFAIR.

There appears to be no doubt as to the purpose of the visit of the I'm Alone to the vicinity of New Orleans. It was loaded for business, had been there before and was planning to dispose of its cargo again.

It was intent upon violating the prohibition laws of this country, or aiding someone else to do it by furnishing the liquor. The question that does exist is as to how far from shore it was located when discovered by the revenue cutter.

According to the commander of the coast guard vessel, the I'm Alone was inside the 12 mile limit, that line agreed upon within which it is lawful for this country to hold up and search vessels of other countries, and it is agreed that if a vessel challenged within that line runs away it is within the rights of the challenging vessel to pursue and fire upon it.

The commander of the I'm Alone claims the claim that he was outside the 12 mile limit by more than two miles, that he had a right to be there and that there was no justification for the attack upon his vessel. It is as the result of this claim that protest has been filed by the British ambassador in behalf of the owners of that British craft, but it also appears that charges have been filed by authorities in New Orleans against the officers and crew of that ship for violating our laws. In the meantime the officer in charge of I'm Alone claims to have been badly treated, forced to abandon his ship in a bad sea and the lives of the men endangered.

No doubt this was so but the situation could easily have been changed for the captain of the rum runner. He had fair warning and plenty of opportunity to avoid all the trouble, if he was actually justified in being where he was first found he could have gotten a chance to prove it in the courts. When he ran away he furnished evidence of being guilty. When he refused to stop he invited the use of guns and the sinking of his ship was only what could be expected under the circumstances.

When the case is reviewed the facts will be brought to light. There have been times when the coast guard vessels have been wrong. This may be one of the times, but it isn't made so just because of the rum runner's statements.

MOVIE CHANGES.

As time goes on, new inventions bring about new developments and the old order of things changes. We have witnessed it within the last decade in the disappearance of the so-called legitimate shows, the one night theatricals that used to tour the country outside of the big cities. We have seen them replaced by the moving pictures and vaudeville and now we are going to have the chance to see a change in pictures.

There were the days when "still" pictures were considered all sufficient. There was music by an orchestra or a pianist to accompany them but there are produced today the pictures which talk, the action being accompanied by the talk of the participants and by music. It represents another development and so much faith is placed in it by the producers that the Fox Film corporation, one of the big producers, has decided that all films of the future are to be of this character. The "still" pictures are to be shelved and only the talking movies will be produced. This decision has been endorsed by other producers which will make the majority of their pictures of the talking variety.

In view of this decision and the expense involved it is fair to presume that the producers regard this as more than an experiment. The talking movies have been going through the experimental stage with the result that those who make them have become convinced that the time has arrived to produce them on a larger scale and to do away with the class of pictures which are fast becoming old fashioned.

It has ever been thus. Time doesn't stand still and every year brings forth something new to disturb or to please, however you happen to look at it.

BATTLING BAD BRAKES.

If you are contemplating an auto trip into Rhode Island it would be a good idea to see that your brakes are in good condition before doing so. As a matter of fact it is an excellent thing to do, wherever you are, for there is no telling when inspectors may call upon you to demonstrate their effectiveness upon the highway, and under such circumstances the owner of a car which has poor brakes is likely to be in an uncomfortable situation, to say the least.

In Rhode Island the state police are to open a spring campaign against bad brakes. Good results have been obtained from similar efforts in the past but there is believed to be sound reason for persisting in the demand that this part of an automobile be kept in good condition. Experience shows that if there is the proper demand on the part of the authorities good brakes will become the rule rather than the exception.

The car that has no brakes or poor ones is a menace to those within and the other highway users. It is impossible for the driver to meet emergency conditions and there is no telling when such will develop. Drivers might avoid much trouble without brakes if there was plenty of room and no other cars in the way but that is out of the question these days. There are many reasons why a car may be required to stop suddenly. It may be due to the car ahead, to someone crossing the street, to the demand of a traffic officer, to any one of many conditions which arise every day, and if the brakes are not fit, prosecution may follow, cars may be smashed, people may be injured or fatalities may occur. The accidents that have been due to bad brakes run up into big figures.

Thus there is justification for the demands that are made by the authorities in any state for good brakes. It is protection for the car and its occupants and it is protection for others. Rhode Island is not only enforcing the law and providing better highway protection by its insistence but it is doing a big favor to the owners of cars with bad brakes, whether they realize it or not.

RAPID FIRE GUNS.

When machine guns are thought of it is usually in connection with war. They are highly valuable weapons on such occasions and are depended upon for effective results. In connection with their manufacture they have been employed only by properly constituted authority in the maintenance of peace.

Nevertheless, for the same reason that the lawless have placed reliance upon revolvers and other guns for carrying on their activity, they have seen the advantage of employing machine guns; and on too many occasions have they put them to use. Gunmen have been quick to place them in automobiles for the purpose of mowing down their opponents, whether they are other gangsters or police.

Because of this situation steps have been taken in New York state to obtain legislation that would prohibit the possession of machine guns by individuals. This would work no hardship upon the average person for they have no use for such things, but it would aid the authorities in the suppression of such weapons.

The wisdom of such action is recognized in Pennsylvania, also, where bills intended to accomplish the same purposes have been proposed, although exception is allowed in the case of those carrying valuables, and banks.

There are occasions when the machine gun is important in the maintenance of peace and the protection of property when in the hands of military organizations. It should even be possible for police to use them under certain conditions for similar purposes, but the idea of having them in the hands of Tom, Dick and Harry, and especially those with ulterior purposes, is open to serious objection. They simply make the criminal more powerful, aid him in obtaining his object and create a bigger menace to the public. The manner in which gangsters have made use of the machine gun has furnished one of the strongest reasons for the legislation that is being urged. If there is reason for restricting the sale of small arms, there is all the more reason for doing the same by machine guns. And even that should have little effect upon the manufacture of the latter.

PROPER PROTECTION.

Ever since the purchase of Alaska attention has been given to the great natural resources that were acquired. We have gradually come to know more about them and as our information has increased we have been disposed to tap those resources.

Among other things the pulpwood resources of Alaska have not been overlooked. As the demand has increased for more pulpwood the help which Alaska can be has been studied and it is now declared that in the southeastern part of Alaska there is now enough pulpwood to furnish a million tons of newsprint yearly. That is a large amount but it is only about a quarter of what is required to meet the demands in this country alone. Thus Alaska cannot be depended upon to meet the entire problem but being able to furnish a quarter of the requirements is a big contribution.

It would be possible to slash through the pulpwood lands of Alaska and deplete the supply rapidly if such a thing were permitted, but as it happens much of this wood is to be found in the national forests under government control and by the regulations of the forest service there will be no raiding of that territory. When the tapping of that resource is started there will be a limit on the yearly cutting to the amount of annual growth. In other words the amount cut will depend upon the amount coming to maturity. This means that there will be new growth coming along each year to make up for that which is removed and in that manner there will be a constant source of supply.

That is a protection of such a resource which is bound to be highly valuable for the future. It is a policy which has resulted from the lessons of the past when little or no thought was given to the future.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Even spring hasn't deemed it wise to discard the fur coat.

Now that Oklahoma has impeached its second governor, how many more of that kind is it planning to elect?

An estimate places the value on diamonds in this country at $4,000,000,000. And then there are those that look like diamonds.

Nothing has been said about it, but Colonel Stewart may devote his time now to writing a history of the oil scandal and the answers to those questions the senate committee wanted.

A SEVEN LETTER WORD.

Mrs. Nolan tapped her lead pencil against her teeth. Her brow was wrinkled and perplexed.

"Harry, what is a seven-letter word for a coat of armor made of steel rings?" she inquired. Mr. Nolan, who was reading in his deep easy chair, appeared not to have heard his wife's question. She decided to repeat it.

"Did you hear me, Harry? I want a seven-letter word for——"

Bang! The ponderous volume was slammed shut. Mr. Nolan arose to his feet and regarded his wife with a look of grim disfavor.

"Is it possible you might allow me to read in peace?" he demanded in tones that were, to his notion, exceedingly crisp. "Can you tell me why a man absorbed in matters of an intellectual nature must be bothered by a person infantile enough to be fascinated by cross-word puzzles?"

"Infantile indeed!" his wife repeated. "Why, there are lots of brainy people who love cross-word puzzles. If you are so intellectual give me a seven-letter word for a coat of armor made of steel rings. It's got to have 'T' for the third letter because that fits into quintessence and I know it's right. I think the last letter must be 'M' or 'K' or maybe 'Y'."

Mr. Nolan, in closing the doors of the bookcase, managed more by good luck than design to avoid shattering the glass.

"I refuse to have anything to do with that idiotic parlor pastime!" he cried. "I'm so sick of cross-word puzzles that I could shoot the man that invented them. Every night you sit over there with your pencil and puzzle and shoot questions at me while I am trying to study. How would you like it if——?"

"Oh, bother!" interrupted his wife. "I get as much mental exercise out of them as you do out of some of those dry old books you fall asleep over. Why, half the time you can't tell me the next morning what you read the night before!"

That was too much for Mr. Nolan. He stalked from the room and jammed his hat down about his ears, but before slamming the front door behind him he paused long enough to deliver one parting shot.

"Furthermore, cross-word puzzles are out of style. Only has-beens work them these days!" Where was he going? The slam of the door had a decidedly definite sound, which rather worried Mrs. Nolan. True her husband often had protested at her liking for cross-word puzzles, but never before had he acted just like this.

Her eyes fell once more on the paper before her. Now, what could that word be? She got out the dictionary, and soon the tap of her pencil against her teeth was the only sound that broke the silence of the house.

At 11 o'clock she gave it up and went to bed. She hated to leave the puzzle uncompleted, but she was completely blocked by that one word.

It was only with an effort that she forced herself to go to sleep and it was with considerable alarm that she later awoke and found that her husband had not returned. A quarter to 1!

Something like panic seized Mrs. Nolan. Something dreadful must have happened to him! There were so many holdups these nights and the streets were so dark on his way home——!

The telephone rang noisily, making her start and gasp. She rushed to the extension beside the bed and lifted the receiver with a lump in her throat.

"Hel—hello!"

'Myrtle?" The voice on the other end of the wire was excited with the exultation of achievement. "Try hauberk?"

"Wh—what?" she managed to stammer.

"You know, for the seven-letter word. Try hauberk. HAUBERK, for a coat of armor made of steel rings."

"Why, Harry, what in the world do you mean, staying out until this hour of the night?" It had required only a minute to shift her voice from anxiety to asperity.

"I'm at the club. Prof. Stone—of the English department at the university, you know—and I have been working on that puzzle all evening. We just this minute got it. Hauberk! Isn't that a beauty?"

There was no mistaking the enthusiasm in his voice."—Chicago News.

Masculine Sentiment Demanding Adequate Care For Mother and Child.

(By J. H. M. Knox, Jr., M. D., Baltimore, Md.)

Husbands often do not seem to realize their full responsibility in providing for the expectant mother, and to make sure that the birth of the baby is conducted in such a manner as to reduce to a minimum any outward accident. Certainly a man who is able to run a farm, conduct a business, provide a home and maintenance for his family, or to keep an automobile in order, ought to know that when a baby is to be born, his wife needs special care several months before, should see her doctor regularly and follow the doctor's advice.

At present, not a few infants are born dead or diseased because mothers-to-be do not ask for and receive this essential care.

One of the important things that many parents fail to provide for their children is that they should pass through the hands of their family doctors at regular intervals, several times a year before school age, so that the parents may be advised of the conditions arising in the life of the child, such as the beginning of illness, or of some abnormality that should be detected promptly and treated.

A simple program, possible to all, and one that undoubtedly will save the lives of many children now being lost, is as follows:

1. As soon as the coming of the baby is expected, the mother should consult a physician, be thoroughly examined, and should follow his advice.

2. Every mother is entitled to competent care when the baby is born, and perhaps a husband has no duty which is more evident than to provide for his wife and for her child the best skill possible.

3. Every baby should be examined by the doctor each month for the first six months, and every two months for the remainder of the first year.

4. Every run-about child, even if he seems well, should be taken to the doctor at least twice a year for examination and advice, for in these early years many physical defects develop that may become a permanent handicap throughout life.

Public sentiment in a community can make it disgraceful for any family to fail to provide for a mother and child the kind of care that is necessary to keep them well. Husbands should keenly recognize their responsibilities in this matter.

Holy Week Topic
"MY MASTER AND BROTHER"
Memory Verse for Wednesday

"I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now" (John 16:12). (Read: John 16:12 to 24).

MEDITATION: This day in our Lord's last week is a day of silence so far as the records inform us. The surmise that He spent the day in seclusion with the disciples or in the home in Bethany is plausible. It would be in keeping with His serene, untroubled spirit. He had yet many things to say but it was not necessary to say everything. He was going away but the Comforter was coming. The future would still have access to divine guidance. So I must still look for the unsaid things which past ages could not bear or understand. There is more truth to break forth. Nor will it all come to me or my time. I also may be untroubled and unafraid. Divine guidance will not fail the future as it has not failed the past.

PRAYER: Almighty God who in Thy providence hast made all ages a preparation for the kingdom of thy Son; we beseech Thee to make ready our hearts for the brightness of Thy glory and the fulness of Thy blessing in Christ Jesus our Lord. Amen.—From Hunter's "Devotional Service."

Stories That Recall Others

Ownership Contradicted

John was telling his mother about a dog that belonged to one of his customers. Andrew had accompanied his bigger brother on his route several times and spoke by quickly: "Yes, mother, and they have a baby, too, because I saw a carriage on their porch."

But John contradicted him and said, "Oh! No! the baby belongs next door, Mr. and Mrs. X are a single couple."

Then They Always Cook 'Em

Tom was spending a week end with his aunt in a neighboring town. One morning the aunt tuned in on a new station that was broadcasting the news for the day.

"Aunt Lou," said the lad, "please don't listen to that lady; she'll talk about carrots and spinach and make you cook them."

The Chickens Stopped Disappearing

Even when you really try
'Tis hard to make suspicion die.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's Boy finally made up his mind that he would have to trap Jimmy Skunk in a box-trap and take him away. So that afternoon he took the trap out and set it at the hole under the henhouse. He had no doubt that he would catch Jimmy. He knew that Jimmy was too independent to be suspicious and was one of the easiest of all animals to trap.

"I don't like to do it," sighed Farmer Brown's Boy. "I don't like to do it, because I like to have Jimmy around. But I cannot afford to lose any more chickens. Jimmy has never bothered my chickens before and I don't see why he couldn't have left them alone this time. I guess I'll have him in the morning all right."

The first thing the next morning, Farmer Brown's Boy went out to look at the trap. Jimmy Skunk wasn't in it. No one was in it. It hadn't been sprung.

"Huh!" said Farmer Brown's Boy. "I suppose Jimmy ate so many chickens that he didn't feel like coming out."

Then Farmer Brown's Boy went around into the henyard and counted his chickens. He counted exactly the same number as he had had the day before. He scratched his head. "I couldn't have counted right," said he. "For a week now I've lost two or three chickens every night. It can't be that I didn't lose any last night. I'll count them again."

So Farmer Brown's Boy counted the chickens again with the same result. Then he counted them a third time. You see, under the circumstances, it was very hard to believe that all of them could be there. Finally he had to admit to himself that all were there. Jimmy hadn't taken a chicken the night before.

"Probably Jimmy wasn't hungry," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "If he doesn't come out today and get caught in that trap, he'll surely catch a chicken or two tonight."

Jimmy didn't come out, so of course he didn't get caught. Farmer Brown's Boy visited the trap the last thing before he went to bed. Then the next morning he was up bright and early and out at that trap. There was the trap just as he had left it. There was no Jimmy Skunk in it and no one else for that matter. Then Farmer Brown's Boy hurried into the chicken yard to once more count his chickens. He took the greatest care to make sure that he didn't count a chicken twice. When he had finished counting them, there was a queer look on his face.

"It must be that Jimmy is fasting," said Farmer Brown's Boy as he returned to the house

"Now what do you know about that?" said he. "I didn't lose a chicken last night. I don't understand this at all. I'm sure I didn't make a mistake in my count, but to make doubly sure I'll count them again."

So he counted them again and a third time. Each time he got the same result. It would seem that his chickens had stopped disappearing. He didn't know what to make of this at all.

"It must be that Jimmy is fasting," said Farmer Brown's Boy, as he returned to the house. "I haven't been able to find any way for him to come out from under that henhouse, so he must still be there. But, if he is there, why hasn't he taken some chickens?"

For the next two or three days the results were the same. Farmer Brown's Boy didn't catch Jimmy Skunk, nor did he lose any chickens. Beyond all doubt, they had stopped disappearing. It was very mysterious.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 26—Time has been when Mr. T. Roosevelt and Mr. W. Wilson were much spoken of as precedent-shattering presidents. They were all of that, yet if Mr. Hoover continues to crash through the usual order of things presidential at the pace set during his first two weeks in the white house, the precedent-shattering proclivities of his two notable predecessors did fair to be dimmed into pale obscurity.

Let's check over some of the things Mr. Hoover did or undid almost before he got well seated in the presidential chair. To begin with, there was the complete and final execution of the white house spokesman and the substitution of Mr. Hoover himself, speaking in the first person, singular, whenever the said Mr. Hoover has anything to say in the public prints.

That occurred in the very first Hoover working day at the white house. And on the same day, also, he made—or at least re-affirmed—presidential policy as to Mexican revolutions. He decided to continue to support the constitutional authorities in Mexico. That was very quick action for a new president.

No More Parades

Almost at once, also, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were reported to have set a new social precedent. They did away with the receiving line strain on the leg muscles of hosts and guests alike at their very first white house reception. Score three precedents broken in two days for Mr. Hoover if that was the fact.

Hardly had these things begun to be digested by Washington's press commentators than out came the now famous Hoover oil conservation order. That just about put the conservation clock back to the Taft days. It covered 16 years of intervening administrations at a jump, so to speak, and is going to cause much prolonged talking in congress and elsewhere beyond a shadow of a doubt. It was precedent breaking in its suddenness and its completeness. Score another for Mr. Hoover, No. 4, with only about a week in office.

More to Follow

Then there came as suddenly and as completely, No. 5, the executive order commanding publicity on tax refunds and rebates, a matter about which congress has been wrangling for years. And no doubt since March 4 there have been other Hoover innovations of note, with good promise of more to follow.

It certainly looks as though Mr. Hoover, in his busy dozen years of Washington official life, had found time to make a few notes on things he would like to do if he were president. And being president now, he's doing 'em. That's all, but what a pleasurable vista of future surprises it opens out to Washington's press colony.

Viva Hoover!

Riddles of Childhood

Dorothy had worked hard to save enough money to go to college. Almost as soon as she got there she began to be afraid that she would not make good. Then to add to her difficulties, she had a slight attack of sleeping sickness. After this, whenever she became excited, peculiar spells appeared. Her legs would become weak and she would fall down. Dorothy became convinced that she was totally inadequate, both mentally and physically, and apparently she was, so she was taken out of college.

Since a thorough physical examination revealed nothing abnormal, she was referred to the Mental Hygiene Clinic. Here mild but quieting drugs were prescribed by the psychiatrist so as to prevent her becoming excited and hence having such spells, until she could learn how to handle difficult situations. The psychiatrist also gave her help in the handling of other personality disorders which had developed. Suitable employment was found and now Dorothy admits she is "fine", her spells have almost entirely disappeared and she is eagerly planning to return to college.

INSTEAD of exercise

Here's good news for the busy men and women who haven't time to take regular exercise. Millions have already learned how to keep fit with the little exerciser in the vest-pocket box for a dime.

Cascarets make bilious, headachy, constipated people feel fine. Their effect is not only quick, but it's lasting. They give the bowels as much real exercise as you get from an hour's bowling.

Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives don't act like Cascarets. These things produce only mechanical or chemical action. They actually weaken your bowels.

Each time you use Cascarets, your bowels become stronger. Ask your doctor. He knows they are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and strengthens the bowel muscles. That's why Cascarets are selling at the rate of 20 million packages a year!

Madeline Louise Wargo

Madeline Louise Wargo, one year and nine months old daughter of Joseph and Madeline LaRochelle Wargo, of Niantic, died Tuesday morning at the residence of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William LaRochelle, of No. 66 Myers avenue, Norwich.

The child had been ill since January. During the early winter she was stricken by a severe attack of the grip, from which she apparently recovered, but the illness left her in a greatly weakened state of health and her strength declined gradually during the past two months. Blood transfusion was proposed as a final attempt to restore the child to health, but physicians found her constitution too weak to withstand the operation and the effort was abandoned.

The child was born in Norwich June 9, 1927, two days before her brother, Raymond Wargo, died in Norwich. There were no other children in the family.

Besides her parents and her maternal grandparents in Norwich, the child is survived by her paternal grandfather, George F. Wargo, of Niantic. Her father is employed as line superintendent in the Lyme district of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co.

C. C. THURBER SAYS NEAR EAST RELIEF NEED URGENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW YORK, March 26— National headquarters of Near East Relief in this city is in receipt of a cable from C. C. Thurber, a Norwich man and a graduate of Trinity college and acting manager of the Greek area of the American philanthropy, expressing consternation over decreasing income which is jeopardizing his labor among the young Greek and Armenian orphans in his care. His cable follows:

"Learn with utter despair of decreased income imperiling necessary funds. Disastrous inhuman to discharge more small children. To close working boys and girls homes means sending half supporting handicapped maimed tubercular breeding boys and girls to streets, cellars or refugee camps destroying all results previous years care to Americas wards. Unemployment and weakened conditions following earthquake, dengue fever and flood disastrous accentuate continuing need."

Mr. Thurber, who has given eight years of his life to the work of Near East relief, first in interior Turkey, then in Constantinople and for the last five years in Greece, is in a position to understand, more even than the friends of Near East relief in this country, what it means to boys and girls to have to leave the shelter of the American orphanages before they are fully prepared for self-support. It is appalling to him to have to see the work done for these children, in saving their lives, restoring them to health and partially training them, wasted because there are not the funds to carry them through to the place where they can find for themselves.

It is hoped that both old and new friends of Near East relief in Norwich will respond to Mr. Thurber's plea and do all in their power to make the campaign in this country a success. Checks may be sent to Guy B. Dolbeare, treasurer.

WELL KNOWN PLUMBER FOUND DEAD IN BED

The fourth sudden death in as many days in the city was that of Frederick H. Roath, 55, well known plumber, who was found dead in bed in his residence, No. 173 Talman street, at 1.15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Roath, who has been estranged from her husband, and his nephew, Charles Shannon, called at the house Tuesday afternoon and discovered his lifeless body across the bed.

After the discovery Mrs. Roath notified police headquarters and Sergeant Myron O. Morgan with Officer Patrick Murphy went to the house, as did Dr. George H. Gildersleeve, acting medical examiner. Dr. Gildersleeve said that the man died either Saturday or Sunday. Saturday and Sunday papers, which had been left outside, had not been touched. In the house was found a Saturday paper.

Dr. Gildersleeve said that death was probably caused from heart trouble. Undertakers Church and Allen were given permission to remove the body to their rooms.

WOMAN ARRESTED ON LIQUOR LAW CHARGE

The state and local police arrested Sophia Pashkiewicz, owner of a restaurant at No. 95 West Main street, about 11 o'clock Tuesday morning on a charge of violation of the liquor law. It is understood that the state police secured evidence of an actual sale of liquor from the woman.

The woman was arrested for violation of the liquor law in June, last year. She was fined $200 and costs and given ten days in jail. Pending her appearance in the city court Thursday morning she is at liberty under bonds of $1,000. While the woman was locked up at headquarters awaiting a bondsman, her husband appeared before the police and advised them that his wife was not guilty of any offense and that anything she did was at his command. In his plea for leniency, Pashkiewicz expressed a willingness to accept a job sweeping the street, be deported or in fact do anything that the authorities desired.

COMMANDER FELLOWS TELLS OF LEGION ACTIVITIES

Commander Imbert Fellows of Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, in a statement issued Tuesday evening calls attention to some of the work the American Legion is doing in behalf of the ex-service men, and particularly to the disabled veterans of the World war. He said that if the American Legion does no more than what it has done to help the disabled service men of the World war, it could justifiably take pride in its record. To be able-bodied is to be busy; and most of us are so busy with our own affairs that the developments of ten years in the process of giving to the ex-service men who were disabled, all that they should receive from a grateful government have taken place out of public sight and hearing. The average Legionnaire knows little about the government's program for disabled service men and how importantly related to that program is the Legion's own rehabilitation work.

Statistics are sometimes boresome but they furnish the necessary groundwork for an understanding of what has gone before. At the beginning of the year there were more than 27,000 men and women in hospitals under government care. Of these, 19,000 were in veterans' hospitals proper; the others were mostly in hospitals of the army, navy, United States public health service and branches of the national soldiers' homes. More than 1,700, largely men with mental and nervous diseases, were in contract hospitals not owned or operated by the government, from which they will eventually, for the most part, be removed upon the completion of hospitals now being built or which will be built in the near future.

Tuberculosis and mental and nervous diseases still account for the largest number of patients in hospitals. Exactly 6,830 men, suffering from tuberculosis and 13,161 suffering from mental and nervous diseases were hospital patients on Jan. 1. General medical and surgical cases on that day numbered 7,046. During last December, 5,779 service men and women were admitted to hospitals, and in that same month 63,991 men and women received treatments under bureau auspices outside hospitals. It should be remembered that almost any service man suffering from any disability, whether incurred in wartime service or not, is entitled to free care and treatment in a government hospital under the present law.

It is obvious that these government operations involve a vast amount of what is commonly called red tape. The American Legion since it came into existence has carried on as its principal activity the work of assisting service men and their dependents to obtain from the government, through the veterans' bureau and the agencies which existed before the bureau was established, the rights and benefits awaiting them. The American Legion has undertaken to fill the role of best friend of the disabled men, to act as his representative in many of his dealings with the bureau.

The American Legion has mastered the intricacies of government operation and tries to help in the simplest and most direct ways the average service man who would be bewildered if he were to attempt, unaided, to obtain from the government that to which he is entitled by the laws. Without assistance, the claimant would find puzzling not only the complicated legal verbiage of the statutes but also the equally complicated rules and regulations which the veterans' bureau has had to establish. It should be understood that the American Legion is the godfather of practically all the laws affecting the interests of the World war service men. It assumed that role through necessity immediately after it was organized in the spring of 1919 and it has been the godfather of service men's legislation ever since.

It should be recalled that it was the American Legion which presented the plan which resulted in the formation of the veterans' bureau after two years of government chaos in which the United States public health service, the bureau of war risk insurance and the federal board for vocational training each worked independently and often at cross purposes. It was the American Legion which pressed insistently until congress abandoned the utilizing of makeshift hospitals and authorized a comprehensive program of hospital construction, the wisdom of which has since been more than demonstrated.

It was the American Legion which presented the logical, workable plan of adjusted compensation when such plan was needed to satisfy the overwhelming demand for some such legislation that had spontaneously developed among all service men in the difficult years immediately after the war. It was the American Legion which helped to form the World War Veterans' act of 1924, an act which simplified the government's administration of its operations for service men and an act which still forms the basis of the rights and benefits now accorded. It was the American Legion which called attention to the needs of a separate congressional committee to deal with veterans' affairs.

The national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion has published a manual which outlines the provisions of laws affecting compensation, hospitalization and the other usual subjects of claims and tells of the steps which should be followed in preparing and presenting claims of each type. Every post of the Legion has a copy of this manual and a service committee to help those that need such help. The determination is as strong today as it was ten years ago to keep the Legion pledge to the disabled.

ISADORE FISHBONE IS ADJUDICATED A BANKRUPT

Isadore Fishbone, local grocer with store at 159 Sachem street, has been adjudicated a bankrupt by the U. S. district court. His liabilities are $10,518.71 and his assets $2,300.

Referee in Bankruptcy Thomas M. Shields has called a meeting of Fishbone's creditors to be held at his office, 58 Church street, on the morning of April 4, at 10 o'clock.

Listed among his liabilities, Fishbone sets out a court judgment for $2,500 obtained against him and Israel Chiat by Geneva Genishevsky of Hallville. A truck owned by Fishbone and operated by Chiat, struck the Genishevsky girl, while she was playing in her yard, causing her to sustain a broken leg. The supreme court of errors recently sustained the verdict of $2,500. Just how the bankruptcy action will affect the judgment remains to be seen.

YOUTH TOOK MACHINE WITHOUT OWNER'S PERMISSION

Three Groton youths were brought into police headquarters about 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening by Officer Peter Driscoll, after he discovered that the driver of the Nash coupe, in which they were riding, did not have an operator's license or a registration. The driver who claimed he was 16 years old, said at police headquarters that he left his operator's license home and that the machine was owned by his uncle, L. C. Trew of the Crown theatre, New London, who had given him permission to use it.

As the boy was unable to give his uncle's full first name, Capt. Thomas P. Murphy became suspicious and communicated with the New London police. As the youth took the blame for what happened he was held and his friends were allowed their freedom. It later developed that the youth had given Capt. Murphy a fictitious name and address and that the automobile had been taken from a Green street garage in New London without Mr. Trew's permission, who is not his uncle, but a friend of the family.

Mr. Trew and the boy's parents were notified of the incident and came to police headquarters later in the evening. Mr. Trew returned to New London with his machine and the boy was taken in charge by his parents. The case was turned over to the New London authorities, who, it is understood, will present him in juvenile court there, as the boy's father stated that he is but 15 years old. Mr. Trew did not wish to bring a charge against the youth.

DONOHUE ANNOUNCES HIS CODE TO GOVERN AMATEUR BOXING IN STATE

STATE CAPITOL, Hartford, March 26—(AP)—Approved by Gov. Trumbull and Attorney General Alling, the new amateur athletic rules, formulated under the act passed by the general assembly this session giving the state athletic commissioner power to supervise amateur boxing and wrestling, except in educational institutions, were made public tonight by Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue.

The new rules, drawn up by the athletic commissioner and first assistant attorney general Raymond A. Johnson, go into effect April 15. Commissioner Donohue said he allowed this time, though under the act he could have made the rules enforceable immediately, to give promoters and athletes an opportunity to digest the new regulations and also to allow promoters to put on cards already scheduled.

In the rules, the word boxing is used, but the commissioner said they apply to wrestling in the same way as to fisticuffs. An amateur exhibition is defined as coming within the generally accepted meaning of the term. However, an award, such as a medal, trophy, watch, ring, other jewelry or wearing apparel, must not exceed $35 in value. Reimbursement of expenses to the participants is allowed.

The rules prohibit more than three rounds, suspension being the penalty. Promoters or matchmakers will match contestants subject to the commissioner's approval. The rules include a digest of the act giving the commissioner supervisory power over amateur athletics, a list of license fees, prescribe the type of equipment and ringside appurtenances and carry a table of bouts and byes.

Commissioner Donohue said he advocated passage of the act because "too many professional matches were getting by under the guise of amateur exhibitions." He added that he did not believe he could prevent such "shady business" discontinuing entirely, but "I'll try my best to keep the whole thing straight and will operate with all the power allowed me."

The New Rules

"Definition: For the purposes of this act an amateur boxing exhibition shall be and is hereby defined as one in which no contestant has received, or shall receive, directly or indirectly, any money, reward, or compensation either for the expenses of training for such contest or for taking part therein. Nor shall any person appear as a contestant in such amateur boxing exhibition who prior thereto has received any compensation or reward in any form for displaying, exercising, or rendering services of any kind to any athletic organization, or to any person or persons, as trainer, coach, instructor, or who otherwise may have been employed in any professional capacity by reason of his athletic skill or knowledge.

"Provided, however, that a prize such as a medal, trophy, watch, ring or other jewelry, or articles of wearing apparel may be awarded to each contestant in such amateur boxing contest not to exceed in value the sum of $35, each. Also, each contestant may be reimbursed with money for such reasonable expenses as have been incurred by him in traveling to and from such amateur boxing contest, subject to approval of commissioner.

"Contestants: No competitor will be permitted to take part in a boxing contest unless he is 18 years of age and licensed by the state athletic commission.

"In state championship meetings contestants shall be required to weigh in only on the opening day if the tournament is to be completed on successive days.

"Gloves: The boxing gloves to be not less than eight ounce in all classes. The commissioner or local inspector shall examine the gloves of both contestants before the bout to see that they comply with the rules. In all drawings where numbers one, two, three, four, etc, are drawn, number one competes with number two three with four, etc. When the class is brought to a multiple of two, four, eight or sixteen the contest proceeds regularly to the final bout. JACOBS CLAIMS SCHMELING IS TIED TO GARDEN CORP.

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP)—Max Schmeling is under contract exclusively with Madison Square Garden and will appear under Garden auspices against Paulino Uzcudun in an outdoor bout here June 26, Joe Jacobs, confidant and part time manager of the "German Dempsey," said on arrival here today from Germany.

"On behalf of Max Schmeling," said Jacobs's statement, "I wish to state that he is contracted to box for Madison Square Garden. They have exclusive right to his services for the good reason that the corporation brought him here and what is most important gave him his first chance to display his ristic wares in America.

"It may surprise all to learn that Schmeling made a promise, before he went back home to his folks in Germany that he cannot in all fairness turn down and that was to box for Mrs. William R. Hearst's milk fund under the auspices of Madison Square Garden sometime in June. He is duty bound to the fund and is going to go through with it by all means."

Jacobs, who was accompanied by Andre Routis, featherweight champion under his management, could not say when Schmeling would return to help untangle the complications that have arisen through the boxer's break with his German manager, Arthur Buelow. Although Schmeling will not battle under Buelow's direction and will allow only Jacobs to direct his affairs, the New York state athletic commission recognizes only Buelow as the manager. Buelow has signed with Jess McMahon, former matchmaker at the Garden, as well as the new promotional firm of Jack Dempsey and Humbert Fugazy for matches for Schmeling.

Dempsey said today that Ray Miller, who fought a disappointing battle here with Jimmy McLarnin last Friday night, had eliminated himself from a title match with Sammy Mandell, which the former heavyweight champion intended to stage in Detroit this summer. Another opponent may be selected for Mandell, who has been guaranteed $100,000 for the bout. Dempsey and Fugazy tied up Izzy Schwartz, American claimant of the flyweight title, for a match with Soider Pladner, of France, sometime this summer.

BARNES' SINGLE IN 9TH GIVE SENATORS A VICTORY

TAMPA, March 26—(AP)—A single by Barnes with the bases filled in the ninth sent Sam Rice home with the run which gave Washington a thrilling 7 to 6 decision over Brooklyn here today. West's single previously had scored Tate with the tieing marker and Harris had been passed to fill the bases. Babe Herman hit a home run for the Robins.

VOIGHT TAKES LEAD IN N-S OPEN PLAY

PINEHURST, N. C., March 26—(AP)—George Voight, Washington, D. C., amateur, took the lead in the north and south open golf tournament here today by negotiating 36 holes on the rugged Pinehurst Country club course in 139.

Five strokes behind came Tommy Armour of Detroit, last year's runner up, and Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., flash, who crossed the halfway mark in 144, to start the second day's play tied for second place.

Trailing the leaders in order were "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn of New York, who made a game bid for the lead in the afternoon but turned in a 145 for the day; Billie Burke of Westport, N. Y., defending champion, with a 146, and Jack Forrester, Oradell, N. J. pro, who polled a 146.

Most of the favorites fared poorly. Johnny Farrell, United States open champion, tied for sixteenth place with two others at 151. Walter Hagen, British open champion, had a 149 to tie with Emmett French of Youngstown, Ohio, for tenth place.

Leo Diegel of Tia Juana, Mexico, Canadian open and P. G. A. champion, took 150 to tie with three others for twelfth place. Ross Somerville, Canadian amateur champion, finished on even terms with Joe Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y. and Al Houghton, of Washington, for seventh place. They had 148's.

To finish the day in front, Voight shot the best round of the morning and the second best for the afternoon. He gathered in seven birdies in the morning for his 69 and one birdie and an eagle to round out his card of 70 in the afternoon. The Washington star dropped a 15 foot on the home green.

Horton Smith, whose brilliant performance in the La Goree open at Miami last week, made him a favorite to win at Pinehurst, needed 74 strokes on the morning round, but in the afternoon came back strong with 11 consecutive fours and a 70 for the 18 holes.

EAGLES TAKE ROUGH GAME FROM PROVIDENCE

NE WHAVEN, March 26.—(AP)—The New Haven Eagles made a swift start against Providence to meet Boston in the finals for the Canadian-American league championship, winning one of the fastest and roughest games of the season, 3 to 1, tonight. The second game will be played in Providence on Thursday night and the total goals will decide which club will go against Boston.

The Eagles, who finished in third place in the standing, flashed an alert offense against the Reds taking over a one goal lead in the first session. The tally came about through a combination play, Barry to Hughes, while a Providence player was off the ice.

The game waxed hotter in the next period and while the checking was hard and furious Holmes added another goal for the Eagles, his long shot bounding off Murray's stick into the net. Two minutes later Harrington, Providence substitute, kent his team in the fray by taking a pass from LaRochelle and scoring.

No more damage was done until half way through the nal period, Hughes contributing a neat individual effort converting his long dash down the rink into a goal with a difficult angle shot. The Reds kept pepering away on the Eagles who dropped back then on the defense, and bothered Forbes fo rthe remainder of the game.

J. B. MARTIN CHALLENGE TAFTVILLE JICKY CLUB

After a defeat Sunday at the hands of Taftville "Jicky" team, who played the most brilliant game seen at the J. B. Martin field this season, the Martin team would like a return game, Friday or Saturday afternoon. They would prefer Friday, so as to give the Martin boys a day's layoff for their Sunday's league game. No doubt they will need it.

Sunday's game gave the fans a chance to see some of the best teamwork and pretty footwork and speed. The "Jicky" team proved they had all of that. Among their stars were Fred Knowles, Chriss Troeger, R. Mather who played the best game of their career. Fred Knowles, their captain for ten years, proved he was master of the game and knew they could beat the Martin boys.

CORNELL OARSMEN TO TRAIN DURING EASTER RECESS

ITHACA, N. Y., March 26—(AP)—Easter recesses mean nothing to James Wray of the Cornell navy. He has selected 27 varsity and 17 freshmen oarsmen to stay in Ithaca over the vacation period, report for training table immediately and begin work for the Big Red's attempt at a come-back on the college seas.

Coach Wray's announcement came as a surprise but indicates his desire to get down to hard work immediately. In this he has an ally in the balmy spring weather.

FAST GAME EXPECTED WHEN PLAINFIELD AND SOUTH MANCHESTER MEET TONIGHT

Tonight's Lineups.

So. Manchester		Plainfield
Benson	rf	Brusso
Stavinitsky	lf	Kasper
Norris	c	Williams
Madden	rg	Bernot
Johnson	lg	Dissinger

When the two above teams clash tonight at the Plainfield Community house a question that has been asked since the beginning of the basketball season will be answered. Many of the fans who regularly attend the Plainfield Pro games at Plainfield claim that the present lineup of the Plainfield club is no better than that which represented the town several years ago. The South Manchester club was booked especially by Manager Salisbury to settle this doubt as practically the entire Manchester lineup at one time represented Plainfield as the Plainfield Pros. Manager Salisbury contends that when he let Benson, Madden, Norris and Stavinitsky go he bettered his team by getting his present players.

However that fact remains to be proved tonight and the game will be watched with more than passing interest. It is admitted that the South Manchester club is one of formidable strength and the Plainfield Pros will have no easy pickings to con off tonight's game. Stavinitsky, who really broke into the basketball spotlight with the Plainfield club, has been having a very successful season and will cause the Pros plenty of trouble. Benson, Madden and Norris have also been going extremely well this season. These four players with Johnson team up as a real fast combination and plenty of action is expected.

The Pros realizing that South Manchester is coming to Plainfield tonight with every intention of winning are in fine shape. A couple of workouts this week show that they have recovered from the slump into which they fell last week against the Philadelphia Colored Giants. With this game possibly the last one of the season the Pros intend to end the season in a real blaze of glory.

For the preliminary game there will be a clash between the Plainfield Buddies and some fast eastern Connecticut quintet.

Dancing as usual will the games. As this game has been attracting considerable attention the management has arranged for extra seating capacity and a crowded house is expected.

CHICAGO, March 26—(AP)—Tommy Loughran and Mickey Walker, two world ring champions, today wound up training for their light heavyweight title match, opening Paddy Harmon's $7,000,000 Chicago stadium Thursday night.

The middleweight champion worked the equivalent of eight rounds this afternoon before laying up the gloves. He stepped four rounds with Tom Kirby, Boston light heavyweight. Mickey kept trying his right hand and landed often. Once in the third round he crowded Kirby into a corner and jarred him to his heels with a wicked left hook.

KAPLAN IS FAVORITE TO WIN OVER GLICK

Louis Kid Kaplan, the Meriden Mauler, who at one time graced the featherweight throne and was a real fighting champion when he was in that position, has been placed as a slight favorite to win over Joe Glick, of Brooklyn, in their ten-round mill which tops off an all-star card at the New Haven Arena on the night of April 2.

Connecticut, with its great faith in the little bundle of energy who grew up from a raw preliminary boy to a world's champion, has made the odds in the bout and placed Kaplan in the front. Some say the odds are sentimental, that the natural feeling for the Meriden Buzz Saw has led his followers into placing the margin for him to win, but many of the wagers originate right in Kaplan's own backyard and the betting gentry has first had a look at the Kid's condition.

Kaplan is working out at the Charter Oak gym in Hartford—going through his paces without letup and right now practically down to fighting weight—and it is his fine form which is leading the fans to back him to come through against the Brooklynite.

Glick is doing his work in New York, but will transfer to New Haven on Sunday, March 31, to finish up. He, too, is making fine progress in his training, and with both men on edge the tilt to be staged Tuesday night, April 2, should be the battle of the season for Connecticut.

The main bout performers will get great support from the preliminary card. In an eight-round semi-final, Clicky Clark, of Holyoke, will meet Murray Elkins, of New York. In another eight Hughie Devlin, New London, and Pete DeGrasse, New York, hook up in a return match. In a six-frame affair Tommy Francis, of New York, returns again to take on Frankie Marino, of New Haven. The card will open with Nick Florentino, of New Haven, against Eddie Reed, of Hartford, in a four-round set-to.

INVESTIGATING PANIC WHICH CAUSED DEATH OF SPECTATOR

CHICAGO, March 26—(AP)—Multiple investigations were begun tonight into the panic at the Coliseum Monday that brought death to one man and injuries to a hundred others. Ten men, badly injured in the rush of thousands of spectators in the midst of the Jackie Fields-Young Jack Thompson fight for the welterweight boxing title, still were in a hospital tonight.

Samuel Luzzo, a member of the Illinois athletic commission, announced that he would offer a resolution barring mixed bouts between white and Negro boxers in Illinois. At the same time Coliseum directors declared mixed matches would not be permitted in the building hereafter. Herman Landfield, 33, died today of injuries suffered when he plunged from the balcony to the floor of the arena during the panic. Alonzo Stroud and Harry Solo were still in a critical condition and eight others were confined with broken bones.

So far as could be determined today, the disturbance started when a white man in the gallery made disparaging remarks concerning Thompson, the Negro fighter. Two Negroes took up the argument, brandishing a revolver and a knife. Crashing into a heap of benches, they tumbled them down and in an instant the great hall was in a tumult, thousands stampeded toward the ring or stormed the exits, trampling each other in their frenzy. The panic lasted more than ten minutes.

Promoter Jim Mullen offered a reward of $500 for information disclosing the names of those who started the quarrel.

Midseason Colors

Names of the twelve colors featured in the new midseason card of the Textile Color Card association have been announced by Margaret Hayden Rorke, managing director. Outstanding are three Capucine tones, designated pale, golden and brilliant, respectively. A chartreuse green is named grande chartreuse, while bleu moderne is a brilliant blue and nugold a new yellow. Royal violet designated a purple, while a vivid red is called diablo red, and a bright green is aptly named Tipperary. The three pastel hues on the card are opaque green, rosevew and a new blue labeled bleu d'amour.

NEW YORK'S EGGS COME FROM PACIFIC COAST

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Too many eggs and a dearth of chickens are causing the nation's poultry industry its only real anxiety. The department of agriculture finds that generally prosperous conditions attend the buying and selling of eggs and chickens.

The poultry industry now ranks sixth among the agricultural activities of the United States. Not long ago it was a local enterprise in each community. Today the Pacific coast supplies, for example, almost a third of New York's demand for eggs and chickens.

INCOMES OVER MILLION AROUND 300 LAST YEAR

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Approximately 300 citizens of the United States paid taxes on incomes of $1,000,000 and over for the year 1928.

In 1927 there were 283 in the class. That an increase will be shown when tabulations are completed for 1928 officials of the bureau of internal revenue have little doubt.

Twenty states were represented in the "million dollar and over" class according to statistics compiled by the bureau on incomes for 1926. New York leads with 92, Pennsylvania is next with 37 and Illinois is in third place with 20.

WESTERLY

N. Y. YOUNG WOMAN DRIVER ORDERED TO REAR SEAT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I. March 26—A New York licensed automobile driven by a young woman, with three men companions, was stopped on Broad street Tuesday afternoon by Officer Robert M. Kessel, who inquired if the driver felt equal to the task of operating the car. When the woman expressed considerable indignation at being asked, the officer replied that he had received a complaint from a Westerly auto driver whose machine had been grazed by the auto bearing their number and which, it was reported, had had trouble in making turns on the state highway between Mystic and Westerly. In one instance in Stonington it had come near hitting a telegraph pole.

The motor party were driven to Westerly police station, where it was found by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown that of the three men occupants from New York, one was a drug clerk and the other two were students. Indignant protest was made by the auto party at being detained by the police officer and emphatic assurance that they were capable of continuing the auto's operation. When they were released from examination at the Westerly police station it was with the understanding that the young woman should occupy the rear seat and that one of the men should drive the car, if they cared to proceed.

State police at the Hope Valley barracks were notified to be on the lookout for the New York machine and to make sure that the auto was being operated in a proper manner and as directed by the Westerly authorities.

March 25, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Chester sold to Robert Lepper and Emily Lepper land on the west side of York avenue, Lot No. 12, plat of building sites of Albert L. Chester.

Judge Frank H. Hinkley of Mystic was in Westerly Tuesday afternoon to hold a session of Stonington probate court for Pawcatuck.

Progress on New Buildings.

Work on the excavation and foundations for the two new business blocks, to be erected on Canal and High streets is progressing steadily. In the Nardone property, Canal street between the United Theatre and Toscano blocks, the site of the former Dr. John L. May home, the large steam shovel continues to excavate at a level below the foundations of the two buildings on either side and as close to them as safety will permit. The waste material now brought up on motor trucks from a level below the surface of the street is carried to the land at the south of River Bend cemetery, where it is used for filling in the low spots. A store building, extending well back on the lot to the rear of the United Theatre, is to be constructed for the Montgomery-Ward chain of stores.

On the site between the Colonial club house and the Westerly furniture store, in the Hinckley-Mitchell block, the excavation for the basement of the first unit of a series of three business structures has been completed to a distance of 80 feet from the High street front. A foundation wall extending the entire High street front of the proposed three building units has been completed, with the only break that occupied by the stone steps approach from the High street sidewalk to the Colonial club house.

On Tuesday, the work of building the wooden form for the south wall to receive the cement mixture was completed and the rear wall wooden form construction was started. The pouring of cement for the north wall of the foundation was completed. The cement was allowed to find its way into the stone work of the foundation of the Hinckley-Mitchell block and has practically make a party foundation wall which would add strength to both foundations, as directed by Westerly Building Inspector Thomas Wills and agreed upon the owners of both buildings.

Westerly's first electrical storm of intensity for 1929 began shortly after 7 p. m. Monday and it continued intermittently from about 7.30 o'clock until 2 o'clock Tuesday morning. There were many sharp flashes of lightning and the thunder at times shoot the earth, but no damage was reported.

In the Masonic rooms Monday evening, the newly instituted Westerly chapter, Order of DeMolay for Boys, Miles Coulbourn, master councilor, held its first regular meeting.

Edward H. Greenhalgh of Bradford, convicted in Stonington town court recently of reckless operation of his automobile on West Broad street, Pawcatuck, has had his Rhode Island operator's license suspended by the state board of public roads.

I have taken five bottles and it has helped me to get strong so I can do my own housework now. I have recommended it to several friends who have been weak and run-down."—Mrs. Oscar Otum, Box 474, Thief River Falls, Minn.

COLCHESTER

TOWN VOTES FOR STATE ROAD IN WESTCHESTER SECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, March 26 — The most largely attended and hotly contested special town meeting in Colchester for many years was held in Grange hall, Tuesday afternoon, with Charles F. Brown chairman. Nearly 200 were in attendance; automobiles were lined up on both sides of Norwich avenue from the W. S. Curtis residence to the C. F. Brown home. The crowd was so great that a large number were obliged to stand throughout the meeting.

It was voted by secret ballot to authorize the selectmen to enter into an agreement with the state of Connecticut for the construction of one mile of road, leading from North Westchester southerly toward Moodus Falls and to appropriate not to exceed $20,000 for the construction of said road and to empower the selectmen to borrow this amount. Attorney John A. Markham, of Hartford, Second Selectman C. G. Markham, Edward H. Norton, Guy B. Clark and William K. Raymond spoke in favor of the project. They were of the opinion that the Westchester section of the town deserved some consideration because the proposed road will be the main outlet for the transportation of farm products from the Westchester center section and by building the road, that section of the town will grow in population and business enterprises. Julius Sullan was the leader of the opposition to the proposed road project. He expressed the opinion that instead of expending so much money for the new Westchester road, the selectmen should be authorized and furnished with the money to repair the various bad, muddy stretches of road about the town. He was stoutly supported in this contention by many of those present. However, by a secret ballot, the measure was passed, 103 to 92. The state is to pay three-fourths and the town is to pay one-fourth of the expense of the road construction.

It was also voted to appropriate $700 for the purpose of making repairs to the Pleasant street road. John J. Shea and M. R. Abel spoke in favor of the appropriation, while Joseph Domber and Guy B Clark spoke in opposition.

Discussion over these road matters reached such a fever pitch of excitement that Chairman Brown had unusual difficulty in keeping order.

FRANTIC SESSION OF STOCK MARKET WITH TOTAL SALES 8,246,740 SHARES

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP)—The ghost of unstable credit that has haunted the stock market for months, while confirmed bulls have endeavored to scoff it out of existence, materialized in flesh and blood today and gave the market a shock that sent it through the most violent contortions in its history. The huge total of 8,246,740 shares changed hands during the frantic session, which exceeds the previous record turnover of Nov. 20 by 1,304,240.

The most acute money squeeze since the post war deflation crisis of 1920 sent the call loan rate up to 20 per cent before funds were forthcoming. A landslide of selling during the first two hours of the session drove about a third of the active issues to new low ground for the year, a few extreme losses running from 20 to 33 points. Early of remarkable vigor set in during the last hour, however, when the 20 per cent rate finally brought out funds, and scores of important shares rallied from as much as 20 points from their bottom levels and a sprinkling closed with net gains.

The Associated Press price indice of 60 industrials at the close of the market showed a loss of but 1.2 points, compared to the loss of 6.6 points yesterday, and the rail indext showed practically no change. The index of 20 utilities, however, lost nearly 5 points.

The grave situation in the money market resulted from conditions similar to those at the year end, and had been foreshadowed in federal reserve analysis. The market, grown increasingly dependent upon loans from corporations, found this supply cut off, as concerns are conserving their funds against the heavy April 1 interest and dividend requirements. Over the year end the banks came to the support of the money market with about $600,000,000, mainly increasing their federal reserve borrowings by $182,000,000 in order to do it, but under the present federal reserve policy, they could not be moved to buy the market until the call loan rate touched 20 per cent, a figure unequalled since Feb. 5, 1920.

Calling of loans was reported to have been comparatively moderate, but requirement funds for a time seemed impossible to find. Call money was quoted in the outside market at one time as high as 25 per cent and time money was quoted up to 8 1-2 per cent, with practically none available.

Although much of the day's losses were regained in the last hour of trading, the precipitous decline had disastrous consequences for hundreds of traders. Margin calls went out in a flood, and while commission houses reported that about 4 out of 5 were able to get in the cash, the fact that 1 out of 5 had to sell out at the low levels indicates huge losses in the aggregate. It was one of the most prosperous days of record for the bears, although the rally at the close came so quickly, and under the screen of a late ticker, that many may have failed to cover at the low levels.

The day's business news was meagre, and in any case could have had little effect upon such a market. The American Telephone and Telegraph company surprised Wall street with a plan to offer $225,000,000 in convertible debentures. This company for the past four years has done its financing entirely with large stock offerings.

Granby Copper raised its annual dividend rate from $6 to $7. Several railroads reported improved operating results for February. E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum Institute, reported excellent progress in the crude production curtailment program. Although an increased output of crude for last week was indicated.

The important individual price movements are too numerous to be catalogued, and only a few samples can be given. Brooklyn Edison made the day's widest break with a loss of 33 points.

Coppers were sold heavily for a time, Anaconda and Greene Cananea dropping more than 10 points each, but recovered much of their losses. Radio shooted to 82, then rose to 93, up 1 1-2 points net. American Can dropped to a new low at 118, and rallied to close at 120 1-2, up more than 3 points. General Electric sold down to 218, and rallied to close at 226 1-2, up more than 3 points. General Motors sold off 5 points at one time, but closed practically unchanged. U. S. Steel, after selling off about 6 points, closed fractionally higher. International Nickel, which showed strong resistance around 50 yesterday, dipped to 40 1-2, and closed just under 44.

Oils showed strength in spots. Standard of California mounting nearly 3 points, and Standard of New Jersey more than a point. Barnsdall B, however, dropped over 2 points. Rails in general held fairly steady, but Jersey Central lost nearly 20 points in a small turnover. Canadian Pacific reduced its extreme loss of about 8 points to 2. Union Pacific, which reported a large gain in February net operating income, mounted more than 2 points. Commodities generally sold off sharply in sympathy with the decline in stocks. Wheat and corn sold off about 5 cents each but rallied somewhat later. Cotton declined at one time more than $3 a bale, but recovered its losses by more than half. Crude rubber futures, however, were strong, gaining about a cent a pound.

Foreign exchanges were generally steady, although the Canadian dollar was again at a discount of 1-2 of a cent, and the Japanese yen fell back about 1-2 of a cent.

SURVEYS FOR DREDGING THAMES RIVER CHANNELS

Engineers have been making a survey the past week for dredging the river channels near the village.

Mrs. William K. Wright, of Sterling spent the week end with Mr. Wright and his mother, Mrs. George H. Wright, at their home in the village.

Palm Sunday was observed at the Community M. E. church with sermon on The Trumphal Entry, by the pastor, and offertory duet, He Comes, by Miss Grace A. Chapman and D. R. Pavey Two members, Miss Marjorie Curtis Gates and Miss Dorothy Louise Bandro, united with the church at this service.

Rev. Jerome Greer conducted the opening service at the church school session in the absence of Supt. C. E. Colver and Asst. Supt. D. C. Perkins. Banners of the senior school were awarded Mrs. C. E. Colver's class for attendance and the men's class for offering. The banners of the junior department, held in the new school building, were secured by the classes taught by Mrs. Avery Main and Miss Matilda Harold.

The Epworth league evening meeting was led by Mrs. Jerome Greer, the topic being "If Jesus Came to Our Home." The closing talk by the pastor continued the thought. The audience was invited to remain following the service, when the losing side in the Time and Tide contest, conducted for several weeks in connection with the Sunday evening meetings, entertained the winning team with a lunch of cocoa, sandwiches and cake.

Calendar notices announced special music and sermon for the Easter Sunday morning service, a programme of music and recitations for the church school hour, and a song and story programme by the junior choir, under direction of Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt, for the Epworth league evening service at 7 o'clock.

The annual session of the New England Southern conference was also announced to be held at Brockton, Mass., April 3 to 8. The fiscal year of the local church closes March 31st.

Milo Benn, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. J. Wilbur Norton, and little grand daughter, Nancy Norton, motored from Hartford for a Sunday visit to their aunt, Mrs. Joab B. Rogers.

Miss Arline Thompson, of Fitchville, was a guest of Miss Dorothy L. Baudro, at Allyne Point, over the week end.

Improving Road Ways

Peter Hoffman, William McNaught, Tracy Smith and Norman L. Brown have been employed recently improving the condition of the roadway over the Smith property and along the north side of the Ferry cove, Riverside place; the roadway past the Yale quarters, has also received attention, Emil Gunuskey with helpers employed by the town, being occupied Saturday morning in scraping and leveling the ruts.

To Form Church Club

H. W. Wicks, secretary of the boys' work at the New London Y. M. C. A. met Friday evening with the group of boys of the local church school who are planning the organization of a church club, and spoke on the Pioneer club idea, telling the meaning of the club pin, what it stands for. Refreshments were served. A meeting will be held on Friday evening of this wek, when Mr. Hicks will initiate the boys in club membership.

The wild grass on the plains back of the Country club was burned over recently, by section men in the employ of the New Haven road, as a means of prevention.

Mrs. F. A. Aplin and son, Frank A. Aplin, have reopened their residence in the village after several months' absence on a motor trip through southern California. They traveled over 11,000 miles and were guests for a time of Mrs. Alpin's daughter, Mrs. Chester D. Bonestell, and family, at Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll S. Hurlbutt and daughters, Marjorie and Norma, were week end guests of Mrs. Hurlbutt's sister, Mrs. Henry Pearce, and family, in Wakefield, R. I.

When a man speaks with a golden tongue all others are silenced.

DATING AMERICA'S PRE-HISTORY FROM THREE RINGS

A grant of $5,000 by the research committee of the National Geogparhic society for the study of old beams and timbers in the Indian pueblos of the southwest has been announced by Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the society.

Behind this announcement, which on its face might relate only to a problem in botany or timber preservation, is a fascinating scientific "detective story."

"With saws and drills and microscopes," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarteres of the National Geographic society, "the specialists engaged in the beam studied are digging from the heart of ancient logs and beams a more accurate calendar of happenings in the southwestern United States than that which we possess for the civilizations of the Egyptians or the Mayas. The work is built on the fact that every growing tree leaves in its trunk a ring for each year; and on the further fact that each one of these rings has an individality of its own—a different width, definiteness, or character resulting from different climatic or seasonal differences. Furthermore, all trees in a given region show the same ring sequence; and some of the rings, deposited in an especially characteristic season of drought or moisture, stand out so plainly that it is almost as if nature hod rubber-samped the ring: 'This is the year 1398 A. D.'"

"The work was undertaken after expeditions of the National Geographic society had uncovered the ruins of Pueblo Bonito in New Mexico, one of America's earliest 'apartment houses.' Many interesting things were learned about the customs and culture of the 2,600 people who once occupied the great structure; but the date at which they flourished remained a secret. Some of the old beams used in supporting the roof were well preserved, and when sawed showed characteristic rings. The idea was conceived of tracing a tree-ring calendar back from the present to the days when Pueblo Bonito's beams were growing.

"The work has been in charge of Dr. Albert E. Douglass of the University of Arizona, and has progressed so far that two unbroken sequences of rings have been assembled, one reaching back from the present to the year 1260; the other a prehisioric sequence for six centuries. The latter group includes the tree rings from Pueblo Bonito. Checks through pottery and other sources lead the investigators to believe that the gap separating the two series is only about 150 years wide, and that beams from a certain area will close this unknown space. Even if beams bridging the gap have been charred into charcoal, the story their rings tell can still be read."

RESIGNS PASTORATE OF WILLINGTON FED. CHURCHES

Eighteen years ago a "penniless, friendless, immigrant," now called to direct the national rural and village church department of the American Baptist Home Missionary society, the Rev. Edwin E. Sundt on Sunday presented his resignation as pastor of the Willington Federated churches, his first pastorate, after five years' service.

Mr. Sundt thanked his congregation for the splendid co-operation they had given him in all his projects which brought many of them to such success that they attracted wide attention and consequently focussed the attention of church authorities upon him when a national leader for such work was sought. Reviewing some of these accomplishments, he cited the establishment of the first rural church vacation school in New England, the promotion of community socials and clubs for groups of persons having similar interests such as the boys' band, the girls' club and the young people's society. His effort to be pastor and friend to the entire community had met with the heartiest welcome, he said, and while it involved some delicate problems it succeeded because of the townspeople's attitude.

NORTH STERLING

Much interest has been shown by the people living in the rural districts in the hearing at Hartford of the new proposed "Dirt Road Bill." At the present time country roads are not passable, owing to mud and frost coming out. All people living in the country will thank those sixty-eight members of the house who signed a petition for the passage of the measure.

Signs of spring the past few days were: Woodchucks out, peep frogs numerous and large flocks of geese flying northward.

Miss Dorothy Smith, teacher, has been obliged to stay here a few weeks owing to bad conditions of the roads.

Mrs. Eva Spooner and Lee Austin were in Putnam Saturday to visit W. R. Spooner, a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, who is expected to be able to return home this week.

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

Putnam lodge, A. F. and A. M., held the quarterly meeting Saturday, March 23. Visitors were present from Webster and Southbridge. Dinner was served by members of Betty Putnam chapter, O. E. S., at 6:00.

The next meeting of the Ladies' Aid society is to be held in the vestry. It is to be the Union meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Swan of Providence are spending a few days at H. T. Wells, also at Harry E. Wells'.

C. W. Bowens Gardener has arrived in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Cotterell have gone to Maine.

Mrs. John Davies has gone to Providence to stay with her daughter for a few weeks.

Mrs. L. R. Southworth has returned to her home after being in Willimantic for several weeks.

TALK OF NEW POLICE SERGEANT STARTS UP NEW LONDON CANDIDATES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 26—On its becoming known that an additional police sergeant was to be appointed, after the ordinance regulating the police department had its first reading in process of passage at a special meeting of the city council last evening, there began what is sure to be a lively scramble for the appointment. Since the announcement made yesterday that Acting Sergeants William Graham and John Courtney, Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray and Patrolman James McKenna would be seekers for the appointment, today brought out the fact that Patrolmen Clyde Murphy, Dennis Cavanaugh and Ernest Opperman were also in a receptive mood, in fact are in the fight for the appointment, which will be made the latter part of next month. Acting Sergeant Graham has been ill most of the time since his temporary appointment and is now confined to his home, on Williams street. Acting Sergeant John Courtney is at present in charge of the 3.30 p. m. detail and for several years was traffic officer at the corner of State and Bank streets. Automobile Patrol Officer Ray has acted as sergeant on numerous occasions. Patrolman McKenna is the senior member of the candidates seeking the office and is now performing patrol duty at Ocean Beach. Patrolman Clyde Murphy was for several years traffic officer at the corner of State and Bank streets and until the present three-platoon system was put into operation three weeks ago. Officer Cavanaugh was also a traffic officer, being stationed at Bank and Howard streets, prior to the three platoon system being inaugurated the second time. Officer Opperman is at present performing patrol duty at Ocean Beach.

City Manager William A. Holt late this afternoon announced that the supernumerary force, which was depleted recently by the promotion of five such officers to the regular force, would again exist for he had ordered the holding of an examination for the appointment of such officers. The examination will be held at the Charles B. Jennings school, Mercer street, on the night of April 5 at 7:30 o'clock. The applicants will be compelled to undergo a physical examination, prior to the holding of the mental examination. The candidates must be citizens of this city, of good moral character and well recommended for the office for which they seek appointment. They must be not over 31 years of age, nor under 21, at least five feet nine inches in height and with weight in proportion to height. The mental examination will consist of general knowledge of the city of New London, its government, traffic laws, use of English and arithmetic. It is desired that a sufficient number of candidates to permit a half dozen officers being appointed shall pass the examination and some of the successful candidates will be appointed to duty probably during April. Of the number who pass, two will be appointed city sheriffs.

The water in Lake Konomoc, which supplies the population of New London with drinking water and which for several days was nauseating because of the existence of organisms in the lake, is now such that the water can be drunk with the same satisfaction as before. The application of sulphide of copper to the bottom of the lake has removed the organisms and all disagreeable taste, it is believed, has been eliminated.

VISIT OF MARSHAL FOCH RECALLED DURING TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 26—The flag on the post office building was at half mast to honor the memory of General Foch, while his funeral was held in France today. General Foch was a visitor in New London immediately following the termination of the World war, passing through New London on a special train. There were hundreds to greet and cheer him, while the train made a five minute stop at the union station.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. B. Stoeckel today ordered the right to drive denied John J. Rayhart, submarine base; William Tillett, state pier and Henry D. Ferguson, U. S coast guard academy. Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered the licenses suspended of Harold J. Biltcliffe, 36 Shapley street and Lewis Pollard, 30 Eastern avenue.

Mrs. C. C. Vickery, daughter of Mrs. Robert McKim, of New York, a summer resident of this city, married Saturday in Reno, Caleb Van Hussen Whitback, of that city.

Watch for Runaways.

Local and state police have been on the lookout today for four runaway boys from Pawtucket, R. I. The Pawtucket police furnished a description of the youths and of the car in which they left the city.

Patients dismissed today from the Home Memorial hospital were: Mrs. Charles Davidson, 237 Broad street, Enna Smerecks, of 63 Crystal avenue.

Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander has released the sale of two properties which were advertised for sale to satisfy back taxes due the city. They are the property of Dudley St. C. Donnelly, Jr., 153 Lincoln avenue and the house and lot of John J. Hogan, 54 Cutler street.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief as effectively as the messy old mustard plaster.

Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

You who have tuned in these many years to listen to the Radio Franks are going to have an opportunity to see these universal favorites, for they have gone movie, and will be seen on the screen, and heard as well, of course, when the special road show attraction, "Should a Girl Marry?" appears at the Breed theatre next Sunday. For in addition to the feature picture, in which the dainty little Helen Foster is starred, the program also consists of five one reel novelty acts, recorded by Filmtone, including, besides the Radio Franks, Shaw's Hawaiians, The Dancing Colleens, Val and Ernie Stanton and the Filmtone Harmonists, all popular favorites either in vaudeville or on the air.

Breed Theatre

Midnight—charged with dramatic significance—fascinating in its eerie suggestion—is effectually brought to the screen in a new DeMille studio production, "Midnight Madness," in which Jacqueline Logan is featured, with Clive Brook and which will be the main attraction of a double feature bill at the Breed theatre today and Thursday.

Romance, mystery—suspense—intrigue, all of which are brought to mind by the word midnight, have been cleverly woven into "Midnight Madness," by the scenarist, Robert N. Lee, who adapted it from Daniel Rubin's stage play, "The Lion Trap." Miss Logan, as the heroine, becomes involved in events that take her into darkest Africa—all because of a moment of madness at the stroke of twelve! F. Harmon Weight directed. The supporting cast includes among others, Walter McGrail, James Bradbury, Oscar Smith, Vadim Uraneff, Louis Natheaux and Virginia Sale.

"The Ware Case," a murder mystery story written by England's famous author, George Pleydell Bancroft, is the added feature.

Palace Theatre

"The Michigan Kid" which opened yesterday at the Palace theatre is a perfectly balanced and thoroughly entertaining photoplay. It has story, setting and cast, all charmingly combined by the director's deft flair for colorful romance.

Rex Beach's novel of the same name, furnished the story, which has been adhered to closely. It deals with the adventures of a straight gambler in Alaska during the gold rush of 1898 and is generally considered Beach's most vigorous work.

None of that vigor has been lost in the transfer of the thrilling story to the screen. Conrad Nagel appears as the gambler, a man who despite his calling is honest and lovable. Renee Adoree is the girl who finds him gentle, while Lloyd Whitlock discovers him to be a husky antagonist.

On the same programme is "Freedom of the Press," the Universal picture now playing at the Palace theatre. It is a fictitious parallel of the battle to the death of Editor Don Mellett and members of the underworld. Readers will remember that Mellett was slain in his fight to break up the vice ring that centered in Canton, Ohio. "Freedom of the Press" is as intensely dramatic as the incident upon which it is based. Peter B. Kyne wrote the story especially for the screen. The cast includes Lewis Stone, Marceline Day, Malcolm McGregor, Henry Walthall, Robert Emmett O'Connor, Thomas Ricketts, Hayden Stevenson, Robert Ellis, Boris Baronoff, Morgan Thorpe and Wilson Benge.

Broadway Theatre

The management of the Broadway theatre is pleased to announce that a revival showing of the Singing Fool with America's greatest entertainer, Al Jolson, is opening tomorrow for a three days' run. The requests both by letter and telephone were so numerous that Manager M. J. Levinson could not disregard them in spite of the fact that the policy of the Broadway is to show the latest and biggest films on its screen. Many of the writers stated that although they had enjoyed the picture during its phenomenal run of an entire week here earlier in the season, they would not tire and would be pleased to see and hear their favorite Al Jolson and little Davey Lee again. Critics throughout the country have declared "The Singing Fool" to be without a doubt the best picture of the year. If you haven't seen it. Don't miss it.

NOANK FISH HATCHERY INCUBATING COUNTLESS EGGS

Hundreds of millions of eggs of flatfish are incubating at the Noank state hatchery.

Next to the halibut, the flatfish or winter flounder is the most important fish commercially along Connecticut's shore. Flounders landed in Connecticut in 1927 weighed a total of about seven and a half million pounds and had a value of over $300,000, and fishermen are now finding more smaller flounders in their hauls than ever before.

These facts were brought out by Superintendent John W. Titcomb of the state board of fisheries and game, during the course of his weekly radio talk over Station WTIC. He was speaking on What Is Doing in Fish Culture, and showed how the lobster hatchery at Noank has been adapted to produce flounder and how with little expense it could be given a capacity of one billion eggs. The address, in addition to discussing fish culture with the flounders, gave some interesting side lights on the types of flounder found off the Connecticut coast, the practices of fishermen in catching these fish, incubation methods, and the physical development of the fry into large flounders with the resulting peculiar movement of the eyes from one side of the head to the other and the accompanying change in color of the fish.

MANY WOODS FIRES ALREADY THIS SPRING

According to A. F. Hawes, state forester, the usual spring crop of forest fires has already begun. Many have been started by people carelessly setting fire to dry grass in cleaning up their places. These grass fires easily escape control and often endanger buildings and get into the woods. "April," he said, "always has the greatest number of fires, but the most disastrous usually come in early May."

Fires in this section, he pointed out, are almost always caused by human agencies. Formerly the railroads were the chief offenders, but with their changed attitude, railroad fires have been reduced to only 10 per cent. of the total. In the state forester's opinion, carelessness rather than evil intent is the chief cause of fires. He said, "Of the 600 to 800 fires which occur annually in Connecticut, very few are deliberately incendiary. Yet, last year there were 119 fires which escaped from people burning brush. These burned over 4148 acres. The problem is, therefore, to teach people to be careful with fire. We are making every effort to have people clean up their land and burn their brush in winter or summer when the danger is small. Lighting fires in the open without permit from the local fire warden is illegal between March 1 and December 1. No permits will be issued during April except on rainy days or the day immediately following rain. This permit law will be strictly enforced this spring."

Referring to fires started by careless smokers, Mr. Hawes stated that they were on the increase. "Investigation by the Northeastern Forest Experiment station at Amherst, Mass., showed that the duff, or soil cover, often reaches a temperature of from 140 to 160 and is highly inflammable. When the moisture content is less than 10 per cent, fires easily start from glowing matches, pipe heels and cigarettes. When it is over 25 per cent, there is less danger. Smokers are, therefore, urged to throw cigar and cigarette stubs fro mautomobiles and not to smoke in the woods except in damp weather."

Referring to law enforcement, the state forester said, "The wardens sometimes claim that they do not secure adequate assistance from local justices of the peace in the enforcement of fire laws. Nominal fines or sometimes none at all do little to inspire respect for laws, the breaking of which may involve losses of thousands of dollars.

LEILA TROLAND GARDNER AWARDS OPERA CLUB MEDAL

At an interesting and enthusiastic ceremony recently, at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, the National Opera Company of America, Inc., sponsored a Victor Herbert memorial concert contest. Baroness Katherine Evans von Klenner is the founder-president of this noted organization and the contest had a long list of distinguished patrons and endorsers. Prizes had been donated for ability in various lines of musical attainment, one, a gold medal coming from one of the directors, Mme. Leila Troland Gardner, of New York, a native of Norwich.

The organization has for its object the consideration and discussion of operatic and other musical and kindred subjects, for the purpose of propaganda and the furtherance of educational work in music. Such an object is very dear to the heart of Mrs. Gardner, who has donated a prize which is awarded annually at the graduating exercises of Broadway grammar school, Norwich, where she was once a pupil, to reward the student who has made the greatest progress in musical study during the year.

In the New York contest there was the president's gold medal, other gold medals, silver and bronze medals. The program was long and meritorious, the prize offered by Mrs. Gardner going for contralto work to Miss Miriam Mercer, of Baltimore, 16, a southern beauty with a glorious voice, it was said. There were 100 contestants, all under 25, from many parts of the country, all American born. The organization gave $100 in cash with each gold medal. Mrs. Gardner was the originator of the plan of having the contest for American singers, giving the first gold medal. The president, Baroness von Klenner gave her the credit for this by calling her to the stage, presenting her to the audience and announcing that fact.

A few days later Mrs. Gardner was mentioned among those at a farewell musical morning at the Waldorf ballroom at 11 o'clock, when one of the singers was Lawrence Tibbett, heard in Slater hall, Norwich, so recently. This musical morning was arranged by the Music Lovers' Foundation, Inc., members of the committee including former Norwich residents, Mrs. Charles H. Sherrill and Rutger B. Jewett.

She continues her own musical work and at present is coaching in English diction, among other musical students, a young prima donna, a member of the Chicago Opera company.

Her standing in the musical world is best indicated by a recent notice in the Musical Courier, a publication read the world over:

The Valkyrie-like personality of Leila Troland is known to a large public of America, partially through her appearances as prima donna contralto of the Savage Grand Opera company, as composer of Negro spirituals, as composer of the brilliant piano solo, Gardenia Waltz, and singer before various clubs and societies, as well as over the radio.

Descended from a distinguished ancestry, closely related to the poet John Troland and to Dr. Leonard Troland, of Harvard university, hers is a definite personality. Among various clubs which have featured her in spirituals are the National Opera club, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Drama-Comedy club, all of New York, and she also had the honor of singing before the late President Harding, as well as at several New York state functions.

In May, 1926, she toured various radio stations in Europe, visiting Spain, Italy, Turkey, France and the British Isles, in which connection she says that the Latins greatly appreciated the musical qualities of the plaintive Negro melodies. A tour around the world was followed by a stay in Italy, where she studied composition with Adolfo Bossi at the Milan conservatory, who dedicated a beautiful Venetian barcarolle to her; a diploma signed by him is among her treasures. Art objects gathered on her world trip are many, including a century-old painting from Italy, along with autographed photographs of leading international artists. Il Teatro of Milan printed a picture and gave a sketch of her in the March (1928) issue. Radiorario, the leading magazine of the Italian radio world, also printed her picture, with interesting reading matter.

Monseigneur Plays

Monseigneur plays his new gavotte—
Within her gilded chair the Queen
Listens, her rustling maids between;
A very tulip garden stirred
To hear the fluting of a bird;
Faint sunlight on the casement falls
On cupids painted on the walls
At play with doves, precisely set
Awaits the slender-legged spinet,
Expectant of its happy lot,
The while the player stays to twist
The cobweb ruffle from his wrist.
A pause, and then—(Ah, whisper not)
Monseigneur plays his new gavotte.

Monseigneur plays his new gavotte—
Hark, 'tis the faintest dawn of Spring,
So still the dew drops whispering
Is loud upon the violets;
Here in this garden of Pierrette's
Where Pierrot waits, ah, hasten, Sweet,
And hear; on dainty, tripping feet
She comes—the little, glad coquette.
"Ah, thou Pierrot?" "Ah, thou Pierrette?"
A kiss, nay, hear—a bird wakes, then
A silence—and they kiss again.
"Ah, Mesdames, have you quite forgot—"
(So laughs this music) "Love's first kiss?"
Let this note lead you then, and this
Back to that fragrant garden-spot,"
Monseigneur plays his new gavotte.

Monseigneur plays his new gavotte—
Ah, hear—in that last note they go
The little lovers laughing so;
Kissing their finger-tips, they dance
From out this gilded room of France.
Adieu! Monseigneur bows now
Ready for compliment and bow,
Playing about his mouth the white
Its cynical accustomed smile,
Protests and, hand on heart, avers
The patience of his listeners.
"A masterpiece? Ah, surely not."
A gray-eyed maid of honor sighs
A long-stemmed rose across her lips
And drops it; does he read her thought?
Monseigneur plays his new gavotte.

—Theodosia Garrison.

Beggars

You of the painted wagons, folk of the shimmery eye,
What do you stretch your wrinkled hands, wide for the passer-by?
You that are rich with your legends, you with your wisdom of old,
What do you ask of the west-world, land that has only gold?

You of the moors at nightfall, you of the smoking fire,
What have the dreary town-folk fit for your heart's desire?
You that have rain for your brother, riding with wind and sun,
What would you ask of the west-world weary and overdone?

You with the galloping ponies' clatter and shimmer of hoofs,
What do you stand at our houses, gaping at our motionless roofs?
Bread you may have, and pennies; but in turn, for a gift e'er you rise,
Toss me the wind of your home-land, the world-old dream in your eyes.

—Rhys Carpenter.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The national debt of the United States, in the years, 1835 and 1836 amounted to only $37,000.

Three centuries ago wood in industrial life was as important and played the part that iron, coal or oil does today.

Because one of England's chief needs was wood for fuel—before 1610 the Jamestown colony in Virginia was equipped with machinery for the smelting and manufacture of iron, a glass furnace and a number of Hollanders and Poles skilled in the production of pitch, tar and potash.

The Greeks of the seventh century B. C. would offer sacrifices of sobriety to the gods. In these sacrifices, called nephalia, mead was offered instead of wine, and vine, fig and mulberry trees, symbols of drunkenness, were forbidden to be burned.

The most unpopular citizen in Boston, Mass., in 1765, was Andrew Oliver, stamp distributor. He was taken to the Liberty tree and made to take oath that he would not enforce the stamp act, after which he resigned. His death, in 1774, was celebrated by the display of a rope, coffin and gallows in a Boston window.

A system called pasigraphy, which professes to teach people to communicate with each other by means of numbers which convey the same ideas in all languages, was promoted by a European society in the 1860's. NEW YORK BANKERS COME TO THE RELIEF OF WALL STREET

Stock Prices Rallied as Sufficient Funds Were Supplied to Keep the Call Money Rate Stabilized at 15 Per Cent—Chief Credit is Given Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Bank—Frequenters of Brokerage Houses Watched Stocks Which They Had Dumped Overboard Tuesday Climb to Heights Which Would Have Netted Them Handsome Profits.

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—New York bankers smashed the money jam in Wall street today by supplying sufficient funds to keep the call money rate stabilized at 15 per cent., and stock prices rallied in spectacular fashion, recovering most of the ground lost in the two preceding sessions.

Chief credit for leading the "bull" forces and thousands of small speculators and investors still in the market out of the wilderness of despair was given to Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City bank, who loaned the bank's funds freely when the call rate threatened to go above the 20 per cent. level of Tuesday, and served notice today that the bank was prepared to lend $25,000,000 additional, if necessary—$5,000,000 each at 18, 17, 18, 19 and 20 per cent.

This action immediately brought an influx of funds from other banks, and revived confidence which had been badly shaken by the drastic decline in the early part of yesterday's record-breaking session. Considerable significance was attached in Wall street to Mr. Mitchell's action because he is a director of the New York Federal Reserve bank, which has been active in attempting to carry out the federal reserve board policy of forcing a substantial reduction in speculative borrowings.

"So far as this institution is concerned," Mr. Mitchell was quoted as saying, "we feel that we have an obligation which is paramount to any federal reserve warning, or anything else, to avert so far as lies within our power, any dangerous crisis in the money market."

Total stock sales today were only 3,613,390 shares as against 5,246,740 in yesterday's record session. The tickers, which ran for more than two hours after the close of yesterday, kept well abreast of the proceedings today, the final quotation being printed only 22 minutes after the sounding of the closing gong.

The strong support furnished the money market late yesterday brought about a heavy accumulation of overnight buying orders with the result that the market started upward from the start. The market ran into some selling, however, when the call money renewal rate was posted at 16 per cent., the highest since February, 1920, and contrasted with an opening rate of 12 per cent. yesterday. When it became apparent that the rate would hold at that figure, and that powerful financial interests were standing by to support the money market, if necessary, the rally was resumed and continued until just before the close when profit-taking shuttled away part of the earlier gains.

Governors of the stock exchange voted to suspend business on Saturday, as well as the Good Friday holiday, probably to afford relief to the thousands of brokerage house employes who have been swamped with an accumulation of work as a result of the riotous sessions of the last few days. Similar action was taken by the governors of the New York curb market.

Brokerage houses again were thronged today with customers, hundreds of whom watched stocks which they had dumped yesterday climb to heights which would have netted them handsome profits if they had held on and weathered the storm of selling. Amateur "bear" traders, who invariably sell at the wrong time, also saw stocks in which they had taken a short position in the belief that the bottom had dropped out of the market, go surging to levels which forced them to cover their commitments as substantial losses.

While the brokers are reluctant to talk about their customers commitments, it is known that thousands of small speculators all over the country had been driven out of the market, or forced to take substantial losses. Millions of dollars in paper profits also have vanished from the accounts of some of Wall street's largest operators, but these men are in a better position to withstand the losses, and have learned from experience that dumping their holdings in a wildly declining market, unless forced by necessity, is generally poor business.

Gains of $5 to nearly $20 a share were quite common in today's market. Adams Express soared $34 on a few sales, and Ford Motor of Canada, traded on the New York curb market, skyrocketed $123 a share.

INVESTMENT TRUSTS CALLED $60,000,000 LOANS

NEW YORK, March 27—(AP)—The New York Evening Post said today it had learned on good authority that one large bank called $60,000,000 in call loans for the account of investment trusts yesterday. The bank had been putting out about $200,000,000 in call loans for the account of investment trusts, the paper asserted.

"This entirely new factor that Wall street never before has had to deal with," continued the newspaper, "would explain both the rapid rise in call money and the remarkable rally in stocks at the end of the day.

"Last year and the year before thousands of investment trusts were formed in this country, representing hundreds of millions of capital. The buying of stocks in the open market by these investment trusts was a contributing cause in the great bull market of 1928.

"The investment trusts, which have the power to trade at will in the market, have been selling out at the top of the market at handsome profits and lending their money at call. The declines of the past week have brought stocks down to a point where the investment trusts consider certain stocks attractive. They called loans yesterday to finance purchases of stocks at what they considered bargain prices.

"The investment trust situation is new to the United States and still is an unknown quantity in the financial affairs of the country. Several times in recent months economists have pointed out that investment trusts were building up a terrific financial power which would be able to swing stock markets. It is generally believed that yesterday's experience was the first taste of just how much power the investment trusts have."

FURTHER TESTIMONY IN THE INMAN DIVORCE CASE

RENO, Nev., March 27—(AP)—Additional names were added today to the list of men with whom Mrs. Helene Garnet Patton Inman is alleged to have associated before her separation in 1927 from her husband, Walker P. Inman, wealthy easterner, who is suing for divorce.

Mrs. Margaret Schmidt, a cook, testified regarding visits of a "Bill Hardy and Robert Yap" to Mrs. Inman's apartment in New York. She said Hardy arrived once while Mrs. Inman was ill, remained with the patient for a considerable time, "got drunk" and then went to sleep on a couch in the guest room.

Both Hardy and Yap were permitted considerable liberties about the apartment, the cook said.

Counsel for Inman, who previously had introduced testimony in an effort to show that Mrs. Inman had been intimate with John Steele, vaudeville singer, said the cook was placed on the stand to corroborate the charge that Mrs. Inman had made her apartment a gathering place for convivial drinkers.

Emanuel B. Cohen, New York attorney, was dismissed as a witness after he had undergone cross-examination concerning the circumstances surrounding a separation agreement entered into between Inman and his wife in 1927. Attorneys for Mrs. Inman, who asks that agreement be set aside and that she now be given a property settlement of $250,000, sought to show that the agreement had been forced upon their client after a raid had been staged on her apartment.

AGREEMENT TO SLACK UP IN PRODUCTION OF OIL

NEW YORK, March 27—(AP)—Oil Kings of the world meeting here today, agreed to take up the slack in a market bulging from surplus supply by going back to their production basis of a year ago.

They also received and agreed to carry out a recommendation for appointment of a permanent organization to study with the depart.

They also received and agreed to carry out a recommendation for appointment of a permanent organization to study with the department of commerce and the federal oil conservation board the "serious over-production" existing throughout the world.

Agreeing to these proposals were such men as Sir Henri Deterding, managing director of the Royal Dutch company, one of the largest oil producers in the world; Harry F. Sinclair of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil company; W. C. Teagle of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey; E. G. Seubert of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, and E. B. Reeser of the Barnsdall corporation of Tulsa, Okla. and president of the American Petroleum institute, a trade organization through whose directors the agreement was made.

Almost all of the American and foreign producers of crude oil in the western hemisphere decided to curtail from April 1 so that 1929 production, which thus far exceeds by about 170,000 barrels a day the daily output of last year, would not be greater than 1928 when 897,516,793 barrels were produced for an average daily supply of 2,453,051.

FIVE MILE ICE JAM IN THE MISSOURI RIVER

BISMARCK, N. D., March 27—(AP)—The five mile ice jam in the Missouri river below here, backwaters from which threaten to flood Bismarck, Mandan and extensive sections of rich farm land, cracked up today only to churn itself into another mountainous wedge that choked off the stream's flow.

While army engineers directed a crew of men in placing dynamite on a gigantic scree at Huff, south of here, the ice jam began to move out and for half an hour it appeared that the danger of a serious flood was over.

Then the scree suddenly re-formed and tonight it apparently was as solid as ever while the water was rising at the rate of half a foot an hour.

With a tremendous weight of water behind it, the current today cut a new channel along the east side of its old course and water was diverted around the scree which had blazed the former bed of the river. The fourth of a mile channel to the south channel carried the water away rapidly. In addition, a break occurred in the scree proper and a great volume of water began to pour through the break.

BISHOP MANNING'S TRIBUTE TO BISHOP CHARLES BRENT

NEW YORK, March 27—(AP)—Bishop William T. Manning, of the Episcopal diocese of New York, said tonight that the deat hof Bishop Charles Brent, of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of western New York, will be mourned not only in the Episcopal church but in "many other communions, both here and abroad."

Bishop Brent died last night at Lausanne, Switzerland.

"The news of Bishop Brent's death," Bishop Manning said, "is a shock to his friends and will be felt as a great loss, not only in the Episcopal church, but by many in other communions, both in this country and abroad.

"He was a leader in many important movements and especially in the cause of Christian unity.

"It is very touching that his death occurred at Lausanne where, in 1927, he presided over the World Conference on Faith and Order and where his influence had much to do with bringing to pass the encouraging results of that historic gathering."

GEORGE M'MANUS WAS RELEASED IN $50,000 BAIL

NEW YORK, March 27—(AP)—After four months in Tombs prison George McManus was released in $50,000 bail today, the charge of murdering Arnold Rothstein still standing against him but the prospect of his ever being brought to trial an open question.

Smiling and debonair, McManus strolled from the prison's main entrance with his attorney, paused for a moment to let news cameramen photograph him in his natty spring suit while extra police held back a curious crowd of several hundred, and then stepped into an automobile that whisked him away.

Behind him in the prison he left as surety of his appearance in case it should be decided to try him $50,000 in liberty bonds furnished by Edward McLaughlin, son of a former police inspector.

Rothstein, the "big shot" of New York's gambling fraternity, was fatally shot in a hotel room rented by McManus, himself a professional gambler, last November 4. McManus' overcoat was found in the hastily vacated room and police were informed that Rothstein had been summoned to the place where he was killed by a telephone call from McManus, his reputed friend.

SEAMAN KILLED ON RUM SHIP WAS FRENCH SUBJECT

WASHINGTON, March 27—(AP)—Further international complications in the sinking of the Canadian rum runner I'm Alone by a coast guard patrol boat developed today with the disclosure that the seaman who lost his life was a French subject and the French embassy became active in the case.

First reports of the incident said the seaman was a naturalized British subject, but the French consul at New Orleans telegraphed the French embassy today that his investigations showed that the seaman who was drowned in the melee of the crew of the I'm Alone in leaving the ship was a Frenchman.

The embassy immediately cabled the foreign office in Paris and asked for instructions. No action in the way of a protest or a request to the American government for information will be taken, it was said, until the embassy is so directed by French government. It is believed possible that the foreign office in Paris will await more details from the complete reports of the incident which have been mailed to the embassy by the consul.

Meanwhile the Canadian legation has begun the unravelling of the points at issue which have been raised unofficially during the past few days.

ATTEMPTING NEW SOLO ENDURANCE FLIGH TRECORD

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., March 27—(AP)—Bumping along the air like a farmer in a springless wagon, Martin Jensen looped the Long Island skyways today on the first stretch of an attempt to set a new solo endurance flight record.

The sky was clear and the wind no more than fresh but the air was as rough as a corduroy road in disrepair and Jensen said in a note he dropped that one aerial thank-you-ma'am bounced him right off his seat and bumped his head on a cabin crossbar.

But for all this Jensen reported "things are going fine" and told of a lunch of one sandwich, one orange, a cup of water and some gum.

The present record, established by the late Royal V. Thomas, is 35 hours and 35 minutes. To beat that record, Jensen, who left the ground at 6:01:34 this morning, would have to stay aloft until 6:35 tomorrow afternoon. To set a new official mark, it is necessary to surpass the old one by at least an hour.

Jensen is flying a single-motored monoplane owned by an oil company and is using automobile gasoline.

PRESIDENT HOOVER IS PLANNING FISHING TRIP

WASHINGTON, March 27—(AP)—President Hoover is shaping his plans so that he can make his first visit to the recently selected trout fishing grounds on the Rapidan river in the Virginia mountains of Madison county on Saturday April 6. He will be accompanied by a small party of friends.

This probably will be the last opportunity for an absence from Washington for some time as the new congress will meet April 15 and the chief executive will remain in Washington almost continuously during the early stages of the session.

The probabilities are that he will leave Washington Saturday for the first time since his inauguration. He hopes to be able to take a long automobile ride in the country during most of that day.

TOOK TO THE WOODS TO GET "AWAY FROM RADIO"

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 27—(AP)—Irked because members of his son's family "kept the radio going night and day," Aaron L. Everett, 69, sought the quiet songs of nature beside a rippling stream, he told Judge Clifton R. Cameron in municipal court today.

Police found him last night in the Eagle Creek Bottoms, his home a hollow tree. He was slated on a vagrancy charge and spent the night in the police station.

Today he told the court "a fellow can't get any sleep at all," with a radio kept busy at all hours. Judge Cameron advised Everett to return to his son's home and try for a month to live there.

"Escobar is still dodging us but we are continuing to advance," Ortiz reported.

Rebels were incommunicative as to their plans. General Escobar himself left Juarez yesterday to rejoin his command at Jiminez.

General Calles informed Mexico City by wireless that his repair crews were putting into shape six miles of railway track daily north of Torreon.

Ambassador Morrow and Consul Blocker at Mazatlan both confirmed raising of the siege of the seaport. The government declared that a federal force from Durango, advancing against Culiacan, Sinaloa, threatened retreat of the rebels.

Aid for the rebels in the air was promised with formation of the "Yankee Doodle fliers," by a group of American pilots, who will serve General Escobar. Federal mastery of the air has been a most serious menace to the insurgent campaign.

CONGRESSIONAL ALLOWED FREE ENTRY WITH LIQUOR

NEW YORK, March 27—(AP)—The Evening World said yesterday it was learned from reliable sources that one member of a congressional committee of fifteen arriving from Panama Monday admitted carrying liquor into the port with him and was allowed free entry.

The Panama railroad steamship company's liner Cristobal brought back the congressional party, which had been studying Isthmian affairs. Out of courtesy to them their baggage was under orders to be expedited and was entitled to free entry.

Through some error, however, the name of the congressman was not included on the free entry list and he was asked the usual perfunctory question by a customs inspector whether he had any liquor in his baggage. The congressman confessed he had four bottles.

Later however, the chief inspector on the pier discovered that his name should have been on the free entry list and his baggage was immediately closed and he was allowed to proceed, presumably with his four bottles.

OPERATORS OF HUGE DRUG RING SENTENCED IN DETROIT

DETROIT, March 27—(AP)—A huge drug ring operating in Detroit and New York which is said to have yielded a net profit to its leaders of $1,000 a day over an eight year period, was believed wrecked today with sentencing of four persons in federal court.

Henry Reiter, 34, leader of the group, was sentenced to ten years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, the first year to be spent in solitary confinement. With him were sentenced Edna King, with whom he lived in a luxurious apartment here; Reiter's lieutenant, Moe Raskin, and Raskin's wife, Irene.

Miss King, who tipped federal agents to the activities of the ring because of attentions Reiter paid other women, drew a 3 1-2 year sentence in the prison at Rutland, Vt. Raskin was sentenced to five years in Leavenworth and his wife to six months in the Detroit House of Correction.

Narcotics valued at $25,000 were found in Reiter's apartment when it was raided.

'Prohibition a Curse,' Dry Officer Declares

Slayer of Mrs. De King Makes Statement in Hospital at Aurora, Ills.

AURORA, Illinois, March 27—(AP)—Friends of Joseph De King whose wife was slain by dry raiders after he had been struck with a gun stock and received a fractured skull, demanded an investigation of Kane county prohibition enforcement methods today.

A special grand jury and a special prosecutor would be petitioned, they said, if State's Attorney George D. Carbary did not present the case before a grand jury.

The regular grand jury, although in recess until April 27 could be called together whenever the state's attorney desired, they said.

The coroner's inquest was continued to permit Carbary and his assistants to complete their investigation and to wait until Roy Smith, who fired the shot that killed Mrs. Lillian De King, recovers sufficiently to testify.

In the meantime, fearing violence against Smith, a deputy sheriff Sheriff Leslie Urch posted a guard over Smith's bed in the hospital. He was nursing a broken leg. He was shot by the 12 year old son of Mrs. De King after she had been mortally wounded.

"I wish there was no such thing as prohibition," said Smith. "I'm through with it, and if I ever am ordered out on any such jobs as that one I will resign rather than go.

"Prohibition is a curse to officers of the law, citizens and every one else. You see what it led to in this case. Try to enforce the law and see what happens."

State's Attorney Carbary said he would present the facts of his investigation before the grand jury without comment and if Smith was indicted he would prosecute him.

FIGHT TO REPEAL ILLINOIS DRY ENFORCEMENT LAW

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 27—(AP)—Wets enlisted the Bible and religion in a debate in the Illinois house of representatives today, and won a move in their fight to repeal state prohibition enforcement laws. By a count of 72 to 70 they advanced the Weber-O'Grady bill to a place on the calendar.

For passage they must enlist five more votes. Should they be obtained the dry senate was expected by the drys to block final enactment.

Addressing his remarks to officials of the Anti-Saloon league sitting in the gallery, Representative Roy Green led the fight, charging prohibition was "rotten at its source, founded in fraud, and slipped over while men were fighting for their country."

Representative Charles Weber called attention to the killing of an Aurora woman during a prohibition enforcement raid and to a score of recent poison liquor deaths in Peoria.

"They are going in for bigger and better shootings." He said, "the liquor law is one law under which you're allowed to kill. I don't drink, except a glass of beer occasionally, but I suggest the dry members of this house also abstain from drinking."

Representative Green, speaking for ex-service men declared 360,000 men were disfranchised when prohibition was enacted while they were fighting. "It is our duty," he said, "to fight this change in the constitution, for we had a right to expect the constitution unchanged when we returned.

"The American Legion has not gone on record because we recognize it is a political issue—unlike the political churches who claim it a religious issue. But attend the American Legion conventions if you wish to know how we regard the prohibition laws.

"If the prohibition law was enforced seriously, congress would sit at Atlanta or Leavenworth and the legislature at Chester or Joliet penitentiaries."

"We are now face to face with the fact that the fight against prohibition is a struggle to preserve our constitutional rights and liberties." said Representative Roy Juli of Chicago. "Prohibition repeals the doctrine of free will upon which all religion is founded."

There were numerous verbal clashes between minister members of the house and wet representatives.

HELD FOR TRANSPORTING AND SALE OF LIQUOR

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27—(AP)—Nine civilian employes of the army transport St. Mihiel were arrested today on charges of possessing, transporting and sale of liquor.

THREE OKLAHOMA JUSTICES NOW FACING IMPEACHMENT

Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court Included in the Number—Charges Range From Bribery to Irregular Court Procedure—Prospect is That the Accused Will Go on Trial Before the State Senate Court—Serious Charges Made Against Gov. Long of Louisiana.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 27—(AP)—After a day of voting in the house of representatives, three of the nine justices of the Oklahoma supreme court, including the chief justice, tonight were under impeachment charges with the prospect of trial before the state senate court.

Ten additional charges were voted against Chief Justice Charles W. Mason, who had been impeached on one charge last week. All of 11 charges reported against Justice J. W. Clark were adopted by the house and late today that body was considering remaining charges against Justice Fletcher Riley after having voted three articles. One article against Riley failed of adoption when it received only 33 votes, with 60 opposed. Ten charges were reported against Riley by the house investigation committee.

The charges against the judges had to do with alleged malfeasance in office, ranging from bribery to irregular court procedure. The furore aroused by publication last week of a letter by Senator John Rice of El Reno, charging attempted bribery from the governor's office, became a closed incident today when Rice was reprimanded before the senate by Senator Guy L. Andrews, appointed for the task by his fellow senators. Rice also was shorn of his committee appointments.

In a low voice, Andrews told Rice that he had without justification set forces going against the reputation of the senate and that his act was unpardonable.

"This is the highest price ever paid for any act in my life," Rice said, his face pale, after the reprimand. He repeated his declaration that he had meant to impute no wrong-doing to his colleagues, and again apologized to the senate.

FAVOR IMPEACHMENT TRIAL OF GOV. LONG, LOUISIANA

BATON ROUGE, La., March 27—(AP)—Sitting as a grand jury, the Louisiana house of representatives tomorrow will consider the impeachment charges against Gov. Huey P. Long, accused of 19 offenses, from a plot to commit murder to misdemeanors in office.

The impeachment resolution today was made a special order of business for tomorrow when the house will consider it as a committee of the whole. Managers of the resolution plan to adopt rules governing impeachment proceedings and to hold off any final action by the house until Monday.

Administration floor leaders lost today in an attempt to forestall the impeachment resolution was out of order, since it had not been included in the governor's call for the present special session of the legislature. The house voted 88 to 8 to carry forward the impeachment inquiry. The vote came after Speaker John B. Fournet, formerly regarded as a Long supporter, had ruled the motion was in order.

Before adjournment the house doomed the proposed occupational tax on oil by adopting, 43 to 6, a resolution condemning the tax. This tax was proposed in the governor's major call for the special session, which he has since vainly struggled to adjourn.

Since the impeachment move was started Governor Long has remained in seclusion and has said nothing publicly. He has not appeared on the streets of Baton Rouge and denies himself to callers. To a message from The Associated Press asking a statement, he sent a reply that he had nothing to say.

State police announced that all developments seemed to indicate that the teacher had been kidnaped in retaliation for reporting a delinquent parent of one of her pupils. He said the suspected kidnaper is the father whom Miss Dodson reported for failure to send his son to school.

The message was received at the end of the first day's hearing on the house side of the capitol and renewed a hope on the part of some house members that a detailed administration plan might be laid before the committee.

"DOPEY BENNY" TO BE TRIED ON CHARGE OF BURGLARY

BISHOP C. H. BRENT DIED IN LAUSANNE, SWITZERLAND

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, March 27—(AP)—Death called Bishop Charles Henry Brent, of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of western New York, in the middle of last night, a few hours before he was to have taken the train for an extensive trip through the Near East. Bishop Brent died of an affection of the heart which had long troubled him.

Although he died far from his homeland, Bishop Brent passed away in the presence of one of his dearest friends, his physician, Sir James Barlow, who was accompanying him to Venice, Athens and Constantinople.

Bishop Brent had dined yesterday in the main hall of his hotel and retired after a cordial goodnight to American Consul Baldwin. At 2:30 a. m. his valet, who because of the bishop's bad health was sleeping in the same room, was awakened by Mr. Brent's distress. He immediately summoned Sir James Barlow from the next room.

Restoratives were applied unsuccessfully. The bishop died within an hour.

During his illness at Paris Bishop Brent is understood to have expressed a desire to be buried where he died, but no disposition will be made of the body until word has been received from his sister in Buffalo.

DEATH OF "JOLLY PEARL" STANLEY, CIRCUS "FAT LADY"

DETROIT, Mich., March 27—(AP)—"Jolly Pearl" Stanley died today, victim of a freak of nature which for 15 years had earned her living by making of her a laughing stock of the world.

"Jolly Pearl," 27 years old, weighed 643 pounds and since her 11th birthday anniversary had been a "fat lady" in carnival shows. She was but four feet five inches tall and, according to the guady placard outside the carnival tent within which she died, was nine feet around the waist.

Pearl died of heart disease—the organ wearied by its long fight to support the mountain of flesh which was Pearl, and she died sitting up, for she had been unable in more than eight years to lie down.

Her home was in St. Charles, Ill. She is survived by her husband, whom she met in Tulsa, Okla., ten years ago. He acted as her ballyhoo man and manager.

A. E. SUMNER WAS DESCENDED FROM PIONEER SILK MAKER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 27—Albert Edwin Sumner, whose funeral was held here Tuesday, was a descendant, on his mother's side, of the famous Rodney Hanks, who was the first man in the United States to spin silk by water power. This, and other interesting facts, concerning the life of Mr Sumner are given in an article contributed by a friend of the deceased. Mr. Sumner was born in Eastford, March 10, 1860, a son of Azel C. and Sarah J. Hanks Sumner. His paternal ancestors came from England in 1636 and settled in Dorchester, Mass. He received his education in the public schools of Eastford and at the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs. Mr. Sumner was united in marriage on November 23, 1893 to A. May Royce of Gurleyville. He resided in that village for over 12 years during which time he conducted a general store, also serving as postmaster there from 1895 to 1901. He represented the town of Mansfield in the general assembly for the term 1907 to 1908. He was actively interested in welfare movements in the communities in which he resided. While engaged in the grocery business practically all of his life he was more widely known locally in his recent capacity as manager of the S. K. Ames company store.

Mr. Sumner was a member of Uriel lodge No. 24, A. F. & A. M., of Merrow, a charter member of Crystal Lake and Quinebaug Pomona Granges and a past master of the Mansfield Grange. He was also a member of Radiant chapter No. 11, O. E. S., and of the First Congregational church. His nearest survivors are his wife, Mrs. A. May Royce Sumner; one daughter, Mrs. Elsie G. Goodwin of this city; and two brothers, Frederick A. Sumner, who is president of the Talladega college in Talladega, Ala., and Edwin O. Sumner of this city; as well as several nephews and nieces.

Willimantic people interested in housing the delegates for the Christian Endeavor convention scheduled for next week, are invited to a meeting to be held in the chamber of commerce rooms at 10 o'clock Friday morning. A check-up today showed that 110 delegates were yet to be provided with room for the two nights of the convention and unless accommodations can be arranged for here the committee will send delegates out of town for the night. Consideration is even being given to opening barracks of some type and to provide cot arrangements for the delegates. It is pointed out however, that either of the latter two means of providing sleeping quarters would not be to the best comfort of the delegates nor in keeping with the good name of Willimantic as a hospitable town. Over 400 registrations have already been received from the young people who will attend the convention.

Rev. Edwin E. Sundt, pastor of the Willington Federated churches for the past five years has tendered his resignation to become director of the national rural and village church department of the American Baptist Home Missionary society. In leaving the Willington parish, which was his first, Rev. Mr. Sundt took occasion to express warm appreciation for the splendid cooperation and zeal will shown him during his term of service. Among the several notable projects which he sponsored, with the co-operation of the parishioners, and which attracted the attention of the national church authorities, was the establishment of the first rural church vacation school in New England. Others were the promotion of community socials and clubs for groups of persons having similar interests such as the boys' band, Girls' club and the Young People's society. Rev. Mr. Sundt had spoken on occasions here and has many local friends who learned with joy of his advancement.

The police here are searching for a touring car bearing a New York registry number which struck and injured one of a herd of cows owned by Charles P. Gazer of Windham. The cows were being led along the highway near the Gazer home on the Scotland road when the accident occurred. The driver of the car sped off in the direction of this city but evidently changed his course as Officer Roderick Lariviere who was despatched to intercept the machine failed to locate one answering the description given. Mr. Gazer reported the accident to Captain of Police Frank McLean and sent for a veterinarian to attend to the crippled animal.

Business will generally be suspended here Good Friday afternoon. In accordance with a vote of the retail merchants' division of the chamber of commerce the stores will close at noon. All factories, shops, schools, and the banks will be closed for the entire day. The American Thread company will suspend operations from Thursday night until Monday morning. The Rossie Velvet company will close from Friday noon until Monday and the Holland Silk company will close for the day.

All departments of the post office will operate during the forenoon but will shut down for the afternoon. This applies to the city and rural mail carriers who will make only forenoon trips. Religious services will be conducted at the Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches, the latter to be a union Protestant service.

JEWETT CITY

OLIVER BREAKS WRIST—FALLS FROM DAM ABUTMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 27—Wednesday evening, Arthur Oliver, 11, fell from the north abutment of the Slater dam to the granite rollway, a distance of eight feet. Another boy, named Gulash, climbed down and lifted young Oliver high enough so that men were able to reach down and draw him up. The boys were engaged in throwing stones into the water when Oliver lost his balance. The fact that little water was running over at the time saved him from being carried off the dam to the stone apron, 20 feet below. Men carried him to the office of Dr. J. H. McLaughlin, where, besides several cuts and minor bruises, it was found that his wrist was broken. He was taken later to his home on Slater avenue.

LOCAL RED CROSS CHAPTER READY FOR DISASTER RELIEF

Jewett City chapter of the Red Cross has a newly appointed disaster relief committee of which Mrs. W. A. Richardson is chairman. The other members are Miss Alice Brennan, R. N., Rosanna DesJardines, telephone operator, Warden Edmond Jodoin, Prentice W. Chase, accredited Red Cross life saver, Walter Field, foreman of the Hose company and Adam Rojeske, a garage owner. The chapter is providing a stretcher, blanket and first aid kit, to be kept at the hose house.

Positive Caller Was Kamm.

Announcement was made in the Jewett City news Saturday last that Lieut. Robert Kamm paid a visit by air to this borough Friday, circled the business center three times waving to people whom he saw, only a couple of hundred feet below him in the streets. Last summer, also during the late summer of 1927, always a little while in advance of his accustomed commercial visits, this master aviator has circled the town at low altitude.

Last Friday, along toward noon this town had a wild spell, people ran and shouted, waved and cheered, for friend Bob was here again. It was no long distance stuff. A man standing on the Elan theatre that morning could have handed the operator of the big monoplane the keys of the town, if he had reached up a pole of sufficient length. Half the town caught his friendly signals and answered them with a hearty good will. Now Providence papers claim that Lieut. Kamm has been on a long trip to Oklahoma. Jewett City hardly can think so, if their Friday visitor from the clouds wasn't Bob, who was it?

The Quinebaug river is approaching its normal spring stage, following a less than two foot raise last week. A man living within sight of the river declares that during the winter just passed, there has been as little high water as he can remember in long years of familiarity with the stream.

Wednesday morning, a local fisherman, while coming over Broad Brook bridge, caught sight of a 5-pound trout, in the first shallows below where once on a time there was a place provided, so that a horse could be driven in for a drink, then on across the brook. The man recalled how he used to edge out on the thill to unloosen the check-rein that the horse might put his head down to drink, as the water ran by, knee-deep.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS ATTACKED BY RETRENCHMENT COM.

Supt. F. H. P. Clement, of the public schools of Griswold, received on Thursday a letter from V. W. Lamkin, president of the National Education association, dated at Washington, D. C., March 21.

A copy of this letter is being received by every school superintendent in the United States. In the letter the writer requests Supt. Clement to ask for local newspaper and public cooperation in the proper consideration of an attack on the public school systems by James F. Walsh, president of the Association for Retrenchment of Public Expenditures, of Cleveland, O. Among other requests for local publicity is the belief that every resident of Jewett City should conscientiously contrast Mr. Walsh's dark picture and estimate, with Herbert Hoover's faith in the public schools of the nation, as shown in his public addresses. Outstanding among the statements of Mr. Walsh, appears the following:

In the last ten years the school system has become a sink-hole for public moneys and the school houses of the land have been converted into mere playhouses, where the children are amused and entertained and permitted to do as they please, with no thought of intellectual discipline. Restoring sanity to the school system ought to be the first duty of the legislature.

The following is a single item from Mr. Hoover's address, for which local publicity is asked:

Speaking before the department of superintendence of the National Education association in Washington, D. C., Feb. 25, 1926, Mr. Hoover declared: "If we were to suppress our educational system for a single generation the equipment would decay, most of our people would die of starvation; intellectually and spiritually we would slip back four thousand years in human progress. We could recover the loss of any other business in a few years—but not this one."

A copy of a letter by Commissioner Meredith of the Conn. State Board of Education which came to Supt. Clement follows:

February 18, 1929

Doctor J. W. Crabtree, Secretary
National Education Association
1201 Sixteenth Street, N. W
Washington, D. C.

Dear Doctor Crabtree:

There has come to my attention a letter signed by one James F. Walsh, 1019 Williamson Building, Cleveland, Ohio, which is addressed to each member of the general assembly of the state of Connecticut. With this letter is Bulletin No. 11 entitled "Supplement to Sanctified Squander". The material is issued by the Association for Retrenchment in Public Expenditures.

I would be interested in what information you can give me concerning the interests which are behind this movement and who the people are who are involved in it.

Sincerely yours
A. B. MEREDITH,
Commissioner of Education.

Miss Ellen Prior, of Brown University is at home for a week.

In two weeks' time my skin was as clear and smooth as ever."

Old Gold wins at Princeton in a test of the 4 leading cigarettes

Five upper-classmen comparing the leading cigarette brands in the rooms of the Princeton Inn.

THE DAILY PRINCETONIAN

"The Daily Princetonian" was asked by the P. Lorillard Company, makers of OLD GOLD cigarettes, to conduct a test at Princeton to determine which of the four widest-selling cigarettes had the greatest taste appeal.

For the purposes of the test the four leading cigarettes were "masked" to conceal the brand names. Undergraduates were asked to smoke the four brands without knowing their identity. The cigarettes were numbered, and the men merely chose, by number, the one that appealed to them most.

The test was made at eleven Princeton upper-class clubs and at the Freshman Commons on January 11th to 16th. In all, 303 students smoked and compared the four cigarettes. The test was conducted in a perfectly fair and impartial manner.

The results show that "Cigarette W" won 75 first choices; "Cigarette X" won 74; "Cigarette Y" won 36; and "Cigarette Z" (which was OLD GOLD) won 118. The preference for OLD GOLD was 57% greater than that for the next highest brand.

DANIELSON

VAULT OF OLD WINDHAM CO. BANK BEING DEMOLISHED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 27—An illustration of how the science of manufacturing bank vaults has advanced in the past half century is now to be seen here as workmen proceed with the work of demolishing the ancient vault in the old Windham County Savings bank building, purchased this week by George A. LeClair, and now in course of being demolished for necessary modernization of the lower store of the building. The old vault would rate little better than a joke compared to the very modern vaults in Danielson's banks of today.

The steel interior of this aged vault, it has been revealed as the work of tearing it apart proceeds, was built of brick, to the thickness of four feet, and with a very generous use of mortar. Fragile as it may be regarded today, despite being so ponderous, it is proving to be some task to tear it apart. The contractor taking it down said at noon today that he was contemplating drilling holes into the massive brick walls, inserting light charges of dynamite and setting them off to loosen up the material and hurrying along the work of getting it out. No one could be found today able to say definitely how long a time has elapsed since the old vault was built, but there is evidence enough to establish that it was considerably more than half a century ago. The vault has held no bank valuables since 1915, when the Windham County Savings bank was taken over by the Brooklyn Savings bank. Since that time the old bank quarters have been used for commercial purposes. The vault is of a make still famous, in fact, manufactured by the same firm that installed the vault in the new Brooklyn Savings building. But what a difference! The steel interior of the vault is to be cut apart with acetelyne torches, and the work will be completed within a few days.

Robert Princeton and Miss Alice Olsson were the leaders at this morning's Holy week services at the Baptist church, these services sponsored by the Tri-Y girls and the Hi-Y boys. The address was by Rev. A. E. Gallup of the Nazarene church. Music was by Miss Florence Ellison, pianist, and Mrs. John W. Gallup, organist. A selection was sung by the Tri-Y girls. Thursday morning Rev. J. Rees Jones of St. Alban's church will be the speaker and the leaders will be Francis Hammett and Miss Henrietta Thompson.

It was announced today that because of the inspiration gained from the services during the course of the present week that the Tri-Y club under the leadership of Miss Marjorie I. Gaffney is making plans for a sunrise service at 6:30 Easter Sunday morning. Vested girls' choirs of both the Westfield Congregational and Methodist Episcopal churches will be present and assist at this service, which will be in charge of the young people. The speaker, yet to be announced, will have a message for the young people, and everyone interested is invited to attend the service.

Good Friday morning the young people's service at the Baptist church is to be held at 10:30, instead of at the earlier hour on other mornings of the week, because the high school will not be in session on that day. Rev. Harding W. Gaylord is to be the speaker, and his subject is to be Deserters.

Supt. W. E. Parker of the schools in Killingly and Brooklyn last evening gave a talk before the Hi-Y club at the Westfield Congregational church. Mr. Parker's talk had to do with his recent visit to Cleveland to attend the meeting of the National Education association. He emphasized the greatness of the whole affair. He spoke especially of the auditorium where the meetings were held and the band of 300 pieces that played during the sessions, and of the chorus of 5,000 Junior high school boys and girls who sang at the Sunday vesper service.

In addition to attending the educational convention Supt. Parker made a tour through the General Electric illumination department. His description of the courteous manner in which he was conducted through the plant, plus his own enthusiasm relative to the various types of direct, indirect and semi-direct illumination was not only interesting but instructive. He brought out in his talk on the subject the great future there is in illumination engineering. Following Supt. Parker's talk three members were initiated in the Hi-Y club, and then games were enjoyed by members of the Hi-Y and Tri-Y clubs.

Something amounting to consternation is assailing delinquent taxpayers of the town of Killingly. Agitation that has gone on for weeks on the subject of overdue tax accounts for the situation, in addition to the vote passed at the special town meeting last Monday evening instructing the selectmen of the town to make every effort within the next 60 days to use such means as may be necessary to get the money due the town and relieve at least in some degree the burden, resting upon those who do pay their taxes promptly. There is no denying that the feeling of resentment of prompt taxpayers is riding high just now, especially in view of the fact that an increased tax rate has been voted, over the fact that some tax assessments have not been collected. It has previously been pointed out in this column that the tax collector has exhausted every effort to get overdue taxes from a number of delinquents through ordinary methods and has turned these accounts in to the town counsel for collection. It now appears that legal action will be necessary to extract the money due the town from numbers of people who are listed in the overdue tax list. This method is now being openly advocated, and from this fact arises the consternation among those who likely will be forced to pay.

The fact that Killingly has such a high tax rate just now is not doing it any good in its efforts to obtain new industries. Tax rates is one thing that manufacturing concerns are particularly interested in, not only manufacturers who might locate here, but others already domiciled in the town.

The developments of the next 60 days will be watched with interest. A drive is on to get the tax rate down, and there is no denying that there is plenty of energy and plenty of citizens in back of the effort. An unpleasant subject, but a matter of news.

Elections of the Friendly Indian club are scheduled for the coming week. Following the elections time will be spent in studying the Friendly Indian ritual work, which is a large part of the program. At the next meeting a series of pictures will be shown dealing with the World war. The pictures have been secured by Secretary L. Edwin Hill of the Windham County Y. M. C. A. through the courtesy of the state board of education.

State Officer Cyrus Chamberlin, who has been attached to the Hartford barracks has been transferred to Danielson, arriving here today to replace State Officer Emil Castagna, transferred today to the state police barracks at Stafford Springs.

Mrs. Harry Whidden of Dayville will entertain members of the Roundabout club at her home in Dayville Thursday afternoon.

Miss Emily Mann, violinist, and Miss Edith Fuller, pianist, gave the special musical program this evening at the Holy week services under the auspices of the Danielson Federation of Churches at the Westfield Congregational church. Rev. Albert Abbott of the Methodist Episcopal church was the preacher.

Basketball, last game of season, town hall, Sat. eve. Danielson vs. Millville.—Adv.

Good Friday will not be observed as a holiday in Danielson, business going on as usual, though the day in numbers of places in the states rates a holiday.

A meeting of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Westfield Congregational church was held in the church parlor today.

No definite date has been set as yet for beginning work on the state-aid highway leading out of Brooklyn northward via the old Putnam farm into Pomfret, but it is to be started during the spring season, it was said here today.

There is no special Easter vacation for pupils in Killingly's schools, as they had a week's vacation a short time ago following an eight weeks' period of study.

Hot cross buns are being featured by firms dealing in such lines in Danielson this week.

Holy Thursday priests of parishes in eastern Connecticut will be in Hartford to procure the holy oils used during the year, this being a yearly pilgrimage on the part of the pastors.

An arrangement to be adopted by the town has to do with abolishing the practice of paying small bills in cash, and taking a receipt in favor of issuing town orders for any amount, no matter how small. In the past some small bills have been paid in cash as a matter of convenience to the persons receiving the money.

Further flights of wild geese northward were reported today. And as a matter of timely interest there is the news that bluebirds have made their appearance in Danielson.

Special musical programs will be a feature of the Eastern Sunday services at various churches in Danielson. Final rehearsals are being held by choirs during the closing days of this week.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 27—Lionel H. Charron of South Main street was named exalted ruler of the Putnam lodge of Elks, No. 874, to succeed Keyron H. Cotter, exalted ruler, who retired from office last evening. Mr. Charron is widely known in this city where he has spent most of his life and is well fitted to assume the directorship of the largest fraternal organization in the city. Other officers who were elected are as follows: Esteemed Leading Knight, Fred M. Bedard of Danielson; esteemed loyal knight, Sidney P. Marland of Danielson; esteemed lecturing knight, Henry N. Benoit; tyler, William Wheatley; secretary, George Lewis, Jr.; treasurer, Lucius P. Merriam; trustee, Keyron H. Cotter; delegate to the grand lodge convention, A. H. Cotter; chaplain, Irver S. Nelson.

Memorial services were held at this meeting for Desire Jerry Labby, who died last week. The name of the deceased brother was affixed to the beautiful metal memorial tablet upon which are inscribed the names of all departed Elks of the lodge.

A social session and buffet lunch followed the meeting, the lunch being served by the members of the grill committee.

Schools throughout the city will close today for the beginning of the annual Easter recess and will reopen again for the spring and summer semester on April 8.

State Officer Emil Castagna of Danielson barracks was in Putnam a few minutes this morning, bidding farewell to his many friends and acquaintances in this section. Officer Castagna left today for his new post in Stafford Springs where he will join the personnel of the state police barracks in that town.

John Reardon, agent of the Grosvenordale Textile company in North Grosvenordale, was the speaker at the luncheon and meeting of the Putnam Rotary club held today at the Putnam Inn. Mr. Reardon introduced a novelty in speaking when he took the floor, talking on the subject "Vocational Services, Compared with My Own Business." Mr. Reardon talked for exactly three minutes, and then drawing from his pocket a pack of cards, with the name of each member of the club on a card, called on them to render their version of his subject, each speaking for the limited time of three minutes. The programme as arranged by Mr. Reardon was unique and extremely interesting. Visitors at today's meeting were Rotarians Berdette Hopkins, Clifford Starkweather, and Thomas Holt, all members of the Danielson Rotary club.

It was announced at the executive session of the club this afternoon that the board of directors had chosen Cashier Arthur E. Smith of the Citizens National bank to represent the Rotary club at the annual convention of International Rotary to be held in Dallas, Texas, in May.

The local police, early this morning, returned a patient to the Day Kimball hospital, who had made his escape late last evening. The man whose name is being withheld at the request of the police, left the hospital in bedroom attire and wandered down onto Quinebaug avenue, a short distance from the hospital, where he was taken in by a resident.

Funeral services were held today at St. Joseph's church in North Grosvenordale for Mrs. Delphis Chausee of North Grosvenordale, who died Monday. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. John C. Mathieu, pastor of the church. Rev. Leo Lavalle assisted as deacon, and Rev. Father Desjardin acted as sub-deacon. The Gregorian chant was rendered by the members of St. Joseph's church choir. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery in North Grosvenordale.

Mrs. Ellen S. Edson, a life-long resident of this city, died Monday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. Olive Thatcher, on Walnut street, following a prolonged illness. Mrs. Edson was born in Putnam and has passed the greater part of her life in this city.

A death in West Woodstock Monday was that of Mrs. Frank Harris, widow of Frank Harris, who died a few months ago. Mrs. Harris was in her 86th year. She had been in good health until a few weeks ago, when she became ill with pneumonia. Mrs. Harris was widely known in her native town and in Putnam, where she was active in church and social circles. She was born in Clayville, R. I., spending her early years in the town of her birth. After her marriage she moved, with her husband, to North Woodstock, residing there until her death. She is survived by four children, Mrs. William O. Smith of East Brimfield, Mass., Mrs. Edward S. Morse of Newton Center, Wayland F. Harris of Woodstock and Leslie E. Harris of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Mrs. Ella Brown, 78, of King street, died late Monday evening at her home in this city. Mrs. Brown has been confined to her bed with an illness which developed about a week ago. She was born in Pascoag, R. I., in 1851, but has resided in this city for many years. Mrs. Brown was married twice, her second husband, Charles E. Brown, died about six years ago.

The annual meeting of the members of the Northeastern Fish and Game club will be held in this city on Thursday evening. The gathering of sportsmen from all parts of the county will be held in Odd Fellows' hall on Pomfret street. A supper will be served, followed by the election of officers. During the evening plans for the season, which will open with the lifting of the trout law on April 15, will be made.

G. Stanley Shaw, commander of the Anslem Mayotee post of the American Legion, recruiting agent in this city for the Citizens' Military Training camps, said this afternoon that the state quota this year has been limited to about 30,000 student soldiers, which means that the allotment from Putnam will be between six and seven boys, Commander Shaw has urged that the youths, between the ages of 17 and 24, who are planning on enrolling for the 30-day training period in the service of the government should make application at once. All applications must be filed with the army officials before April 15, Mr. Shaw said today.

COLCHESTER

NATIVE ZULU WOMAN AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

There was a large attendance at the public meeting in the Congregational chapel, Tuesday evening when Miss Violet Makanya, native Zulu woman and a graduate of the American board school at Natal, South Africa delivered a very interesting address. The program was opened with recitations by members of the local Golden Rule Missionary society under the supervision of Mrs. H. H. Tompkins. There were violin solos by W. G. Gerhardt with Mrs. W. O. Seyms accompanist. Miss Makanya stated that she was glad of the opportunity to visit Colchester which had sent Rev. Charles R. Ransom forth to the missionary field in her native Africa many years ago. She said that Rev. Mr. Ransom was stationed only a few miles north of her home town in Africa. She also paid tribute to Rev. Arthur C. Adams of Norwich who has been engaged in missionary work among her people.

"It is interesting for me to go about the country and find out how the American people feel about my country and its people," said Miss Makanya. She gave some informing sidelights regarding the customs and habits of her native land and vividly portrayed the wonderful missionary work being carried on there. There has been a great deal done by the missionary organizations but there is still much to be accomplished. She referred gratefully to the many kindnesses which have been extended her during her lecture tour of the United States.

MR. STIMSON AS SECRETARY.

A new secretary of state steps into office today when Henry L. Stimson is to be sworn into office and takes the place at the head of the department of state which has been admirably filled of late by Secretary Kellogg.

There is hardly a time when the department of state hasn't plenty of business before it and just now it is no exception to the rule. Next month we are to participate in the conference at Geneva for arms limitation. There our attitude will unquestionably be much the same as it has been in the past. We have shown on different occasions what our policy is and the steps we are willing to take to see it accomplished.

On the boards at the present time is the matter of the pursuit and sinking of the I'm Alone. There is the revolution in Mexico but that shows no likelihood of involving this country. We have taken a stand in support of constitutional government there and for the prevention of the sale of arms to the rebels and yet an American aviator in the pay of the federals has been given his release after being captured by the rebels.

Another European matter, which is particularly interesting, though the government has no official representatives there, is the reparations conference. It involves us indirectly but it does everything that creates uncertainty in Europe.

Within a short time it is probable that action will be taken in regard to certain diplomatic changes. Speculation has been rife as to what these would be. Whether the predictions will come anywhere near to the mark will not be kept in the dark much longer. Mr. Stimson will have an interesting report to make in regard to conditions in the Philippines and possibly some suggestions in regard to legislation affecting the islands. Furthermore his advice may go a long way in determining the next governor general in the Philippines.

Regardless of what matters may be before the department at this time there is no question but what Mr. Stimson is well qualified to meet them. He has been put to the test on numerous occasions and he has measured up to requirements. That he will do so in his new post is certain.

THE PROPER THING.

California is doing only what the situation requires when it brings before its legislature a bill which, if enacted, will give President Hoover as well as congressional and civil service officials the privileges of absentee voting.

We haven't been in the habit of having presidents from the Pacific coast, who would be obliged to spend more than a week in travel in order to cast his ballot and it is important as an example that the president should use his franchise. Presidents have not always gone to the polls and voted. Some have voted by mail on occasions and others have hastened home, voted and returned to Washington because they resided within what might be regarded as a reasonable distance of the national capital. But for the busy chief executive it means the giving up of much valuable time if he runs home for every election especially if in doing so he must cross the entire country twice.

The absentee voting privilege is enjoyed by residents of many states. It is unfortunate that it does not prevail generally. If it is a good thing for residents of certain states it should be for all of them. There are many who are in the same position that a president is when election day rolls around. They do not want to lose their vote, but they cannot get back home or cannot afford to make the special trip for that reason. Through the absentee voting law their right to vote is preserved and they are carefully protected in regard to casting it and having it counted.

California does the proper thing in moving to offer this privilege and it is to be hoped that the time will come, whether or not a Connecticut man is ever president, that the right of absentee voting will be extended to the citizens of this state.

STOPPING NEEDLESS NOISE.

If there is a city which hasn't at some time or other expressed annoyance over noises which were regarded as needless, we'd like to see it. There were the days when the horse-drawn vehicles caused a clatter, rattle and bang as they rumbled over the cobble stones, but through the elimination of that means of transportation for the most part the complaints have disappeared. The rubber-tired vehicles make plenty of noise of a different character, but the milkman is today using the auto and to reduce the noise for which he is responsible glass milk bottles are being replaced in some places by paper ones.

But there is still enough noise in the cities and because of it there was a conference between the citizens and the mayor of Milwaukee, in which the condition was reviewed, and as the result of the complaint, the mayor decided to see what he could do about it. There was a desire to suppress some and to eliminate others. There was objection to the horns of the autos, to the noisy trolleys and the clanging street car bells, to the milkman's noisy appearance, to the blowing of factory whistles and we doubt not that there was annoyance from the rattlety bang of the trucks as they bumped and pounded along.

In tackling the problem the mayor came to the conclusion that if anything was to be accomplished the best results could be expected through cooperation. He set about his task with that in mind and he got the motorists to agree to stop the needless blowing of horns, to get the attention of their friends by other means. He got the trolley lines to remove the flat wheels and others agreed to do what they could to meet the situation.

Milwaukee isn't going to be a noiseless city but there is improvement over old conditions. There can be slight objection to factory whistles, that important sign of industrial activity, except it be as to the character, but through cooperation there has been evidenced a willingness to make less noise instead of trying to see how much can be made. To many the amount of noise that is made has no effect, but to a large number it is highly objectionable and inasmuch as much of it is unnecessary Milwaukee is able to show that through cooperation the muffler can be applied.

PENALIZING OLD CRIMINALS.

Because it was intended to deal with a situation which concerns many states much attention has been given to the operation of the Baumes law in New York state and as the result Pennsylvania is seeking the benefits of such a law.

Dealing with confirmed criminals presents a problem in all states and as a protection to the public in keeping with what it has a right to expect, New York made it obligatory on the part of judges, to sentence those convicted of a fourth felony to life imprisonment. It is a law with real teeth even though some judges have endeavored to disregard it.

The working of the law impressed the people of Michigan, with the result that a similar law was enacted there. Owing to the fact that violators of the dry law were regarded as committing a felony there developed a situation where such persons were receiving life sentences for offenses which it quickly realized were not intended to be covered by the law. The result is that Michigan has taken action for the modification of the law in this respect. For the purposes as really intended the law is still effective.

In Pennsylvania by an overwhelming vote the senate has passed a law similar to the Baumes law. What the house will do is uncertain, but it will experience little opposition there if the senate's action can be taken as evidence of state sentiment. Pennsylvania, however, has extracted some of the teeth by leaving it to the discretion of judges as to whether life imprisonment should be imposed.

That means, if the law is adopted, that it will depend upon the judge what the penalty will be. For exactly the same series of crimes, one judge might think that the public should be protected and the full penalty applied while another judge would show leniency and the criminal get his freedom in a few years to again prey upon the public. It is a law which leaves much to the judges and because such conditions existed in the past the Baumes law of New York resulted. The discretion that was displayed did not meet the situation as it was believed it should be. Possibly the experience in Pennsylvania, if it gets the law, will be different.

THE BRITISH ELECTION.

All British elections arouse interest for one cause or another. But in the general election which will take place in a few weeks there is keen concern over the outcome because of conditions which prevail in England and because of the possible effect upon them by the result.

For some time England has been facing unemployment and industrial depression. The present government hasn't exactly ignored the situation, but it hasn't contributed what is regarded as adequate relief, and in addition there are foreign problems which haven't been handled in what can be regarded as a satisfactory manner. Thus the Baldwin government is under attack from all sides and the question arises as to which of the parties has the best chance. With the attack upon the conservatives there are big odds to overcome. The labor party, standing second in strength in parliament, is hopeful of the outcome. It is playing for control, but it is not possible to entirely sidetrack the liberals. They have been weak for several years, but in the present situation are looking for a strong comeback. In view of the conservative control at present, it is possible that that party cannot be turned out, and yet there is the possibility that no party will get a majority and a coalition government will be necessary.

Under those circumstances there will be keen rivalry between MacDonald and Lloyd George, both of whom have held the premiership, and have by no means been eliminated from the list of possibilities in a reorganization under the proper circumstances. The next few weeks promise a heated campaign across the water.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The real dangerous part of being a rebel chieftain in Mexico lies in getting caught.

The man on the corner says: Has the training camp news permitted you to pick the 1929 pennant winners?

With an estimated increase of from $7,500,000 to $5,000,000 in income taxes over the same quarter last year, it is proof that some one has been making money.

SALESLADIES

People who went into the toy section of the great store used to find that if they fell into the hands of Ella Martin they bought something. Even your shopper, horrendous being that she is, bought, willynilly, from Mrs. Martin, who showed you with such quiet skill, who looked at you with such trusting eyes, who said so little and conveyed so much.

Yes, people bought toys, particularly toys for very little children, from Mrs. Martin and her sales slips were the admiration of the office and the despair of the rest of the sales force.

Not that salesmanship had always been a fine art with Ella Martin. She would never have shone, perhaps, if it had not been for a wise young sales supervisor, soul analyst, who saw that potato ricers and pot lifters left a gap between Ella Martin's life as it was and as it should be.

Deft questioning had preceded Ella's transfer to toys, and, the transfer accomplished, Ella prospered. She became more talkative than she had been. She admitted a husband to whom she was devotedly attached, and who, if any one cared to know, hammered out his living in the college department. She admitted a cozy apartment on the south side. She admitted a relation-in-law with six small children, no husband, and a poorly paid job. And she admitted a grandfather.

The grandfather had died before she was born and he had died possessed of money. How much? Ella did not know. The money had been in litigation for a generation. But one of these days the estate would be settled, said Ella, and then let folks watch out!

It was known that Ella and her husband had been married for fifteen years. It was known that Ella had tried and tried in vain to take for her own one of the many children of that so bitterly poor relation-in-law. But the poor soul simply could not part with one. Ella sewed for those children evenings and Sundays. Gave them expensive toys. She took them to the park and the zoo. But those little pecks and snifts at childhood did not assuage her hungry heart.

"What're you going to do with your fortune when you get it, Mrs. Martin?" members of the sales force asked jokingly.

"I bet she'll go to Europe," said one.

"She'll buy her a limousine," volunteered another.

"I'd eat two great big rare roast beef sandwiches and pie a la mode every day of my life, and potatoes and peas and a whole bottle of milk, and hang the expense!" cried a too-thin stock girl. "That's what I'd do."

"If it's as much as $500," said Ella Martin, thoughtfully, "I'm going to ——" Her voice fell away. Into her bright eyes came that wistful light; her soft, pretty mouth, with just a suspicion of a wrinkle at the corner, for Ella was getting on toward 40, trembled ever so slightly. Her hand, resting on the counter, stroked a foolish wooly animal.

And then one day the toy department wondered where Ella Martin was. Down in the sub-cellar perhaps some one wondered where Ella's husband was, too. Presently a whisper floated out of the main office. And soon everybody knew that Ella Martin had become, in the twinkling of an eye, a millionaire.

Now—what would she do?

Ella Martin came back to the store, to the toy department, to get her things. Ella, in her same little cheap frock and hat. Ella, with her same little quiet manner. But Ella, how changed! Her pensive look all gone. Her eyes were beaming with happy smiles.

"I'm going right now," bubbled Ella, "to an appointment about my children, and then to an agent about our home in the country. We're going to have four little bits of children. When they are in high school we're going to get us two more, and when those are in high school, two more.

"And we both hope, Jim and I, that we'll live long enough to have grandchildren, and great-grandchildren, for we're sure we can make them happy. Oh, I hope," said Ella Martin, "I do hope that my poor old grandfather knows how joyful he has made me, for, of course, he has given me all my children. He has given me my life!"—Exchange.

Holy Week Topic
"MY MASTER AND BROTHER"
Memory Verse for Wednesday

"This do in remembrance of me" (Luke 22:19). (Read: Luke 22:1 to 20.)

MEDITATION: The scene in the Upper Room is the despair of art and very properly Leonardo's great painting is fading on the wall at Milan. The theologian and even the poet fail to express what The Last Summer means to me. When words fail me I resort to gestures which are more expressive than language. So a simple ceremony with the words of institution speak to me in some primitive speech of the heart and I enter the mystery and the glory of life as it is bid with Christ in God. Here I remember and I hope; and all the bitterness of sin and sorrow is dissolved in comfort. Love fills the world.

PRAYER: Heavenly Father who dost make me to sit down at Thy table, break to me the bread of life that I hunger not; refresh me with the mystical wine of life of which if a man drink, he shall never thirst. Through Jesus Christ my Lord. Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

Sick Headache Preventable Premonitory Signs Recognizable

(By Walter L. Migely, M. D., Naperville, Ill)

The sick headache, a common condition, is usually accompanied by nausea and vomiting. Women, especially, are subject to it. The duration is not always the same. It may persist for a period of a few hours, or for one to three days. It may occur with varying grades of severity. It usually incapacitates one during the attack, mainly on account of its being so intensely uncomfortable. People who are subject to it frequently possess a certain type of nervous makeup, and when they undergo an emotional or mental strain or excessive bodily fatigue, very readily and unfortunately they experience the sick headache.

The preventive treatment includes moderation in work, in exercise, in eating—especially of meat, and in the use of stimulants such as coffee and tea—and the avoidance of tension, worry, overwork and hurry.

The bowels should be cared for so to prevent constipation.

The premonitory signs of warnings of the sick headache should be recognized as early as possible so as to allow sufficient time to avert the onset of the attack. This constitutes the most important part in prevention. These warnings can easily be detected. Usually they precede the headache by several hours. On noticing irritability, a feeling of depression, a heavy uremic breath, a marked tired feeling without there having been sufficient activity to cause it, get busy with the following:

Take plenty of water, a glass every half hour for four or five hours.

Take a thorough enema at once.

Take a reasonably hot bath for fifteen minutes and repeat in four hours.

Take only liquid diet.

Alkalinize by taking one-half teaspoonful of baking soda in one-half glass of cold water every two hours. Eat only alkaline foods, i. e., fruits and vegetables, and drink a glass of orange juice every three hours.

Then rest in bed until feeling normal.

Stories That Recall Others

His Future.

Five year old Johnny's only uncle, much admired and looked up to, is a confirmed bachelor, and Johnny thinks that what he does is just right. The other evening the little boy was invited to dinner at the neighbors who have a little girl about his age. The father was in a mood for pleasantries and began praising his daughter's accomplishments in a smiling way.

"Majorie's learning to be a pretty good little cook," he asserted. "She'll make a fine wife for some boy some day!"

At that Johnny sat up straight. "Not me!" he announced. "I'm going to be a uncle!"

Mother's Little Helper.

Little Patsy, age four, who was visiting some friends in the country, with her parents begged to take a chicken home.

Because of her horror of picking a chicken, the mother opposed the plan of buying a live chicken. Patsy, understanding the reason for her mother's protest, exclaimed, "Oh, mother, I'll peel it for you."

IN THE DAYS NEWS

Tashkent.

"When Tashkent recently shook for several hours during a Central Asian earthquake, native merchants continued to drive bargains in the bazaars, and the loungers in the tea rooms had something new to talk about,' says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The traveler is reminded of Tashkent's frequent tremors when he enters the city. Few houses are more than one story high so that earthquake damage is reduced to a minimum.

"Using modern real estate terms, Tashkent might be called a duplex, or semi-detached, city," continues the bulletin. "The old city—no one seems to know how old—still stands in its dust while the adjoining Russian town, built since the Russians occupied Tashkent in 1866, presents a modern aspect.

"The traveler who makes a long, dusty journey from Moscow to Central Asia finds comfortable accommodations in the Russian quarter. Wide streets are lined with elms and poplars, and clear streams flow through them. Many of the houses are surrounded by grassy lawns and the parks adorned with beds of blooming flowers. The population of this quarter is largely European, the show windows display European clothing, and the theaters, schools and public buildings seem too modern for a Central Asian city.

"But a short tram ride from the Russian quarter affords the 'atmosphere' of Tashkent. The traveler literally rides out of the modern into the ancient; from a portion of the western world to a portion of the eastern.

"Many of the old residential streets are as brown and dreary as they were centuries ago. Brown dust covers the ground, two brown, dry mud walls rise high on each side, and brown dust fills the air. The walls form the backs of Tashkent houses and surround large courts. The street sides of the houses are blank, except for doorways at frequent intervals.

"Now and then the upper limbs of a lofty poplar rising above the inner side of the wall give color to the drab scenery. If the traveler is fortunate he may view a flowering garden through an open gate, or he may glimpse a few poppies peeping over the corner of a housetop. The poppies grow wild on the clay roofs of Tashkent.

"The bulk of Tashkents 320,000 inhabitants are Sarts, a sturdy, tanned people famed for their love of bargaining. In the business streets and bazaars the native merchants, presiding oved open-front shops, fill the air with sales talk while their hands and arms assist, so far as milling throngs permit. Pedestrians talk in many dialects and shrill voices of venders add to the clamor. Above the din the harsh voice of the caravan leader warns pedestrians of his approach, and as his dusty, moth-eaten followers pass, the pedestrians are forced to stoop, jump and side step to avoid the freight protruding over the camels' sides or being trampled under the animals' feet. Tashkent has a railroad, but the caravan has not been displaced.

"The dreary aspect of the residential streets does not apply to the inhabitants of Ashkent. The natives wear a bright colored skull cap, around which a turban is sometimes wound, and a loose fitting coat of many colors. Green turbans identify the Mohammedan mullahs. Visiting Persians wear hats of karakul lambskin which resembles the fur muffs once popular among American women.

"A sizzling sun shines down upon Tashkent and travelers welcome cool tea rooms in preference to the native cook shops. While sipping tea, customers watch the itinerant barbers shave the heads of natives. With a penknife-like instrument and a little water, the hair is removed but the contortions of the customers' faces indicate that the 'operation' is a necessity rather than a pleasure."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 27—On its face, the supreme court case of "Okanogan, Methow, San Poells (or San Poil), Nespelem, Colville and Lake Indian Tribes or Bands of the State of Washington, v. United States, No. 636," does not appear to have any highly significant aspect.

Yet such in fact was the case in which the "pocket veto" constitutional question was presented, with the executive and legislative branches of government laying their clashing views before the third member of the great American government trio, the judicial branch, for decision.

The actual case of the Indians, pocket vetoed out of certain rights to present claims granted by congress, is of no more than local interest.

Since it involved the issue of the constitutionality of the right of pocket veto exercised unchallenged by presidents of the United States since 1812 and in some 130 cases, the notable gathering in the supreme court to hear oral argument was easily accounted for. Attorney General Mitchell had his first post-appointment innings, appearing for the executive branch contention.

Lively Tussle

For the legislative branch, Representative Sumners, a Texas democrat, appeared as a friend of the court and at the behest of the house committee on judiciary. Arguments of attorneys for the Indians were lost in popular attention to the Mitchell-Sumners clash of wits and legal abilities.

And both are highly skilled performers before even the highest tribunal. Sumners, in fact, was inclined to be a bit offhand and conversational at times. He even spoke once of the court attempting "to write into the constitution" the theory upheld by Mitchell. He changed that, however, smiling as he did so, to substitute "hold" for "write" into the constitution."

Import Question

It's a very interesting legal question. Up to now presidents from Madison down have assumed that, by pocketing a bill enacted too late in the first session of any congress to be returned before adjournment of that session, the bill died without opportunity in the second session to attempt its passage over a veto.

Sumners contended that adjournment between sessions was merely a recess and that congress had as much right to attempt passage over a veto as the president had to his constitutional 10 days for consideration of a bill.

Only on dissolution of a congress, he held, was the killing of bills via the pocket route constitutional.

So there you are, with the fate of the pocket vetoed Muscle shoals bill the thing that really is hanging in the balance.

Extra Dividend

The Officers and Directors of the Willimantic Savings Institute take a great deal of pleasure in announcing the dividend which will be distributed to its depositors on April 1st.

For years this bank has added to its surplus until it has reached an enviable position among the mutual savings banks of the state, and the directors now feel that the depositors should have a share in this prosperity. They have therefore voted a regular dividend of 2¼% and an extra dividend of ¼ of 1% or 2½% for the six months ending April 1st.

They feel that the earnings fully justify this and hope that this increased dividend may be continued.

It is easy to bank by mail and we assure everyone prompt and efficient service.

G. AND E. BOARD ANNOUNCES REVISED ELECTRIC RATES EFFECTIVE MAY 1ST

Mayor Lee Roy Robbins was informed Wednesday, through a communication, received from the board of gas and electrical commisioners, that a revised schedule of electrical rates will be put into effect May 1st. The principal change is in the residential rates. On and after May 1st the minimum charge for a three room house will be one dollar, instead of $1.35, as at present and for houses having more than three rooms an additional charge of 15 cents a room, over three rooms, up to and including ten rooms, will be made, instead of the additional charge of 10 cents for each room over and above three rooms.

By the revised rates there will be a saving of 35 cents on the minimum charge, for a three room house, a saving of 30 cents for a four room house, saving of 25 cents for a five room house, 20 cents for a six room house and so on up to 10 rooms, the minimum rate for a 10 room house remaining as at present, $2.05. The charge for all rooms above 10 rooms will be 10 cents a room.

It is understood that since the present rates went into effect, last October, there has been a decrease in the department's revenue of approximately $15,000, and that if there had not been an increase in the amount of electricity used during this period there would have been an additional decrease of about $14,000. In other words, if the same amount of electricity had been used by consumers from October until the present time as the average used previous to that time, there would have been, under the present rates, a decrease of approximately $29,000.

Under the revised rates which will go into effect May 1st, it is understood that there will, in a 12 month period, be a decrease in the department's revenue of something like $20,000.

Asked if he had any comment to make on the revised rates and their effect on the department's revenue, Samuel Goldberg, acting president of the board, said Wednesday evening, that he didn't know just what the figures would be. He said the revised rates were drawn up by General Manager Charles W. Taggart and submitted to the board which approved them.

Manager Taggart said he had no statement to make on the revised rates, and that inquiry should be made of the board. The secretary of the board, Jeremiah A. Desmond, said that he was unable to be present at the board meeting held Tuesday afternoon.

The board's communication was presented to Mayor Robbins at his office in the court house Wednesday afternoon. Mayor Robbins stated that he did not wish to make public the contents of the communication until he had time to go over it thoroughly. There is a possibility that the board's communication may be presented by the mayor to the court of common council at its meeting Monday evening next.

The minimum charge of one dollar will include the first five kilowatts used each month. Three cents a kilowatt hour will be charged for each additional kilowatt above the five kilowatts. This is the same charge that is in effect by the present rates.

There will be no increase in the charge for electric range service, for the first five kw. for a range capacity up to six kilovolt amperes; the charge for the first five kilowatt hours shall be increased by one dollar per kilovolt ampere, unless the range is operated through a limit switch, in which case, the charge for additional capacity shall be waived.

The number of rooms on which the minimum charge is based shall be the real estate rating, omitting bath rooms, attics, basements, garages and halls not used for living purposes.

By the revised rates a credit of one per cent is to be allowed on all energy used for water heating purposes, provided the same is served through a double throw switch or a limiting device.

As for power charges, the new rates read that the charge for the first five kw. hours shall be increased 50 cents for the first quarter kilovolt ampere, or fraction thereof; one dollar for the first half kilovolt ampere; $1.50 for the first three-quarters kilovolt ampere and $2.00 for the first one kilovolt ampere of motor capacity connected, plus $1 for each additional kilovolt ampere. Washing machines, vacuum cleaners and small hand-used motor-driven appliances are excluded under this classification.

Whether or not the revised rates, as announced by the board of gas and electrical commissioners, are the result of the fact-finding committee's report and recommendations, as presented at and accepted at a recent special city meeting, could not be determined Wednesday evening. The fact-finding committee, in its report to the special city meeting, submitted a schedule of rates for electricity, and the schedule was favorably acted upon by the meeting. The fact-finding committee's rate recommendation was as follows:

Residential

1 to 10 KWH.....	$1.00 minimum
11 to 50 KWH.....	7c per KWH
11 to 100 KWH.....	6c per KWH
11 to 101+ KWH....	5c per KWH

Commercial

1 to 10 KWH.....	$1.00 minimum
11 to 100 KWH.....	7c per KWH
11 to 500 KWH.....	6c per KWH
11 to 501+ KWH....	5c per KWH

WILL PARTICIPATE IN COMMUNION SERVICE TONIGHT

The class confirmed Palm Sunday at the First Lutheran church will participate in the communion service this (Thursday) evening at the church. The church was filled for the Palm Sunday confirmation, people being present from Willimantic and Hartford.

The church, especially the chancel was richly and beautifully decorated with palms and flowers. There was also a special musical program given. Rev. C. Storck, the pastor of the church performed the act of confirmation for the first time in the local church. After the confirmation and blessing, while the young people were rising from the altar steps, the choir sang "Thine Forever."

Preceding the confirmation the pastor gave a short sermon based on Luke 22.55 "And when they had kindled the fire in the midst of the court and were sat down together, Peter sat down with them." Using the theme: Warming Ourselves at Strange Fires, the pastor explained how Peter was led to deny his Master because he mingled with people that were not of his conviction, training or faith, but most of them were Christ's enemies. Every church has a fire kindled by the Holy Spirit, the fire of faith, love and charity. All baptized and confirmed members should warm themselves at this and not at strange fires. They should not only cherish it, but also nourish the holy flame and make it burn brighter and brighter. Every one should be proud of his church and be thankful for the fire that is glowing among the members.

FLAMES DESTROYED BUS ON NORWICH HIGHWAY

A 16-passenger Studebaker coach, operating between Springfield and New London, was completely destroyed by fire about 3.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon near Derry Hill on the Norwich and New London highway. All that remained of the coach, which is owned by the Independent Springfield and New London Coach company, was the framework. It is understood that the bus was carrying five passengers at the time. No one was hurt.

The fire broke out as the bus was proceeding down Derry Hill on its way to New London and is said to have been caused from a defective battery connection. The driver noticed smoke issuing from underneath the footboard, stopped the bus on the right hand side of the highway and investigating found it ablaze about the battery cable. An attempt was made to squelch the flames, but without avail, and in a short time the coach was a mass of flames.

Traffic was held up for a time during the fire, as the wind swept the flames across the highway, making it impossible for automobiles to pass. Lines of automobiles for a distance of a half mile on either side of the burned coach were halted. As Montville has no fire department the fire burned itself out while the bystanders looked on. When the fire was at its height the gasoline tank exploded, adding fuel to the fire.

Couldn't Pay Fine

John O'Leary, 56, of Middletown, was sent to jail to work out a fine of $5 and costs, which he received on his appearance in the city court Wednesday morning. He was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff George H. Stanton on Main street, after he approached the officer and asked him to buy a ten cent bottle of bay rum for him. Earlier in the afternoon O'Leary stopped the officer, asking for a "touch". A little later O'Leary stopped the officer again and asked him to buy the bay rum, which he said he wanted for medicinal purposes.

DEFENSE ARGUMENT IN COPPER STOCK SWINDLE

NEW YORK, March 27—(AP)—John C. and Herbert T. Locke and three associates, who are on trial on charges of using the mails to defraud in an alleged $5,000,000 copper stock swindle, today heard themselves described as men of vision by defense counsel as their case reached the summation stage in federal court.

John B. Wright, a Tucson, Ariz. attorney, told the jury that the Canario Copper company mines were all that the defendants claimed them to be in literature sent to prospective stockholders. Attacking the testimony of John W. Finch, government mine expert who had said the Canario ore was of poor quality, the attorney said that Finch had not inspected the mines thoroughly. He said the defendants had merely acted on their vision of the mines' possibilities and were guilty of no offense.

HONDURANS AROUSED BY SINKING OF "I'M ALONE"

BELIZE, British Honduras, March 27—(AP)—G. Russell Taggart, U. S. consul here, sought police protection today because of high feeling over the sinking of the vessel I'm Alone. Two Belize men were members of the crew. The authorities are taking every precaution to prevent an attack on the consulate.

MOURNERS STILL PAYING TRIBUTE TO MARSHAL FOCH

PARIS, March 27—(AP)—Mourning thousands continued today to file past the open vault under the altar of the chapel of St. Louis in the Invalides to pay a last tribute to Marshal Ferdinand Foch. For the most part the lines were composed of the great commander's former soldiers, but when the file of these became thin, the public at large was admitted to the lines.

At nightfall the gates were closed and the double line of Republican Guards who had formed an aisle through the courtyard of the chapel were withdrawn.

Republican sub-committees of the house ways and means committee now engaged in writing amendments to the existing tariff law have completed preliminary revision of three of the 15 rate schedules in the act—those embracing sugar and its by-products, metals and earths, earthen-ware and glass-ware.

Conn. Mother is Proud, Now

Don't allow your child to remain weakened or run-down for any length of time. In that condition, children are so easily attacked by the millions of tiny germs that are seething and swarming around us. And it's so easy to get the bilious, headachy, constipated, feverish, cross, fretful, puny, underweight ones back into condition, with a hearty appetite, rosy cheeks and abundant energy, by using a purely vegetable product which physicians have endorsed for over 50 years.

Children love the rich, fruity taste of California Fig Syrup and it acts almost like magic to regulate their little bowels and stomachs. It gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act as Nature intends them to do and you don't have to keep dosing your child. Four million bottles used a year and the enthusiastic words of mothers everywhere prove it gives satisfaction.

Another Connecticut mother, Mrs. Wm. H. Sneyd, 61 Buckingham St., Hartford, says: "My little daughter, Marjorie, suffered from constipation until she got very weak, run-down and underweight. I gave her California Fig Syrup and in just a little while she was eating heartily and gaining weight. Soon she was her bright, normal self again."

Always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name to avoid substitutes.

PLAINFIELD RALLIES IN LAST FEW MINUTES TO DOWN SO. MANCHESTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, March 27 — The Plainfield Pros proved to the Eastern Connecticut basketball fans beyond the shadow of a doubt that they were better than the South Manchester team here tonight when they turned back the visitors, 42 to 30, with a stiff attack in the last few minutes of play. The outcome of the game was a complete vindication of Manager Salisbury's judgment as to the relative merits of the players of the two teams, many of the Manchester players having been members of the Plainfield club at one time.

The game started off as a defensive battle with neither team scoring until after seven minutes of play, then each made their opening score on shots from the foul line. After this the game see-sawed back and forth with the half ending 16 to 15 in Plainfield's favor. The second half was a continuation of the first, with both teams stepping along on even terms. With the score deadlocked at 26-all and nine minutes to play, Plainfield launched a fierce attack that swept the Manchester boys completely off their feet. Before they fully recovered, Plainfield had scored 16 points, bringing their total to 42. Manchester added two more baskets before the whistle.

Kasper was the heavy scorer for Plainfield with nine baskets and three fouls and was given nice support by Dissinger and Williams as well as the others. Leonard starred for the visitors.

In the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies took a fairly easy encounter from a team of Willimantic basketeers, 30 to 20. The Buddies took an early lead which they held throughout the game. Mercier featured the play of this game.

Next week the Pros stack up against the Renaissance Five of Brooklyn, world's champion colored team, in the final home game of the season. The following night the Pros go to Concord, N. H., to play this club in the first game of a three-game series for the New England Professional title. The summaries of tonight's games follow:

FOUR LOCAL BOXERS T O COMPETE IN NAT. TOURNEY

That Norwich is the home of the cream of the amateur boxers of Connecticut in the eyes of the state A. A. U., is evidenced by the fact that four members of the team to represent the state at the National amateurs in Boston, April 8-16, are Norwich boys. The fifth is from New Haven.

The Connecticut team is made up of Jimmy Quinn, state featherweight champion, Johnny Kon, lightweight, Freddie Beasde, welterweight, Patsy Ferra, middleweight, all from Norwich. Tommy Howard, a heavyweight, of New Haven, completes the team. This team has been approved by the new Connecticut A. A. U. as the most representative team in the state.

The team will go to Boston on April 7th, where they will stop at one of the leading hotels with all expenses paid by the National A. A. U. The boys will weigh-in on the 8th and the drawings will take place. There will be representatives from every state in the Union.

The boys are now training very hard at the Duwell club and it is highly possible that a National title will be brought back to Norwich.

Local Boys in North and South

A complete list of the participants in the North and South open at Pinehurst, N. C., reveals the names of Massie B. Miller and Johnny Sayles, of Norwich, Conn. Their scores are not known, for after their names appear two words, "No Card."

The local boys are returning north after playing in the La Gorce open at Miami and stopped off at Pinehurst.

SCHMELING REPUDIATEES ALL CONTRACTS NOT SIGNED BY HIM

BERLIN, March 27.—(AP)—Confusion may exist in New York over the varied claims of promoters and managers for the services of Max Schmeling, but the situation is all very clear to the German heavyweight himself.

Schmeling, who became an overnight sensation in a brief American tour that started two managers quarreling over him and three sets of promoters claiming the right to his professional services, declared today he would recognize no contracts that he did not sign himself.

He said he did not believe that Arthur Buelow German manager who accompanied the boxes here but later shunted aside, had signed any agreement with Jack Dempsey and Humbert Fugazy binding Schmeling to fight Paulino Uzcundun or Otto Von Porat in New York in June. Max said he would recognize no contracts signed by Buelow.

Joe Jacobs, American manager who holds a part interest in Schmeling, returned from Europe yesterday and announced that the German was honor bound to box Paulino for Madison Square Garden on the Milk Fund show in New York, in June. Jacobs said Schmeling, who has been attempting to have his original contract with Buelow annulled by the German boxing federation, would return to the United States within a few weeks to settle his difficulties before opening a summer campaign for the vacant heavyweight title.

ALLENTOWN ASSURED OF EASTERN LEAGUE FRANCHISE

ALLENTOWN, Pa., March 27—(AP)—Ernest C. Landgraf, local baseball promoter and owner of the Allentown franchise in the Eastern league, announced today he would transfer that franchise to a company of local stockholders within a day or two.

Landgraf bought the Waterbury, Conn., franchise in the Eastern league last November and shifted the franchise to Allentown for the 1929 season.

The National association ruled that because Landgraf harbored ineligible ball players here on his independent teams of 1923, 1924 and 1925 he was ineligible to hold a franchise in organized baseball.

The transfer of the franchise from Landgraf to the local stockholders assures Allentown of Eastern league baseball for the coming season, and as a result the court action planned by Landgraf against the National association will in all probability be dropped. Landgraf said he would wait until the next meeting of the National association next December and go before that body to have his name cleared.

BROWNS AND PHILLIES PLAY TO 14-INNING TIE SCORE

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns and the Philadelphia Nationals battled through 14 innings to a three to three tie this afternoon in the longest exhibition major league game played since the spring training season opened. The game was called at the end of the 14th to enable the Phillies to catch a train. St. Louis was leading, 3 to 2 in the eighth when Hurst, Philadelphia first baseman, tripled and came home on Schulte's wild throw to knot the count. The Browns filled the bases in the 12th with none out but air-tight fielding prevented a score. Score by innings:

SENATORS WIN THIRD STRAIGHT FROM ROBINS

TAMPA, Fla., March 27—(AP)—The Senators registered a clean sweep of their three game exhibition series against Brooklyn by defeating the Robins by 5 to 4 in the final clash here today. Washington finally gained the ton in a see-saw contest by rushing one run home in the eighth. Johnny Frederick hit a home run for the Robins in the seventh. The score:

Brooklyn NL ...0 0 0 2 0 0 1 0 0—4
Washington AL 1 1 0 1 0 0 1 1 x—5

BASEBALL GOSSIP.

NEW YORK, March 27—(AP)—Stories from the plains of Texas where the Chicago White Sox are accumulating baseball condition and injuries on a 50-50 basis, are that "Bill" Hunnefield may be called upon to give Chalmer Cissell a lift at shortstop.

Cissell, who represents an investment of approximately $125,000 for the Sox, has not been going so well this spring. His fielding has been erratic and his hitting has not come up to expectations possibly on account of the fielding lapses. Cissell has shown a tendency to stiff arm the ball on throws, especially with double plays in sight.

Hunnefield on the other hand, seems to be a baseball illustration of the fact that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country. He is regarded as a much better ball player outside of Chicago than in the White Sox park. When waivers were sought on his services, several American league clubs refused to let him pass out of the picture and probably half the other clubs refuse now. Certainly his services would be in equal demand in the National league.

Joe Sewell shortstop of the Cleveland Indians for nine years, is turning to third base in attempting to master his third position in baseball. Joey has been a shortstop so long most followers of baseball suppose, perhaps, that he has always been a shortstop. As a matter of fact when Sewell became a professional with New Orleans in 1920, he was tossed in at shortstop and had to learn a new position, for at the University of Alabama, he was consistently a second baseman.

Joe told his reactions to the changes: "I had to learn to play short when I broke into professional ball," he said. "After I had always played second base in college, I learned to play it after a fashion and I expect to have just as good luck in mastering third base play."

Jack Quinn, 44 years of age, and with 25 years of pitching behind him was asked to give some advice to pitchers who have not had the benefit of his years of experience. He was glad to oblige. "Never throw a slow ball to a young fellow," was his prescription for life extension on a baseball mound.

The veteran, who has been pitching longer than any of the present-day batsmen have been batting, had just tossed a slow ball to an ambitious rooky on a National league club and had seen the slow one converted into a fast one against the fence. Jack's idea seemed to be to get that ball back and save it for use on some seasoned hitter after April 16th.

An unwritten law among pitchers has long been to avoid throwing slow balls to fellow pitchers and old Jack's advice makes it even more sweeping.

BOTH WALKER AND LOUGHRAN ARE CONFIDENT

CHICAGO, March 27—(AP)—Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, predicted tonight he would be the proud possessor of two world's boxing titles after his battle tomorrow night with Tommy Loughran for the world's light heavyweight championship.

Loughran, light heavyweight champion, was just as jconfident that he expected to win decisively, perhaps by a knockout.

"The fight means everything to me," Loughran said. "I cannot afford to be beaten because if I lose my title to Walker it will ruin me in my campaign for the crown vacated by Gene Tunney.

"I am in better shape than at any time since I won the 175 pound championship. The weight has been easy for me. I will be fit to fight ten rounds at any pace that Walker cares to set. If he does not set a fast clip, I will. I hope to win decisively, probably by a knockout.

"Mickey may not know it, but I have a far better chance to stop him than he has to stop me".

Walker said that Loughran's advantages in height, reach and weight would be no annoyance to him as he has had great success in fighting bigger opponents.

"I think I have a fine chance to stop Loughran," said Walker, "and win so far there will be no question as to our merits. I am hitting harder than ever with my right and my left hook is as dangerous as I could wish. Tommy is a good man and will have the pull in height, reach and weight. Those advantages, however, mean nothing to me. I like to fight bigger men. I am in far better shape than ever before a Chicago fight and you know I have won eight battles in a row in this neighborhood, including the middleweight championship. I will weight in at 165 to 166 pounds and will be the real bulldog they call me. I hope to win and equal the record Bob Fitzsimmons, the only other fighter who held titles in three classes.

DEMAR MAY NOT ENTER BOSTON MARATHON RACE

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., March 27—(AP)—Clarence DeMar, veteran distance runner of Melrose, is undecided as to whether he will enter the Boston marathon this year.

Addressing the students of the Swampscott high school today, he said he had been training daily, but was unable to get into the same condition he enjoyed in other years. He said he would decide in another week whether he would don his running togs to compete in the long grind which he has won a number of times. DeMar is 41 years old.

RICHBOURG HAS PERFECT DAY AS BRAVES WIN

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 27—(AP)—The Boston Braves trounced the Philadelphia Athletics, 8 to 4, in the second game of their annual exhibition series today. Richbourg, Braves, had a perfect day at bat, making two singles and a double. Simmons, Athletics, got four singles. Harper, Braves, made a sensational catch of Haas' drive in the eighth. The score by innings:

TIGERS TAKE HARD CONTEST FROM CUBS

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 27—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers finally defeated the Chicago Cubs today, winning a heavy hitting and loosely played game, 11 to 10. The Cubs had won five straight from the Harris crew.

Detroit lambasted three Cub hurlers, Nehf, Lautenbacher and Cvengros, for 14 hits. The Cubs tied the score with a five run rally in the ninth inning, but the Tigers collected the winning tally in their half.

Score by innings:

Chicago (N) ...0 0 0 2 0 3 0 0 5—10
Detroit (A) ...0 2 3 4 0 0 0 1 1—11

HORTON SMITH WINS NORTH AND SOUTH OPEN WITH CARD OF 287

By Eddie Brietz
Associated Press Sports Writer

PINEHURST, N. C., March 27—(AP)—Another golf title dangled tonight from the belt of Horton Smith, brilliant young Joplin, Mo., sharpshooter. Climaxing a sensational winter campaign, Smith today added the historic North and South open, rich in tradition, if not in cash value, to the long list of important tournaments he has won since coming into the spotlight six months ago.

Smith's score of 287 for the 72-hole stretch was two strokes better than the 289 Tommy Armour, of the Tam O'Shanter club, Detroit, scored to repeat his performance of last year and finish in second place.

Roland Hancock, young Lynchburg, Va., pro, who muffed a golden opportunity to win the national open at Chicago last summer, shot the best two rounds of the day to win third money with a 291. Hancock polled morning and afternoon rounds today that were four strokes better than any delivered by the rest of the field.

Billy Burke, the Westport, N. Y., defending champion, shared fourth place with George Voigt, metropolitan district star from New York and the ranking amateur in the tournament. Their score was 294. Until Smith began his march to glory in the morning round today, Voigt was the big menace of the tournament. He was five strokes ahead of Smith and Armour at the end of the first day's play.

Walter Hagen, British open champion, finished fifth in a three-cornered tie with Joe Turnesa, lithe Elmsford, N. Y., club swinger, and Ross Somerville, of London, Ontario, Canadian amateur champion.

Trailing in sixth place was a quartet consisting of "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, of New York; Emmett French of Youngstown, Ohio; Jack Forrester, of Oradell, N. J., and Hugh Kirkpatrick of Columbia, S. C.

Mehlhorn was off his game in the afternoon round. He strained a shoulder ligament yesterday and played today under a handicap.

Johnny Farrell, national open champion, was well down the list with a 306, while Leo Diegel, Canadian open and P. G. A. titleholder, gave up in disgust after the opening round today.

By today's victory Smith got $700 first money. Armour is $500 richer for finishing second, young Hancock got $400 for third place and Burke was given $300 for finishing fourth. Turnesa and Hagen will divide $350, representing fifth and sixth money, while Mehlhorn, French, Forrester and Kirkpatrick will divide $300, this representing seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth money.

Henry Cuici, of Stratford, Conn., was well down among the finishers with a 299.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 27—(AP)—Arrangements were completed today for Walter Hagen, British open champion, and Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo. professional, and leading money winner in the winter golf tournaments, to play an exhibition match at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. next Saturday.

SOCIAL CLUB TURNS DOWN MARTIN CHALLENGE

The Social club soccer team has refused to accept the challenge of the J. B. Martin soccer team for Friday. In refusing to play the Social club advances good reasons. The J. B. Martin team is scheduled to play in Peacedale, R. I. on Sunday and the Social club wishes them every success and wants them to win. The Social club claims that if they accepted the challenge and played the J. B. Martin boys on Friday the game at Peacedale would have to be called off as the Velvetmen would be unable to walk, let alone run, as they would have to in a game.

Dartmouth Records Smashed

HANOVER, N. H., March 27—(AP)—Two Dartmouth college track records were shattered here today in a series of special indoor events.

Gerry Swope, track captain, ran the 440 yard distance in 49 4-5 seconds to lower the old indoor record of 50 3-5 seconds held jointly by himself and H. N. Bates, '25.

Robert E. Lee, Jr., created a new record for the indoor discus throw when he reached a mark of 136 feet, 8 1-2 inches. This mark bettered the indoor record of 124 feet, 9 3-4 inches and also bettered the college outdoor record of 135 feet, 5 9-10 inches which had stood since 1913, when it was made by L. A. Whitney, '15.

GAVE TALKS ON TREES AT ROUND TABLE SESSION

The preservation of trees as a means of beautification of the state highways and the city of Norwich was the gist of two talks Wednesday evening at the Wauregan hotel under the auspices of the civics department of the Woman's City club. The addresses were given by Henry E. Gilbert of Danielson, who is in charge of the trees in Norwich, and by Luther Keith, tree warden and head of the landscape division of the state highway department. Miss Nancy E. Lucas, chairman of the parks and trees committee of the civics department of the club, introduced the speakers.

Mr. Gilbert, the first speaker, speaking on The Care of Trees in Norwich, said a tree breathes and feeds in a way as we do and does a considerable amount of work, a medium-sized elm expelling from three to four barrels of water in a warm day in summer. Because of the prevailing conditions in the city we have a great many diseases in the trees, he said, and that is why we have hired tree experts to prune them and take care of them. Tree surgery consists of pruning wood and interfering branches, cleaning out cavities and filling them with concrete or any other substance, which acts as a filler, planting and transplanting.

Within the city limits of Norwich, we have about 3,200 trees, he said, and it seems to me the most important thing to do is to prune them. We have planted more trees than we have removed, he pointed out, the majority of the planting having been done in the residential section. Interesting figures given by Mr. Gilbert showed the large amount of work that has been accomplished in Norwich during the past three years.

Some of the work included: Last year, 21 trees planted, 889 sprayed, 14 trees removed. Past three years: Cared for 500 trees, pruning and surgery work, 36 trees fertilized, 42 trees removed, in the three years, 43 were planted, one more was removed. We ought to plant between 40 and 50 trees per year, if possible, he said.

After preliminary remarks concerning the formation of the landscape division of the state highway department, Mr. Keith told what has been accomplished so far by it along the highways. In trying to save trees we must be broad-minded, he said, in some cases it being absolutely necessary to remove them. Since the spring of 1926 the state highway department has planted 12,000 trees along the highways, a number greatly exceeding those removed. He said that Connecticut was the pioneer in the beautification of highways, the movement starting 21 months ago. The other states have followed Connecticut in this project.

The work of the landscape division consists of cleaning up the roadsides of unsightly material, seeding or planting slopes, cutting back brush to property of private owners, establishing small parks and places for picnic parties, etc. The speaker told how the individuals and corporations, especially the Southern New England Telephone Co. and electric light companies, heartily co-operated with them in the work.

The highways are also beautified with the planting of rambler roses, and with the trimming of trees and brush. The division has established nurseries, where 20,000 trees and shrubs, which had been collected, were transplanted last year. We are especially interested in laurel and at the present time we have 4,000 bunches in the nurseries, he said.

In reality the beautification programme is simply bringing these things back to the places where they have been destroyed by the hand of man. Connecticut has made a reputation for better maintenance of roads and now it is after the beautification of its roads. In what better way can we advertise Connecticut than in this way? We should be proud of the scenic beauties of Connecticut, he said.

The speakers were warmly applauded for their very interesting talks.

LOUGHRAN RULES SLIGHT FAVORITE TO WIN FROM WALKER TONIGHT

By Charles W. Dunkley
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, March 27—(AP)—Mickey Walker's bid for his third world's boxing title tomorrow night by attempting to wrest the light heavyweight crown from Tommy Loughran in a 15-round battle, opening Paddy Harmon's $7,000,000 Chicago stadium.

Walker, once ruler of the welterweights, and present standard bearer of the middleweight class, will match his ruggedness and terrific hitting force against one of the world's cleverest ringmen, in endeavoring to achieve his ambition of winning his third championship, a distinction held by only one other fighter—Bob Fitzsimmons.

The match will be fought in the world's largest indoor sports arena, with indications that a new record for indoor attendance and receipts may be established. The arena has a seating capacity of 25,000. If it is a sell-out, the gate receipts may reach the total of $300,000.

Walker and Loughran will meet at the light heavyweight class limit of 175 pounds. Loughran, the titleholder, will scale just about 175. Walker expects to weigh between 165 and 166 which, he says, is his best fighting weight. They will weigh in at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Loughran, carefully watching his weight, felt the need of going through light exercises this afternoon. He weighed in privately and said he was only a few ounces over 175.

Walker did not train at all today. He took a long walk and did some calisthenics.

Both are confident of victory, with Walker declaring he will knock out Loughran. The Philadelphian said he expected to win decisively, perhaps by a knockout.

The betting odds vary, with most wagers being made at even money, although in some spots Loughran is quoted as a 6 to 5 favorite.

Loughran is to receive 55 per cent. of the gate receipts. If he wins he must pay Walker $50,000. If he loses his title he gives Walker only $10,000. In addition Loughran has agreed to pay part of the purse for the supporting attraction, a ten round bout between Tuffy Griffith, Sioux City, Iowa light heavyweight, and Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen, Wash., assassin.

No information was forthcoming from the state athletic commission today as to the referree and judges in the Walker-Loughran fight.

WESTERLY

CHIEF SUNSET VISITS BROTHER WHO IS VERY ILL

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly was visited for a short time Wednesday afternoon by the Narragansett Indian Chief Sunset, of Providence, member of the Rhode Island council of that tribe. His presence attracted much attention for he was in Indian garb, snow-white eagle feathers extending from the top of his head to his heels, but he seemed totally oblivious to the interest shown by the traveling public as he stepped off one train and returned to his Providence home on the next express. As he waited on the Westerly station platform for his train, which was a half hour late, he shaded his eyes in characteristic Indian pose as he gazed intently westward for the smoke of the approaching iron horse. His mission to Westerly was a sad one, for he came to see his brother, John Michaels, well-known Westerly resident for many years and an expert stone mason, who is critically ill with stomach trouble. Chief Sunset, whose English name is Edward Michaels, is an older brother of John. The latter is familiarly spoken of in Westerly as the last of the Narragansetts. He has built many stone walls and fireplaces, especially at seashore and country homes. For half a century John Michaels has been a familiar figure as he walked the roads in and out of Westerly, or on holidays was conspicuous on the post office steps.

The pilgrimage will be made in private cars by way of Norwich, Danielson, Putnam and Webster, Mass. The Fifth division commander of the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, in which Narragansett commandery of Westerly is listed, is Em. Sir Henry P. McAllister, a member of Worcester County commandery.

The Elks' Charity ball plans continue to be perfected and preparations for the event of the season are going forward this week.

"HEAT CONTROL NEVER FORGETS"

says Priscilla—

"Getting dinner is so easy with my new gas range. The HEAT CONTROL device is simply wonderful! I can put everything from roast to dessert into the oven, set the indicator, and forget them until meal time."

THIS is just another one of the many ways in which gas is helping to relieve women of household drudgery—giving them more time with the children and for cultural pleasures that they enjoy.

Then there are other reasons, too, why gas is the better fuel for cooking. Its quick flame sears steak or chops as nothing else can. It gives instant service—so that breakfasts are on time. It is clean—no kitchen clutter.

Visit your gas company for a demonstration of gas for cooking, water heating, house heating, refrigeration, incineration, laundry drying, garage heating, fireplaces, etc.

A small amount down brings to you any of these wonderful helps. The balance on convenient terms.

SENATE.

The women jury service bill was rejected by the state senate today in a roll call vote of 21 to 11. Senator Mary E. Weaver, of New Milford, a republican, who introduced the bill, called for a roll call following an unfavorable report of the judiciary committee. It was the first time a republican has asked for such a vote in the present session or has moved for the rejection of a committee report.

Senator Thomas J. Conroy joined Miss Weaver in defense of the measure and he was followed by Senator John F. Hart of Bridgeport, democrat. But Senator Fournier of the 29th district, democrat, favored rejection, saying he spoke not for himself, but for his district which is opposed to the bill. Senator Boies of Seymour, republican, took the same stand as Senator Fournier. He thought the issue should be decided by referendum. Senator William C. Fox of New London, democrat, felt there was no logic to those opposing the bill.

"There should be no discrimination against men or women in suffrage," Senator Fox said. He contradicted an assertion by Senator Boies that women had too easy a time of it in getting the vote, saying before he was committed to "the political patriarch," he was on legislative committees and knew the fight they had to make.

Senator Hirschberg of Greenwich, republican, Senator Hull, of Bridgeport, republican, supported the committee.

The state of Connecticut is throwing away $5,000,000 a year by failing to tax foreign corporations, Senator Harry S. Durant of Guilford declared in a vigorous attack on the state's taxation policy in the senate today. Senator Durant's speech followed an unfavorable report of the finance committee on his bill which provided for a 5 per cent. tax on gross receipts of all foreign corporations doing business in Connecticut. The bill was rejected with Senator Michael A. Connor voting against rejection although he made no speech. Later Senator Connor said he agreed with Senator Durant in his statement that foreign corporations come into the state, do a big business and take this money out of the state.

"We never see that money again," Senator Durant said. Senator Connor said building construction companies do a big business here without paying a state or city tax.

In reporting unfavorably on the bill Senator Parsons of the finance committee explained that Senator Durant was the only one who spoke for it at the hearing and the committee feel it would be unwise to pass a measure that would require an exhaustive investigation.

The following bills were taken from the calendar and adopted:

Sub. S. B. No. 195, authorizing the American Commercial company to reduce its par value to $10.

S. B. No. 14, establishing a small claims court in the borough court of Greenwich with jurisdiction of not more than $75.

The following additional bills were rejected on unfavorable reports of committees:

S. B. No. 125, concerning absentee voting, providing for application between fifteen and sixty days before election of voter who cannot be in city for state election day, who is ill, issuance of blank ballot to said voter by registered, voting in presence of postmaster or deputy and return of ballot. Judiciary. The bill was introduced by Senator Dennis.

S. B No. 129, providing fine of $25 for use of motor boat propelled by explosive mediums unless it is provided with an underwater exhaust or muffler.

S. B. No 228, providing that the department of state board of charities shall inspect all private homes in which the dependent adult poor are boarded or placed out by towns and cities and that in June and September a list of such homes shall be furnished to it by officials of municipalities. Judiciary.

S. B. No. 287, providing for quarterly instead of annual payments of motor bus excise tax. Finance. Withdrawn.

S. B. No. 184, providing for motion pictures of work of state institutions to be deposited in the state library for free use of all high schools in the state. Education.

S. B. No. 15, providing for the repeal of the "guest" statute in regard to responsibility of auto drivers. Motor vehicles.

S. B. No. 142, any person operating a motor vehicle of another shall be prima facie the agent of the owner. Motor vehicles.

S. B. No. 142, providing that fines, fees, forfeitures and taxable costs in prosecutions of ordinances or laws relative to police signal traffic lights shall not be paid to motor vehicles commissioner. Motor vehicles.

S. B No. 476, providing for insurance whether the driver of a jitney is reckless or negligent or not; and making jitney owner the insurer of safety of all passengers. Motor vehicles.

S. B. No 477, providing that no registration of motor vehicles be issued until ownership satisfactory to the commission is approved. Motor vehicles.

S. B No. 248, providing for notification to registrar of town where adopted child was born by probate court and registration of adoption to be made by registrar on original certificate of birth, copy to be filed with the state department of health. Public health and safety.

The following bills were reported favorably and tabled for the calendar:

S. B. No. 160, appropriating $2,000 for expenses of G. A. R. in attending the national encampment at Portland Me. Appropriations.

S. B No. 123, providing for the transfer of prisoners in state prison under 30 with less than ten years of minimum sentence to be served to Connecticut reformatory by vote of the directors of the state prison. Judiciary.

The senate adjourned at 1.30.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Farmer Brown's Boy Finds Jimmy Skunk

Appearances sometime deceive
And overthrow what you believe.
—Jimmy Skunk.

Farmer Brown's Boy was very happy in the discovery that his chickens were no longer disappearing. But he was even more puzzled than ever. After his discovery that Jimmy Skunk had gone under the henhouse, he was sure in his own mind that Jimmy was the one who had been taking the chickens. He disliked to believe it, but he did believe it. What bothered him now was the fact that no more chickens had been taken, yet he believed that Jimmy was still under the henhouse. He had looked very carefully to see if Jimmy had dug out anywhere, but the only hole he had found was the one where he had set the box-trap, and this he was sure Jimmy had not used.

"I know what I'll do," said he, one morning. "I'll pull up part of the floor of the henhouse and see if Jimmy is under there. Perhaps something happened to him. Perhaps he died under there. I hope not, but it seems to me that he must have. If he hadn't he would have caught all those chickens, or I should have caught him in that trap."

So Farmer Brown's Boy pulled up some boards in the floor of the henhouse. With a flashlight he looked as well as he could under the rest of the floor. But he saw nothing of Jimmy Skunk. So then he pulled up some more boards. This time he discovered over in one corner a mass of black and white fur. He knew it was Jimmy. Jimmy seemed to be all curled up. Farmer Brown's Boy didn't know what to do then. Finally he took a long stick and with this gently poked that bunch of black and white fur. He didn't expect it to move. He was quite sure that Jimmy was dead.

So you can guess, perhaps, how surprised Farmer Brown's Boy was when Jimmy suddenly lifted his head and yawned. Farmer Brown's Boy stepped back so quickly that he tripped over a board and sat down hard. It wasn't that he was afraid of Jimmy. It was the unexpectedness of the thing. Meanwhile, Jimmy leisurely got on his feet and moved toward Farmer Brown's Boy, as if to find out what all this fuss was about. For a moment or two he stood looking directly at Farmer Brown's Boy, as much as to say, "What do you want? Why are you poking me?" Then he slowly ambled under another part of the floor and disappeared.

"Well, I never!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "Now where has that rascal gone?"

He stretched himself out on the floor and held the flashlight underneath, so that he could look into the corner where Jimmy had disappeared. No Jimmy was to be seen. But there was a hole there. Yes, sir, there was a hole there. This might not mean much and it might mean a great deal. The question was, where did that hole lead to?

Farmer Brown's Boy got up and hurried outside. He looked this way and he looked that way. At first he saw nothing. Then he discovered Jimmy Skunk ambling along outside the henyard toward the barn. Farmer Brown's Boy blinked two or three times. Could that be Jimmy Skunk, or was it another Skunk that looked like Jimmy? Then he hurried out and around to the other side of the henyard. There the mystery was explained. Close to one of the posts of the chicken-yard was a hole. Jimmy had come out of that hole. It must be that he had gone through a tunnel underground. Farmer Brown's Boy had never discovered it before, because he had never thought to look down along the henyard. He had looked only along beside the henhouse.

"Well, I never!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy

"Well, well, well!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "That explains a lot. It explains why I haven't caught you in that trap. But it doesn't explain why you haven't been taking any more of my chickens."

At the morning service a solo was sung by Mrs. William Downes of Westford with Mrs. Z. B. Bicknell at the organ. Both also heard the Sunday school children with their rehearsal of Easter music.

Rev. Mr. Verney's sermon subject was "Calvary."

The talk to the children concerned the burning of grass which sometimes has to be done in old fields to permit the new growth to come in.

There are to be two Easter services next Sunday—in the morning when the sermon will be on "The Cry of Victory" and in the evening when the children will give their concert exercises.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

OLD WOODLAWN MANSION BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE

Woodlawn mansion situated in Hyde park, one of the beauty spots of Stafford Springs, was partially destroyed by fire about three o'clock Sunday morning. The building was erected by Julius Converse more than 60 years ago and for several years was occupied by Mr. Converse and his family as a residence. The building and about 100 acres of land was purchased by the town about 17 years ago and since then has been known as Hyde park. The building has been unoccupied for the past 15 years. A coincidence in connection with the fire is, that the building was sold at public auction Saturday afternoon to Peter J. Brown and the fire broke out within 12 hours after the sale. The loss is covered by insurance.

Sent to Reformatory

John Simek, age 17, was committed to Cheshire reformatory by Judge Heald in the borough court Monday afternoon. BOZRAH

At the Congregational church, Sunday, the first service of Passion week, the theme was "The Triumphal Entry." The pastor, Rev. G. H. Strouse, used Mark's account as given in the eleventh chapter. The anthem for the morning was "Blessed is He That Cometh," and for the offertory Harold Rose sang "The Palms." Through the kindness of Carl Johnson and O. S. Maples a palm was used in decorating the church. The second meeting of the week will be Good Friday at 8 p. m. The subject is to be "The Cross." There will be special music by the choir and the pastor will give the fourth of his Lenten sermons.

Mrs. Jabez Lathrop who has been suffering from sinus is much improved.

Mrs. Alfred Abell is a patient in Backus hospital, having undergone an operation for appendicitis.

A feature of the lecturer's programme at the last regular meeting of the grange was a paper on "Making Maple Sugar." Mrs. Gilman, the lecturer, while atending the N. E. Lecturers' conference at Burlington last summer, became acquainted with a Vermont patron who remembered her recently with a can of excellent syrup, also with literature and pictures.

REMARKABLE RALLY IN STOCK MARKET WITH CALL MONEY RULING AT 15 PER CENT

NEW YORK, March 27—(AP)—Strong hands took the reins on the stock market today, and led a remarkable rally in which the losses incurred by the headlong selling of the previous session were more than regained.

Call money renewed at 15 per cent. for the first time since February, 1920, but powerful banking interests, fearing a complete demoralization of the call market which might cause a debacle in stocks more disastrous than yesterday's acted to stabilize the rate at that figure.

Although 15 per cent. money is an extraordinarily high rate, the relief of traders who had feared it might go even higher than yesterday's 20 per cent. rate, was so great that a bullish celebration was immediately held. Scores of important issues were put up 4 to 10 points, and Adams Express was hurled up 34 points.

Trading was maintained at a rapid pace, 5,618,990 shares changing hands, a large day's turnover, although scarcely comparable to the unprecedented 8,246,740 share day yesterday. Commission houses have been swamped with work, and an announcement that the stock exchange would close on Saturday, following its regular holiday on Good Friday, was received with relief.

A continuation of the powerful buying that halted the dizzy drop during the previous session was apparent at the opening, but the market turned extremely nervous when call money reopened at 15 per cent. and seemed pointed higher. Then the National City bank sent $25,000,000 to the loan desk to be put out $5,000,000 each at 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 per cent. and it was reported that other large banking interests were prepared to take similar action. J. P. Morgan & Co., was reported to have supplied $10,000,000.

Money, however, was firm all day. About $30,000,000 in loans was called, and were eventually replaced, but during much of the day the loan desk had no surplus of funds. With the heavy Easter currency demands and the quarterly interest and dividend requirements of April 1, heavier than ever before, little hope of a rate lower than 15 per cent. was held for the remainder of the stock market week, which ends tomorrow. The recent selling generally set minds at rest regarding the possibility of an increase in the federal reserve rediscount rate tomorrow, as a sharp reduction in brokers' loans is expected.

A particularly cheering development was a decline of 1-8 of one per cent. in bankers' acceptance rates, which have been mounting steadily for months. Time money, however, was practically unobtainable, although the quoted rate held at 5 1-4 per cent. There was no change in the rates quoted for commercial paper, but it was said to be virtually at a standstill.

Business news was generally favorable. Although a large increase in crude oil production was reported for last week, the general committee of the American Petroleum institute meeting here to consider curtailment, was said to have made substantial progress, and Sir Henri Deterding of the Royal Dutch Shell said his interests would cooperate in a world wide curtailment plan. The steel trade reviews again described mill operations as practically at capacity although there were some indications that the seasonal peak is in the immediate offing. Advances in pig iron and iron ore attested a favorable price situation. Freight car loadings for the latest week showed a fair gain, and would have shown a better one, but for floods in the south.

The oil shares, spurred by curtailment developments, assumed market leadership. Standard of New Jersey mounted nearly 6 points to 58 3-4, a new 1929 high, while Atlantic Refining, American Republics, Houston, Indian Refining, and Pan American B mounted from 3 to 10 points. Coppers were again well bought. Anaconda and Greene Cananea mounting 5 and 10 points.

International Telephone jumped more than 20 points to a new high price at 262 3-4, and Case Threshing, Commercial Solvents, Vanadium and Electric Auto Light mounted about 10 points and more. American Telephone and General Electric jumped about 7 points each, Radio sold up 7 1-2 points to 100 1-2, and closed at 97. General Motors and U. S. Steel closed more than a point higher. A number of investment rails mounted 2 to 4 points.

Among the few soft spots, Federal Mining and Smelting lost 35 points in a small turnover, and American Safety Razor, Motor Products and International Cement closed off 2 points or so.

Commodities generally rallied in sympathy with stocks, after nervousness early in the day. Cotton closed 50 to 90 cents higher on higher Liverpool cables and rains in Texas, and grains turned firm.

The foreign exchanges eased in reflection of the high New York money rates, although sterling cables finished the day fairly steady.

BOND MARKET.

NEW YORK, March 27—(AP)—Despite the brisk recovery in stock prices and the sharp advances in a few of the convertible issues, bond prices generally lost ground today in the face of moderately easier credit conditions. Call money ruled at 15 per cent., as against a high rate of 20 per cent. yesterday, and bankers' acceptances were reduced 1-8 of 1 per cent., but time money and commercial paper rates held firm.

The action of the market was a surprise to many broke who expected that the sharp break in stock prices earlier in the week, coupled with the forthcoming distribution of about $360,000,000 in dividend and interest payments, would bring a fresh volume of buying into the investment market. Dealers' shelves, however, are reported to be well filled, due to the slowness in disposing of many of the recent new offerings.

Anaconda Copper 5s and International Telephone convertible 4 1-2s—both in the so-called speculative bond class—were the spectacular features, the former rising 13 points and the latter soaring to a new high at 123 1-2 and closing at 123, up 8 points on the day. Sales totaled $11,950,000, and the International Telephone 4 1-2s accounted for a large share of the volume, $1,235,000 changing hands in the five hour session. Total sales in the market yesterday were $14,190,000.

Gains virtually restricted to the convertibles and rails. Public Service of New Jersey 4 1-2s rallied 7 points from yesterday's record low of 179, and Dodge Brothers convertible 6s rose a point, but Bethlehem Steel convertible 6s were at a new low for the year, after an early display of strength.

The bulk of the trading in the firmer rails was centered in St. Paul adjustment 5s, which wound up the day 1 3-4 points higher, and Atchison convertible 4 1-2s, up 1 1-2 points. Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s rose 6 points, but new lows for the year were established by Atchison adjustment 4s, Canadian Northern sinking fund 7s, St. Paul General 4 1-2s C and Rio Grande Western Collateral 4s.

The investment trusts also contributed to the heavy volume of sales. Alleghany Corporation 5s, after an early period of heaviness rallied to close fractionally higher. American International 5 1-2s advanced more than 2 points, but Commercial Investment Trust 5 1-2s broke more than 6 points to a new low.

The meeting of the oil executives to take action on a production curtailment program brought some buying into the petroleum group. Transcontinental 6 1-2s rose 2 1-2 points in active trading to 99.

The lack of interest in U. S. government securities is partly attributed to the prevailing high rates for bankers' acceptances. The government obligations displayed an irregular tone, four of the seven active issues closing the day behind, minus signs. The Liberty fourth 4 1-4s were at a new low for the year.

Tokio City 5 1-2s were the feature of the dull and irregular foreign list, rising nearly 2 points in sympathy with strength in the Japanese yen.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, March 27—(AP)—Treasury receipts for March 25 were $16,807,192.26; expenditures $5,280,312.85; balance $423,493,879.06.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, March 27—(AP)—Export business in United States wheat, hard winter as well as durum, did much today to restore comparative poise to the grain trade. There also was European buying here of wheat future deliveries, the Liverpool wheat market was higher than looked for, and rallies in the price of stocks counted decidedly as a further source of strength.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were firm, 5-8 a 3-4c to 1 1-4c net higher. Corn finished 3-4c to 1 1-4c up, oats unchanged to 1-2c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 30c.

Helping to lift the wheat market today was emphasis which friends of higher prices gave to the fact that the domestic winter wheat area is estimated at 4,000,000 acres less than was the case last year. On the other hand, today's domestic crop advices indicated that the condition of winter wheat taken as a whole is good and that abandonment on account of winter-killing is below average. Rain today in parts of Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Texas failed to check to any lasting extent the upward trend of the wheat market, and so too did estimates that the wheat crop of India would total 30,000,000 bushels more than last year. Word that domestic spring wheat seeding probably would have a good start this season was also virtually ignored, and prices finished at almost the day's top level.

Except for a brief interval during the earlier dealings, wheat values today in Chicago ranged continuously above the previous day's finish. Fluctuations were numerous, but mostly fractional, and the market throughout, although still nervous, was in striking contrast with the flurried rushes to sell and the big breaks in price that were witnessed the day before. The volume of trading today was moderate, and operators gave greater attention to prospective supply and demand developments, with less notice being taken of the fact that money rates were still at an unusual height and that an immense open interest is yet outstanding in Chicago contracts for future deliveries of wheat.

Good shipping demand here for corn gave the corn market a solid foundation. Shippers bought 264,000 bushels of corn in Chicago today, and from the outset speculators were purchasing future deliveries. Country offerings to arrive here were small. Primary receipts of corn today were only 307,000 bushels against 1,045,000 bushels a year ago. Oats averaged higher with other grain, notwithstanding that weather was generally favorable for field work.

Provisions responded to the upward trend of hog values and of grain and to good commission house buying of lard.

HIT BY MACHINE WOMAN SUES OWNER

William Nagle of New London has been made the defendant in a $5,000 damage action brought in the superior court by Domenica Insinna of New London. The plaintiff claims that on or about July 7th, 1928, she was crossing Bank street in New London, was hit by the defendant's machine and severely injured. She charges negligence on the part of the defendant in the operation of the machine.

BUS PASSENGER ASKS DAMAGES OF $10,000

Damages of $10,000 are asked by Edward Francis Riley of East Lyme in an action he has filed in the superior court against the New London-Niantic Coach Co. He claims that on or about November 1st last, he was a passenger on one of the defendant's buses traveling from New London to Crescent Beach. When the bus arrived at the beach he requested the driver to stop to allow him to alight, and as he was alighting from the bus he was thrown violently to the ground. Negligence on the part of the bus operator is charged. The plaintiff was permanently injured; his hip was broken and his back injured and he suffered bruises and contusions.

CADILLAC · LASALLE

National Used Car Week

March 29th · April 6th

A Special Spring Offering of Used Cars Never Equalled For Quality, Condition, Variety and Dollar Value—Seven Days of Genuine Buying Opportunity

During the next seven days every Cadillac-La Salle dealer in the United States will participate in a National Used Car Week.

March 29th to April 6th is the time chosen for this special offering because Cadillac anticipates the biggest Spring new car business in its history.

For this reason Cadillac-La Salle dealers are eager to clear their decks for action and have made special preparations to that end.

All Used Car stocks have been conditioned with unusual care and will be offered under the most pleasing circumstances and on the most inviting terms.

Cadillac-La Salle dealers are in an especially advantageous position to make this an event of genuine importance to the Used Car buyer.

They are the type of men who can be relied upon for fair dealing. Their policy is to satisfy the buyer so that good will can be created.

The high quality of their new car business provides them with Used Cars that are exceptionally fresh and in remarkably good condition. They are good for thousands of continuously satisfying miles.

These cars are of various makes, in addition to Cadillacs and La Salles, and the dealers who offer them are in a position to make attractive prices because they are never obliged to make over-allowances for trade-ins in order to stimulate new car sales.

No one contemplating the purchase of a Used Car can afford to ignore the Cadillac-La Salle National Used Car Week. You may take advantage of the same banking service offered new car buyers, use the General Motors Deferred Payment Plan, and pay for a used car out of your monthly income. All showrooms will be open evenings during this period.

YOUR HOUSE NEED PAINT?...THEN CONSIDER—

There are TWO ENDS to a Paint Brush

A skilled painter at one end and pure lead paint at the other save your house and your money

JUST around the corner—somewhere in your community—are the two famous partners of painting history. They are the master painter and pure lead paint.

The master painter you'll know by his reputation. He is no slap-dash workman, interested only in profit . . . here today and gone tomorrow. You'll recognize him quickly by the work he has done—and by another sign. He uses pure lead paint as have skilled painters for generations. Why? Because with this paint, made with Dutch Boy white-lead, he can give you a durable job that reflects credit on him, that makes you willing to recommend him to others.

Dutch Boy white-lead is sold by paint dealers everywhere

Write our nearest branch for new booklet on painting—"The House We Live In."

ALCOHOL CANS FOUND IN JOSEPH SOBA'S CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 27—Joseph Soba, formerly of Old Mystic, now residing at the Y. M. C. A., was arrested today by State Police Officer William MacKenzie, Groton barracks, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle laws in using improper markers and will be in court tomorrow. That Soba was not arrested on a more serious charge of violation of the prohibition law was more his good luck than anything else, for everything pointing toward his being engaged in the transportation was indicated in his arrest for empty cans which had contained alcohol, were found in the machine. The police had been observing Soba's driving, for it was believed that he was using one set of markers on more than one auto. Earlier in the week he was seen driving a Paige sedan and today when he was detected driving a Dodge coupe with the same markers Officer MacKenzie, who was on Main street, near Hallam street, held the driver up. It was then discovered that five alcohol cans were in the rear of the car, but Soba could not be charged with violation of the liquor law. He admitted having used the markers on cars others than the Dodge, which bore the markers today.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Hupp Automobile.

Radio has been put to some strange and interesting uses since first Marconi made the ether waves do his bidding, but it remained for Hupmobile to receive perhaps the swiftest long-distance endorsement that ever came to a product through this new channel of communication.

Hupmobile is today the proud possessor of a terse, but unqualified endorsement that travelled 10,000 miles from the ice barrier in the Ross sea, and that came from the member of the Byrd Antarctic expedition best qualified of all to pass upon the merits of an automobile.

While Hupmobile is treasuring this unusual tribute, Mrs. Ruth I Mulroy, wife of Chief Engineer Thomas Mulroy of the Byrd expedition, is rejoicing in a new realization that though her husband is ice-bound 2400 miles below the nearest human habitation, he nevertheless is so close to her that she can have his counsel and advice, and have it quick whenever she needs it.

Mrs. Mulroy decided around Christmas time that she needed a new automobile, and after shopping around she found herself most attracted by the beauty of the Hupmobile. But beauty was not enough; she wanted to be sure that the car she bought would fulfill, mechanically, all the promise of its strong, clean-lined beauty, so she sent the following by short wave wireless to her far-distant husband:

'Lieut. Thomas Mulroy:
Byrd Antarctic Expedition.
Am planning on buying a car Stop Have looked at them all and think Hupp most beautiful on market Stop Is it okay mechanically and shall I buy Stop Love
RUTH'

Promptly on December 23rd came back this answer:

'Ruth I. Mulroy,
322 West 4th street, New York city.
By al means buy the Hupp. Wonderful motor and chassis. Love,
TOM.'

That is the story of how Mrs. Mulroy entered the Hupmobile family.

Palace Theatre

A most entertaining bill of vaudeville opens at the Palace theatre today headed by Winona Winters & Co., the aristocrat of vaudeville, in a revue of revues. Bobbe & King in fun in an apartment house with two loose nuts. Burns & Francis in The Mail Man. Musical Rowellys a foreign novelty duet and Floretty Trio, a sensation balancing threesome.

There is a touch of romance and a thrill in "Grip of the Yukon," the Universal picture, now showing at the Palace theatre, that will set the blood tingling through the veins of the most critical theatre-goer.

It is one of the most vivid screen versions of the great snow wastes of Alaska that local fans have had the pleasure of witnessing in many a day. The story is an original photoplay written by Charles A. Logue and has one of the most unique plots ever worked into a story of this type.

The direction has been perfectly mastered by Ernst Laemmle, hitherto unheralded as a feature director but considered one of the best outdoor megaphone wielders in the profession. His knowledge for dramatic scenes and carefully worked out camera effects have made the picture one of the most outstanding photographic studies on the screen.

One almost feels the intense cold of the great glaciers and ice fields which form the background for practically the entire action of the story.

And into the cast of this great picture Universal has placed some of the foremost men and women players of the screen. In fact it might be termed an all-star cast. June Malowe, in the leading feminine role gives a sympathetic conception of the character of Sheila O'Neil as the daughter of Burr McIntosh who appears in the be-whiskered role of an Alaskan prospector.

Francis X. Bushman, once Broadway's idol, portrays a real he-man role as the buddy of Neil Hamilton and with the support of Theodore Lorch, Otis Harlan, and James Farley makes one of the best screen appearances of his career. It is worth anyone's time to see it.

Lewis Studios, Providence.

Mr. Arnold O. Brookes of the Louis A. Lewis studios of Providence is at the Wauregan hotel, where he will spend the first five days of the next four or five weeks. Mr. Brookes is making arrangements for portraits to be taken at one's home by a Lewis artist. Mr. Brookes states that a motion picture still camera, together with the real motion picture lights are used making it possible to get absolute expression, particularly in children. Portraits by the Louis A. Lewis studios are on display at the Butts Art and Gift Shop.

Breed Theatre

Talking pictures quite naturally require different treatment than silent films to put over the action, and certain types of stories lend themselves more readily to sound features than others. "Should a Girl Marry?" a Rayart production, made by Trem Carr and directed by Scott Pembroke is a perfect vehicle for sound and dialogue. Never has a court room scene contained more drama and suspense than this picture. For not only do you see the pathetic little girl who is a murderess by her own confession but you hear the plea of her attorney for acquittal and the opposing arguments of the prosecution. Other sequences are lightened by comedy dialogue and amusing sound effects. You follow the action by ear as well as by sight. This is the special roadshow feature which is having its premiere at the Breed theatre on Sunday, an entire program of sound, for besides the feature there are five Filmtone novelty reels.

Mrs. George Palmer Tells How Cuticura Healed Her Boy.

"Eczema broke out in little pimples and when my boy scratched them they would fester and look like water blisters. The eczema was on his head and between his shoulders. It seemed to be worse between his shoulders and before I knew it he had a sore eruption from scratching. He was fretful and lost his rest at night.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after two or three applications he could rest better. I continued using them and in a short time he was healed." (Signed) Mrs. George Palmer, R. 1, Box 56, Charleston, Me.

SHE NEVER WASHES DISHES ... with two maids to do all the work, of course her hands are lovely and white and smooth.

Which are the hands of the rich man's wife?

SHE WASHES DISHES 3 times a day—yet her hands are as lovely as the hands of a woman of leisure. Read the secret below—

305 Famous Beauty Shops say—

"WE actually cannot distinguish between the hands of a woman of leisure and wealth—with servants to do all her work—and the hands of a woman who uses Lux in her dishpan . . . Lux gives real beauty care."

What a marvelous suggestion for all busy women—

"Beauty care" right in the dishpan!

And how true it is! After washing dishes with Lux your hands do look smoother and whiter and lovelier than before! Every minute they're in the gentle, sparkling Lux suds they're receiving glorious beauty care!

For Lux is different from ordinary soaps . . . so utterly pure, so bland, that it protects the precious beauty oils of the skin—the youth oils—keeping the hands young and lovely. Many soaps dry up these oils, giving the skin that drawn, crisscross-lined look—making the hands seem work-worn and old.

Begin using Lux in the dishpan today! Give your hands the wisest, most inexpensive beauty care known. Lux for all your dishes costs less than 1¢ a day. Lovely hands for so small a price!

PLAINTIFFS ASK NEW TRIAL IN STEWART WILL APPEAL CASE

A new trial is asked by George Floyd Stewart and Clifford H. Stewart, both of North Stonington, H. Russell Stewart, of Stonington, and Florence Esther Stewart Wheeler in the appeal from probate action which they brought against Charles L. Stewart, of this city, executor of the estate of the late William E. Stewart, of North Stonington, and which was recently tried in the superior court at New London. The plaintiffs ask that the verdict and judgment entered at the trial be set aside and that they be granted a new trial.

The plaintiffs appealed from a decision of the probate court of the district of Stonington admitting to probate a paper purporting to be the will of William E. Stewart. The appeal was heard by court and jury beginning on Feb. 19 and ending Feb. 23, and a verdict was rendered against the plaintiffs. The verdict was accepted by the court and on March 15 a notice of appeal to the supreme court of errors was filed.

The papers asking for a new trial state that "on said trial it became and was a material question whether the executor of the estate and one of the legatees used undue influence upon the decedent" and also that:

"Since said trial the plaintiffs have discovered material evidence in their favor, which evidence they failed to discover and were unable to discover before or during said trial although they used all reasonable diligence in endeavoring to find this testimony."

FOUR NEW DIVORCE CASES ARE FILED

Papers in four divorce cases were filed Wednesday with the clerk of the superior court in this city. Mary Perry Santin, of Groton, has filed suit for divorce from Aldo J. Santin, of Stonington, on grounds of desertion. The plaintiff, whose maiden name was Mary A. Perry, and the defendant were married at Groton, May 25, 1925. Desertion is alleged from the date of marriage.

On grounds of desertion, James C. Dunn, of Waterford, has started suit for divorce from Alberta Blanche (Card) Dunn, of Little Rock, Ark. They were married Jan. 19, 1914, at Toronto, Can. Desertion since Dec. 4, 1924, is alleged.

Intolerable cruelty is charged by Mary L. Palitz, of New London, in a divorce action she has brought against Samuel Palitz, of Scranton, Pa. She was Mary Mendela before her marriage, which took place March 28, 1927. Cruelty since April 1, 1927, is alleged. Plaintiff wishes to resume her maiden name.

Maisie R. Maynard, of New London, has brought suit for divorce from Jesse Maynard, also of New London, on grounds of intolerable cruelty since February, 1919, the month of their marriage.

ASKS $10,000 DAMAGES FOR WOMAN'S ESTATE

Jane E. Dolson of Mystic has brought suit in the superior court against Ferguson Rennie, Jr., Carroll Bliven and Mrs. Conrad Kretzer, all of Mystic, claiming damages of $10,000. Plaintiff is the administratrix of the estate of Annie Bird Edwards, deceased, of Mystic.

According to the complaint the deceased on October 1, last, cast her vote in the town election at the district hall on High street in Mystic. While walking away from the voting building she was struck by a machine owned by Carroll Bliven and Mrs. Conrad Kretzer and in charge of Ferguson Rennie, Jr. The machine which had been left in front of the hall rolled driverless down the hill and struck Mrs. Edwards who died from her injuries.

ASKS PAYMENTS FOR FURNISHING 6,604 MEALS

Damages of $2,000 are claimed by Lina Beckwith of New London in an action which she has brought in the superior court against Harriet J. Bishop of New London, administratrix of the estate of Julia L. Sistare. Plaintiff claims that from January 1, 1910 to January 1, 1928, at the request of the defendant's intestate, she furnished her 6,604 for which she was to be paid 25 cents a meal. Julia L. Sistare did not pay the plaintiff anything on account of the meals, although she promised to do so many times, either by wil or otherwise.

She died June 20, 1928 and the plaintiff duly presented her claim against the estate for $1,651. The administratrix wholly disallowed the claim.

WATER BOARD STARTS CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS

Condemnation proceedings have been started in the superior court by the board of water commissioners of the city of Norwich to secure for the use of the Deep River reservoir system a tract of land in Colchester owned by Sophia Skawinska, Joseph Polanski and Pavol Polanski. The water board has been unable to agree with the owners as to the amount of compensation to be paid for the land.

Judge Allyn L. Brown has ordered that a hearing be held on the matter in the superior court room in this city April 8th at 10 a. m.

ASKS $25,000 DAMAGES FOR HER INJURIES

Sadie Peck, of Lyme, seeks damages of $25,000 in a superior court action which she has brought against Morris Mallove, of New London. She claims that on Oct. 18, 1928, Maurice Peck, of Lyme, stopped his Overland automobile near "Austin's Corner" in Waterford for the purpose of filling his gasoline tank.

The plaintiff, who is the mother of Maurice Peck, was riding in the rear seat. A Chandler driven by the defendant ran into the Peck auto, the collision throwing the plaintiff from her seat against the front seat and the side of the machine, seriously injuring her. Her head was injured, her back wrenched, three ribs were broken, her hips were injured and she suffered a nervous and physical shock.

LOCAL MAN FAILED TO PAY INSTALLMENTS ON NOTE

Guiseppe Guastamachia and Franceska Guastamachia, of Norwich, have brought suit in the superior court against Rosario Perrone, also of Norwich, claiming damages of $3,000. The plaintiffs allege that June 13, 1928, the defendant promised to pay to the plaintiffs $2,650 as evidenced by his note of that date, in quarterly installments of $130 each, plus interest. On Dec. 13, 1928, the defendant failed to pay the installments and interest due at that time and the plaintiffs demanded of the defendant the sum due on the note, as by agreement, that in default of payment of any installment, the entire debt became due and payable.

FATHER AND TWO SONS ARE FINED

Found guilty of violation of the fish and game laws in setting steel traps Edward, Edward, Jr., and Victor Dupre, father and two sons of Taftville, were each fined $10 and costs in the city court Wednesday morning. The total bill amounted to $61.68. The trio was arrested Saturday by County Game Warden W. S. Watson, when he learned through Deputy George L. Bliven of North Franklin, that they failed to tend their traps every 24 hours. The traps were set near Fairview reservoir.

Professional jealousy plays havoc with many professed friendships.

MAN AND WIFE ASKS $40,000 DAMAGES

Two suits in which damages aggregating $40,000 are asked have been brought in the superior court against Arthur G. Sisson of Middletown, R. I., by Marianna Nichols and Joseph C. Nichols, husband and wife, of Groton. Mrs. Nichols asks damages of $30,000 and Mr. Nichols, $10,000. The papers in the suits were filed Wednesday with the clerk of the superior court in this city.

According to the complaint, on January 13, 1928, Mrs. Nichols alighted from a G. and S. Traction Co. trolley car which had stopped to discharge passengers on Thames street, Groton. As she was passing around the front of the trolley car she was hit by an automobile owned by the defendant and driven by Clarence H. Gilmore. She claims that Gilmore was proceeding recklessly at the time of the accident. She claims she was permanently injured.

On January 21st she brought suit in the superior court and on March 1st was rendered a judgment of $7,000 and her costs by the court. March 14th the judgment was reversed by the court for the reason that the officer to whom the writ and complaint were handed for service neglected to complete service on the defendant as required by law.

Mr. Nichols asks $10,000 claiming that because of his wife's injuries he has been and will be forced to lay out large sums of money for medicines, attendance, etc., and has been compelled to pay $6 weekly for rooming accommodations in lieu of hiring a housekeeping at his own home.

Member Phi Beta Kappa

At the annual Phi Beta Kappa exercises held recently in Brown university, Miss Bernice Church, a junior at Pembroke college, became a member of the fraternity. Initiation took place in the afternoon and the annual banquet was held in the evening at the Turks Head club room. Membership in the Phi Beta Kappa is the most coveted of undergraduate honors, and Miss Church is to be especially congratulated for having been initiated in her junior year. Since her entrance to Pembroke college, Miss Church has been doing most outstanding work and is at present on the dean's list of honor students, which allows unlimited cuts from classes. In her freshman year she was the only E. Benjamin Andrews honor scholar in her class and at the end of her sophomore year was awarded preliminary honors.

The Spanish club of the university of which Miss Church is president is planning to present three one-act plays in April. Miss Church is helping coach two of the plays and is taking the leading role in the third. Miss Church is majoring in romance languages and is at present doing honors work on the Oxford plan under the tutelage of Dr. William E. Fichter, world's authority on the Spanish drama.

About Feb. 23, 1929, the plaintiff was riding in an automobile on the New London-Norwich turnpike, owned and operated by C. F. Klinger. A Reo truck operated by the defendant collided with the machine in which the plaintiff was riding and the plaintiff was injured.

IDEAS FOR THE DYE-WISE

PRIZE LETTER FROM MIAMI, FLA.

Dyed 10 Garments —Spent 65 Cents

"I decided to try Sunset Dyes and Dytints. Having a faded blue crepe kimona, began on that with Bright Blue Sunset. It came out beautiful, bright, clear blue.

"With a camel's hair paint brush I renewed the blue flowers on my summer hat. I purchased one cake of Bright Blue Sunset, one cake of Heliotrope Sunset, one package Peach Dytint, one Blue Dytint for silk only. A discolored white Crepe Romaine dress was dipped into Peach Dytint. A rich peach color was obtained. Then a wash satin night gown and a pair of scanties went into the same bath and a beautiful color resulted.

"I tinted a white crepe de chine trimmed with white lace using Blue Dytint for silk only. The result was lovely. I put in a dotted swiss dress, faded blue dots on white; this weak bath just brought back their original blue. I dyed my faded blue georgette, using Blue Sunset with Heliotrope. This dress looks better than when new. I boiled a faded Swiss dress in soap solution to extract the original colors and tied knots in it. I dyed it with Bright Blue Sunset. The blue with white is very effective. I dyed a figured Crepe de Chine Heliotrope with a Blue cast.

"For sixty-five cents I have dyed one kimona, one night gown, one pair of scanties, six dresses, one hat."—Katharine G. Summerson, Miami, Fla.

For fast dyeing use Sunset Soap Dye—15 cents a cake. For beautiful tinting use Dytint, wonderful new tint, in big box, 10c.

DRY LAW VIOLATIONS CASES SWAMPING FEDERAL COURTS

President Hoover Has Requested Attorney General Mitchell to Institute an Investigation of the Work of U. S. Attorneys—Action is in Line With the President's Announced Intention For More Effective Law Enforcement—In 1928 Prohibition Cases Handled Totaled 58,429—This Represented an Increase of 15,000 Cases Over the 1927 Fiscal Year.

WASHINGTON, March 28—(AP)—President Hoover's announced intention for more effective law enforcement during his administration, was carried a step further today with the issuance of orders by Attorney-General Mitchell for an investigation of the work of U. S. attorneys throughout the country.

The order was issued at the request of the president himself and the inquiry was looked upon as supplemental to the work to be done by the commission to be appointed to investigate law enforcement in general. Mr. Mitchell emphasized that no one district attorney's office was being given special surveillance and that he hoped to ascertain how effectively the district attorneys were performing their duties.

At the end of the fiscal year 1928, the justice department reported a total of 30,305 criminal cases pending. Of this number 18,259 were criminal prohibition cases. During recent years a number of members of congress have called attention to the additional work the prohibition laws have placed upon both the prosecuting officers of the government and the federal judiciary.

While no mention was made of this in today's announcement, Mr. Mitchell did say that if it were found that more assistant district attorneys were needed, then congress would be requested to provide funds for additional prosecutors.

The 1928 department report disclosed that during the year 58,429 prohibition cases had been handled to decision while 55,729 new criminal prohibition cases had been instituted during the 12 months period. This represented an increase of 15,000 cases over the 1927 fiscal year.

At the end of 1928, a total of 147,142 cases were pending on the dockets of the U. S. courts, a decrease of only 2,150 from the preceding year. Of the total number pending, however, 39,000 were cases in which the U. S. was not interested.

At the start of 1929 it was said that approximately 21,000 prohibition cases were pending, an increase of approximately 3,000 in six months. Prohibition officials said that congestion in the courts was delaying trial of many persons charged with violating the prohibition law.

In addition to the criminal prohibition cases the government prosecutors last year handled 8,617 civil prohibition cases in which judgments totalling $382,853 were obtained and other civil cases which benefited the government by $50,590, were settled without court action.

Mr. Mitchell said he wished to know just what was required to bring about an improvement in the handling of the government's law business and just how far behind each prosecutor was in his work. Upon completion of the survey, he added, a report would be made to President Hoover.

The new attorney-general, although just announcing the survey today, said he had started work upon it the day of his induction into office.

ASKS RULING ON CONTROL OF PETROLEUM PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON, Mar. 28—(AP)—Secretary Wilbur of the Interior department announced tonight he had asked Attorney General Mitchell for an opinion as to the legality under the Sherman anti-trust act, as well as the Clayton act, of announced plans of the Petroleum institute for the control of petroleum production.

The secretary further announced he had inquired of the attorney general as to any possible powers of the federal oil conservation board in the control of petroleum production.

Mr. Wilbur also said it had been proposed that the president of the American Petroleum institute and the chairman of the general and regional committees of that institute come to Washington April 3, for a meeting with the federal oil conservation board.

A. P. WARNS OF FRAUDULENT SOLICITATION OF FUNDS

NEW HAVEN, March 28—(AP)—Attention of the regional bureau of the Associated Press in this city was directed today to efforts of individuals to solicit funds for various purposes, one of which was for a fund "to assist old-timers."

A man giving the name of Arnold appeared in Cromwell and sought funds for such a purpose.

The Associated Press does not solicit funds for any purpose whatever, has no canvassers nor any representatives carrying credentials to support any claims that they are engaged in collection of funds.

Warning is given against impostors who in seeking contributions of money represent themselves as employes of the Associated Press.

REPRESENTATIVE INDICTED FOR DRY LAW VIOLATION

TAMPA, Fla., March 28—(AP)—The Tampa Tribune tomorrow will say that Representative M. Alfred Michaelson, of the Seventh Illinois district, was indicted last October by a federal grand jury at Jacksonville on a charge of violating the prohibition law in smuggling into Florida from Cuba, but that no capias, or warrant of arrest has been served in the case.

The indictment charges, the newspaper will say, that Michaelson landed at Key West from Havana, his baggage being put through on an "expedite order" from Washington and that one bottle, breaking in a trunk at the railroad station at Jacksonville led to the seizure of the trunk by state officers, who, reporting to federal authorities, were instructed to turn it over to them for investigation and handling.

PLANE AND FOUR MEN MISSING ALMOST A WEEK

NEW YORK, March 28—(AP)—After almost a full week since its last flight, a huge twin-motored Amphibian airplane with four men aboard tonight was still on the list of aircraft that have mysteriously vanished.

The plane left Norfolk, Va., for New York at 5:45 a. m., last Friday with T. Raymond Finucane, wealthy Rochester sportsman, and three companions. No trace of it has been found by searching parties on the ground, by observers who rode the skies in commercial and army planes, a navy blimp, the dirigible Los Angeles or by ships at sea.

Clues have been given but they have been meagre and have led to nothing.

PULLMAN CAR PLUNGED DOWN AN EMBANKMENT

NORTH CHARLESTON, N. H., March 28—(AP)—A Boston & Maine passenger train, bound from Montreal to New York, left the rails a half mile south of the station here, today, causing a Pullman sleeping car to plunge down an embankment and injuring five persons slightly. None of the injured persons needed hospital treatment.

The train was made up of eight cars, all of which were derailed. Only the Pullman car went down the embankment, although three coaches rested on the edge of the bank. The other four cars carried milk, baggage, express and mail.

There were 45 passengers on the train, 24 of whom were in the sleeper.

STATE TAKES HAND IN CASE OF KILLING BY DRY AGENT

AURORA, Ill., March 28—(AP)—The state of Illinois today took a hand in the case of the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King in her home last Monday during a prohibition enforcement raid.

Attorney-General Oscar Carlstrom announced he would be present or would send a representative to the inquest into her death after he received a telegram from State's Attorney George D. Carbary asking him to take part in the investigation. The telegram said public feeling in Aurora was that his office could not act fairly and impartially in the matter.

Two other developments were noted today in the case which has attracted nation-wide attention and brought hundreds of letters of protest against the actions of the deputy sheriffs, who fractured Joseph De King's skull, shot his wife to death, and terrorized his 12-year-old son.

Roy Smith, deputy sheriff, who headed the raiding party and who fired the fatal shots, asked that he be removed from the hospital here to Elgin. It was said he feared mob violence and a posse of deputy sheriffs and friends accompanied him to the nearby city.

Shot in the leg by the De King boy, Smith has been in fear of blood poisoning and today his condition was said to be worse.

A NEW SOLO ENDURANCE FLIGHT RECORD CREATED

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., March 28—(AP)—Martin Jensen set a new solo endurance flight record of 35 hours, 33 minutes and 21 seconds today, beating the time of the late Royal V. Thomas by eight minutes and 22 seconds.

When he landed at 5:34:55 o'clock this afternoon, his tanks held just one gallon of the high test automobile gasoline he used during the flight to prove the efficacy of such fuel.

Jensen won the record only by the fact that the National Aeronautic association does not list solo records, although they supervise and officially time them. To beat a record recognized by the N. A. A., a flier has to exceed the previous official mark by at least one hour.

Ever since he left the ground, 6:01:34 o'clock yesterday morning, Jensen said, the air was exceedingly bumpy, and to this he attributed the rapid exhaustion of his fuel supply. He expressed the belief that if he had had smooth air he could have stayed up for at least 40 hours.

DROP IN CALL MONEY STEADIES STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 28—(AP)—Call money dropped today from 15 to 8 per cent and the stock market, which had passed through one of the most drastic reactions in its history when the rate was boosted to 20 per cent on Tuesday, indulged in another spectacular rally which carried scores of issues up $3 to $17.25 a share. Based on the Associated Press and other leading indices, the market has fully recovered all the ground lost earlier in the week, although the losses of thousands of speculators who sold on the decline ran into millions of dollars.

A Decisive Battle Is Imminent In Mexico

Movement of Rebels South Has Narrowed the Gap Between the Contending Armies.

By The Associated Press

Federal occupation of former insurgent headquarters at Escalon and big rebel troop movements south from Juarez toward the Chihuahua front have narrowed the gap between the contending armies and made imminent a decisive battle.

Federal cavalry occupied Escalon after a fight with rebel rear guard forces in which four rebels were killed and two federals wounded.

Rebel officials at Juarez declared General Escobar, their chief, was "ready to fight near Jiminez," and vehemently denied that insurgent troops were evacuating the town.

They prophesied that the major battle of the revolution would be fought within the next 24 hours.

Federal air scouts reported to General Calles that rebel troops were retreating from Jiminez northwest to Santa Rosalia on the route to Chihuahua City. General Calles thought the federals might occupy Jiminez without a fight.

Other rebel chiefs indicated that Escobar might move a few miles north so that a battle should not be fought in the town itself.

Strict censorship over all telegraph lines south of Juarez in rebel control hid principal developments in the main revolutionary camp.

A series of "surprises" for the federals was promised by the rebel staff in Juarez. A rebel aircraft offensive and a flank attack in the vicinity of Escalon were forecast among these "surprises" which rebels thought would be decisive.

New bombing planes were said to have been converted or acquired by the insurgents.

General Almazan's main force has advanced to Jaral Grande a short distance southeast of Escalon. Almazan expected to be in readiness for an advance on Jiminez late yesterday.

Federals were victorious in a short fight across the international line from Sasabe, Ariz., capturing a small rebel post at Mesquite which is 30 miles west of Nogales Sonora. The rebel soldiers were driven across the border where a U. S. immigration official interned them.

THREE MEX. SOLDIERS KILLED BY EXPLOSION OF BOMBS

CALEXICO, Cal., March 28—(AP)—Three Mexican soldiers, a German bomb maker and the latter's daughter, were killed late today by the explosion of nine kegs of explosives and thirty aerial bombs stored in a brick ammunition building at the Mexican federal garrison at Mexicali, across the border line.

The soldiers killed were Mexican guards posted at the ammunition building which was situated on the Packard ranch of the Colorado River Land company, five miles east of Mexicali proper. The Mexican federal government several days ago obtained permission to use the building for storage of war materials. Francisco Kenneth was the bomb maker killed in the explosion.

MEXICAN REBELS STAGE FIRST BOMBING RAID

JUAREZ, March 28—(AP)—Mexican rebels staged their first bombing raid today, attacking Bermejillo, Chihuahua, where ex-President Calles is thought to have established headquarters for an advancing federal army.

Having concealed their strength for some time, rebel leaders dispatched two rebel bombers, escorted by several pursuit planes.

The fliers left Jiménez early this afternoon, returning about two hours later. They reported that their bombs had done considerable damage and caused consternation among the federals.

MEXICO CITY, March 28—(AP)—A report published in the Boston Traveler yesterday that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his fiancee, Miss Anne Morrow, had decided to be married on June 9 at the Morrow summer home in North Haven, Me., was denied today in authoritative quarters.

The date and place of the wedding have not been decided and a formal announcement will be made when they are, it was said.

Big Ice Gorge Shows Signs Of Weakening

Thirty Men With 10,000 Pounds of Dynamite to Attack Gorge in Missouri River.

BISMARCK N. D., March 28—(AP)—After having defied all efforts of army engineers for nearly a week, one of the mightiest ice gorges on record in this section of the Missouri river showed signs of weakening tonight. Water was pouring through the middle of the ice pack and around its sides, gradually taking out huge floes and relieving flood conditions in the bottom lands between here and Huff, 25 miles south where the gorge formed a week ago.

This development, O. W. Roberts, federal meteorologist said indicated that the break-up of the gorge had started. The water level at Bismarck had dropped to 14.7 feet tonight, three tenths of a foot below flood stage and Roberts said the river would continue to recede as more water was escaping below the gorge than was coming in above.

Despite this optimistic belief, army engineers, under Major G. R. Young continued their assault on the ice barrier which backed up the "Big Muddy" until it had reached a width of 17 miles at one point and flooded thousands of acres of farming land. Roberts estimated that 100,000 acres had been damaged.

A crew of 30 men left for the base of the gorge late this afternoon, taking with them 10,000 pounds of dynamite with which they planned to blast away the ice on the west bank below Mandan. About 1,000 pounds of explosives were fired yesterday in attempts to loosen the jam, but without appreciable effect.

No lives have been lost or even endangered with the exception of the men who faced death in scrambling over honeycombed ice in the attempts to dynamite the gorge yesterday.

IMPEACHMENT HEARING OF GOV. LONG SET FOR MONDAY P. M.

BATON ROUGE, La., March 28—(AP)—Gov. Huey P. Long struck back today at those who are seeking his impeachment, and added bribery to the charges which have come into the flood light through activities of the Louisiana legislature.

While the house was arranging details for the start of hearings on the impeachment Monday night, the 26-year-old governor today made the charge that legislators had been bribed by the Standard Oil company to oppose his proposed oil tax.

These fresh charges staggered this picturesque and ancient capital: already agog with sensation over the charges against their governor, who is accused in the cold terms of the impeachment resolution of plotting murder and of eighteen official irregularities, large and small.

By unanimous vote the state senate adopted a resolution demanding that the governor name the legislators whom he said accepted bribes and name the oil company financial agents charged with paying the bribes. A circular issued by the state highway department, entitled Cross of Gold: Standard Oil Company vs. Huey P. Long was presented to the senate and it immediately adopted the resolution. Late today the governor had not furnished the names.

The session of the house was swift and to the point. It brushed aside a Long supporter, who attempted to invoke a rule holding the impeachment proceedings out of order, appointed a committee of 12 men to draft rules of procedure, agreed to have 12 official questioners of witnesses, set Monday night at 8 o'clock as the time to start the impeachment hearing and adjourned until next week.

BRITISH SHIP I'M ALONE WAS LEGALLY PURSUED AND SUNK

WASHINGTON, March 28—(AP)—The coast guard announced today that it had received information from "responsible officials" at New Orleans not belonging to its own service corroborating its original position that the Canadian rum-runner I'm Alone had been legally pursued and sunk.

The names of the officials referred to were not disclosed in the coast guard statement, which said there was no doubt that the I'm Alone was within 12 miles of the coast and, under American statutes, the coast guard has jurisdiction over these waters. Further, it was added, there was no doubt that a hot and continuous pursuit existed from the time the vessel first was sighted until she was sunk by gun-fire.

These are two of the most important points to be determined in the consideration of the case. The state department late today forwarded to the Canadian embassy a copy of the coast guard report on the sinking. A reply to the Canadians had been delayed since the coast guard's preliminary reports did not satisfy the state department. In addition the department had hesitated to take definite action pending the induction into office of Secretary of State Stimson, who must shape the American government's policy as soon as he has had time to study the situation.

He was taken to his office, where he agreed to a plan whereby the prorogation could proceed. The lieutenant governor died as arrangements were being made to carry out the plan.

ARMY NON-RIGID DIRIGIBLE BADLY DAMAGED BY WIND

Airship Was Being Brought to the Ground at Lakehurst When a Gust of Wind Threw It Up Into the Air, Dragging Men of the Landing Crew Several Hundred Feet—The Envelope of the Dirigible Was Badly Torn and the Frame Metal Work Was Twisted—Two Men Were Injured Slightly.

LAKEHURST, N. J., March 28—(AP)—Whirled nearly a mile by a high wind, the army's non-rigid dirigible TC-5 was badly damaged late today in a crash near the Lakehurst railroad station. Two men were injured slightly. Captain John McCullough, in command of the ship, and a seaman member of the landing crew of the naval air station here.

The accident occurred as the dirigible was being brought to the ground a second time and the land force of 100 men was preparing to walk the ship to the hangar. The blimp was about a quarter mile away from the sled when a gust of wind caught it and partly ripped one of the bags. Straining to break away, a second gust threw it up into the air and dragged men several hundred feet.

Captain McCullough had stepped out of the ship just before the wind took hold and together with the seaman he was hauled about and received scratches and bruises.

As it broke away the rip cord controlling the amount of helium gas in the bags became caught emptying them and allowing the wind to tear at the frabric. When it came down it was found the envelope had been badly torn, the frame and metal work twisted.

The ship was on a training flight from Langley field and was carrying Warant Officer Lassiter and a crew of three men all of whom were unhurt in the wild dash across the station hangar.

A $15,000,000 REWARD FOR CAREFUL AUTO DRIVERS

HARTFORD, March 28—(AP)—The careful automobile driver is to have his reward under a plan accepted by leading insurance companies to distribute $15,000,000 among operators of privately-owned vehicles who have established safety records within the last two years.

This announcement was made known today, the distribution to be made in the form of ten per cent reduced rates to be given on liability and property damage insurance. Only those who can show that they have not been convicted of driving while under the influence of liquor, reckless driving, evading responsibility following an accident, or have not had their driving licenses suspended or revoked, will benefit under the plan.

The figure of $15,000,000 is based on the present number of automobile owners now insured and on the per cent of those who should be able to comply with the specified qualifications. The plan is not limited to present policy holders inasmuch as any car owner that can meet the qualifications will be able to obtain the ten per cent reduction.

BANDIT WAS KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

WOONSOCKET, R. I., March 28—(AP)—At least one of the three occupants of the automobile which was wrecked here early today against a telegraph pole, two of whom were killed, had a police record, according to local authorities tonight.

Through fingerprints, police said, Frank Christie, one of the men killed, was identified as the man who, under the name of Christy Gouras, was arrested in Boston in 1919 on a robbery charge. According to the record he defaulted. The records also showed he was arrested in New Bedford in 1927 for obstructing justice. A loaded revolver was found in Christie's clothing when his body and that of George Poulos were extricated from the wreckage.

In one of Poulos' pockets was found a package of sulphur match heads, sometimes used, the police say, in blowing safes.

SPANISH AVIATORS HAVE ARRIVED AT RIO DE JANEIRO

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 28—(AP)—Captains Jimenez and Iglesias this afternoon reached the goal toward which they headed their plane when they took off from Seville, Spain, last Sunday and received as tumultuous a welcome as if they had not been forced by shortage of gasoline to come down at Bahia, 800 miles north of their objective.

More than 2,000 persons had traveled the 18 miles out to the field in automobiles and trains. OKLAHOMA CITY, March 28—(AP)—A whirlwind finish of impeachments was entered upon today by the Oklahoma legislature as it neared the end of a session which has been prolific in accusations against state officials and resulted in the removal of Governor Henry S. Johnston.

Although both bodies of the legislature agreed today to adjourn Saturday, the house of representatives continued its investigating and impeachment activities. The house investigating committee voted an impeachment charge against Fred Capshaw, member of the state corporation commission, and had before it an identical charge against Charles C. Childers, chairman of the commission. It also was expected to consider a charge against Harry B. Cordell, president of the state board of agriculture.

Purport of One Note Left By Mrs. Jackson Was To Exonerate Rice

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 28—It was learned on good authority here today that one of the two notes turned over to Attorneys W. A. King and Samuel B. Harvey by Coroner Arthur G. Bill, was an attempt on the part Mrs. Jackson to exonerate Rice and the other was a note of encouragement to Rice himself.

The principal note addressed to Mr. King was an attempt on the part of Mrs. Jackson to exonerate Rice from the actual killing by assuming responsibility for the murder of her husband and giving some detail as to the manner in which this was accomplished. It is learned on good authority that the the details of the killing given by Mrs. Jackson are not consistent with the events just preceding the crime as disclosed through the investigations of the state.

Inserted in the note to Mr. King there was a much shorter note directed to Trenor A. Rice, being held at the county jail on indictment for the murder of Jackson, the sense of the note being that Mrs. Jackson hoped that Rice would be cleared and that he would "get out and be the same as ever." The note was signed with an endearing term by "Gert."

CORONER BILL QUESTIONS ACTION OF JUDGE YEOMANS

PROVIDENCE, March 28—(AP)—Coroner Arthur G. Bill, of Danielson, who today turned over to counsel for Trenor A. Rice copies of two notes written before her suicide by Gertrude Jackson, widow of the Willimantic detective for whose murder Rice is awaiting trial, tonight questioned the right of Judge Edward M. Yeomans to issue the mandatory injunction under which the notes were turned over.

"I don't think the judge had the authority to order me to turn the notes over," Coroner Bill asserted. "The matter will be threshed out on the second Tuesday in May, when the writ is returnable."

Coroner Bill said that he and State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford would probably appear in court to contest Judge Yeomans' action. In the meantime, Coroner Bill asserted, a gentleman's agreement exists between William A. King and Samuel B. Harvey, counsel for Rice, and Mr. Bradford not to make the contents of the suicide note public before Rice goes on trial early next month.

KING AND HARVEY FREE TO GIVE OUT CONTENTS OF MRS. JACKSON'S NOTES

PROVIDENCE, March 28—(AP)—William A. King and Samuel B. Harvey, counsel for Trenor A. Rice, Willimantic special deputy sheriff accused of the murder of Windham County Detective William E. Jackson, are free to divulge the contents of Mrs. Jackson's suicide notes if they choose to do so, State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, of Putnam said tonight.

Informed that Coroner Arthur G. Bill, who turned copies of the notes over to defense counsel under a mandatory injunction today, had expressed the opinion that an understanding existed between lawyers in the case that the notes should not be made public Mr. Bradford said that he had not conferred with either Mr. King or Mr. Harvey as to this aspect of the case.

Mr. Bradford said that he was not certain he would contest the action of Judge Edward M. Yeomans in issuing today's injunction.

REPARATIONS COMMISSION ADJOURNS FOR HOLIDAYS

PARIS, March 28—(AP)—The reparations commission adjourned today for the Easter holidays with their next meeting scheduled for Thursday, April 4, when it is probable that the delegates will get down to discussion of the actual annuities figures.

It is now nearing the end of the seventh week of the experts' discussions and observers are somewhat puzzled as to why the delegates have been unable to come to a close discussion on Germany's terms of payment yet it seems unquestionable in view of the positive statements of important members that the Easter recess was taken without the committee dealing directly with figures.

SALE OF $10,000,000 CHAIN CANDY STORE BUSINESS

NEW YORK, March 28—(AP)—A $10,000,000 chain store candy business founded 50 years ago by George W. Loft passed today from the control of his family. An opposing group of stockholders took advantage of its stock holdings to oust George Leon Loft, son of the founder, from the presidency, electing its own directors.

The stockholders committee was headed by O. E. Dunham, president of Page & Shaw company, another candy concern. Dunham heads the new board of directors.

MRS. S. E. CULVER OBSERVES 98TH BIRTHDAY TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 28—In observing her 98th birthday Friday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Loretta Oatley, and nephew, George L. Lewis, of 457 Main street, Mrs. Susan Elizabeth Wilson Culver will gain the distinction of being the oldest person in the town of Windham.

The Culver family resided in Marlborough at one time, where Mrs. Culver attended the grade school. They later moved to Vernon when Mrs. Culver was ten years of age and where she went to work in Dobson's "duck" cloth mill. At a tender age she operated a loom for weaving duck cloth.

When 19 years of age she married Edward Culver, a resident of North Coventry. The ceremony was performed at Dobsonville, town of Vernon, on March 30, 1850. Mr. and Mrs. Culver took up their abode in the Jillson settlement of Willimantic River, as this city was then called. The settlement was named after the Jillson brothers who had two mills on the river front and on the site of the present huge American Thread company plant. Mrs. Culver worked as a duck cloth weaver for the Jillsons and later continued in the employment of the old Willimantic Linen company, successors of the Jillsons, for many years. Mr. Culver, who was a veteran of the Civil war, died 16 years ago. No children were born to them, but Mrs. Culver has relationship with five generations, having great-grand-nephews and nieces. When Mrs. Culver came to reside here 75 years ago she found that the inhabitants were mainly descendants of Revolutionary stock. There were only 20 Irish families and no French-speaking people. In one of the rooms of the house in which she lives the first mass for Roman Catholics in Willimantic was celebrated on Easter Sunday, 1848, the house being one of ten comprising the old Jillson settlement.

Mrs. Culver enjoys excellent health and has never suffered from dangerous illness. Her hearing is perfect and her eyesight good. She easily reads ordinary print with the assistance of spectacles. She is a music-lover and can render several snappy tunes on the piano, although the accordion is her favorite instrument, and on this she plays a number of late hits.

While but two years from the century mark, Mrs. Culver says that there is no secret to longevity but to drink a glass of hot water each morning upon arising and in keeping up an active interest in the "doings" of the day. She does not approve of short skirts but has adopted the bobbed hair style on the grounds that it helps to keep the hair thick. She experiences no difficulty in partaking of the same food as serves the general diet of the family. Friday, Mrs. Culver will entertain a number of old acquaintances, and undoubtedly she will be asked to recall old incidents. She has a remarkable memory and can tell of happenings during the presidency of John Tyler in 1841.

At the session of police court this morning, Judge F. H. Foss imposed a sentence of six months, with the alternative of posting a bond of $300, in the continued case of Ovila Martin of this city. The bond is to provide payment of $12 a week for the support of his family. Martin pleaded nolo contendre through his counsel, Attorney A. T. Kelley. Mrs. Martin testified that she thought $20 a week would support herself and their two children, but Martin testified that his present earnings would not allow such a payment, although he would be willing to increase the payments when business conditions improved in taxi work. Judge Foss stated that there had not been any evidence introduced to show that Martin could pay more than $12 a week. The couple have been separated for several weeks and it was stated that Martin had been faithful in giving $12 a week for the support of the family. Two intoxication cases were disposed of by the imposition of a suspended 30-day jail sentence in one and a fine of $2 and costs in the other.

Andover experienced a severe electrical storm shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon, with rain falling in veritable torrents. Lightning struck a tree on the north bank of Andover lake and split it several feet above the butt. During the storm at Andover, this city, nine miles distant, was pitched into darkness that necessitated the use of lights in buildings and on automobiles. The storm veered to the east and had passed the city at 1:30 o'clock. Comparatively little rain fell here although considerable thunder and lightning was in evidence. With the passing of the storm the mercury dropped to 48 degrees.

Cars owned by Amsy Taylor of Star route, this city, and Albany Herdman of 119 Oak street collided with some damage resulting, at the junction of North and Main streets shortly before 10 o'clock Wednesday evening. The drivers agreed to settle, in reporting the accident to Officer Leo Piche.

A number of new cottages will be included in the reopening program at Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry, these having been built since last fall on the Manchester colony at the upper end of the lake and on the reservation supervised by Albert J. Piche and Henry J. Mathieu of this city. A new record was established during the past winter in that none of the lake cottages were broken into by either thieves or persons seeking temporary shelter. An examination of nearly all of the 200 or more cottages at the lake failed to disclose any breaks. It is recalled that several arrests were made during the past few winters in connection with breaks into the lake homes. The lake waters are high at present but are expected to return to normal level later in the spring.

The services of Mrs. Thomas Welles of South Coventry have been secured by the music committee of the Congregational church as organist and choir director. Mrs. Welles, who does considerable school work and private teaching, will form a volunteer choir of mixed voices.

GOVERNMENT AUCTION—NEW LONDON BUYER

Unusual activity attended the bankruptcy sale, conducted Thursday afternoon, by the U. S. government's official auctioneer, Mr. Wakely of New Haven. The stock and fixtures in a Main street haberdashery were closed out to the highest bidder, a New London buyer for $1,225. Prospective buyers from out of town hailed from New Haven, Hartford, Bridgeport, New London and Springfield. The official appraisal figures turned in two weeks ago were $1,210.

The crowd attending filled the salesroom, with an overflow on the street. No sale of this character with a federal auctioneer has been held here within 50 years. Stocks of less than $500 value are sold by the local sheriff.

Noonday Darkness

The weather dispenser for this section, Thursday, served a mixture of all sorts. A drizzly morning, shot with occasional shafts of sunshine, culminated shortly after 1 p. m. in a brisk electrical shower. Preceding the shower, the mid-day darkness was about as black as can be remembered. Houses and stores were lighted, while traffic on the state road for a full 30 minutes proceeded under night regulations of headlights and tail markers.

Following the thunder shower, stiff winds and overcast sky with now and then a burst of sunshine, kept pedestrians and traffic guessing the balance of the day.

Banks, Schools Close

With the exception of the banks and library all business in the borough will proceed as usual today, (Good Friday).

The white-throated sparrow is reported and it is well worth while to make the woodland trip that will be necessary to meet this handsome gentleman all gay in his nuptial finery. One must not only look for the square white patch on his throat, but should observe the yellow line before the eye and on the bend of his wing.

If a chance traveler afield should be sufficiently fortunate to come upon the tiny grass trimed residence of Mr. and Mrs. White-throat, then a rare sight is in store, for the four bluish-white eggs finely striped with reddish brown, are in the A dainty class.

A monument, once a landmark of Strasbourg and a sign of German reign over the Alsace, will soon be taken back to the fatherland. The city fathers of Munich have received word that the municipality of Strasbourg, Alsace, is ready to comply with their request and let them have the monument of "Father Rhine" which until Alsace was ceded to France, had its place on the Broglie Square at Strasbourg. Shortly after occupying the town, the French authorities ordered "Father Rhine" to be removed together with a number of other German monuments. The city of Munich intends to set up the repatriated monument in one of its most prominent squares.

JACKSON NOTES NOT TO BE GIVEN TO THE PUBLIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 28—There will be no immediate release of the contents of the notes found on the person of Mrs. Gertrude Jackson, of Willimantic after her suicide. Coroner Arthur G. Bill said this afternoon. Notwithstanding the fact that under the terms of a temporary injunction issued by Judge E. M. Yeomans of the superior court he gave copies of the notes to Attorney William A. King and Attorney Samuel B. Harvey, counsel for Deputy Sheriff Trenor L. Rice, this morning. Coroner Bill said this afternoon that by agreement between the state attorney, Howard C. Bradford, Messrs. King and Harvey and himself, the contents of the notes would not be given to the newspapers at the present time nor would he indicate when they might be released for publication. In legal circles this afternoon there was interest in the fact that an injunction was used to get copies of the notes for defense counsel, rather than the more usual mandamus proceedings, under which the coroner would have been ordered into court and thereby obliged to give out the contents of the notes to defense counsel.

Coroner Holds Inquest.

Six witnesses appeared before Coroner Arthur G. Bill at his office here this morning in the inquest having to do with the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bingham of West Hartford in an automobile accident on the Willimantic-Chaplin state highway a few days ago. All of these had intimate knowledge of certain happenings or circumstances dealing immediately with the accident or relative to the injuries of Mr. and Mrs Bingham. Mr. Bill said that the inquest is incomplete and that he will question one more man, who will come here from Providence within a few days, before making his finding.

Mr. and Mrs. Bingham are understood to have been possessed of considerable wealth. As they died in the same accident, it is of great importance to ascertain which died first in order that it may be judicially determined how that wealth shall be distributed. Coroner Bill said this morning that in cases like this it is the rule to assume they died simultaneously, unless there is evidence to the contrary. In this case there appears to be such evidence, indicating that Mrs. Bingham was the first to die. A report after the accident, as recalled, stated that Mr. Bingham, pinned beneath the heavy overturned car, said to those who first came to his assistance that his wife was inside the machine. While Coroner Bill did not say so directly today, it is believed that the evidence shows that she was dead when Mr. Bingham revealed that he had not been alone in the car at the time of the accident and requested those who came to aid him to get her out of the machine.

It was announced this afternoon that Raymond Allen will be the speaker at the sunrise service at the Baptist church on Sunday morning at 6.30, this service being the sequel to services that have been held during Holy week at the Baptist church under the auspices of the Tri-Y and Hi-Y and which have been attended by so many young people. Good Friday morning, when the service at the Baptist church is to be hld at 10.30, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord will be the speaker.

A bronze tablet affixed to a boulder was dedicated in Plainfield today by members of Deborah Avery Putnam chapter, D. A. R., commemorating the historical facts that troops of Rochambeau's army encamped on territory near where the tablet has been placed during the Revolution. Miss Katherine Nettleton, state regent, and Miss Emeline Street, state vice-regent attended the ceremonies. Members of the chapter and their guests later were entertained by Miss Dorothy Atwood at her home in Wauregan.

The inscription on the tablet is:

In June 1781, French officers with Rochambeau's army were entertained here on the march from Providence to Yorktown.

On the "plains" one half mile west, the French army encamped and on the return march in 1782, again passed through the town.

Five hundred feet north is the secon site of the First Congregational church, occupied from 1720 to 1784.

Four hundred and fifty feet south stands the parsonage of Rev. Jeel Benedict, fourth minister of the church, 1784-1816.

Samuel Fox, a colonial purchasing agent for the Continental army, representative to the legislature, incorporator and trustee of Plainfield academy, owned and occupied the "parsonage" from 1775 to 1779.

Included in the many suggestions that are being made just now in relation to town economies is one that the town should buy two or three trucks suitable for use in doing highway work instead of hiring them. It is held that while the original investment would represent a considerable sum of money that a good saving would result over present truck costs during the life of the trucks. The point is made that trucks hired by the town must of necessity be operated at a profit to their owners and that if the town had its own trucks it would save that profit. The matter is one likely to be before the town for consideration at some future meeting.

Press despatches of the week stating that French-Canadians who have not become American citizens may be in danger of deportations has unset numbers of them subject to that liability in this territory. This is due largely to the fact that it has not been made sufficiently clear to them that if they present themselves at the border for examination they will be immediately certified for readmission. It is if they fail to do this they may be deported and never again allowed to re-enter this country.

Much of the unrest is due to the fact that the arrangement is certain to create much expense and inconvenience for a great number of people in this section of eastern Connecticut. Danielson has numbers of Canadian families who have come here within the past few years. They have relatives in Canada, and some of them make a yearly practice of returning to the Dominion to visit with them. If the proposed arrangement is pressed it is going to make it very inconvenient for these people, as it already is a source of worry for them.

PUTNAM

LOCAL FRENCH PEOPLE NOT ALARMED OVER NEW LAW

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 28—While there is a considerable amount of anxiety existing among a great many of the French-Canadian residents of the state, because the immigration laws which will take effect July 1, subjecting thousands of aliens and many of the French-Canadian race to deportation unless the necessary credentials can be shown, there is little alarm felt among the members of this nationality residing in this city. A. A. Brodeur, president of the Franco-American republican clubs of the state said this afternoon that the amended immigration act as signed by Former President Coolidge is being given little attention by the French in this city, there are few who will be affected, after the new code takes effect. Mr. Brodeur intimated that many of his fellowmen will be subjected to the penalty of deportation throughout the state at large. In each case, assistance will be rendered in an effort to trace the legal entry into the country of each person in question.

In Putnam the greater portion of the population is made up of citizens of French-Canadian descent, only a few of whose parents have not as yet taken out the naturalization papers, or who have not filed their intentions of becoming citizens.

Hundreds atended a solemn high mass celebrated at St. Mary's church this morning in honor of the institution of the Sacrament of Holy Eucharist. The mass was celebrated by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, assisted by Father Casey and Father Boileau, curates at the church, as deacon and sub deacon. The alter of the church was adorned with flowers for the first time since Ash Wednesday in commemoration of the institution of the host. A procession of the three dignateries of the church, lead by a number of alter boys, in which the sacrament was exposed throughout, was lead throughout the church.

Tomorrow (Good Friday) at three o'clock the way of the cross will be made. This service will constitute the only observance on this day. The resurrection will be observed in St. Mary's with special services of music at each mass. At 10.30 o'clock the Gregorian royal mass by the male choir will be sung. At 9:15 o'clock a special service of music will be rendered for the Korman mass in F to sung by the members of the choir, assisted by a symphony orchestra under the direction of Joseph Belair, Miss Rose Metras will at the organ.

On Easter Sunday at the Congregational church and Easter sunrise service will be conducted by the Young Peoples forum. At 10.45 a. m. Rev. James F. English, pastor of the church will speak on "The Place of Immortality in Daily Life." The combined Junior choir will sing "Awake Thou That Sleepest" (Maker); "Calvary" (Rodney-Rhys-Herbert); "God Hath Appointed A Day," (Tours).

At 8 o'clock Sunday evening the presentation of the religious drama "St. Claudia," will take place. The drama depicting the trial, conviction and resurrection of Christ will be presented by the members of the Young Peoples forum.

Though the Connecticut State boxing commission has settled the differences that have existed for nearly a year in regards to amateur bouts, there will not be resumption of the "amateurs" in Putnam, according to one of the officials of the Putnam Sporting club. At least the fights will not be started right away. This form of pastime, until the intervention of the state officials, proved to be one of the biggest drawing cards in the city, and each series of contests were witnessed by capacity houses. Daniel J. Trudeau, an associate promoter of the former sport organization, said today that he hoped to see the amateur boxing classics take place in the sporting circles next fall, but until that time, he was of the opinion that no attempts would be made to finance a boxing show by the Putnam Sporting club.

There is every evidence that Priest's island, situated on the old lake road about two miles south of this city, now a state park will be one of the most popular resorts in this section of the county this year. The island about 35 acres square and covered with a growth of immense and stately pine trees has been made accessable from the highway by means of a cable suspension bridge, over Quinebaug river. Already many of tourists are stopping near the island, crossing the river and tramping about the beautiful tract of land.

HOOVER TO THE SOUTH.

In the spring of the year it is time for house cleaning. This applies to more than the housewives as President Hoover has had occasion to point out. He believes and declares that there should be a housecleaning in the republican organizations in the southern states. Conditions there are not what they ought to be. They have been the subject of criticism and those criticisms have reflected upon public service because it was through the manner in which patronage had been dealt with by those organizations that objections were raised.

Thus in behalf of public service, in behalf of the people of the south and in behalf of the party, President Hoover declares the intolerable conditions must end, and in that declaration he may be taking an unusual course but there is no doubt but what it will be heartily endorsed.

As the result of the last election it has been evident that conditions in the southern states have changed. States which never voted anything but democratic swung into the republican column. Perhaps they will claim that they went into the Hoover column but there was an upset that was history making. Because of the change there was a belief that the south might find a seat in the cabinet, or that it would come in for more attention appointmentwise. Apparently it is the belief of the president that the conditions there do not warrant any such move until something has been done to correct those "recent exposures of abuse in recommendations for federal office, particularly in some parts of the states of South Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi, under which some of the federal departments, mainly the post office, were misled in appointments" and conditions are made such that the old organizations in those states can command the confidence of the administration.

We see the president dealing with cold facts in a straight forward manner. He calls for a reorganization which should not be delayed. He aims to end the abuses and to get the party organization in the southern states where it will be above the criticisms of the past. None was ever in a better position to make a stronger appeal.

ENDING THE COMPETITION.

The government has this week sold one of its vessels for $90,000 which has been out of service since 1922. This is one of the merchantmen for which there has been no demand though there has been a desire to dispose of them and relieve the burden which they imposed upon the government.

In these days such a sum would not go very far in the construction of such a vessel. The amount does not represent anywhere near what the vessel cost, but it is a good decision that it is much better for the government to have the $90,000 and the vessel refitted for use than it is to have it deteriorating under disuse.

This marks another but gradual move toward the day when the government will get out of the shipping business. It is a good sign when private capital shows an interest in acquiring these ships for it means that an opportunity is seen to do an increased shipping business with ships flying the American flag. This comes after provision has been made by congress for giving aid to private enterprise in the way of loans, an encouragement that should be advantageous to all concerned.

With more private capital interested in shipping, with more ships put into service and more ships being built or contracted for, there are evidences that the moves on the part of the government to end the competition with those engaged in the shipping business are appreciated. The one great trouble is that it has been too long in developing.

PENNSYLVANIA AWAKENS.

Pennsylvania has been doing a lot of backing and filling concerning the coal tax, the repeal of which is now being urged almost as strongly from within the state as from without. It is recognized that it has had a detrimental effect upon the hard coal industry. That effect has reacted upon the state for whatever hampers the industry of Pennsylvania reduces employment and business.

If there was any doubt as to what the sentiment of Pennsylvania is upon this matter it must have been removed by the expressions before the legislative committee of that state relative to the measure. There representatives from New England were joined by hundrds from the Keystone state in urging the repeal. It was such a convincing demonstration that the committee reported in favor of the repeal.

Pennsylvania applied this tax for the purpose of raising revenue. It has been receiving about $5,000,000 a year since and when it terminates the tax it reduces its revenue. It is therefore well aware of the fact that inasmuch as it is unwilling to curb any of its activities that additional revenue must come from some other source if the coal tax is removed. Thus far no provision has been made to meet that situation, although the suggestion has been made that there be an increase in the tax on gasoline.

Inasmuch as the coal tax was applied to road construction there would certainly be more justification for the raising of the gasoline tax, imposed as it probably is upon the highway users of the state. The coal tax strikes the coal consumers, those outside of the state who depend upon that commodity for fuel but have no connection whatever with the highways of the state. On the other hand a gas tax means that those who use the highways meet the cost of construction and maintenance and this applies to those who motor in Pennsylvania whether they are residents of the state or not. For the special benefits they receive the highway users pay the toll.

Pennsylvania sees the need of bidding for a return to the use of hard coal by many who have adopted other fuels. It recognizes its mistake and is attempting to overcome it though it must recognize that it has lost business which can never be recovered.

KELLOGG AS SECRETARY.

In concluding his duties as a member of the cabinet, having held over into the term of President Hoover because of the inability of Secretary Stimson to return to this country from the Philippines in time, Frank B. Kellogg ends a conspicuous service in the important office of secretary of state.

Though he was born in New York he has spent the most of his life in the state of Minnesota and came into special notice as a lawyer from the manner in which he served as special counsel for the government in trust-busting activities during the Roosevelt administration. Later he served a term in the United States senate and following that was named as ambassador to the court of St. James at London where he served with such distinction that upon the retirement of Charles Evans Hughes from the post of secretary of state, after a most conspicuous service, he was made his successor.

During his four years in the cabinet he has been confronted with plenty of problems but it will have to be admitted that he has met them in a highly efficient and commendable manner. Perhaps there have been other administrations in which more attention has been directed to the negotiation of treaties but if there be so Mr. Kellogg closes his service as secretary with the distinction of having negotiated more with foreign countries than was done by William Jennings Bryan when he was in that office. Particularly prominent in that connection was the treaty which bears his name, the Kellogg treaty renouncing war, the real benefits of which may be more apparent in the years to come. Significance now attaches to the fact that it was possible to bring the leading nations of the world to enter into any such agreement.

A president places much dependence upon his secretary of state. President Coolidge owed much to his advice in handling international problems and it is significant that his secretaryship closed with such a spirit of improved friendliness in both hemispheres.

NEAR EAST HELP.

The time hasn't come though it is approaching when there can be a decided decrease in the work of administering relief in the near east. Under the aid which have been made possible by funds which have been provided by this country great benefits have been received by the destitute and homeless whose condition was created by the ravages of war in that region.

During the 14 years that this relief has been provided there has been given and spent a sum in the neighborhood of $100,000,000. This has resulted in furnishing the necessities for thousands upon thousands of helpless persons and particularly children. They have been carried over most uncertain times and brought to the point where they can provide for themselves.

That the work has not been completed in keeping with the plans is indicated by the appeal which has been made for sufficient contributions to wind up the work. The urgency of it is emphasized. There are about 22,000 children yet to be given assistance and in view of the worthiness of the cause and the success which has attended the efforts thus far it is to be expected there will be an adequate response. Having been so well begun and so finely sustained there should be a desire to see it carried to a successful finish. There is an added incentive in the appeal when it is believed that with the provision of the sum sought it will not be necessary to repeat the call another year. It was a frightful situation that was presented by conditions in the near east and contributors must be highly gratified that their dollars have been able to accomplish so much for suffering humanity.

THE EASTER EGOTIST

"I'm telling you, Mr. Tabor," said the sleek young man, "you won't find a classier car than that anywhere. Look at those lines! Think how your wife will love to ride in that on Easter Sunday! And it's got the sweetest little motor that ever was put under a hood. Only $875, including an extra tire, bumpers and five gallons of gas How about it?"

Henry Tabor drew a deep breath and scratched his little black mustache. He hopped upon the running board and gazed into the interior of the car. Then he turned.

"Would—would it be all right if I paid $250 cash and the rest on payments? I just finished buying my home a few months ago and I haven't much ready money right now."

"Yes, sir," replied the salesman unctuously. "I'm sure I can arrange it. I'll just get a form and you can sign up for it now."

"Why—oh, I haven't got my checkbook with me now," hurriedly replied Henry, "but I'll stop by in the morning and we'll fix it up. You can have the car ready for me by Easter?"

"Surest thing you know."

"All right. I'll see you in the morning. Good night."

"Good night, Mr. Tabor." There was an unusual springiness in Henry's step as he traversed the blocks toward his home. He was going to get Sarah a car! He had wanted one for years, but there had been the home to pay for first. The last payment on that had been made the first of the year and since then he had hoarded every cent with one idea in mind. Now that idea was to become a reality.

"Good evening, Mr. Tabor. Getting home a little late, aren't you?" said a voice beside him.

"Oh, good evening, Mr. Larson," answered Henry, recognizing his neighbor. "Yes, I stopped at Baily's showroom. I'm thinking of getting a car this spring."

"You are? So am I. My wife and I have been saving for it for a year. Guess we'll have to go without a good many other things, like clothes, but it's worth it."

"It certainly is," agreed Henry, turning into his walk. "Well, good night." He hopped up the steps two at a time. Wouldn't Sarah be surprised? Should he tell her now, or wait until Easter morning?

"Henry!" came a firm, cold voice. "Where have you been? It's way past 6." Abruptly Henry's glee left him.

"I'm sorry, dear," he murmured. "I was delayed. We'll eat right away."

"No, we won't," corrected Mrs. Tabor. "I have some things to show you first." Her tone had sweetened now. "I've been wanting some new clothes for so long, and today I just decided to get them. I've been in town all afternoon, getting the loveliest things for Easter! This dress was only $70! And the coat there—well, it was $125, but it's worth every cent of it. And, oh, this cute little hat. They were having a sale and let me have it for $23.50." Henry stood blinking.

"How much were the shoes?" he inquired weakly.

"The shoes? Why, they were $14, and I got two pairs of hose. Altogether, I spent about $240. But you have $250 in the bank, haven't you?"

"Yes, my dear," answered Henry in a give-up voice. "They are very nice." Henry did not enjoy his dinner. His thoughts were on "the sweetest little motor that ever was put under a hood."

Easter Sunday was clear and bright.

"Henry!" came Mrs. Tabor's sharp voice at 10.30. "Aren't you ready yet? I want to get to church early to see what the other women are wearing."

"I thought you'd want to go in late so that they'd see all your new Easter clothes," said Henry, hustling downstairs in his last-spring suit.

"We'll get up and change our seats just before the service starts," replied his wife. "Everybody will see me then."

It was one of those sudden but violent April showers that come from nowhere in a moment. Henry and his wife were passing a vacant lot when it caught them.

"Henry! Henry!" screamed Mrs. Tabor. "Look at my coat. Look at my hat—my shoes! They're ruined! Oh, oh, oh!" Henry looked, but said nothing. While Mrs. Tabor wept with anger, they turned back toward home. The triumphal display, so carefully planned, was ruined. A car approached, bright, new and glistening with rain. From it Mr. Larson's friendly voice called to them.

"Can we give you a lift to church?"

"No. We aren't going. Thanks," replied Mrs. Tabor coldly. Then she turned to Henry.

"If we had a car to ride in instead of having to walk," she said bitterly, "this would never has happened." Henry stopped. Slowly he threw back his head and emitted a huge guffaw. Then he resumed his pace at his wife's side.

"Yes, my dear," he said meekly. —Chicago News.

Holy Week Topic
"MY MASTER AND BROTHER"
Memory Verse for Wednesday
"Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me" (Mark 8:34).
Read: Mark 15:13 to 37.)

MEDITATION: It was with a true appreciation of its significance that the church made the cross the symbol of the Christian religion. In a comprehensive and eloquent gesture it both tells a story and announces a programme. So it is very dear to me as it reports sacrificial life behind me by which I benefit; and it is alarming as it summons me also to the life that is heroic, unselfish and sacrificial. On this Good Friday I must challenge my soul to an accounting. Am I seeking "safety first?" consulting my own case and comfort? choosing the path of least resistance? This is not to follow Christ. It is not even good living; for all great living is sacrificial. We rise in strength and stature by self-denial.

PRAYER: O God I thank Thee for that great witness of love in Christ whereby He endured the cross, despising the shame of it. And I pray that Thou wilt deliver me from the bondage of fear that I may encounter perils and embrace privations faithfully. In Christ's name. Amen.

YOUR HEALTH

Ear "Porches" Have Other Functions Than Merely to Hang Rings on.

(By Harold M. Hays, M. D., New York city, of the Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The delicate mechanism of the middle ear is surrounded by hard bone so solidly that it is difficult to injure it except by disease or through the ear canal that conducts the sound waves from the outside air. Even this canal is filled with small, fine hairs to keep dirt from getting in. Outside of this canal is the porch (ear lobe). This is not merely a thing of beauty for females to hang rings on. It has two definite functions: First, to concentrate air waves; and second, to protect the canal and middle ear from outside objects that may cause injury.

The porches may become dirty, and therefore should be cleaned well with soap and water. If they become chapped or irritated (eczema), as they often do in children, keep water away and clean them, especially in the folds, with a simple cold cream.

But the chief trouble is where the porch enters the hall (ear canal) of the house (middle ear). This canal often becomes clogged with dirt and the natural wax of the ear (cerumen). If the clogging becomes great enough, deafness will result.

It is not unusual to see people pick at their ears when they itch or feel clogged up. It is a good thing to remember that nothing smaller than one's elbow should go into the ear. If the ear canal feels irritated, one can clean it out temporarily by wiping it with a tooth-pick covered with cotton on which is plain vaseline. If it becomes clogged up, don't force the wax against the ear drum, but fill the canal with pure peroxide of hydrogen, allowing the drops to bubble for about five minutes. If neither of these things does the trick, a competent physician should be consulted who can often remove the trouble in a moment.

Children frequently use the porches for various small playthings, and force pebbles, beads, beans, matches, erasers, etc., into the hall to hide them better. If once such an object is discovered, trying to force it out with unskillful hands will merely push it in further with the most disastrous results. Again—consult the doctor.

Stories That Recall Others

Little Cats

Arthur, a bright little fellow of four, was eagerly listening to the programme coming in over the radio. When he heard the words "goodnight kiddies," he was much excited and could not think of the word kitty. Turning to his daddy he exclaimed: "Daddy, that man on the radio said, 'goodnight little cats!'"

Encouraging Robins

A businessman recently returning home found a flock of sparrows feeding on biscuits, toast and various forms of bread scattered over his neat lawn.

"What's the big idea, throwing garbage on the lawn?" asked the provoked husband.

"Those are only scraps from the bread box. I saw a robin had returned today, and I wanted to encourage him to build in our maple," replied the calculating wife.

"Well, you probably foundered him, for the yard's full of sparrows," retorted the vexed husband.

When those we doubt prove stanch and true.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Why had his chickens stopped disappearing at the time Jimmy Skunk took up his abode under the henhouse? That was what Farmer Brown's Boy wanted to know. It was very evident now that he had been very wrong in suspecting that Jimmy had taken chickens in the first place. For a week some hikens had disappeared every night." Then Jimmy had gonce under the henhouse and the chickens had stopped disappearing. They were, you know, little newly-hatched chicks. Farmer Brown's Boy was, of course, delighted to find that his old friend Jimmy Skunk was innocent. But this discovery left him more puzzled than before, if that were possible.

He went back to the henhouse to nail down the boards of the floor that he had torn up in his search for Jimmy Skunk, but before he nailed them down he looked carefully about under the floor. Presently he gave a long-drawn whistle. He had made a discovery. He had found two or three little feet—the feet of little chickens. Whoever had stolen those chickens had eaten them there under the floor of the henhouse. And then, in a dark corner, he made another discovery. It was a nest. One glance at it was enough to tell him what kind of a nest it was. It was a rat's nest. Yes, sir, that is what it was—a rat's nest. It was the kind of nest that Mother Rat makes for her babies.

The face of Farmer Brown's Boy cleared. There was no longer any mystery. It's as plain as the nose on my face," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "There was a family of rats underneath here. Yes, sir, there was a family of rats underneath here. They were the ones who stole those little chicks. I wonder I didn't think of them before. Jimmy Skunk discovered them and decided that this was the place to stay. He probably cleaned out the whole nestful of young rats. Those rats must have come over from the barn. They came in through that hole that leads under the henyard—the one that Jimmy went out of. He probably dug that bigger. And there I was blaming Jimmy for taking those chickens. Well, live and learn. It doesn't do to jump to conclusions. Jimmy can stay under my henhouse as long as he wants to, if he will just keep the rats away. I'll see that Jimmy has plenty to eat, so that he won't be tempted by those chickens. As long as he stays under this house no rats will venture under here."

Farmer Brown's Boy cleaned out the nest of the rats and burned it. Then he nailed back the floorboards and closed up a hole that led up into the henhouse up in one corner. As he worked he did a lot of thinking.

"I suppose," thought he, "that a lot of people make the same mistake I made. Robber the Rat does a lot of damage that some one else is blamed for. There must be a lot of ases just like this one. I wonder I didn't thinke of those rats before. I've been told that they have a liking for young chicken. My goodness, I'm glad Jimmy didn't get into that trap of mine. If he had I should have taken him a long way off, and then I would have gone right on losing my chickens."

"What do you think?" cried Farmer Brown's Boy to Mother Brown, as he entered the kitchen where she was at work.

"I think," replied Mother Brown, "that by the looks of your face you have good news. You must have caught Jimmy Skunk.

"Didn't I tell you that Jimmy Skunk was a gentleman?" cried Farmer Brown's Boy, pretending to be indignant.

"But gentlemen do not steal chickens," said Mother Brown, mischievously.

"You are right!" cried Farmer Brown's Boy. "It was Robber the Rat, not Jimmy Skunk, who took my chickens. And Jimmy has put an end to at least one family of rats, or I am greatly mistaken. I ought to have known better than to suspect Jimmy Skunk, though, of course, I know he does have a liking for chicken, and if he were real hungry and nothing else offered, he would probably help himself to some of mine."

The next story: "A Deed of Darkness."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 28—Vice President Charlie Curtis, in the saddle as constitutional presiding officer of the senate, looms as an absolutely new figure on the senate horizon. He is clearly out, not to reform senate rules, but to enforce 'em. The gavel has beome a veritable tomahawk in his hands.

Possibly the Kansas veteran feels rigid enforcement will be a more effective way of bringing about modernization of senate rules than was the open assault upon them made so vainly by his predecessor, General Dawes.

Speculation Rife

Curtis has not revealed his thought as to that. But when he trooped off to Florida for rest and relaxation before the business of the farm relief special session in April, the vice president left behind him considerable speculation as to how the senate was going to react ultimately to his stern policy of enforcement of rules.

It is doubtful that it has ever known so rigorous a taskmaker as Curtis proved to be in inauguration special sessions over which he had presided.

The story is rather between the lines than in the written report of proceedings carried in the Congressional Record. The Record makes it quite clear, however, that Vice President Curtis tolerated no free and easy interruptions in debate.

The required ritual for interruption of a speaking senator was strictly adhered to. Whenever an interruption was attempted, business stopped right there until the presiding officer found out exactly what the senator having the floor wanted to do about it. There was no fooling.

Strict Administration

"I hope to be able to expedite the business of the senate in an orderly and speedy manner," Curtis said in his inaugural address, so clearly aimed at the crusade against the rules conducted by Dawes. "The vice president is not one of the law makers nor is he consulted about the rules adopted."

And that theory of responsibility only for enforcement of the rules Curtis carried eevn into the executive session where the Hoover cabinet appointments were confirmed. Murmurs of the rigidity with which he suppressed the customary easy going senate ways behind closed doors drifted out in the wake of that session.

The senate applauded, a bit doubtfully perhaps, at the time. But how will it be when senatorial nerves are on edge toward the close of a hot session, say?

That remains to be seen.

A steep grade lies to the west of the trolley tracks at that point. He rode into the car well towards the rear and was knocked unconscious. Willie Sherdel was reached for two hits, including Gehrig's triple, and two runs in the closing frames, partly because of poor fielding. The Cardinals' 14 hits included four triples and a double. LOUGHRAN RETAINS HIS TITLE BY TAKING DECISION FROM WALKER

CHICAGO, March 28—(AP)—The age-old adage that a good big man can beat a good little man still holds good, insofar as Tommy Loughran, world's light-heavyweight champion, is concerned.

Loughran, the master boxer, successfully resisted the assaults of pug-nosed Mickey Walker, to win his third world boxing title tonight by decisively defeating him in a ten-round battle opening Paddy Harmon's $7,000,000 Chicago stadium.

The verdict, however, was not unanimous, as Davey Miller, the referee, cast his ballot for Walker, the middleweight titleholder, with the two judges, Eddie Klein and Phil Collins, one of the aces of Chicago's referees, voting for Loughran. The score sheets show Collins gave six rounds to Loughran with Klein giving him eight. Collins gave Walker two rounds and called the other two even. Klein gave Walker one round, and called the other one even. Referee Miller gave five rounds to Walker, one to Loughran and the rest square.

The battle, completely devoid of knockdowns and lacking in stirring action, except for four or five rallies, failed to draw a capacity attendance as had been expected. Instead the monster arena, largest indoor sports place in the world, held less than 20,000 with the gate receipts estimated at $175,000. The upper balconies, holding the occupants of the cheaper seats, were packed to capacity but the main floor of the arena and the mezzanine section had yawning gaps of empty space.

If the gate receipts did hit the $175,000 mark, Loughran will receive approximately $96,000, or 55 per cent. out of this he must pay Walker $50,000. He had agreed to pay the challenger only $10,000 if he had lost his prized light-heavyweight championship title. In addition to handing Mickey $50,000, Loughran also must pay part of the purse that went to Leo Lomski and Tuffy Griffith. They fought a terrific ten-round battle in the semi-windup with the decision going to Griffith.

Various reasons were offered for the failure of the battle to draw a capacity crowd.

First of all was the prices for the arena and mezzanine seats, which cost the customers $22.60 and $19.80. The boys who pay the freight failed to go for them with the result that thousands were turned away because cheaper seats were not available.

In addition, just before the show opened a fire broke out in the roof of the huge Grey Stone building and the gathering of clanging fire engines apparently frightened customers, who had the panic attending the Jackie Fields-Young Jack Thompson fight in the Coliseum Monday night fresh in their minds. One terrifying experience in a week was enough for them.

The fight, if it can be called that, was a contest between an upstanding skillful boxer in Loughran and a rushing, dogged fighter in Walker. Mickey continually bored in, trying to sneak over a punch that might finish the lanky champion and win for him his third world's title, a performance achieved by only one fighter—Bob Fitzsimmons. Loughran fought his customary defensive battle, poking long lefts into Mickey's face and bringing across an occasional right cross to teach Walker not to get so fresh. Several times Loughran assumed the offensive, flashing a spurt of viciousness, but most of the time he was a defensive battler, piling up points with his long left and causing Mickey to miss with his rasping left hooks and wicked right crosses.

Walker's big effort was in the fifth round when he trapped Tommy on the ropes, belting him with a left to the jaw and then crossed his right to the other side of the chin, causing the Philadelphian to buckle a bit and grab on and hold. The punches may have dazed Loughran momentarily, but he was in good shape when he went to his corner.

After this furious assault, Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, sent the Jersey Bulldog out in the sixth to do or die. Walker yielded to the pleadings of his handlers and set out to annihilate his taller foe, but found every effort tied up with Loughran's defensive tactics.

Whenever the middleweight champion, almost a foot shorter than Loughran, opened up with his wild assault, Tommy coolly and deliberately smothered him. His long left would shoot out, blocking Mickey's right, or he would stab Walker in the face with his left, keeping him out of range, or off balance. Mickey always endeavored to crowd in close to inflict body punishment but he found that Loughran was well able to take care of himself and do a little inside walloping on his own account. Loughran scored effectively with a short jolting right uppercut at close range, occasionally switching to a hard right to the body.

In the seventh the defending titleholder really opened up and began to fight and was game enough to stand toe-to-toe and trade punches with the challenger. The light-heavyweight champion appeared determined to show the crowd that he was a puncher in addition to being a master boxer but his punches produced no apparent telling effect on the ever-charging Walker.

Loughran convinced his critics he can still make the light-heavyweight limit of 175 pounds and retain his strength and speed. He scaled 173 1-4 when the fighters were gauged in at 3 o'clock today. It was the lowest he had ever reduced to since winning the light-heavyweight crown. Walker hit the beam at exactly 165 pounds, the figure he had planned to make.

Tonight's defeat was Walker's first set-back in the nine starts he has made in Chicago since he won the middleweight championship from Deacon "Tiger" Flowers with a questionable decision.

Griffith Beat Lomski

Gerald Ambrose Griffith, the tough one from Sioux City, Iowa, won the right to meet the winner of the Loughran-Walker bout by getting a verdict over Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen, Wash., assassin, the ten-round semi-final. Griffith by a heavy two-fisted attack had Lomski in retreat most of the time. By his victory, Griffith wiped out the questionable decision Lomski scored over him a few weeks ago.

Lomski scaled 174 1-2; Griffith 174 3-4.

WHITMORE REPORTS TO HARVARD BALL SQUAD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 28—(AP)—Harvard's baseball stock soared today when Howie Whitmore, veteran pitcher, rejoined the squad and was pronounced fit to work the opening game against Boston university on April 6. Whitmore's sore arm had forced him to remain away from practice for two weeks.

Though Coach Fred Mitchell has decided on almost every position on the Crimson team he said today that he would not reduce his varsity squad until Saturday, when he announces the players who will be taken on the southern trip.

THIRTY-TWO OUT FOR BASEBALL AT PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 28—Coach L. F. Noyes, Putnam high school baseball mentor, began the first day of real hard spring training practice as he put his squad of 32 candidates through their first diamond workout on the local field today. In the capacity of diamond mentor for two days, Coach Noyes has already started the process of elimination, in the selecting of possibilities for the various positions in the lineup.

For the first time this season, the eight veterans of the 1928 nine displayed the last-season form, while the 24 rookies did exceptionally well.

Hayden "Bud" Franklin, Putnam's midget twirler, who carried the team through many tight squeezes last year, performed like a veteran today. Franklin's arm is even in better condition this spring than it was a year ago. He has acquired more speed and has also attained a greater degree of control. There is little doubt, but what Bud Franklin will be called upon to do the twirling for the Noyesmen against Pomfret school at Pomfret on April 15. Gene Dumas looms up as the probable backstop for the locals. In a few games last year Dumas proved an efficient and able player behind the bat. Bill Shann, one of Coach Noyes' most faithful athletes, already in possession of five letters, center on The "Bulletin's" all-Eastern Connecticut Western Rhode Island basketball team, reported for practice Wednesday. Shann's ability to scoop grounders places him a favorite to hold down the shortstop position between second and third base. The infield positions will be filled by three veterans; Leo Marion at first base, Charley Bove at second and "Gyp" Lavalle at third. Walt Cody, another one of Coach Noyes' all-round athletes, is the only one sure of an outpost position on the team. Walt will probably hold down the berth at center field. Cody is one of the heavy hitters on the local nine and Coach Noyes will depend upon his mighty arms to account for many of the runs to be made during the forthcoming season.

When the "rawhide" season dawns on April 15, Putnam will present to the fans one of the best nines turned out of the local school, since the days of Tommy Dobson and his gang, when the championship was brought to Putnam high school's hall of fame. The Pomfret encounter is expected to be one of the hardest games scheduled. In the past two years that Putnam has been on the prep school schedule each tilt has resulted in a 1-1 tie and this season Bud Franklin and his followers will endeavor to turn the tables into a Putnam victory.

BRUINS TAKE FIRST LEG BEATING RANGERS

BOSTON, March 28—(AP)—The Boston Bruins gained their first leg on the Stanley cup here tonight by defeating the New York Rangers, 2 to 0, in a fast and rugged game, the first of the final play-off series for the world's professional hockey championship.

The Rangers appeared fagged out when they first appeared on the ice and were able to hold the Bruins in check but for a single period, the first. The Bruins encouraged by their smashing three straight victories over Les Canadiens in the National league championship play-off launched a vicious attack at the opening faceoff.

They bore down heavily during the first period, and when the second rolled around the Rangers were well softened for the slaughter. Soon after the second period five-minute mark, Dit Clapper, one of the Bruins' second string forwards, fought his way down to the Rangers' net. Taffy Abel stick-checked but Clapper fought for the puck and flipped a backhand shot into the Rangers' net for the opening score.

About five minutes later Dutch Gainor, another member of the Bruins' secondary line, bore down and snapped a vicious shot at the new goalie. The rubber struck Abel on the shin and Gainor was speedy enough to regain it and poke it into the net.

The Bruins were satisfied with the double score and immediately launched their efficient defensive game. Both New York lines tried to pierce through but Goalie Thompson and his mates continued unbroken until the final bell.

VELVETMEN CLASH WITH "JICKY" CLUB TODAY

All roads lead to the J. B. Martin grounds this afternoon, where the Velvetmen will clash with the renowned "Jicky" club team of Taftville. The J. B.'s are thirsting for revenge after last Sunday's encounter and are out to show these old timers how the grand old game of soccer should be played. After reading Thursday's Bulletin, Manager Laycock visited the so-called "Jicky" club and after a hot session with their manager on the respective merits of the two teams finally came to terms. This game will prove beyond doubt that the scientific methods of the Velvetmen, each man being an artist, can overcome the crude game that the old timers are capable of. H. Seidel, who has deserted his team mates for this game, will be a marked man, as there are rumors out that he has been heavily bribed by the "Jicky" club to play for them.

The J. B. lineup will be chosen from among the following players: Murphy, Greenhalgh, Hargreaves, Labenski, Eccleston, Erickson, Decelles, Headon, Houston, Nevins, Patnaud, Benker, Shaw. The kick-off will be at 2:30 p. m.

MISS VAN WIE LEADS FIELD AT HALF-WAY MARK

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 28—(AP)—Miss Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, pitched and putted her way through a field of 12 sectional and national golf stars today to take the lead for the first half of the 36 hole mid-south women's tournament at the Southern Pines Country club.

Miss Van Wie's 80 was good enough to leave an imposing array of celebrities in her wake. In second place with an 82, came Miss Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., while trailing in order were Miss Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, Ohio, and Miss Marion Turple, the southern champion, tied with cards of 84; Miss Glenna Collett, the national champion, and Miss Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., both of whom needed 85s and Miss Helen Hicks, with an 86.

The Chicago girl went out today with a brilliant 38, five strokes under women's par, despite an eight on the second hole which followed a hooked drive and three putts. She took 42 coming in.

Miss Collett was putting badly today and was hooking her tee shots as well. Out in 44, she negotiated the more difficult inward nine in 41, taking three putts on the eighteenth to drop a ball from less than six feet.

LARRIVIERE WINS HIS 18TH STRAIGHT VICTORY

WATERBURY, March 28—(AP)—Leo Larriviere, Waterbury, 154 1-2, outpointed Johnny Golden, 154 3-4, in the main eight round bout of the Waterbury A. C. boxing card here tonight. It marked the 18th straight triumph of the local boy, but checked his knock-out row, which had soared to 11 straight. Golden accepted a decisive beating but went down for a count only once, this occurring in the sixth round. The results of other bouts are as follows:

Jackie Harmon, Waterbury, technical knockout over Jackie Rogers, Waterbury, 5—110.

Billy Doran, Dublin, Ireland, defeated Mike Denton, New York, 5—139.

Eddie McMilan, New York, defeated Dave King, Harlem, 6—175.

A squad of 34 will be available for Coach Earle E. Brigham at the next practice of the Academy baseball team Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A list with this number was announced by the local mentor Thursday afternoon and it is regarded as the first cut of the season.

The list follows: Catchers—Crowell, Fontaine, Penin, W. McGuinniss, Goldberg; pitchers—G. McGuinniss, Abugel, Reardon, Fagan, Geer, Weisgerber, Green, Kendall, Carter, Lyons, Karkutt; infielders—Fitzgerald, Arico, Whitmarsh, LaCroix, Gibbs, Sherry,

JACK MARKS
N. F. A. Captain

Flathers, Lynch, Berghinzo; outfielders—Capt. Marks, Cummings, Tombari, Dickerman, Murphy, Nylan, J. Carter, Mish, Stevens.

In this array of talent there are five catchers 11 pitchers, nine infielders and six outfielders. Arico, LaCroix, Gibbs, Capt. Marks, Cummings and Tombari are the letterman available from the state championship team of 1928.

But one real practice session was held during this week that on Wednesday. Thursday, just as the boys were about to go at it, the thunderstorm broke and all activity ceased for the day. The squad reported Monday but no baseball work was done on that day and on Tuesday rain interfered. Although the next real practice is not scheduled until Tuesday, next, April 2, some of the boys are to work out at the campus over the week end. The first game of a 19 game schedule will be played Saturday, April 13, with the Alumni.

Souvenir Booklet To Be Issued

A souvenir booklet is being prepared by Coach Brigham containing interesting accounts of baseball at the local school since 1890. It will be issued this season.

The field is in pretty good shape and when intensive work starts next week, things should run smoothly. The bleachers, which seat around 1,500, are being placed in position and the south goalpost, that has stood since the football season, will be removed by the opening game.

NORWICH GOLF CLUB COURSE OPEN TODAY

Those who have been confining their golfing activities for the past few months to the parlor carpet will have a chance to try out the theories evolved during the indoor season today, the course at the Norwich golf club opens for the season. As Superintendent Skelly said last night, "the boys can start out as soon after the Loughran-Walker fight as they choose".

The course is in excellent shape considering the time of year and the recent rains. Superintendent Skelly and his force of workers have been busy engaged during the past few weeks in getting the course in shape. The greens and fairways have been rolled and Superintendent Skelly claims the greens are in excellent condition.

Reds Defeat Eagles

PROVIDENCE, March 28—(AP)—The Providence Reds defeated the New Haven Eagles, 3 to 0, tonight to win the preliminary two-game play-off series and subsequently earn the right to meet the Boston Tigers in the final Canadian-American league championship series. Settled on a total goal basis, the Rhode Islanders needed three goals to achieve their objective and the third one came in three minutes and 18 seconds of overtime.

BUCKY HARRIS MAY PLAY SECOND FOR THE TIGER

DETROIT, March 28—(AP)—Stanley "Bucky" Harris, apparently is to be victim this year of the truth contained in the bromide that "som have greatness thrust upon them"—though whether it is fame that is being loaded onto the Tiger manager, ball games alone will tell. At any rate, Stanley undoubtedly is going to have second base thrust upon him.

With announcement in Phoenix, Ariz., this morning that Harris had asked waivers on Harry Heilmann, whose fifteenth season with the Tigers was expected to be spent on first base, the Tiger boss is faced with the job of remodeling his entire infield.

Harris has not revealed of his plan, but the logical layout would be Bucky himself at the keystone sack, Charley Gehringer consorting with him at shortstop, Marty McManus at third and Dale Alexander supplanting the banished Heilmann.

The change probably will not appreciably alter the inner garden strength, except through the injection of the playing leadership which might come with Harris. Heilmann, it is an open secret, is to be removed as a disciplinary measure, although Harris has not said so. Harris has decided to enforce training rules, let the chips fall where they may.

In his 14 years with the Tigers Heilmann had an average of .342 at the plate and in 1921, 1923, 1925 and 1927 led the American league batting. His scoring punch will be missed although Dale Alexander had a redoubtable record in Toronto last year, leading the International league batsmen by a wide margin.

Gehringer will be faced with the job of changing from an A No. 1 second baseman into a shortstop. Working between Harris and McManus, however, the shift should not be too difficult.

Heinie Schuble, who was obtained from Houston of the Texas league to stop the gap between second and third, apparently will need another year of seasoning before qualifying. His work sparkles at times, but consistency is not his.

Gehringer rated seventh among the American league second basemen last year and McManus fourth among the third sackers. Mervyn Shea will do most of the work behind the bat for the Tigers this year, with Larry Woodall, Ray Hayworth and Bill Phillips in reserve.

This had been arranged by the renovation committee, Mrs. LaFontaine, Mrs. Bertha Hoyt, Mrs. Billings F. S. Fire Without Permit

Saturday afternoon Felix Rosenberg, who resides in the northwest section of the town was presented before Justice of the Peace George B. Sheldon on a charge of burning brush without a permit. The fire, started by Mr. Rosenberg got away from him and burned over several acres of neighbors' property before being put out by fire fighters under Deputy Fire Warden Warren E. Tanner. On Mr. Rosenberg's promise to pay the cost of fighting the fire he was fined $1 and costs amounting to $47.81. MARMON-BUILT

The world's first Straight-Eight under $1000 . . . Now on display

Furthermore, Marmon has made sure that the Roosevelt should measure up to the time-famed standards of Marmon performance.

The Roosevelt Motor

The Roosevelt motor is a straight-eight, built completely in Marmon plants. It develops 70 horsepower—far more power than any other car in its price field. There are no waits while the motor is picking up the load—few hills that require a gear shift—no place any car of the price can go that the Roosevelt can't go in even less time and far more comfortably. The Roosevelt will out-perform any car in the world at or anywhere near its price.

THE long awaited is here . . . The year's most impressive achievement of America's fastest moving industry is brought to public view . . . The move so freely predicted has now actually happened—Marmon has built a straight-eight to sell (at the factory) for less than $1000.

There have been any number of four cylinder cars at this price . . . Today there are many sixes at this figure . . . But there is only one straight-eight—the Roosevelt.

And it is but natural that this first low-priced straight-eight should come from Marmon. Marmon for more than three years has devoted its central efforts toward simplifying and making the straight-eight a practical, economical and long-lived car for all to own.

Roosevelt Five-Passenger Sedan, providing faithful, economical transportation in a more advanced manner

Consider First Its Beauty

The first time you see the Roosevelt you are sure to recognize it as a new achievement in smart, yet thrifty, transportation. It's low and in the modern manner. No conflicting lines—but from radiator to back end one graceful line follows straight through. Marmon has taken the attitude that a $1000 car can be just as stylish in appearance, just as modern in appointment as a car costing twice this amount.

The Roosevelt follows in all fundamental points Marmon proved features of design. Furthermore, Marmon had plenty of time. The Roosevelt was thoroughly proved out months before the first car was manufactured.

BOAT CLUB SPONSORS DRIVE OF SEA SCOUTS

A membership drive for Admiral Herbert O. Dunn ship, Boy Sea Scouts of Westerly, was launched Wednesday evening at the annual inspection. The Sea Scouts are owners of a barge moored in the Pawcatuck river and the campaign to add to its crew will continue through June, in an effort to bring the Westerly ship up to its full quota of crew. The inspection was held Wednesday night in the rooms of the Westerly Boat club, which is sponsoring the local Sea Scouts. The inspection was by Commodore Stone, Arthur Leidman, field executive of the Greater Providence council, and Skipper Farnum Martinoli, also of Providence.

Following the inspection of the Westerly crew, two crews from the "Gaspee" and "Constellation" of Providence, presented a program of exhibition drills. MISS FANNIE ALLEN ABLE TO LEAVE BACKUS HOSPITAL

Miss Fannie Allen returned to her home Sunday from a short stay at the home of her brother, Dwight Allen, in Norwich, after being discharged from W. W. Backus hospital. She is regaining strength daily.

Miss Jean Westland returned to New York after a visit at the home of her brother, George Westland.

Mrs. William G. Park and Mrs. Dwight C. Stone attended the meeting of the executive committee of the Council of Congregational Women of Connecticut, held in Hartford Tuesday last. It was decided to hold the annual meeting of the council at New Haven, April 30.

Norwich Entertainers

The people of the village were highly entertained on the evening of March 22 by the Girls' choir of Trinity M. E. church, Norwich. Under the direction of their leader, Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, and with Dwight Richardson at the piano and Henry Ladd with the violin, they presented Grandmother's Rose Jar and The Riddle of Isis. Mrs. Buckingham added to the pleasure of the assemblage by giving several songs during the evening.

A Good Friday service is to be held in Hanover Congregational church, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Spoke at State Hospital

Rev. Mr. Stone was the preacher at Norwich State hospital last Sunday morning, and one of the speakers at the meeting of the Norwich Ministers which was held at the Church of the Good Shepherd Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

Monday afternoon the occupants of one of the houses in the village were privileged to watch a beautiful pair of deer for about half an hour as they moved about the yard and garden at the rear of the house, at times less than 50 feet away. All they could find to satisfy their hunger was a few decayed apples under the trees, but later when the strawberry bed has been uncovered and the blossoms have appeared and perhaps some beets are visible, the beauties may not be so welcome.

Raymond Allen has just received a red ribbon indicating that he has been accorded second place in the egg laying contest for another month by the 4-H club.

African elephants show a tendency to what might be called "right-handedness," since their right tusks are usually worn down by digging more than the left.

POETRY

Evening

Just before she comes
  Lifting her great gray gown,
A discord rattles and hums
  From end to end of the town.

Louder the mason's maul,
  Shriller the children's cries;
The stark mad animals all
  Complain with heavenly eyes.

The harsh pain of the road
  Makes watchers blench and start
And a finished episode
  Beats hubbub in the heart.

A frenzy wags the bells,
  And birds uncertainly cry,
When the old gray wife compels
  Her flock to fold the eye.

The door of sight and sound
  She'll hurry on to close,
Leaving on all the ground
  The thing that no one knows.

And spread the web at last
  Farther than we can mark
Till late ones hurrying past
  Are bits of separate dark.

—Orrio Johns, in The Dial.

The True Romance

All that I know of you is that you wore
  A light blue dress.
Your age fifteen, perhaps a little more
  (This is a guess).

I found you on a forest road, in pain,
  And rescued you;
And felt like Galahad, and thought, "It's plain,
  Romance is true."

And meant to read, while yet my heart was stout,
  "The Faerie Queen,"
To see if Spencer knew so much about
  A rescue scene.

I doubt if any of the knights who won
  Their spurs that way,
Found in the doing even half the fun
  I did, that day—

Because, not being rigidly encased
  In frigid steel,
The arms that carried you, however chaste,
  Your charm could feel.

And I have left "Faerie Queen" unread,
  For it appears
Far better to remember, in her stead,
  Your fifteen years.

—Herbert Jones.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Frankness is the modern girl's long suit," says an exchange.

Apparently it's the only long suit she has.—Boston Transcript.

Wife—What! You're bathing your feet with your socks on?

Husband—I've got to—the water's so cold.—Le Petit Bleu.

Maid—The master has gone in to take his bath.

Cook—Righto! Tell me when he starts the chorus and I'll put his eggs on.—Exchange.

"If I go home late, I just say to my wife 'Silence'."

"And what happens?"

"Er—I am silent."—Dorfbarbier Berlin.

Artist—How dare you say of my picture: "It might have been worse."

Critic—I will take back what I said and put: "It could not have been worse."—Die Muskete Vienna.

The Girl (as they dance)—Isn't it a topping floor and a topping band?

Algy Pinhead—I was just going to say that. You really must leave me something to talk about.—London Opinion.

"Why such a hurry?"

"I have a terrible lot of work to do and nobody to help me."

"What about the little girl you used to have in the office?"

"She is not able to work any more."

"How is that?"

"She is married now."

"Really? To whom?"

"To me."

FARMERS SHOULD HONOR THEIR CALLING.

(Writen Specially for The Bulletin)

The average farmer has a pretty good opinion of himself, and a pretty poor one of farming as a calling.

This, if you'll pardon me for saying so, is just wrong-side-to and upside-down.

If that average farmer would revise downward his opinions about his own wisdom and ability and sure-fire-ness, and revise upwards his conceptions of what farming is or ought to be or might be,——both such revisions would be all to the good.

When the candidate is candidating among us and fishing for our votes, we listen approvingly to his orotund declamations anent the dignity of labor, especially farm labor. We are rather inclined to agree with him that we are the salt of the earth. We also feel, for the time being, that tilling the soil is a worthy if not noble occupation.

But after the election is over and we've gone back to hoeing quackgrass and poisoning potato-bugs, etc., etc., we're not so sure about the dignity and nobility of the job.

Now, personally, I don't want any office, wouldn't take one if it were handed to me on the traditional gold platter. Consequently, I am not afraid of ruffling up anybody's feeling a spade a spade and Herr Schmidt ing a space a spade and Herr Schmidt an ass," as Heine once put it. Nevertheless, I'm not going to do it.

I'm not going to denounce or satirize the somewhat over-developed admiration for their own wisdom which many farmers hold; nor their confidence in their own greater honesty; nor their stubborn addiction to their own 'set' ways. I'm not going to for the reason that all such stuff, however it may tickle the ears of the groundlings, is calculated to make the judicious grieve. It is, in its nature, destructive criticism and not constructive suggestion.

It, isn't, therefore, the self-conceit of some farmers that I want to baste, this morning. Instead, I want to urge on them a re-consideration of their somewhat mistaken under-rating of farming as a vocation.

For farming, when humbly and honestly and thoroughly done, is one of the highest and noblest occupations to which a man may devote himself. Trade, transportation, commerce, finance, the professions, government,——I bar no one of them when I assert that farming is, in itself, a higher and worthier work than any one.

For farming is the only one which actually adds to the resources and substance of the world. The others are handling operations; farming is a creative work. There are numerous other ocupations in which one may have whiter hands and shinier boots and tonier neckties and put more money in the bank. Are any of those accomplishments actually higher or worthier than that of making two blades of grass grow where but one grew before? Is even money as desirable an object as the things for which we cheerfully spend the money?

Think that question over for a few minutes.

And, speaking of money, let me ask you to consider still another question. What do you mean when you say some one is 'making money? You and I have a business deal, we'll say, at the conclusion of which I think I have 'made' a dollar. But have I? Admittedly I have a dollar more. But did I 'make' it- Or did I simply so manoeuvre the deal as to transfer it from your pocket to mine? I once heard of a gambler who claimed to have 'made' a hundred thousand dollars from a single night's game. He hadn't. He had simply taken that sum away from its previous owners to add to his roll. There wasn't a dollar more in circulation or in deposit at the end of the game than at its beginning. It was in different hands. That was all.

In quite a similar way, the trader who boasts of 'making' money on a deal hasn't added it to the world's wealth; he has simply taken it from some one else. He hasn't 'made' a new dollar; he has just conjured an old dollar from some other fellow's pocket into his. The transaction may be perfectly honest and above-board. The chap who gives up his dollar may be just as willing to part with it as the chap who takes it is to get it. That hasn't anything to do with the question of 'making' the dolier. It's simply a mater of barter, of trade, of 'swapping.' It is absolutely and essentially non-productive. It adds nothing to the world's wealth, merely changes ownership.

But the farmer, while he can no more 'make' money than anybody else, outside the mints, can and does add something with each crop he grows to the world's resources.

Money is a measure of exiscting values.

The farmer is a creator of new values.

This particular old John Farmer once had a field which was growing up to weeds, worthless weeds, which even the sheep wouldn't eat unless under threat of starvation. He plowed the weeds under, and raised on the former waste a decent crop of corn. Nothing to brag about, but of much greater value than the weeds which had, therefore, occupied the land. He sold some of that corn to a speculator, who sold at a profit to a hog-raiser, who fattened pigs with it and sold the pork at a profit to the butcher, who then sold the pork to his customers at another profit.

Everybody 'made money' out of that trading, but Old Farmer was the only one who produced the staple which was worth money. The others got only what stuck to their hands in passing it along.——I am starting no crusade against speculator or pork-fattener or butcher. Each one had his place in the deal. Each one had the undeniable right to charge for such services as he rendered. Each one had not only a legal but a moral right to the profit he could secure from an amicable and unforced sale. But the outstanding fact remains that the only one who actually produced anything, who actually added something to the world's resources, who actually 'made' the value in all the tarnsactions, was Old Farmer.

Wherefore, and because of which fact, I make bold to assert that his part of the affair was not only the most important but, in a true sense, the worthiest and highest.

We are not required to throw stones at our neighbors who are engaged in trade. On the other hand, there is no reason in the nature of things why we should kow-tow to them.

There is plenty of reason why we should honor our calling by ourselves regarding it and demanding that others regard it for what it is, the one which produces most of the values on which other people trade.

The houses we live in were built from trees of the farms; the clothes we wear were made from wool or cotton produced on the farm; the food we eat was grown on the farms. Trace back any of our possessions and, nine times out of ten, we shall find them rooted in the farms. Even the metals we use and the coal we burn come from under the farms.

What I'm pleading for, this morning, is not for any bigger swelled heads among farmers, as individuals, but for a higher and more accurate valuation of the farms themselves and of farming itself.

There is little danger of any of us ever undervaluing himself. There is grave danger when we undervalue our work or permit others to do so, unchallenged.

Farming is not the scraping-heap into which may be thrown incompetence and shiftlessness. It is not an asylum for 'the fool of the family.' It is true that incompetence and shiftlessness and folly may sometimes eke out an existence on the farm when they would starv to death anywhere else. So much the more honor to the farm's vast generosity.

There is a wide-spread conviction, especially among the young, that they can't 'make money' on the farm. Neither can they anywhere else, except in the mint, and there only for some one else to use. It may even be admitted that there is somewhat less oportunity to 'get money',——which is a very different thing.——on the farms than at various toll-gates along popular highways.

But when you tabulate the occupations at which men may produce that wealth which is vastly more than mere money, the farm tops the list. In value-swapping it may not rank high, but in value-making it stands easily first.

The man who trades two dollars' worth of flour for three dollars worth of potatoes, isn't really, in any just system of appraisal, as important to the world as the man who produced that two dollars' worth of wheat or that three dollars' worth of potatoes. The value the farmer evoked was real, tangible, actual. The gain the trader made was not by production but by transference. The one added something to the world's supply; the other added nothing. Why, in the name of all that's reasonable, shouldn't the producer of real values see that his work is manifestly the worthier and the nobler?

Seeing it, why in the name of that same reason shouldn't he demand for his calling the honor which is justly due it? Why shouldn't he be the first to give it such honor in his own estimation?

I'm tired of having the farm contemptuously referred to by non-farmers as the last resort of those who fail at eveything else. I'm even more tired of seeing farmers accept this scaling down of their work.

Our trousers may bag at the knees and our shoes look muddy and our whiskers shake out hayseeds. But that's no reason why we shouldn't hold our heads up and square our shoulders and look our contemners straight in the eyes and say——

'My job may not be as comfy as yours, but it's a derned sight bigger and better worth while!"

THE FARMER.

Sunday there were two men who came from Plainfield down in Eastern Voluntown. They got within about half a mile of where they were going and got in the mud. They were there about two days. Mr. Dawley went with his horse and helped them along to where they were going. They left their auto at Mr. Bitgood's and went on with the horse. They came back at night and took the auto and started for Plainfield.

It's Growing!

The shoulder-length bob is taking a real place among fashions of the hour for the younger set, in many high schools and colleges, more than half the girls are letting their hair grow to the new length. This style as worn by New York city girls is shown in the above photograph of Miss Edna Rabbe, 1925 Avenue G, Brooklyn.

Miss Rabbe says: "I am certainly delighted that I let my hair grow to the new length now that I have found a way to keep it easily manageable and attractive. My hair is ever so much fluffier and more vigorous than it has been for a long time. And it is free from all traces of dandruff, now. I attribute its improvement to the method I am using to care for it. It's so popular among the girls in my set. All we do is put a little Danderine on our brushes whenever we use them. This makes my hair so easy to dress any way I want it and holds it in place as I arrange it. Danderine soothes my scalp and keeps it and my hair so clean, I don't need to shampoo more than twice a month now. And all my friends admire the way it makes my hair so bright and sparkling."

Danderine does more to bring out the natural color, the gleam and lustre of your hair, than shampoos or brilliantines. It removes that oily film from it, gives it new life and lustre. It cleanses and invigorates the scalp; helps overcome dandruff. Danderine is delightfully fragranced; isn't oily, doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles.

Now a 'no-work' way gets my clothes whiter!

How a new kind of soap freed me from old-fashioned washboard and boiler forever

I WAS ready to scream! I had rubbed, rubbed, rubbed all morning. I just couldn't get the clothes white enough. The kitchen was unbearably hot. Any minute the children would be hurrying home from school for their lunch . . .

Oh, how I hated washday! I dumped the half-white clothes into a boiler of steaming suds. Still another tub of clothes to wash. Another tub of clothes to struggle with . . . Suddenly I burst into tears. I just couldn't scrub another thing.

"I've gone on strike!" I told my husband that night. "I'm not going to kill myself scrubbing clothes—I've got enough to do taking care of the house and the children."

"You're right," he said. "Washday is wearing you out. We've got to do something about it."

The next day I was telling my troubles to my neighbor. "How do you get such a nice snowy wash?" I asked her. "You never seem worn out from scrubbing, the way I do."

"Scrubbing? Why, that's old-fashioned! Don't you know that nowadays the whitest washes are just soaked and rinsed?"

And then she told me about Rinso. How its thick suds soak out dirt and stains . . . and wash clothes whiter so easily, so safely. Next washday I tried it, and oh what a difference! No soap I ever used was even half so marvelous. My wash was out of the way even before the children came home from school. The snowiest wash I ever saw!

Rinso certainly made my washday almost a day of rest.

No other soap like Rinso!

No other soap gives such gleaming, snowy whiteness — without scrubbing, without boiling. And it's so safe, too. You can trust your finest cottons and linens to Rinso's gentle care.

And how economical Rinso is! Because it's a compact, granulated soap, each cupful of Rinso gives more suds—does more washing—than two cupfuls of lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Get Rinso today!

$39,642,864 STATE BUDGET FOR 1929-31

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, March 28—A basket of blossomed daffodils, standing on his desk, greeted Speaker Eddy as he took thec hair this morninr. In graceful words he thanked the unknown donor.

The partial report of the appropriations committee was a matter of interest to all who are seeking state appropriations.

Recommendations made by the appropriations committee that the legislature adopt a budget for 1929-31 amounting to $39,642,864, covering maintenance and some capital expenditures will place the general assembly in a position to clear up one of its major tasks within the next fortnight.

The estimated income for the next two years, exclusive of federal aid, as given in the budget report of the board of finance and control is $73,290,871.44, of which $42,672,601.44 is estimated as the receipts of the general fund.

The budget includes $2,253,000 for the highway department, however, which will be taken from the receipts of the motor vehicle department rather than the general fund under the terms of a bill which has been adopted by both houses of the legislature and which is expected to be signed by the governor within a few days.

Items in the appropriation report as made by that committee in the senate today that affect state institutions in eastern Connecticut are:

Building for the state farm for women at Niantic, $114,270 and for maintenance $337,308; Storrs Experiment station for maintenance $94,000; completion of pathological laboratory $14,000; Mystic Oral school maintenance $201,876, (an increase from $194,076); Norwich State hospital $1,786,504; (an decrease from $1,890,004; Uncas on Thames, $499,830; Conn., Agricultural college, new construction $312,264; state pier at New London $20,420; superior court, New London county, $106,500; Tolland county $26,000; Windham county $61,000; court of common pleas, New London county, civil side $27,900, criminal side $17,200; Fort Griswold fund commission $2,000,000; Mansfield Training school and Connecticut Agricultural college for water supply $1,250.

There remains of the estimated general fund $5,283,737.44. Of this $2,498,500 has been appropriated for construction of a state office building, and a further draft of $1,750,000 for the proposed Fairfield County Insane hospital is considered certain to be recommended by the appropriations committee. This would leave a balance of $1,035,237 from which to meet the various projects now pending before the appropriations committee and such others as may be favored by the legislature between now and the end of the session.

The projected budget was set forth with the idea of so regulating expenditures that there would be an estimated balance of $250,000 for each year of the next biennium.

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall or Liggett Drug Store.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

A program of the most pleasing vaudeville opened at the Palace yesterday. Opening this show are the Pretty Trio, one of the most sensational balancing acts in vaudeville. The Musical Rowellys came next with their music and smiles in one of the most entertaining musical acts seen here in a long time, then Burns & Francis in their comedy skit entitled "The Mailman" in the next to closing spot the two funniest boys in vaudeville Bobbe & King in fun in an apartment house with two loose nuts, and closing the show the piet Winona Winters and her company in a most gorgeous song and dance revue.

A photoplay as gripping as its title and as soul-searing as life is "The Grip of the Yukon," now at the Palace theatre.

Francis X. Bushman in the leading dramatic role gives a portrayal that brings a catch in the throat and tears to the eyes. In the tragic role of a Yukon miner, who is the only survivor of an icy catastrophe which carries away the only people he loves, Bushman gives a powerful and deep delineation.

Neil Hamilton and June Marlowe inject a powerful romantic theme into the picture. Here are two young people who are outstanding. Hamilton being an exceptionally handsome and virile type and Miss Marlowe, beautiful and appealing. Both play their roles splendidly.

The story itself is unusual and spectacular. It can be safely said to be the first time such a radical idea has been put on the screen. Ernst Laemmle, the director, has done his difficult subject with justice to himself, the cast and the story.

Burr McIntosh as the bewhiskered money-mad gold miner is outstanding while other members of the cast who deserve special mention are Theodore Lorch, Otis Harlan and James Farley.

Broadway Theatre

Today and tomorrow will be the last opportunity to see and hear America's greatest entertainer Al Jolson in the Singing Fool. It was brought back here for a repeat showing after a phenomonal run of one whole week to the biggest business ever done in Norwich by any attraction and has been reshown in a great many large cities to repeated enormous business, in fact, it has the reputation of being the biggest and best picture of the year. It has been said by a great many people who have previously seen and heard the Singing Fool that they would enjoy a repetition. If you have not yet seen The Singing Fool, you are missing something thoroughly worthwhile. It's a real treat!

Breed Theatre

Few of us are given the opportunity of listening to pleas of able orators in a court room in defense of a client, or the sharp and bitter cross examination of the prosecution. Court room scenes in silent films mean little or nothing except to plant a conviction or an acquittal.

Coming to the Breed theatre Sunday is Rayart's road show feature "Should a Girl Marry?" and one of the biggest punches in the picture, which are many, is the courtroom sequence. You hear the attorney for the defense make an impassioned plea for his client, a little blonde slip of a girl—a self confessed murderess. Then comes the counter charge of the prosecution. You listen to the venerable judge instructing the jury and you wait, breathlessly, for the verdict. It is some of the most stirring drama you may ever hope to see and hear via the screen. Helen Foster makes an appealing little star, with Donald Keith, Wm. V. Mong and Dot Farley in supporting roles. In addition to the feature there are five Filmtone sound reels by well known vaudeville and radio headliners.

A Japanese meal may include as many as seven kinds of seaweed.

Gypsy Heart

The April world is misted with emerald and gold;
The meadow larks are calling sweet and keen;
Gypsy-heart is up and off for woodland and for wold,
Roaming, roaming, roaming through the green.
Gypsy-heart, away!
Oh, the wind—the wind and the sun!
Take the blithe adventure of the fugitive today;
Youth will soon be done.

From buds that May is kissing there trembles forth a soul;
The rosy boughs are whispering the white;
Gypsy-heart is heedless now of thrush and oriole,
Dreaming, dreaming, dreaming of delight,
Gypsy-heart, beware!
Oh, the song—the song in the blood!
Magic walks the forest; there's bewitchment in the air.
Spring is at the flood.

The wings of June are woven of fragrance and of fire;
Heap roses, crimson roses, for her throne.
Gypsy-heart is anguished with tumultuous desire,
Seeking, seeking, seeking for its own.
Gypsy-heart, abide!
Oh, the far—the far is near!
'Tis a foolish fable that the universe is wide,
All the world is here.

AN UNEXPECTED FLOOD OF CALL MONEY CAUSED RECOVERY IN STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 28—(AP)—An unexpected flood of call money, and reports of a gigantic communications merger, facilitated a further broad recovery on the stock market today, and the session closed with the losses of earlier in the week more than recovered.

Call money again renewed at 15 per cent, but the prospect of loaning funds at that lucrative rate over the Good Friday and Saturday holidays was sufficient to loosen the most closely held purse strings, and money came into the market in such volume that the rate fell to 8 per cent, before the close.

A wave of week end profit taking was sweeping into the market late in the session, when it was unofficially reported that negotiations were nearing completion for an alignment of Radio Corporation of America and International Telephone and Telegraph, and that Western Union may come into the combination later. This brought a vigorous upturn in the communications stocks, and the list was strengthened all along the line.

There had been no expectation of an increase in the federal reserve rediscount rate, after the liberation of funds in the heavy liquidation Monday and Tuesday. No change in the rate was made, but the federal reserve's report after the close that brokers' loans decreased only $144,000,000, failing to offset the increase of $166,000,000 the previous week, was distinctly a disappointment. Bankers felt that, after all, the violent selling had done little to correct the top-heavy credit situation, and that further liquidation would be in order.

While bankers felt that the quarterly interest and dividend payments next week, totalling more than $500,000,000, would cause some relaxation in the credit situation, they failed to see any near prospect of fundamental improvement. Time money held firm today, and little commercial paper moved at the 5 3-4 to 6 per cent. rates.

The federal reserve brokers' loan compilation disclosed the out-of-town banks had been the heaviest callers of loans, withdrawing $88,000,000, while "others" withdrew $36,000,000, and the New York banks but $20,000,000. It was learned that at least one large New York bank had not taken part in the movement to keep call loans from going above 15 per cent. yesterday. The First National Bank, of which George F. Baker is chairman, commanded a 20 per cent. rate for renewals both yesterday and today.

Outside of the credit situation and communications merger reports, there was little in the day's news to influence the market. After the close it was announced that a representative of the Cutten-Fisher interests had been elected to the presidency of Baldwin Locomotive. In anticipation of this, the stock was pushed up 16 points to a new high. Oil shares were again accumulated on the production curtailment developments. At the close, the Associated Press price indices stood approximately where they were at the close last Friday. Trading fell off from recent sessions, the turnover aggregating 5,096,520 shares.

International Telephone company led the communications with a jump of nearly 19 points to a new peak at 279. It fell off to 268 in profit-taking, but rebounded to 274 1-2 on the merger report. Radio sold up 13 points to 109, practically duplicating its peak, and closed at 106 1-2. Western Union sold up 9 points to 208 and closed at 204 1-2. Mackay Company jumped 17 points to a new top and American Telephone rose nearly 7 points to 224, a record price.

Burroughs Adding Machine, Crosley Radio, American, and Foreign Power, Advance Rumely preferred, Greene Cananea, Houston Oil, International Nickel, Midland Steel Products preferred, Stromberg Carburetor, Wright Aero and Youngstown Sheet and Tube were other strong points, mounting from 5 to nearly 15 points. U. S. Steel sold up 4 points and Standard of New Jersey and Pan-American issues gained new highs.

Commodities were rather quiet but firm. Cotton closed higher and better Liverpool cables, and wheat and corn improved about a cent a bushel.

Foreign exchanges were quiet, with sterling holding steady.

BOND MARKET.

NEW YORK, March 28—(AP)—Anticipating a huge investment demand next month the bond market today developed a definite course upward. For the first time this week the Associated Press' combined averages for 40 bonds closed the day behind plus signs, but the figure is still .71 below last week's closing level.

International Telephone convertible 4 1-2s again dominated the trading, $1,930,000 changing hands, and advanced more than 7 points to a record high price for all time at 131 and closed at 130 1-2. Both the old and new stock, into which these bonds are convertible, also soared skyward on reports of a merger with Radio corporation's subsidiary, R. C. A. Communications, Inc.

Time money held firm at 8 1-5 to 8 1-2 per cent., but the drop in call loan rate to 8 per cent., with its resulting "bullish" effect on stocks, provided the background for the improvement in the bonds. Sales for the third consecutive day this week exceeded $10,000,000 mark, amounting to $12,458,000, slightly under yesterday's total.

The secondary rails were the only group to show a decline, but trading in all sections of the list was dull compared to the broad buying in the convertibles. Anaconda Copper 7s continued their improvement, closing 2 points higher on the day after a rise of 4 points. The investment trust issues worked higher, Allegheny Corporation 5s and Commercial Investment Trust 5 1-2s improving fractionally, and American Internal 5 1-2s finishing at yesterday closing level, after an early burst of strength.

The Van Sweringen issues were the weak spots of the rails. Chesapeake & Ohio general 4 1-2s, convertible 4 1-2s and refunding 4 1-2s A and Nickel Plate 5 1-2s A all touched new lows for the year, but the latter issue rallied at the close to close a point higher on the day. Canadian Pacific debenture 4s also were at a new 1929 low. Atchison 4 1-2s classed as a speculative issue because of their conversion privilege, advanced nearly a point on a turnover of $213,000. St. Paul adjustment 5s were off fractionally. The traction issues moved irregularly lower. Reports American rail makers were joining a European cartel were believed responsible for the nearly 2 point advance of Bethlehem Steel convertible 6s. Cuban Cane Sugar convertible 7s advanced a point. U. S. Rubber 7 1-2s were another strong issue, rising nearly 2 points. Tennessee Copper & Chemical convertible 6s B, which were admitted to trading today, commanded a premium of more than 2 points above their offering price of 100 to stockholders, but the 6s A, which also are convertible, sagged more than 3 points.

Public Service of New Jersey 4 1-2s were the feature of the quiet utility group, rising nearly 3 points to 181 3-4, which compares to their low price of the week of 172.

The foreign list displayed an improved tone. Belgium Kingdom 7 1-2s of 1945, which are being called for redemption at 115 on June 1, sold around 114.

U. S. government securities all moved higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, March 28—(AP)—In tune with stock market development grain values had a general higher pitch today. Evening up of accounts for the holiday tomorrow, when no grain exchanges will be open, acted as a further strengthening influence, and so too did European buying of wheat future deliveries, as well as purchasing for immediate export.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 7-8c to 1 1-2c net higher. Corn finished 1-2c to 1c up; oats unchanged to 1-2c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 37 a 40c.

Rather than maintain open risks over the holiday, previous speculative sellers of wheat bought wheat futures freely today, especially in the late dealings, and the market closed at the day's top level. Helping the late advance were indications that dry weather in Canada is becoming more of a factor. This circumstance did much to counterbalance the bearish effect of good rains in domestic wheat territory southwest, and also to neutralize the force of large deliveries of wheat today on March contracts here, the deliveries for the day totaling 457,000 bushels. Meanwhile, export buying today of North American wheat amounted to about 900,000 bushels a good sized aggregate considering that holidays were acting as a check on business.

Rains today in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas led to wheat price downturns at times, and the more so as the moisture appeared to be covering the sections which have chiefly complained of soil blowing. Decided interest was shown, too, relative to a comprehensive report by a widely known Chicago crop expert who has just returned from an extensive tour through the southwest and who said he found less than the usual amount of winter-killing of wheat and more than the usual amount of moisture in the soil, with notable absence of sub-soil dryness in western Kansas. On breaks in prices, however, offerings were rapidly absorbed, and for the most part the advantage continued to lean to the side of buyers.

From start to finish, sentiment was favorable to the buying side of the corn market. Shippers here were optimistic regarding eastern demand, calling attention to the fact that Ohio and Indiana were above a Chicago basis and that Michigan had bought corn here for the first time in two months. The cash corn trading basis here advanced 1-4c to 1-2c today as compared with futures. Country offerings of corn to come here remained small, and Chicago receipts today were mostly from other terminal markets, oats reflected the strength of other cereals.

Lard and bellies were bought by commission houses, and prices for all provisions averaged higher, despite a setback in hog values.

COTTON.

NEW YOR, March 28—(AP)—Cotton futures closed steady, 7 to 24 points higher, spot steady, middling 20.95.

The Boston & Albany railroad has ordered 500 hopper bottom cars to cost about $1,200,000 from the Standard Steel Car company, Butler, Pa.

W. A. Fairburn, president of the Diamond Match company, the largest company in the match business in this country, predicts match prices will sink to record low levels this year unless some of the smaller match manufacturers which have been losing money steadily get into stronger and more cooperative hands. Strong competition in matches is attributed to invasion of the American market by foreign match interests. The Diamond management, Mr. Fairburn said, is considering selling 9,000 shares of unissued capital stock to certain large customers and interests connected with consumption of matches.

Matthew C. Brush, chairman of the American International corporation, and Charles E. Adams, president of the Air Reduction Company, Inc., have been elected directors of the Vanadium Corporation of America.

The National Park Bank, New York, following action taken by many other banks, is preparing to organize a securities company and reduce the par value of its stock to $20 a share from $100.

The Tri-National Trading corporation has been organized as an investment trust for financing and building up small businesses with good possibilities.

Gold imports in the week ended yesterday, as reported by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, totaled $11,716,000, including $8,526,000 believed to be from Germany and set aside as "earmarked" gold for German account. In addition $3,000,000 came from Argentine and $190,000 chiefly from Latin America. Exports totaled $372,000, consisting of $220,000 for Java, $100,000 for Venezuela and $52,000 for Germany.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of Our Dear Father,
John Dombrowski
Who Passed Away Five Years Ago, March 29, 1924.

Safe and lonely, softly sleeping
Where the flowers gently wave.
Lies the one we love so dearly,
In his lonely, silent grave.
More and more, each day, we miss him;
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within our hearts concealed.

TWO SALESMEN—EXECUTIVE TYPE
One of the oldest and most widely known eastern mutual life insurance companies plans to extend its agency operations in Eastern Connecticut. We want to get in touch with two men. The men we seek have employment at the present time. They do not need a job, and they do not want a position. They are looking for an opporunity. They are probably not younger than 28 nor older than 40. They are probably college graduates. They are men of character; they believe in life insurance for themselves; they have honesty of purpose, and they want to get ahead. Our Company plans to give them special training at its home office for the jobs they are to fill. The right man will be given every opportunity for advancement. If you believe you are the man to fill either of these places, write us fully, giving us all the data possible about yourself, your experience, education, etc. Replies treated in the strictest of confidence. If your letter leads us to believe that a personal conference will be mutually beneficial, an appointment will be arranged. Address Box 1194, Hartford, Connecticut. 3t mar27

NEW LONDON CITY COUNCIL READS TWO NEW ORDINANCES BY TITLE ONLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 28—The city council, in special session this afternoon at 5 o'clock, acted upon the ordinances providing for the second reading of the appropriation ordinance and the ordinance for the reorganization of the police department, by the appointment of an eighth sergeant and the changing of supernumerary officers. Two members of the council were absent, Messrs. Chappell and Fox. The ordinances were read by title only so they may be enacted at the regular meeting Monday next. The members of the council will meet in committee session at 7:30 Monday and be prepared to act on both ordinances when the council session begins.

BUSINESS TO SUSPEND IN GOOD FRIDAY OBSERVANCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 28—Good Friday will be generally observed in New London as a holiday, at least as far as business is concerned. Stores will be closed, as well as banks, municipal building, custom house and post office.

Since it became known that an additional sergeant to the New London police department was to be named and seven members made it known that they were seeking the appointment, all the applicants are awaiting the passing of the amendment to the ordinance regulating the department, which will be adopted at the regular meeting of the city council next Monday, after which the appointment will be made. There have been no additional applicants for the office so that there is every probability that the appointee will be among those who have entered the race for promotion and not a "dark horse."

NORWICH TOWN

BOOK COVER HONORS FOR CAMP FIRE GIRLS

Dakonya group of Camp Fire Girls connected with Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church met with their guardian, Helen Haviland Potter, at the parsonage Wednesday evening. The business session was in charge of the president, Doris Rose. The second lot of honors for book covers were given Betty Browning, Grace Marie Hinrichs, Phyllis Hinrichs and Bertha Backus. The editor of the Camp Fire newspaper, Grace Marie Hinrichs read articles from the news sheets. Beside jokes and personals there were two poems by Bertha Backus and Virginia Ward and two editorials on the second law of Camp Fire "Give Service" by Priscilla Hough and the editor. An editorial on the third law "Pursue Knowledge," was written by Bertha Backus.

The committee elected for that purpose continued the initiation of Priscilla Hough and Margaret Ross, also gave the first degree to another member, Charlotte LaPierre. There will be no meeting of the group next week as the guardian will be visiting friends in Boston.

Church School Easter Service.

Sunday evening at the Methodist Episcopal church the special Easter service of the church school will be held at 7 o'clock. The school will be assisted by a quartet. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Irish, Florence M. Bennett and Lewis Aldrich. Theodore Sterry, well known violinist, will assist in the service. The quartet will render a Biblical an them entitled "Because I Live, Ye Shall Live Also" which was set to music by Williams Arms Fisher. The anthem includes solos for soprano, tenor and baritone, also reading which will be by the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter. The committee in charge is Mrs. Richard Carter, Mrs. Helen Haviland Potter and Lewis E. Aldrich.

Will Stick to Scout Program.

The officers of Troop 2, Boy Scouts connected with the Methodist Episcopal church of Norwich Town at a recent meeting held with their scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter, considered a number of matters, foremost among them whether the troop should have a baseball team. It was decided to stick strictly to the Boy Scout program laid down in the Scout handbook. The Northern New London County council of which Troop 2 is a member does not approve athletic teams in connection with scouting and Chief Scout Executive James E. West of the national council recently said that baseball and scouting do not mix, that the scout program includes enough outdoor activities without going in for any athletic teams or sports.

A special feature of the service Sunday evening at the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church was the singing of the Philippino college sacred songs by Prof. Francis H. Rose. Frank W. Rose, father of Rev. Mr. Rose, and Harold Rose, his brother, joined in the songs. Rev. Mr. Rose at the close of the lecture pronounced the benediction in the Philippine dialect. There was an attendance of 80 at the lecture.

NORWICH PEOPLE BENEFIT UNDER WILL OF EDWIN H. BINGHAM

The settlement of a dispute as to whether Edwin H. Bingham of Hartford died after or before his wife, Bertha Swan Bingham, in an automobile accident will determine the disposition of his estate among his heirs, who include a number of Norwich and Hanover people. The wills left by Mr. and Mrs. Bingham, who were killed March 14 in an automobile accident, were filed Wednesday in the Hartford probate court, by the Hartford Connecticut Trust Co., executor of both wills.

The filing of these wills raises the question as to whether Mr. and Mrs. Bingham died first. Under the terms of Mr. Bingham's will, he bequeathed to his wife his residence at No. 44 Gillett street, Hartford, and a portion of the residue, and it is understood this portion will amount to $50,000. Mr. Bingham also left to his wife all his household and personal effects. If Mrs. Bingham did not survive Mr. Bingham, her estate will receive none of the above legacies.

Mrs. Bingham bequeathed to Mr. Bingham her household and personal effects and a legacy of $1,000 in cash, none of which his estate will receive unless he survived Mrs. Bingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Bingham were killed in an automobile accident on March 14, at Clark's corner on the highway between Willimantic and Danielson. After help arrived, Mr. Bingham survived about 20 minutes but it was not until some time after the death of Mr. Bingham that the automobile could be raised and Mrs. Bingham be removed from the wreck. At that time she was dead, but there is no evidence as to how long she survived after the accident.

All the evidence possible is being collected on both sides.

The question of survival, therefore, will determine the disposition of property valued at approximately $80,000. If Mr. Bingham survived, this property will pass to his estate and will eventually be received by 15 Hartford charities.

Mr. Bingham's will bequeaths $1,000 to the cemetery at Sprague, and $5,000 to a cousin, E. Hubert Allen, of Winnetka, Ill., and $5,000 to a cousin, Walter A. Standish of Orange, N. J. The residue of Mr. Bingham's estate is held as a perpetual trust by the Hartford Connecticut Trust Co., and annuities of $500 each to be paid to Mr. Bingham's two uncles, E. Waldo Bingham of Hanover, and Charles H. Standish of Norwich, the latter now deceased.

Bequests of $1,000 each are left to Louis H. Saxton and Charles A. Saxton of this city.

The balance of the income from the trust fund was payable to Mrs. Bingham during her life and after her death, annuities in equal parts are to be paid to the following persons: E. Hubert Allen, of Winnetka, Ill.; Walter A. Standish, of Orange, N. J.; Rose Standish Starkweather, Charles A. Standish, Jr., of Norwich; Nettie L. Standish, of Norwich; Myles Emerson Standish, of Norwich; Ruth Standish Park, of Hanover; Ralph deL. Standish, of Hanover; Norman S. Standish, of Baldwin, N. Y.; Mrs. Eliza Saxton Bartlett, of Washington, D. C.; Mabel Saxton Standish, of Norwich; Dorothy Adams, of Springfield, Mass.; Harriet Conant, of Orange, N. J.; Lorena Conant, of Orange, N. J.; Alice J. Boynton, of Mattapoisette, Mass.

Upon the death of the annuitants, the income from the trust fund is to be divided among the following 15 charities: City Missionary society of Hartford; Hartford Orphan asylum; Newington Home for Crippled Children of Newington; Connecticut Institute for the Blind; Connecticut Humane society; Visiting Nurse association of Hartford; Missionary Society of Connecticut; Trustees of the Fund for Ministers; Good Will club of Hartford; Hartford Public Library; Connecticut Historical society; Berry schools of Mt. Berry, Ga.; Piedmont college of Demorest, Ga.; Hartford hospital; Young Men's Christian association of Hartford.

Mrs. Bingham's will left her estate to her brother, Frederick W. Swan, and her three sisters, Clara Swan Libbey, Florence R. Swan and S. Maude Swan Wallazz.

The Hartford-Connecticut Trust Co., as executor, is endeavoring to arrange a compromise agreement between all the parties interested in the two estates. If such an agreement cannot be effected, it will be necessary to try out the issue of the survivorship in the superior court. If evidence cannot be secured determining the time of Mrs. Bingham's death the presumption will operate and the large legacies in Mr. Bingham's will will not be paid to the estate of Mrs. Bingham.

VARIED OPINIONS ON NEW ELECTRIC RATES

Varied opinions on the new electric rates which will be put into effect May 1st by the board of gas and electric commissioners were expressed on Thursday by local consumers. A few voiced the opinion that the new rates are a slight improvement over the present rates, but pointed out that the only ones who will receive any appreciable benefit are those consumers who reside in three, four or five room tenements or apartments. To the large users of electricity for domestic purposes the new rates make little or no difference.

"I live in a six room house," said one local man, "and the way I have it figured out I'll save 20 cents a month, but if I lived in a 10 or 12 room house I can't see where I would benefit."

"I am satisfied with the new rates," said another, "as my monthly bills have been nearly cut in two by the present rates. I haven't figured just how the new rates will work out," he added.

"Let's wait until we get our bills for the month of May," said another local consumer, "then we can compare them with the bills under the present rate and the old rate under which we paid, up to last fall."

"I can see litle or no change in the new rates over the present rates," said still another resident. "It is true that there may be a saving of a few cents a month for some people."

The fact finding committee had no comment to make on the new rates. "We made our report and the city meeting acted on it," said one member of the fact finding committee.

WINTER WEATHER CAUSES MUCH HIGHWAY DAMAGE

Constant shifting of temperature and rapidly changing weather conditions during the winter months have caused the Connecticut highway department an unusual amount of extra maintenance work, according to an announcement made by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald, the continuous cycle of frost and thaw inflicting a considerable amount of damage upon pavements of all kinds.

During normal winters when the ground becomes frozen in November or December and remains frozen until the following spring, the pavements suffer only once during the year and that is when the final thaw takes place. In winters like those of 1927-28 and 1928-29, however, the pavements are constantly contracted and expanded by the cold and heat and many of them are seriously cracked. Instead of being able to make all repairs at one time in the spring, the maintenance department is forced to devote the greater part of its time in making continuous repairs throughout the winter months.

Moreover, during the open winters like those of the past two years, traffic falls off but little. Heavy trucks are continuously passing over the highways and these serve to increase the damage done while the pavements are undergoing the process of contraction and expansion.

Not only the pavements, but the shoulders of the roads are hit by constantly changing weather conditions. Heavy rains and snows followed by quick thaws cause a large amount of water to run off the pavements at one time. The water naturally loosens the gravel and sand on the shoulders and in some places carries away portions of the shoulders. Inasmuch as hard, firm shoulders are essential to safety, quick repairs must be made in all such cases. Constant inspection of the highway system is necessary throughout the winter months in order that cracking pavements and loosened shoulders may be quickly reported to the division engineers and immediately repaired.

NORWICH LIONS GOING TO NEW HAVEN SESSION

The Norwich Lions club held its weekly luncheon meeting at the Wauregan hotel Thursday noon with the president, Dr. Kopland K. Markoff, presiding, and a number of guests attending. Among the guests present were Harry Schwartz, student at Boston university, who is home over the holidays. The meeting opened with the singing of America, blessing was said by Louis M. Crandall and Charles W. Cassidy acted as song leader. Mr. Schwartz rendered several humorous solos, for which he was warmly applauded.

The club was extended an invitation to attend the district convention at New Haven, May 21 and 22 and a committee will attend. Fred Bielefield was introduced by William Frisbie, in charge of the entertainment, as the speaker of the day, and he spoke relative to the Boy Scouts campaign for funds with which to carry on the Scout work here. The workers are endeavoring to secure $6,500, but only the half way mark has been reached, the speaker explaining that owing to several local campaigns it was difficult to secure workers to see all the contributors. Mr. Bielefield felt that if a sufficient number of citizens interested in Scouting would take a hand in the campaign the quota would be raised in a few days.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

at the home of her brother-in-law and CANTERBURY, March 28—Mrs. Ray Bliven was knocked unconscious by lightning at her home in Canterbury in a thunderstorm early this afternoon and though quite badly burned, was not seriously injured. Mrs. Bliven was near the telephone in the home and had just picked up a chair when a ball of fire apparently coming in on the telephone line, rendered her unconscious. The heavy wooden seat of the chair was split by the clash at the moment. Mr. Bliven and another man, driven into the house by the shower, found the unconscious woman giving her first aid treatment and then summoned Dr. James L. Gardner of Central Village. Dr. Gardner found that Mrs. Bliven's right arm was burned and turned white from her finger tips to her elbow and that her left hip was also burned. There is no apparent permanent injury and Mrs. Bliven was reported much improved tonight.

MRS. JACKSON'S LETTER TO ATTORNEY KING CONTAINS AN AVOWAL OF GUILT

In Her Note Mrs. Jackson's Takes Full Responsibility For the Slaying of Her Husband—In Her Note to Trenor A. Rice, Mrs. Jackson's Reference to "Will's Physical Condition" is Puzzling to Officials, as Mr. Jackson Appeared in the Best of Health, Active and Alert Up to the Time of His Death—The Notes Will Have No Bearing on the State's Plan to Try Rice For First Degree Murder—Third Note Made Public Last Night in Which Jackson, Slain Man, Had Warned Rice to Keep Mrs. Jackson Away From His House.

(By a Staff Correspondent)

DANIELSON, March 29—Release by Coroner Arthur G. Bill this afternoon of the long withheld notes of Mrs. Gertrude Jackson, suicide, and husband of the slain County Investigator W. E. Jackson created a furore of interest. A notable reaction was the constant query "Just what did she mean by 'Will's physical condition'". That question remains unanswered in official circles tonight. However, it appears that back of those written words is the real secret of one of the most shocking tragedies that Windham county has known in a generation, an affair that leaves County Investigator W. E. Jackson and the wife that confesses that she murdered him sleeping peacefully side by side in a Willimantic cemetery tonight.

As to Mr. Jackson's physical condition, he was outwardly and apparently an exceptional man for his years. He was apparently in the best of health, active and alert and up and coming. He was more or less of an athlete even up to the time of his death. He was not numbered among those who are regarded as physically weak.

There have been sinister references in the sensational press of this and adjoining states as to just what might have been the physical disability of Mr. Jackson. Whence these references have arisen and how much of the truth is back of them no one is prepared to say, or better still, is willing to say.

The outstanding fact is that Mrs. Jackson in both notes that she left to be found after she had taken her own life, and assumed full responsibility for the death of her husband, stressing the fact that the quarreling and what she describes as a "terrible fight" (between herself and her husband just prior to his being killed) was because of "Will's physical condition." Mr. Jackson on the day of his death was as active as he had been for years past, and that means about as active as anyone in good health and of not too advanced years. If there was any physical trouble for him to endure, it was a secret one, his friends and acquaintances and all who knew anything about him and his constant activities agreed. The great question in Windham county tonight is, after the release of the texts of Mrs. Jackson's notes tonight "What really was the matter with him?"

Coroner Bill has revealed not an iota of any of the testimony he obtained from Mrs. Jackson when he questioned her at the inquest relative to her husband's death and the circumstances surrounding it just a few short hours before she took her own life, leaving the notes that caused such a sensation when made public this afternoon. He will not be budged under any pressure from talking at this time, even if he has the knowledge, as to what may lie back of the words "Will's physical condition." Yet therein probably lies the whole secret of what wrecked the Jackson household, leaving Mr. and Mrs. Jackson in their graves and their friend, Deputy Sheriff Trenor A. Rice, in a cell at the county jail in Brooklyn awaiting trial for murder in the first degree in connection with the death of Detective Jackson.

The note that Mrs. Jackson addressed to Mr. King was written on a letter-head of the City of Willimantic, of which Mr. Jackson was an alderman, is in lead pencil, apparently written under great stress and difficult to read with any rapidity. Likewise, the note to Rice also was written with lead pencil.

The notes are herewith appended, the first being the one to Attorney King, the second to Rice, whom she addresses as "Dear Son:"

Letter to Mr. King

"Dear Mr. King: Will and I had a terrible fight over his physical condition. Trenor was never mentioned in the argument. Trenor knew nothing of the argument. I alone was here with him. It was either he or I who was to be killed. I couldn't leave Juanita alone with him. She knows the life I have lived. Trenor can tell what I put up with. Eleanor Hanna can tell you he threatened my life six weeks ago over a scrap about milking the cows."

"He threatened me several times. I was never afraid of him until that day. He choked me almost to death. Then he grabbed the gun. I wrested it from him and in the few words that followed I shot him.

"This is a true confession. They must not harm Trenor. I love him as my own son. He knew nothing of it. They say he is guilty. He isn't. I flushed the shell down the toilet. They are persecuting him not prosecuting him. Give him my love."

"MRS. JACKSON."

Note Addressed to Rice

The second noted addressed to Trenor Rice and enclosed in a separate envelope in the same one that was addressed to King said:

"Dear Son: Forgive me for the suffering this has caused you. I am to blame. You are not in any way responsible. Your name was never brought into the argument. It was over Will's physical condition. He has threatened to kill me twice before. This time, it was either he or me and I got the first shot. Hickey is too sure he has the case locked tight but he is not so smart. He said he has the shell and more but I flushed the shell down the toilet, and picked up the room. My dress had the sleeves torn out but in the excitement no one saw it. He choked me almost to death and would have shot me if I hadn't shot him. Be good.

"Lovingly,

"MOTHER."

Incident to the release of the notes of Mrs. Jackson in a fast and unexpected turnabout this afternoon from the position that the notes would be withheld from the public indefinitely was the appearance here of Investigator E. J. Hickey of Hartford to be questioned, as a feature of the inquest relative to the death of Mr. Jackson. Coroner Bill made nothing public as to what he asked Mr. Hickey or as to Mr. Hickey's testimony. The coroner said that he has one more witness to question before proceeding with the making of his finding in the death of Detective Jackson.

The release of the notes this afternoon, the coroner said, was due to the fact that Attorney W. A. King of the defense counsel for Rice had made known to State Attorney Howard C. Bradford of Putnam that he intended to release them for publication. The announced agreement last night was that such a release would be deferred indefinitely. However, after being informed by the state attorney of Mr. King's decision, the coroner promptly released the contents of the notes to the press, and so they are now matters of public information.

The notes left by Mrs. Jackson will in no way alter the state's plan to try Rice for murder in the first degree. It was pointed out here this afternoon in legal circles that the grand jury must have had what it considered sufficient evidence to warrant the indictment of Rice and the notes that Mrs. Jackson left it is held cannot change that fact in any degree.

A NOTE OF WARNING FROM JACKSON TO RICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 29—A third note figuring in the Jackson murder case was issued for publication tonight after a conference by State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford and County Detective Edward J. Hickey following the latter's attendance at the coroner's inquest earlier in the day. In giving out the note Detective Hickey, speaking also for Attorney Bradford made this simple statement: "This is Jackson's note. That is all for the present."

The note reads as follows:

"Willimantic, Jan. 27, 1929

"Mr. T. R. Rice: Mrs. Jackson has notice twice to keep away from your place on Brown avenue. If she does not I shall start action in the superior court. If you wish to wreck her and Juanita in Willimantic, keep on.

"(Signed)

In the eyes of the state this note from Jackson to Rice contradicts the assertion in Mrs. Jackson's note to King that Rice "was never mentioned in the argument" and that "He knew nothing of it."

MRS. JACKSON REFERRED TO CHILD OF 10 YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 29—The person referred to as Eleanor Hanna in the note of Mrs. Gertrude B. Jackson to Attorney King is a child of about 10 years of age and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Hanna of 221 Mansfield avenue. She attends the grammar school and lives in the neighborhood of the Jackson home.

The mother of the child said tonight that she knew nothing of any threat being made against Mrs. Jackson by her husband as claimed in the note. She further stated that her daughter had never told her anything about any trouble at the Jackson home.

MRS. ADAMS KEPT DIARY OF HER DOMESTIC LIFE

HARTFORD, March 29.—(AP)—Out of a red diary counsel for Mrs. Olive E. Adams, widow of Harry Emerson Adams late chief of the Hartford weather bureau who died under an anesthetic Saturday night, today began reconstructing the domestic life story of the Adams looking to her defense for confessed homicide.

It was the diary in which the little woman with lead pencil held in nervous fingers wrote of the daily struggle to maintain the family on an expense allowance of one dollar a day. The family were her husband, their son, Ananda, aged 11, and herself. Revelations since Adams' death have been that the weatherman had a sweetheart in Miss Dorothy Collins, and his own letters showed that he had many "affairs" with other women. An entry in Mrs. Adams' diary was: "I feel as though I am pushed to one side, always second. When she is nice to him he is nice to me." Miss Collins has told the police of meeting Adams constantly, and even being entertained at his home while Mrs. Adams was sent out to the movies or to the public library, or upstairs. Another entry was: "What will the winter bring? How long shall I live like this?"

SALESMAN HELD ON CHARGES OF KIDNAPING

CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 29.—(AP)—Curtis S. Devonshire, Philadelphia salesman, was being held in jail tonight awaiting the arrival of officers from the Pennsylvania city to return him there to face charges of kidnaping Alice Labutts, aged 12.

Devonshire and the girl were arrested here this morning by detectives after Philadelphia police had notified Charlotte authorities that Devonshire had wired from here last night asking that he be sent $50. The pair were taken into custody at a telegraph office when the man asked for the money.

The child told of being asked Wednesday afternoon by Devonshire to help him locate persons who had formerly lived next to her on South 60th street in Philadelphia. She said she got into his car and found he had been drinking. They rode a day and a night, sleeping a part of Wednesday night in the automobile parked by the highway. Last night the pair reached Charlotte and after telegraphing for funds Devonshire drove outside of the city limits and the two again slept in the car.

Alice said she had been well treated.

YOUTH CONFESSES THAT HE KILLED HIS FATHER

LOS ANGELES, March 29.—(AP)—Jack Crawford, Jr., son of Jack Crawford, former policeman, who was shot to death last night in his home, confessed, after an all day grilling by police, that he had slain his father.

Police gained the confession after they had taken the widow, Mrs. Bessie Crawford, to the home and confronted her with a revolver which had been found in a nearby tree a few hours before. She first denied any knowledge of the weapon and then implicated her son as detectives pressed their interrogation.

The youth, who had maintained a stout denial of any knowledge of the crime, broke down completely when shown his mother's statement and with tears running down his cheeks, sobbed out a confession.

The boy claimed his father, as on many occasions, has come home intoxicated and attempted to abuse the family. He said the father started throwing dishes at his mother and attacked him with a bread board. He claimed he killed in self defense.

PROTEST PROPOSED JAP TARIFF INCREASE ON LUMBER

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP)—The state department has instructed the American embassy in Tokyo to bring informally to the attention of the Japanese government the effect of the proposed Japanese tariff increase on lumber would have on the American lumber trade.

The action was taken at the request of Pacific coast lumber interests who hold that the rates proposed in the new Japanese tariff law are discriminatory.

The Tokyo embassy was instructed to express to the Japanese government the hope of the United States that American lumber and other products would not be placed on an unfavorable basis as compared with similar or competing products of other countries.

Excitement In Wall St. Over Credit Situation

See Possibility of a Congressional Investigation of Speculation and Credit at Instance of Senator Glass

NEW YORK, March 29—(AP)—Although the stock market took a holiday today, the stir which has been created in legislative circles by the recent credit crisis and Senator Glass' demand that Charles E. Mitchell resign from the directorate of the New York Federal Reserve bank, set Wall street to buzzing with excitement.

While bankers generally, including Mr. Mitchell, refused to comment on Senator Glass' attack on the head of the National City bank, the fresh possibility of a congressional investigation of speculation and credit, which invariably has caused considerable stock market irregularity, was viewed with much concern.

Mr. Mitchell, while declining to be drawn into a controversy with Senator Glass, who charged him with "viciously slapping the Federal Reserve board in the face," in making available the $5,000,000 loan which sent call money to 20 per cent on Tuesday, was willing to discuss the general financial and business situation.

He made it clear that no one was more opposed to frenzied stock speculation than himself, and repeated his warning of several weeks ago that the danger to every period of prosperity lies in the development of over confidence. He said he believed that the credit crisis was passed, and saw danger only in resumption of wild bullish operations on the stock market, but he added, smiling, "some people who had stock accounts a week ago are more conservative now."

Mr. Mitchell defended the action of the National City bank as protecting the nation's business and saving the public's confidence from too severe a shock. He said his bank was the largest lender of any Wall street bank in the stock market this week, but pointed out that its rediscounts at the Federal Reserve bank reached a maximum of only $35,000,000, as contrasted with $75,000,000 at the turn of the year. He said National City's stock market loans run normally from $100,000,000 to $125,000,000, but this morning stood at only $129,000,000.

Mr. Mitchell, and bankers generally, described credit conditions as still tight. While the passing of the quarter-end shifting of balances next week is expected further to relieve the situation, Wall street sees little hope of a return to normal credit conditions for some time, a reduction of only $144,000,000 in brokers loans this week, failing to offset the jump of $166,000,000 the week before, was generally disappointing; and it was felt in many quarters that further stock market liquidation must be expected.

While all the security and commodity markets were closed for the Good Friday holiday today, banks were open as usual, and many brokerage houses were open while their forces toiled to clear away the accumulation of work from the tremendous stock turnover in the four market days this week. Virtually all of the security and commodity markets with the exception of the produce exchange, will be closed tomorrow for a special holiday, but most of the brokerage houses offices will be open to finish up the back business.

MAY STRENGTHEN POWERS OF FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD

WASHINGTON, March 29—(AP)—Strengthening of the powers of the Federal Reserve board to insure its control over funds likely to get into the speculative market will be proposed at the approaching extra session of congress.

Senator Glass, democrat, of Virginia, and King, democrat, of Utah, are preparing bills designed to give the board any authority it may find necessary to curb loans for speculative purposes. Neither has completed his proposed legislation.

It is the expressed disposition of congressional leaders to leave the problem of stock market speculation in the hands of the reserve board insofar as it touches on federal reserve funds. Those in congress who are studying the problem believe that neither the board nor congress can directly supervise the stock market.

Chairman Norbeck of the senate banking committee is one of those holding to the view that the reserve board must be given a responsibility to supervise use of its money and he declares he will "leave the problem with the board for the present."

While there is little prospect of enactment of any legislation dealing with the credit problem at the extra session, in view of the determination of house leaders not to organize any committees for other legislation than tariff and farm relief, hearings probably will be held by the senate committee.

War Situation In Mexico Grows Tense

Crisis is Impending Between the Major Forces of the Rebellion in Southern Chihuahua.

By the Associated Press

The war situation grew tenser in the north yesterday as combats were impending between the major forces of the revolution in southern Chihuahua and between subsidiary bodies of troops at Naco, Sonora, on the American border.

Federal and rebel reports combined to indicate the town of Jimenez in southeastern Chihuahua as the field of the long expected battle which both sides seem to consider the turning point of the revolution.

Air scouts from the main federal columns under General Almazan reported rebels moving rapidly southward from their base at Jimenez towards Escalon.

The insurgent outpost was last at Rellard and the federal vanguard only 17 miles away at Escalon.

Federal strategists interpreted rebel movements as meaning that they had decided to defend Jimenez and were seeking advantageous positions.

An end was put to the picturesque odyssey of Federal General Arenta and 300 tired and ragged troops across the mountains from Sonora to Chihuahua, where he was seeking refuge with the rebels under the impression that Governor Caraveo still was loyal. Mexico City learned that General Armenta had "arrived at Chihuahua City" despite government efforts to warn him that he was walking into a trap.

All citizens were warned to leave Naco where a federal force under General Olachea is strongly entrenched, by a rebel airplane which dropped proclamations signed by Governor Topete, insurgent leader.

Federal airplanes suddenly appeared and drove off the rebel plane, which was that captured from the federals when the American pilot Morrison, serving the federals, was forced down at Cananea, Sonora.

Rebel activity in the air has increased, with a second bombing raid against the federals at Bearmillio. Casualties could not be learned, but General Escobar sent a message to the Associated Press from Jimenez that his air squadron was going to "deal mercilessly with the enemy."

At Juarez, it was announced that General Caraveo, rebel ex-governor of Chihuahua, had joined Escobar at Jimenez with a large body of troops.

On the Pacific coast federals still were pursuing the rebel besiegers of Mazatlan who had retreated towards Culican, Sinaloa.

A plot to assassinate General Calles was charged against the rebels by the Mexican consul at El Paso, Texas.

REP. MICHAELSON CHARGED WITH DRY LAW VIOLATION

CHICAGO, March 29.—(AP)—A month is not long to delay issuing a warrant for the arrest of a congressman if his case is one of 3,000 on file, the United States district attorney's office declared today in taking action against Representative M. A. Michaelson of Chicago, charged with dry la wviolation.

Aroused by the assertion of department of justice officials in Washington that he had delayed arresting the congressman in order not to embarrass him while congress was in session, George E. Q. Johnson, U. S. district attorney, issued a written statement of explanation.

Representative Michaelson, if developed was indicted in Jacksonville Fla., last October after two trunks he was bringing back from Havana were found in the railroad station, leaking. A policeman made the discovery and turned the matter over to the federal authorities.

News of the indictment did not reach the general public until nearly five months later and the announcement was followed immediately by the issuance of the warrant today by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker.

SEC'Y STIMSON WORKING ON THE I'M ALONE CASE

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP)—Henry L. Stimson, the new secretary of state, announced at his conference with press correspondents that he had interested himself in the shaping of an American policy in the I'm Alone case. He declined, however, to discuss the subject.

The sinking of the Canadian rum runner by a coast guard patrol boat was regarded in official circles as perhaps the most troublesome question bequeathed Mr. Stimson by former Secretary Frank B. Kellogg who today as a private citizen once more turned his thoughts to vacationing.

At Easter

Behold the fires are kindled on the lawn,
The blended fires of green and rose and gold
That hour by hour miraculously unfold
And lead the enraptured vision on and on!
Behold the clear ascension of the dawn
Is like a pageant of the days of old.
When heralds blew and music manifold
From silver throated instruments was drawn!

Beheld the hills are as an inspiration
To something loftier than the things of earth,
To something higher than man's feet have trod!
Behold there comes in sudden revelation
Beauty rekindled, a divine rebirth,
Through the omnipotence of the hand of God!

PRESIDENT HOOVER ACTS TO AVERT RAILROAD STRIKE

Chief Executive Has Issued a Proclamation Creating an Emergency Board to Look Into the Threatened Strike of Workers on the Texas and Pacific Railroad—Under the Proclamation the Investigating Board Would Be Required to Report Its Finding Within Thirty Days.

WASHINGTON, Mar 29—(AP)—President Hoover late today issued a proclamation creating an emergency board of investigation to look into the threatened strike of workers of the Texas and Pacific railroad.

The proclamation was issued shortly after Chairman Winslow of the federal board of mediation had called at the white house.

Under the proclamation the investigating body would be required to report on its findings within 30 days.

The board membership would be required to report on its findings within 30 days.

The board membership would be "composed of five persons not pecuniarily or otherwise interested in any organization of railway employees or any carrier."

The president in issuing the proclamation said he had been "duly notified" by the board of the dispute between the company and "certain of its employes represented by the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, Order of Railway Conductors, and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen."

Under the railroad labor act the creation of the investigation board by presidential proclamation has the effect of restraining both the railroad management and the employes from taking any action during the 30 day period allowed for the investigation.

STRIKE ON T. & P. ROAD AUTOMATICALLY SUSPENDED

DALLAS, Tex., March 29—(AP)—A strike of approximately 4,000 rail and shop employes of the Texas and Pacific Railway which had been called to begin at 6 a. m. tomorrow, was automatically suspended for at least a period of 30 days by action of President Hoover late today in issuing a proclamation creating an emergency board of investigation to look into the issues involved.

The strike order was issued by the four big railroad brotherhoods.

The order of withdrawal was signed by Fred Barr, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers; D. A. McKenzie, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; E. H. Kruse, assistant grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; and J. A. Gannon, vice president of the Order of Railroad Carmen.

The decision to withdraw came after an extended conference of the brotherhood leaders tonight. Their meeting was closed and they did not divulge the cause of the rescinding action.

Spokesmen indicated, however, that the withdrawal was temporary only, pending the report of an emergency investigating committee appointed by President Hoover late today. The decision does not mean that the 4,000 employes have dropped their grievance, the leaders asserted.

TO INVESTIGATE RAID IN WHICH WOMAN WAS KILLED

AURORA, Illinois, March 29—(AP)—The attorney general's office took the first steps today to investigate a liquor raid by county officers a few days ago which resulted in the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King, injuries to Joseph De King, her husband, whose home was raided, and the wounding of a deputy sheriff, shot by the De King's 12 year old son.

Charles W. Hadley, assistant attorney general, named by Oscar Carlstrom, attorney general, to attend a coroner's inquest into Mrs. De King's death next Tuesday, summoned George De Carbary, state's attorney of Kane county, to Elgin for a conference, the result of which was not disclosed. Carbary, elected on a pledge to dry up the county, had begun a series of raids prior tao the raid on the De King home.

The tip which resulted in the raid, it was revealed, came from Boyd Fairchild, prohibition undercover man, who was paid five dollars for reporting he had purchased liquor at the De King home. Fairchild since has left Aurora and now is reported to be at O'Dell, Ill.

Carbary said today that Roy Smith, the deputy sheriff wounded by the De King boy after shooting Mrs. De King was not a member of his dry squad but had been recruited by the squad, which went for help after being denied admittance to the De King home when they appeared with a search warrant.

GOV. LONG PUBLISHING HIS OWN NEWSPAPER

BATON ROUGE, La., March 29—(AP)—Governor Huey P. Long is publishing his own "newspaper" a miniature, in his campaign to defeat the nineteen impeachment charges on which the state house of representatives will pass opinion next week.

While the rest of the town took a Good Friday holiday, typewriters rattled in the executive office as about twenty-five stenographers and clerks prepared copy for the governor's organ, which he is mailing to all parts of the state. It contained further denunciation of his political enemies and "the Standard Oil crowd," who, he charged, was responsible for the impeachment proceedings because he attempted to have an oil tax enacted.

The governor resorted to his own press because the daily newspapers of the state turned against him editorially and advocated impeachment. The Baton Rouge States-Times demanded today the addition of two charges to the impeachment resolution of 19 counts. One charge, it said, should be based on the governor's "libel of members of the legislature" by charging them with accepting bribes from the Standard Oil company and other on the executive's alleged use of state employes for his private interests.

PRIEST SHOT DOWN IN CHURCH COURT YARD

CHICAGO, March 29—(AP)—The Rev. Father Charles A. Erkenswick was shot down and probably fatally wounded in the courtyard of his church on Good Friday by the father of two boys who believed the priest responsible for the boys' arrests on charges of robbing church poor boxes.

Gaetano Menna, father of the boys explained in broken English from a police cell tonight why he attempted to kill the clergyman.

"Priest sends boys ti jail," he stammered. "We starve. I try to kill him."

Menna walked up to Father Erkenswick of the church of the Holy Ghost, thrust a letter into his hand, and then shot him twice in the head and once in the back. Physicians said the priest had no chance to recover.

Two of Menna's sons, Paul, 20, and John, 17, were in jail. The letter which Menna thrust into the priest's hand was one received from Paul, following his arrest.

It denied the boys stole anything at the Holy Ghost church, although they were said to have confessed robbing 22 other churches.

CHICAGO, March 29.—(AP)—Prisoners numbering 1,241, were spending their first night in Cook county's new jail tonight, after being transferred through crowded downtown streets lined with patrolmen, in buses traveling 50 miles an hour, from the old jail.

THE HOOVERS TO SPEND QUIET EASTER SUNDAY

WASHINGTON, March 29.—(AP)—President Hoover will observe Easter Sunday with all the simplicity associated with his Quaker faith. Easter morning he and Mrs. Hoover will motor to the Friends meeting house for services which, following the customary practices of the church, will be without choir or organ. For the remainder of the day Mr. Hoover has made no plans, although he is expected to spend the afternoon and evening restingquietly at the executive mansion. He and Mrs. Hoover may take a short automobile ride in the afternoon, however.

There will not be any guests at the white house over the week end. Secretary Stimson and Hugh Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium, who have been Hoover's guests, have left.

Following custom the children of Washington have been invited to assemble in the south grounds of the white house on Easter Monday for their annual egg rolling. Several thousand youngsters generally are present on this occasion and spend the day playing on the spacious rear lawn. For a few hours in the afternoon adults are admitted and the Marine band gives a concert.

President Hoover tomorrow will take his first holiday since entering the white house. He will drive 30 miles to his fishing preserve on the Rapidan river in Virginia to spend several hours there, and then will return here.

TESTIMONY BY INMAN IN HIS DIVORCE SUIT

RENO, Nevada, March 29.—(AP)—Walker Inman, wealthy son of Mrs. James B. Duke, testified today in his divorce suit against Helen Garnett Patton. Clarke Inman that he never had worked a week at anything other than trading on the New York stock market. This testimony came after effort had been made by the defense to blame Mrs. Inman's alleged drinking habits upon her husband.

Inman testified that he had at times spent more than his family estate income of $50,000, having gone as high as $100,000 a year.

He declared that his wife drank before they were married, quit for a year and then took to the habit again. From that time on, he said, she gradually increased her imbibing. Although the complainant asserted he had tried to get his wife to drop the habit. Defense attorneys brought out that Inman always kept liquor on hand.

There were indications that the plaintiff's case might close tomorrow so far as direct testimony is concerned. Numerous depositions may then go into the record.

DECOMPOSED BODY OF GIRL FOUND IN CONNECTICUT RIVER

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 29.—(AP)—The decomposed body of a girl was found in the Connecticut river this afternoon in Longmeadow, a suburb of Springfield, and Police Chief John H. Henderson, Jr., of Longmeadow, expressed the belief that it is that of Francis St. John Smith, of New York, Smith college student, who mysteriously disappeared on January 11, 1928.

The lower teeth in the girl's jaw contain two silver or platinum caps linked by a white metal band behind the teeth. The rest of the teeth are in good condition and show the benefit of good care.

Medical Examiner Frederick Jones, of Springfield, said the body had been in the water for about a year. The protruding forehead corresponds with the description of Miss Smith, he averred.

The medical examiner also said that several shreds of what appeared to be a blue dress had been found on the body. He thought perhaps the orange color shred might have been a collar or trimming.

WAGE INCREASE FOR 10,000 RAILWAY SHOP WORKERS

T. Gillick, vice president, in charge of operations. The increase will involve about $1,000,000 a year, Mr. Gillick said.

The wage boost follows negotiations between the company and the Federated Shop Crafts, representing the workers. It becomes effective April 1.

Similar arrangements have been made between the shop workers and other railroads recently.

DANIELSON

STATE POLICE CONDUCTS RAIDS IN JEWETT CITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 29—A squad of six state officers from the Danielson barracks headed by Sergeant Lester Gardner staged a series of pre-Easter raids for liquor in Jewett City this afternoon. Seven places were visited and as a consequence there will be six appearances in the Griswold town court, two scheduled for Saturday, the others during the coming week. The raids were in the Brown avenue section of Jewett City.

At the home of Marie Sass a still and a quantity of moonshine was seized. At the home of Mike Mandrovsky, East Main street, a still was seized and also some liquor. He will be charged with manufacturing and selling. A small quantity of moonshine was seized at the home of John Miskiewicz of East Main street. At Mike Panansky's place on Monroe avenue, a still in actual operation was seized and also about 5 gallons of moonshine contained in bottles and jars. The home of Stanley Rys on Russell street yielded a 15-gallon still which was not in operation, some moonshine and two cases of beer. Fifty-two bottles of beer were seized at the home of Joseph Wojdchuck. The home of Alex Lutry was searched but nothing was found.

Panansky and Rys are scheduled to appear in court on Saturday. The others raided with the exception of Lutry are under bonds of $1,000 furnished in each case. The officers in the raiding squad in addition to Sergeant Gardner were Royal V. Scranton, Donald J. Geddes, H. Theodore Strand, John Murphy and Cyrus Chamberlain.

The vault that is being removed from the Windham County Savings bank building is not so old as many had thought. It was built, it is said, about 25 years ago. An older vault is the one on the second floor of the building, where the bank had its quarters before moving down to the street level floor.

At the hall of Rose of Lima council K. of C. a shower was given in honor of Mrs. Della Foster, with a large number of her relatives and friends in attendance. She was presented with a large number of beautiful gifts. A feature of the affair was the solos sung by Mrs. Alfred Courcoyer, with Miss Gertrude Poirier as accompanist. Games were played during the evening. A lunch was served by Miss Annie Peters and Mrs. Peter Goulet.

PLAINFIELD

IRVING F. PALMER DEAD—WELL KNOWN BUILDER

Following a year of failing health Irving Franklin Palmer, 67, died at his home on Packer Road, Wednesday morning. Mr. Palmer was a son of the late Benjamin C. and Lydia Richmond Palmer, the latter now of Rockville, R. I., and was born in Voluntown, April 24, 1868. As a boy much of his life was spent on a farm in Westminster. As a young man he ran a store in Westminster and later transferred his activities to Plainfield in a building owned by Henry Lester, next to his home place.

Mr. Palmer had ability as a carpenter and all-round builder. It was a common thing for him to build a house from start to finish with little or no help, from clearing the lot and digging and walling the cellar to finishing inside even to painting and paper hanging. Thus he became well known as a contractor. When a young man he married Miss Harriet James, of Canterbury, who survives him. Aside from his mother, there are no other near relatives except cousins in Westerly.

Charles E. Dewelley of Franklin, Me., is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Cecil Butler.

Mrs. Knox and children are ill with grip.

BANK MERGERS REDUCE FAILURE LIABILITY

NEW YORK—(AP)—The number of banks in the United States decreased from 19,265 to 18,522 during the past seven years. At the same time their resources grew from $45,551,000,000 to $43,066,000,000.

Based on these figures the average resources for each bank increased by approximately $1,000,000. Despite the fact that "chain banking" has only recently appeared as a subject of economic discussion, the merger process has been eliminating competition among banks with increasing swiftness.

There were 12 major consolidations in the New York area last year involving 23 banks. Rumors of bigger mergers are a daily dish in Wall street and if one-half of the rumors prove founded in fact, the year 1929 will be memorable.

Bankers see an advantage in consolidation aside from mere strength and size, in the decreasing number of failures. It estimated that bank failures for 1928 will not exceed 500, when the figures are known. This compares with 958 in 1926 and 662 in 1927.

Deposits of $9,000,000,000 are concentrated in that spot on the map designating the New York area. Bank news of 1929 seems likely to include more than one addition to the growing list of "billion dollar" financial citadels.

His radio key, W8EQ, enables him to talk regularly with Comm. Richard E. Byrd's camp in Antarctica, and with scores of stations in better known parts of the world. The operator at 8YPZ at Marseilles, France, is one of his best friends.

Early one morning Lisk heard an operator in Florida trying to reach the governor at Tallahassee with a plea for help. The crippled man relayed it by telegraph to the governor, and assistance to many flood victims resulted.

A fall from a pony 16 years ago caused Lisk's disability.

Buy One Fag At Time

NEW YORK—(AP)—The American public is buying cigarets now at the rate of 106,000,000,000 yearly, but not one at a time, the way they are sold in the orient. Out in Singapore peddlers will sell you a cigaret and a match for about half a cent.

PUTNAM

IMMIGRATION LAWS STIR LOCAL NON-RESIDENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 29—The modified immigration laws were being widely discussed in all circles today. The report that has circulated in this section of the state during the past few days, to the effect that a great number of French-Canadian people will be subject to the deportation under the new laws has caused considerable alarm during the past twenty-four hours. Many are seeking entry certificates to insure their residence in this country after the new immigration code takes effect in July. A further check up today by a few personally interested in the effects the new laws will have in this vicinity revealed that only a few, if any, will be affected in Putnam. Despite this fact the report that the government is ready to take drastic action to enforce the immigration laws, by including a deportation clause in the new code has caused considerable alarm and general uneasiness among the French-Canadian residents of the city.

General interest was aroused tonight when the public learned the contents of the ante-mortem notes left by Mrs. Gertrude Jackson written shortly before she directed a bullet through her heart. The contents of the notes were released tonight in the colums of the Norwich Evening Record. Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson in releasing copies of the notes today stirred interest in the murder case of William E. Jackson of Willimantic, which had for the time passed from the public spotlight. The news stands were swamped tonight by anxious readers in quest of editions in which the contents of the notes were divulged.

Good Friday was observed today in Putnam by a number of the merchants who suspended business operations at noon. The three banks were not open today at all. Schools were closed yesterday for the Easter recess which commenced today. Local factories did not observe the day by closing plants. In the churches of the city services were held at three o'clock. At St. Mary's church many members of the church visited the edifice to take part in the service of the way of the cross, while the Protestant churches held a union service at St. Philip's Episcopal church on Grove street.

The annual charity night entertainment of the Cosmos club of this city will be held this year in April at the Bradley theatre, according to an announcement made today by Mrs. Bernice G. Delaney, a member of the committee in charge of the event. Each year the Cosmos club stages a public event to assist the organization in their efforts to provide for the needy families in the city. Mrs. Delaney said today that further plans regarding the charity affair would be announced at a later date.

Over a hundred sportsmen from the northeastern section of the county gathered last evening in Odd Fellows hall on Pomfret street to attend the annual meeting, supper and election of officers of the Northeastern Fish and Game club. Following the supper the club went into executive session, with President F. A. Marvott presiding and elected the following officers: President, Earl C. Rogers; vice president, Byron Morse; secretary, George E. Whitney of North Grosvenordale; treasurer, Stanley F. Bacon. The balance of the evening was devoted to the discussion of the trout season which officially opens on April 15. It was reported at this meeting that the club has done much toward the stocking of ponds and brooks, during the past year. The club also took an active part in releasing birds for the hunting season last year. The reports of the secretary and treasurer indicated that the sportsman's organization had made extensive gains both socially and financially during the past year.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Methodist Episcopal church on Grove street for Mrs. William Edson who died Tuesday at her home on Walnut street. Rev. John E. Duxbury, pastor of the church officiated at the service and also conducted the committal service at the grave in Grove street cemetery. The funeral was attended by many friends and relatives of Mr. Edson.

Funeral services were held this afternoon for Mrs. Ella E. Brown who died Tuesday. The service was held at her home on King street and was conducted by Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Second Congregational church of this city. Burial was in Grove street cemetery. Committal services were held at the grave.

Augustus M. Wilson, a student at Suffield Academy in Suffield is spending the Easter recess at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Leon T. Wilson of Laurel street.

A new bell and clock for St. Mary's church tower is now practically assured, Rev. L. O. Bellerose, pastor of the church said Sunday that he hoped the new instruments would be in their places by Memorial day.

Tenants in the Central block, known as the old armory building on Main street are now making their exit after years spent in business on this site. The building within a few weeks will be razed and the site cleared, in order that construction on a new block may begin. Charles Seder owner of the block, who announced last week that he was contemplating tearing down the structure, has as yet declined to make known what will replace the antiquated structure. Dr. W. H. Thomason has removed to another location, and the store occupied by Chester M. Elliott will soon be vacated. The clothing house known as the Bonneville clothing store, occupying the corner stand is now under a sheriff's attachment and several legal processes will have to be resorted to before the stock of goods can be removed. The law firm of Searls, Russell and Bradford is situated in a suite of offices on the second floor. While it is not known as to where the attorneys will locate, they have been ordered to leave the Central block on or before April 1.

It is thought that a lengthy meeting of the common council will be held on Tuesday evening when the board of aldermen convene for the April session. There are now two important problems before the councilmen that necessitates immediate settlement, the reconstruction plan of the city water system and the granting of rights to the Beacon Oil company of Everett, Mass., to establish a distributing plant in this city. As stated yesterday, it is believed the latter bill will meet with immediate approval, and much will be accomplished towards furthering the water situation. The complete report of the board of water commissioners will be filed with the council and will be discussed in open meeting, according to information given by Chairman R. E. Thurston of the board of commissioners at the March meeting.

JEWETT CITY

RAID BY STATE TROOPERS—MUCH CONTRABAND FOUND

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 29—Three stills were seized and a quantity of beer and spirits taken in a raid out over this forenoon by state troopers from the Danielson barracks. All the nine places visited were in the Belvedere section of the borough and on Brown avenue and Russell street, adjacent to it. Those included in the searches and seizures were: Frank Guncharrow, where a quantity of liquor was taken; Joseph Woitchika, several bottles of home brew found. Stills in actual operation were seized at the homes of Mrs. John Sass, Mike Parsnack, and Stanley Rys, with a quantity of moonshine at the latter place. Search at the four following houses failed to reveal liquor or beer, with no evidence of recent activity: Mike Mandrofski, John Meskiwitz, Felix Flazinki and Alexander Luty. The various liquor and beer evidences, together with the three modern stills, were taken to the barracks in Danielson. The movements of the troopers were carefully laid out, with plans operating without a hitch. Soon after the arrival of the police, it is reported that there was considerable excitement in the locality, with much running about. The troopers who participated in the big clean-up, were Sergt. G. L. Gardner, Officers Nolan, Scranton, Gedder, Strand, Chamberlin, Murray and Carmody. Prosecuting Attorney R. J. Dudkowski will present the accused for trial in Griswold town court before Judge John T. Barry Saturday morning.

DOING A GOOD TURN. AN ACCIDENT RESULTS

Early Friday forenoon, on the East Main street highlands, Mrs. Leoza LeFavre was knocked down by an automobile driven by Joseph D. Tetreault. Officer Henry Vegiard was called and checked up on the case. Dr. F. E. Rainville was hurriedly summoned, and attended Mrs. LeFavre at her home. Bad bruises and a general shaking up, with no lacerations, were the doctor's report. Ed. J. Connell, in his machine, bound north, had stopped to give Mrs. LeFavre a lift to her work at the Textile Novelty Co.'s plant, she being on the sidewalk at the time. Mr. Tetreault, also bound north, in attempting to pass Mr. Connell's machine, and at the same time dodge an approaching horse being driven south, struck the woman. She was thrown to the street and drawn some distance. Mr. Tetreault and Mr. Connell were both summoned by Officer Veziard to appear in the town court this (Saturday) morning. The former will be charged with reckless driving, and Mr. Connell had left his license at home. Unfortunate circumstances were mainly to blame for the accident.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

The death of Marshal Foch removed the second of three distinguished Europeans who were made honorary members of the Knights of Columbus, in post-war years. Of the trio, Cardinal Mercier, Foch, and King Albert of Belgium, only Albert remains.

Marshal Foch was made an honorary member in Chicago, November 6, 1921. He had been presented a gold and gem studded baton by representatives of the Order, who visited Metz in 1920, to assist at the dedication of the Lafayette statue and his trip to this country was partly prompted by a desire to return that visit.

News of the death of Marshal Foch was received at supreme headquarters of the Order at New Haven, with great regret. The flag atop the building was immediately lowered to half-staff, in tribute to the gallant warrior.

Shetucket Lodge No. 27

The regular meeting of Shetucket lodge No. 27, I. O. O. F., was held on Tuesday evening with a good sized attendance. Interest in the meetings seems to be increasing as indicated by the presence of several of the old-timers who have not been seen for a long time. Noble Grand Eugene Wood presided over the gathering and much business of importance was transacted. Reports from the chairmen of different committees were heard and acted upon.

An invitation from New Britain lodge was read by Secretary Bishop, inviting Shetucket lodge to participate in a monster parade to be held May 14 at the annual meeting of the Grand lodge. It is expected that there will be at least 5,000 in line. A large number have signified their intention of going.

Past Grand F. Q. Smith gave an interesting report of the annual meeting of the home corporation held in Waterbury recently. This corporation has general charge of the affairs of the Odd Fellows home at "Fairview", Groton. Few of the brothers seem to realize that this home for aged and infirm Odd Fellows and their wives is one of the finest and best equipped institutions of its kind in New England. A new infirmary to take care of sick and infirm brothers and sisters has recently been completed at a cost of over $100,000, and is fully prepared to insure the welfare of the aged brothers and sisters in the sunset years of life.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY

A meeting of the Easter Monday dance committee was held in the assembly rooms Thursday evening and Miss Mary Hamill, chairman, reported that nearly everything is in readiness for the dance. The committee on decorations met Friday after church services to complete the decorations and the six members, who are to have charge of the checking room, have also had a meeting and have arranged to give prompt and careful service. Refreshments will be served during intermission. Comfortable chairs have been placed in the gallery for members who do not care to dance and every effort is being made to make this dance a successful one.

DEGREE OF POCOHONTAS

Sebequoneah council, No. 11, met in its tepee at the Buckingham Memorial, Wednesday evening, for a meeting, matters of a routine nature being transacted. Deputy Lavina Prevost and members from Hiawatha council, No. 13, were among those present.

Recently the members surprised Past Pocahontas Marion Quinn at her home and presented her with a Past Pocahontas jewel for her faithful and efficient service. It was a quiet affair because of a recent death in the family.

A rising vote of thanks was extended Sister Bush, chairman of the social committee, and Sisters Manchester and Hallisey for their splendid report for the past eight months.

ODD FELLOWS

With a large gathering of members of the three encampments and neighboring organizations an inter-district meeting of Palmyra encampment, this city, Orion encampment, New London, and Mystic encampment, I. O. O. F., was held Thursday evening at Odd Fellows hall, Main street. A large class of candidates were initiated by a degree team from Mystic and a supper was served preceding the meeting at 7:30 o'clock. Brief remarks were made by Past Grand Patriarch Austin of Mystic, Past Grand Master Cooper of Mystic and others. There was also a fine programme of entertainment. The supper committee comprised Mrs. Eliza Walker, chairman, Mrs. Charles R. Browning, Mrs. Amy Coles and Mrs. D. Edward Smith.

Patrons of Husbandry

Norwich grange No. 172 P. of H. met Wednesday evening in Steiner's hall with Worthy Master Albert W. Lillibridge presiding. Neighbors from Mystic, Franklin and Pachaug granges were invited helping to make the evening one to be remembered by all. The lecturer's hour was in charge of Past Master Ivy O. Peckham. The programme: Song by grange; vocal solo and encore, Sister Gremley (Mystic); reading, Lona Torenesia (Eagle's Feather), Sister Rodman, Franklin; solo and encore, Sister Kingsley, Franklin; competition song by brothers and sisters, Bud and Bloom; spelling match, ten visitors and ten members, the visitors being the winners.

A most interesting talk on Wayside Stands by William Main of Mystic followed by Brother Allen on What Made the Wayside Stands, Pomona Lecturer Sister Bliss of Norwich Grange gave her experiences as an owner of a wayside stand. It was voted to have Mystic degree team out on the third and four degrees at Norwich April 24. Brother Brooks of Mystic in well chosen words presented Norwich Grange with $5 to put in their building fund. He also presented the entertainers with bouquets of roses. The refreshment committee served sandwiches, cream puffs and coffee. Mrs. Jennie Davis, chairman. The grange auxiliary had a very pleasant all day sewing circle with Miss Ruth Russell home demonstration agent as instructor on house dresses. One of the members, Mrs. Alida Boyens finished her dress in time to wear at the evening meeting and it was much admired. A delicious dinner was served at noon consisting of roast beef, mashed potatoes, peas, rolls, custard pie, and coffee, Mrs. Eliza Walker, chairman.

An invitation to neighbor with Lisbon grange on April 19th is extended to Norwich grange.

BOLTON

Bolton Grange No. 47, held its meeting Friday evening at the basement, with a fine attendance in spite of bad traveling, twenty-two patrons being present besides one member from Columbia and one from Andover. The lecturer's program included musical reading by Sister Adelina N. Loomis and a song "Son Boy" by Myron M. Lee. Sandwiches, cake, doughnuts and coffee were the lunch. Games were played.

The next grange meeting will be held April 12 when there will be a one-act play presented by Alice Lee and her cast. Music, male quartet; reading, Elizabeth Strong; roll call; current events. The judges are Lavinia C. Price, Mrs. Frederick C. Taylor.

Miss Shay, a teacher at the red school house just over Bolton line in Coventry was bitten by a police dog owned by Clifford Griswold. She was taken to the Manchester Memorial hospital and the wounds were treated. Dog Warden Samuel R. Woodward had the dog killed.

THE EASTER MESSAGE.

As we come to this anniversary of the Resurrection we cannot fail to appreciate that it brings a message of joy. Easter is the most joyful of all the feasts of the Christian church. It pictures to us again the awakening of a new life and a promise for the future.

As has been said, "It was a sad world when Jesus came, and in one quarter it was sadder still when He died. Jerusalem was bitter and gloomy, while the noble philosophy of the time was a hopeless doctrine. The resurrection of Jesus was like the rising of the morning star after a night of darkness and gloom. There was joy in the hearts of his disciples. That joy has never left the world. It overflowed and extended from a few obscure fishermen to others of their own class, to other classes, and to other nations and people. That resurrection song is swelling still, swelling louder and echoing wider. Its notes are being sung by millions of the sons and daughters of men in all lands and in all languages."

The joy in Easter is everlasting. It is so deep that the sorrows of the world which are always on the surface cannot materially interfere with it. This joy abides. The Christian can sing in the night as well as in the day, in pain as well as in pleasure, in winter as well as in summer. It is exulting joy, it is rapture in many cases, deeper than the deepest sea, higher than the highest mountains.

Resurrection joy is the joy of hope. Hope is an inspiration. Without hope the farmer could not plant and sow and wait for the harvest. It is hope that beckons the sick man through days and nights of anguish. It is hope that enables the merchant to make his investments. He trades on hope. We all trade on hope, and this is our chief stock in trade. Eliminate it from life and alternativ is paralyzed.

The Easter song will lift up those who are cast down, strengthen the weak and win the wanderer from the ways of despair. It lightens the dark corners of the work with rays of joy and hope. Easter is the time for rejoicing.

NORWICH TREES.

We are getting to the season of the year when tree planting is going to be in order. It need not all be done on Arbor day but it should be done at a time when the new trees will get the full benefit and a fair chance.

Tree planting should be a matter of individual as well as community effort. It means adding valuable assets. We are proud of our noble trees and it behooves us to see that they are given fair treatment. If the time comes when they have been stricken by disease their removal should be attended by the setting out of new ones, provided, of course, that the location justifies it.

It is valuable work that has been done in Norwich during the past several years for the preservation of trees and in the setting out of new ones. The work of spraying has been of great protective value. The work of pruning, repairing and feeding has been cheaper than the removal of trees which were showing signs of decay or disease.

Tree removals have been resorted to where required, the cutting down of a tree averaging about $50, while the care given to others has doubtless preserved for many additional years the full grown trees to which many have become strongly attached and which contribute much to the appearance of property.

In the planting of the trees Norwich has within the last three years planted a tree for every one that has been taken down. That means in the aggregate our trees have not experienced a decrease. It is a policy that should become a fixed one, for there are always opportunities of improving and beautifying streets where an inadequate number of shade trees is to be found.

This year, like others, will probably mean that a number of dead trees must be taken out. That is inevitable but as they go others should take their place where it is advisable and this be given a start that will bring them to maturity for the benefit of others in the years to come. We need to maintain a healthy and active interest in behalf of our trees.

CIVILIZATION PROGRESSES.

Several agencies keep tabs on the number of lynchings in the country for the purpose of knowing whether there has been a decrease or increase from year to year.

Before the year is completed one agency makes a statement of the lynching record, although it is entirely possible for several additional cases to occur between the time it is published and the entrance of the new year. Another agency takes plenty of time to permit of reports being made, more perhaps than would seem necessary when it is realized that it has just been made public for the 12 months of 1928.

By this report which cannot be regarded as hasty and therefore incomplete, it is disclosed that there were 11 lynchings last year spread over five states and five of the cases occurred in the state of Mississippi. Texas and Louisiana had two to their discredit and Missouri and New Mexico one each.

This is a decided improvement over some years. It indicates an approach to the time when it will be possible to declare that none has occurred and it discloses a marked change already in some of the states. There were the days when Georgia was leading the list persistently as if there were a worthy distinction involved. Repeatedly it was declared that the lynching record of that state did not represent the better sentiment of the commonwealth but it required a hard and determined fight to bring about the change. Georgia bore its disgrace too long, but it is to be hoped that its absence from the list of lynching states is to be as permanent as it is now conspicuous.

Sentiment against lynching has been accomplishing much in the southern states. Authorities are alert to their responsibilities and there is evidence of greater restraint on the part of the people. This is disclosed by the many instances where attempts at lynching have been frustrated. The downward tendency is the right one and it is to be hoped that the time will come, and at no great delay, when Mississippi will be as free from lynchings as Georgia was during the past year. Occasionally we see evidence where civilization is making progress.

BITTER MEDICINE.

Further evidence comes from White Plains, N. Y., that criminals do not like the Baumes law under which, following a fourth conviction for a felony, they can be sentenced to prison for life.

This is provided by Malcolm G. Swift, aged 25, who after conviction and sentence to life imprisonment addressed the court by saying, "You are sentencing me to a life term just because I committed a few burglaries." He seems to carry the impression that he ought to be allowed to go on with his burglaries just as if he were rendering the public a service. From his statement he considers the public legitimate prey. The fact that he has been caught and convicted and "has paid dearly," as he stated, in the past, did not prevent him from continuing his practice. His complaint is that something has been done to protect the public against his criminal activities.

Swift goes to prison as a young man. It is unfortunate that one of his years could not have given sufficient serious thought to the course he was following and the laws that had been established to deal with just such cases to keep away from that life sentence. He thinks the public should tolerate anything he does and he be permitted the chance to do it over and over again just as long as he pays the penalty for each time he is caught. He shows no disposition to reform, no inclination to heed the fact that the law of which he complains was enacted to meet just such cases. In his eyes burglaries are part of his rights, and he doesn't seem to think that the only one responsible for the predicament over which he complains is himself. It is quite evident that he doesn't like the medicine which he insisted upon.

PRICE OF DISOBEDIENCE.

Waterbury has one of those sandbanks which is disposed to cave in, especially when encouraged. The result is that several children have lost their lives there, one of them a boy of 10 years, this week. The investigation hasn't been completed but at present it is not known exactly how it happened. Companions didn't actually see the boy engulfed but they had noticed him digging in the bank. He was found at that spot, too late to save his life after his mother became worried when he failed to return home for supper.

Just why children will insist upon playing in dangerous places, where others have lost their lives, is hard to understand when it is realized what an impression is usually made upon their minds when some of their companions have lost their lives there. Yet it often happens, with an addition to the death list. Signs prohibiting trespassing, fences and even barbed wire fail to stop them. The fact that they are prohibited is at times sufficient cause for some of them to try to show that they can disregard the orders and get away with it.

On the other hand it would appear that there is a solemn obligation resting upon parents to so lay down the regulations as to conduct that children would keep away from such places. They are invariably of an age that cannot be expected to show greater regard for danger than for their immediate pleasure unless it has been repeatedly impressed upon them. Parental oversight and control cannot cover every minute of the day, but when children are taught to obey instructions and not simply let warnings go in one ear and out the other, and especially not to do the opposite to what they are told, there will be fewer of such distressing fatalities.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: The pessimist is a person who has trouble getting started.

May it be a bright and happy Easter.

There are those who claim there is no such thing as rheumatism. That may be so but sufferers from that condition know that changing the name of it doesn't bring relief.

Just because Mr. Dawes is mentioned for the ambassadorship to Great Britain doesn't mean that he would tell parliament how it should reform.

Elihu Root has done a good job at Geneva and now it remains to be seen what success he will have with the United States senate.

Isn't it about time someone was reporting the first dandelion?

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Is there not an intangible something in the very air these days that tells us we are on the verge of new life? It may be partly due to the fact that the sun having just crossed the equator is flooding these northern latitudes with a little more genial life. Isn't there quietly stealing over us a sort of urge to leave Plato and Aristotle on the bookshelf and take up the garden rake and do something more sensible in cleaning up winter's debris in the garden? In a big oak tree near my garden there is a bird that sings to me every time I appear in sight these days: "My son, my son, go at it, go at it"! And at once from an apple tree in my neighbor's garden comes the response: "It's time, it's time!" While I do not think these birds intend to be impertinent or sarcastic, I cannot rid myself of the feeling that the garden could stand the vigorous use of the rake and bonfire, without in the least injuring the value of the property.

Just a word to my fellow farmers in regard to a little matter that can be easily overlooked. It is in regard to those parsnips you cultivated last year with such intelligent and loving care. Don't forget that, being true to form, you left the bulk of the crop in the ground during the winter months. Please pardon the impudence of a seasoned agriculturist, if he reminds you that they are still in the ground because they can be so easily forgotten. The frost is now out of the ground in most places in this latitude so that they can be easily removed. It is better to dig them with a spade than a knife and fork, as you can use the latter to better advantage at the table. If the parsnips are well cooked you will not need a spade at the table. There is nothing we put our fangs into at this season of the year that is more luscious than the well-cooked parsnip.

We are now informed that plans are under consideration for a federal department of education, which shall establish a separate portfolio with a secretary in the president's cabinet. The work is now a part of the department of the interior. This matter has been coming to a focus ever since the World war that fairly startled recruiting officers as they came face to face with such appalling ignorance. This very important matter is being pushed with energy and intelligence by the new secretary of the interior, Ray Lyman Wilbur, recently president of Leland Stanford university. It almost staggers one's belief that the statement made in the March number of The Review of Reviews can be true: "It came as a shock to learn that one in every four of the candidates for the army could neither read a newspaper intelligently nor write a letter home." In view of this fact it is evident that some remedy must be found.

According to John Stuart Mill, "A cultivated mind is not necessarily that of a philosopher but any mind to which the fountains of knowledge have been opened, and which has been taught in any tolerable degree to exercise its faculties." Such a mind, Mill affirms, will find sources of inexhaustible interest in all that surrounds it. Natural scenery will mean very much; what man has accomplished in art will make a strong appeal. One will enter into the imaginations of poetry with a zest. With such a mind the incidents of history mean something more than the happenings of chance. The ways of mankind form a logical link binding past, present and future into an organic whole. In a word, the cultivated mind finds the capacity to enjoy things within himself, and will not be dependent on the external world for the rich satisfactions of life.

The above statement by one of England's greatest thinkers of the last century is what even the young schoolboy begins to experience when he puts his mind seriously upon the task before him. It has often been said that "the only way to do a thing is to do it." In the vast majority of cases there is enough ability to have a cultivated mind if there is a will strong enough to get it. There is nothing at all miraculous about it. A downright purpose plus application is about all there is to it. It ought also to be noted that the consciousness of learning what we set out to get is a real source of happiness. And the more extensive the field we conquer correspondingly greater is the joy. A mind well stored with useful information together with keen thinking ability does not have to rely on others for entertainment. A cultivated person is one whose motion pictures are thrown upon the retina of the mental eye and not on a visible screen.

We are very much indebted to psychology for showing how much any field of inquiry may yield if it can be surrounded by the right atmosphere. It is wonderful to what extent we are influenced by our surroundings. In his earlier years the writer had something to do with public schools; and he saw as never before how important it is to have the right mental atmosphere in a schoolroom. He noticed that if a teacher was fidgity, the order was invariably bad; the pupils were noisy and restless, and when they spoke their voices were loud and harsh. On the other hand where the teacher was calm, quiet and intensive, there was usually good order and real progress was being made. How important the right mental attitude toward any subject! The skilled physician knows how to approach his patient. It is not the attitude of a certain Irishman who said to his sick friend: "Well, Mike, I guess yer goin' ter kick th' bucket!"

We frequently hear the fear expressed that dire calamity will be the lot of poor mortals when the earth fails to produce this, that or the other raw product. Is it not perfectly proper to urge the following argument against all such fears? God has put man upon this earth without consulting him in the matter. Man is here to fulfill the purpose of the Divine Will. Therefore God will make it possible for man to find the means of fulfilling those purposes. Of course I do not mean that man can violate the plain laws of nature and expect that some miracle will counteract his stupidity. But if he uses the intelligence that God has given him he will be constantly finding new sources of supply. When man went after some form of illumination better than the tallow candle, then something much better came. And thus it has been one thing after another in the line of improvement up to electricity. Has the end been reached?

The greatest calamities come when man fails to heed the laws of God. One of the great laws of God that man in the past has disregarded is the conversation of energy. This cannot be done with impunity. Right here was the basis of the fight between Theodore Roosevelt and the lumber kings of the west. That man of scientific knowledge and keen mental vision saw clearly what the future of these great wooded tracts would be in time if skinned without reforesting. He knew perfectly well why China is cursed with alternate floods and droughts. Mountain sides without root protection will soon yield the soil to rains that carry it to the sea, and in time nothing will be left but unproductive bare rock. The only escape from this inevitable scourge is to replant the cleared places with young seedlings. This is one of the big monuments that Roosevelt dedicated to posterity.

Holy Week Topic
"MY MASTER AND BROTHER"
Memory Verse for Saturday.

"For we are saved by hope." (Romans 8:24). (Read: Psalms 42.)

MEDITATION: Another silent day in Passion Week! It was the pause between the cross and the resurrection. The church early named it the Day of Darkness. For we remember that the disciples were without expectation that day. All was at an end so far as they could see. Many of us have had such dreadful pauses when despair sat heavy on our hearts. There are those who live and suffer in this gloom without God and without hope in the world. Alas for them! We can endure anything if only we have hope.

PRAYER: O Comforter divine, we commend to Thee those from whose path in life flowers have faded and song has ceased and to whom life seems but a weary, joyless road. From all their despondencies deliver them and out of their darkness and gloom lead them into the light and hope and joy of Christ. Amen.

Sunday Morning Talk

Gladness of Easter.

And when the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Jesus, and Salome had brought sweet spices that they might come and anoint Him, and very early in the morning the first day of the week they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun.

And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the the stone from the door of the sepulchre?

And when they looked they saw that the stone was rolled away; for it was very great.

And entering into the sepulchre they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment, and they were affrighted.

And He saith unto them, Be not affrighted. Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: He is risen; He is not here: behold the place where they laid Him.

But go your way, tell His disciples and Peter that He goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see Him as He said unto you: Mark 16:1-7.

That little band of weeping women who stood at the foot of the cross faithful among the faithless were first at the tomb. Their loyalty shed a glory which time cannot efface.

Mary Magdalene remained and the others did not waver through that awful tragedy. Let us still realize that Christ lives. The supreme significance of the resurrection is that Christ is alive and that in that we have a promise of a future life. That as Christ promised He has gone to prepare a place for us. As has been said Heaven is a prepared place for a prepared people. We worship not merely a Christ who lived long ago, died and rose again, but a Christ who lives today. If He does not truly live and reign within our own souls, Easter can mean but little to us.

Easter means more to the true Christian than is generally realized. It certainly should be a season of joy, as He "who ever liveth to make intercession" for those who trust in Him.

May this Easter be an awakening to a new life in our souls and to a life that shall strive to win precious souls for the One who died for us; gave His life on the cross that we might be saved, and now lives to welcome us into the home He has prepared for us. Can we slight such a great love. May each one strive to have the true Easter spirit.

COOLIDGE ON ADVANCEMENT OF WORLD PEACE

Calvin Coolidge, writing in the April number of the Ladies' Home Journal suggests that the United States forces for national defense "should be large enough so that others would see that there would be a great deal of peril involved in attacking us. But these forces should not be so large that our country would feel we would undergo no peril in attacking others." Mr. Coolidge concludes that the question of whether nations with "adequate" military forces are more likely to enjoy peace than those neglecting their defense, becomes in the last analysis a question of dealing with human nature. The article is the first of three expanding his views on the advancement of world peace. The others deal with limitation of armaments and the denunciation of war.

"The first duty of a government is order," Mr. Coolidge says. "We are told that it is heaven's first law. In our day we have come to take order for granted as something almost self-existent. But it is not. In fact, it is very difficult to maintain, as we are constantly reminded by recurring waves of crime and the outbreak of warfare.

No Liberty Without Order

"Order is of the first importance, because without it we would have no liberty and no progress; property would be of little value, every home would be insecure and all life in danger.

"When the test comes, the people will give up almost any other human right to secure safety and protection. Whenever anarchy imperils a state a military dictator always appears, because the people prefer him to the lawlessness of the mob.

"We can see what would happen in time of disorder. Religious assemblage would cease, schools would close, manufacturing plants would be idle, transportation could not be operated, bank payments would be suspended, all of the evidences of indebtedness, even the paper money and bonds of the government, and the precious stones would go into hiding, every city would face starvation and existence would be reduced to the first principles of personal strength and cunning.

Barbarism Would Return

"Civilization would be giving place to barbarism. The loss of life would be enormous.

"This picture is not overdrawn. Every mature person knows that within his own lifetime appalling tragedies of this nature have been experienced in Europe and in Asia. The same catastrophe would overwhelm us if the orderly enforcement of the law were suspended for thirty days.

"One of the methods by which each government undertakes to preserve order so that it may protect its people from domestic violence and foreign hostilities is known as preparation for national defense. The great object that it all seeks to accomplish is peace, peace for the citizen at home and peace for the citizen aboard. Preparation runs all the way from the policeman on the corner, who is our first line of defense, to the army and navy, with their supporting fortifications and bases. We do not have these for the purpose of making war, but for the purpose of preserving peace.

Must Insure Security.

"The ability to protect the people within its borders and to insure to them the security which can only come from the orderly administration of law is so much and so peculiarly the first requisite of every government that under international usage civilized nations do not recognize a government which cannot or does not meet these obligations.

"Our army can be small, because we are peaceful at home and far removed from attack by land. Also, an army can be assembled quickly. Our navy is more extensive because our shores, our great commerce and our distant possessions must be protected and it takes years to build a warship.

"We maintain these forces at a cost of about $670,000,000 each year in our general effort to promote peace.

"No sure way has ever been found to prevent war. We all realize that it is one of the most hideous afflictions to which mankind is subject. Opinions may differ as to whether nations with adequate military forces are more likely to enjoy peace than those which neglect their defenses.

Cities Would Be Ransacked.

"In the last analysis this is a question of dealing with human nature. Every one knows that if there were no police our cities would be ransacked within twenty-four hours; I very strongly suspect that if there were but one nation in the world supplied with an army and navy, and, to make the supposition as strong as possible, if that nation were our own, it would not be long before the other nations had been overrun. It seems to me that it is almost a moral certainty that we should find some excuse for taking that action.

"But when we know that other countries have a considerable ability to defend themselves, it is human nature for us to regard them with a more wholesome respect and be more careful about violating their rights. If we reverse this picture we can likewise conclude that if others know we are prepared to defend ourselves, they will be less likely to commit offenses against us.

"While I have discussed national defense very largely as a method of preventing war, it has another aspect which is likewise of extreme importance. Perhaps peace is an ideal that can come only to future generations which are more perfect than our own.

"Meantime we should take every precaution to prevent war, of which adequate defense is one. But we should also take every precaution to protect ourselves to the fullest possible extent from its ravages if it does come.

"The army and navy serve the double purpose of prevention and defense."

A Washington Bystander

WASHINGTON, March 29—When France pays its last homage in carved stonework to her greatest soldier, Marshal Foch, no more fitting tribute to his memory could be found to engrave above his resting place than his own last words: "Bien, allons y."

Their equivalent in English is that Americanism, born of the restless, urgent spirit of the nation, "Let's go." It was the spirit and the motto of Pershing's men in France; the moving factor Foch himself saw making for victory as the raw levies poured into France from the new world. He, himself, epitomized it as the "irreducible will to win" of the American troops, and there was in it that which found an ardent echo in his own high fighting heart and unfaltering confidence.

Attacking Genius.

It was that in Foch that made him great. It lifted him head and shoulders above the ruck of French high command at the first Marne. It made him the darling of the French people years before destiny singled him out to lead the allied hosts to the Rhine. France still was trusting her all to "Papa" Joffre, her bulky, slow moving strong man in the hour of greatest peril, the hour when the miracle of the first Marne was wrought. For Joffre was France's great man in defense, Foch in heart and mind and military genius was a soldier of the offense "Allons y."

It was so American eyes saw him in those grim March days of 1918 when the grumble of German guns again throbbed in the ear drums of Paris—in English ears across channel, President Wilson, Pershing, Bliss, civilian and military chiefs alike, all were eager to break out of the stalemate of trench warfare, to go surging forward at any cost. France and England, with the very fate of Paris and London in the balance, must move always with caution as Lincoln and his commanders in America's bitter sixties always were restricted by the necessity of first securing the safety of Washington.

Brave and Bold

The need of unity of command was very great. America was insistent on the counter drive; ready to pay the cost in American blood. The super commander must of course be French as the struggle was on French soil. And in Foch of the first Marne, Foch, who died as he lived with "Allons y" on his lips, America saw the man of destiny of the war. It was that thing of his spirit, not any Napoleonic genius of strategic warfare, that brought Foch to his high pinnacle of fame. There were scores of sound militarists, sure of judgment, far seeing in strategic and tactical conception, but there was but one Foch who was to die more than a decade later as valiantly facing death as ever he faced mortal foes, and with his lips stilled on his cry of "Bien, allons y."

Burgess Bedtime Story

A Deed of Darkness

The evil-doer loves the night
And hates and fears the hours of light.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown had been reading the evening paper. "I see," said he, "that there have been chicken thieves working in this part of the country. You want to watch out, Son, that you don't lose your hens some fine night. Here is an account in the paper of the taking of all of one farmer's hens and the thieves got away with them."

"I don't believe any one will bother us," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "I guess Bowser the Hound would give us warning."

"Well," replied Farmer Brown, "take my advice and be sure that you lock the henhouse door every night."

Farmer Brown's Boy said that he would. In fact, he got up right then and went out to make sure that the henhouse door was locked. But he wasn't really afraid that thieves would visit that henhouse. No one ever had stolen any chickens there—that is, no human being had ever stolen any. Of course, Reddy Fox and Robber the Rat and Shadow the Weasel had from time to time taken a few, but somehow Farmer Brown's Boy had never regarded these as thieves.

That night Bowser the Hound, who had been left unchained, took it into his head to go hunting. He knew that he shouldn't do it, but every so often the desire to hunt became so strong in Bowser that he just had to go. So it was that just before he went to bed, Farmer Brown's Boy heard Bowser's voice way over in the Old Pasture. "The old scamp!" said he. "Well, it's my fault. I should have chained him up. Well, Reddy Fox will give him a good run, and then Bowser will come home all tired out and there'll be no harm done."

These two thieves were used to locked doors

It was along in the darkest hour of the night that two figures stole up to the henhouse. They were very, very quiet. All was still at Farmer Brown's house, for every one was asleep in there. "Are you sure that that dog isn't around?" whispered one of these dark figures to the other.

"Listen!" said the other. "There's his voice now, way over in the back part of the Old Pasture. I know that hound's voice. I wouldn't have suggested trying for these hens here if I hadn't been sure the dog was gone. Hello! The door is locked."

But the locked door made little diffefence. These two thieves were used to locked doors. It took only a few moments to force it open. When they entered the henhouse, one of them turned on a flashlight. "My," he whispered, "this is the best lot of hens we've found. This will be a good night's work. Where are the bags?"

"Just outside," replied the other thief. "I'll bring them in."

He stepped outside and brought in two or three biz bags.

"We'll have to work quickly," said one, "that dog may come home."

"Don't you worry about that dog," replied the other. "He's chasing a Fox. He won't come home before morning. We want to take these birds alive," said the first thief, "but we'll have to work carefully, so as not to get them to making a noise. You hold the bag while I pick them off the roosts."

Meanwhile, in Farmer Brown's house, Farmer Brown's Boy was peacefully sleeping. It hadn't entered his head that anything could happen to those precious hens of his.

Children's Games In Rumania

BUCHAREST, March 21—(AP)—There is a great similarity in the games played by the tots in the land where golden haired Michael I is the seven-year-old king, and those games which are popular among the boys and girls of the United States.

Madame Simone Lahovary, lady-in-waiting to Queer Marie and president of the Good Housekeeping association, which maintains playgrounds, kindergartens and schools for children of all ages throughout Rumania, says that except for the Rumanian music, which accompanies so many of the Rumanian games, the kindergartens in the United States had many games in common with those in Rumania.

"Then, there is our 'Oina' for the boys, a game that might well be the ancestor of baseball," Madame Lahovary added.

And it is quite true. "Oina" is played with a ball and would be called "one Ol' Cat" in America. "Oina" is a purely Rumanian game; the Daclans were playing it before Caesar's time. The Dacians were the ancestors of the present Rumanians, and there is considerable possibility that the game of ball which the colonists in America found the Indians playing originated from this Dacian-Rumanian "Oina" sport.

"Bird, Beast or Fish" is played in Rumania, but is called "Guess." "Puss in the Corner," "Hide and Seek" are other games common to Rumania and America. "Over the Hill" is identical with the game in the United States called "Fox-in-the-Wall."

"Come With Me" as played in Rumania, is similar to "Drop the Handkerchief," except that there is no handkerchief in the Rumanian game.

In "Come With Me" the children form the same circle; the child who is "it" passes around the circle until he or she cries out "come with me" and taps one of the circle on the shoulder. These two children run around the circle, in opposite directions, until they meet, whereupon they join hands swing around once and again run in opposite directions, each trying to regain the vacant place in the circle before the other. The child who arrives last at the vacant place becomes "it."

"After Me" is a Rumanian game identical with the American "Follow the Leader." "My Pitcher is Broken," as played in Rumania, would be easily recognized as "The Pot Is Boiling Over" by the youngsters in the United States.

Kite-flying is very popular in Rumania and the game of marbles as well. The latter has the same seasonal distinction as in the New England states; marbles come into fashion during the early spring and then disappear during the latter part of May. Why? There is no answer other than "because," and that was the answer in America. "Rope-skipping" is another recreation common to youngsters in Rumania and America.

Stories That Recall Others

Identification

A grizzled old man, dressed in the clothes of a laborer, trudged into a bank with his pay check grasped firmly in his calloused hands. Walking over to the window he asked the teller to cash the check.

Eyeing the customer, the teller replied: "I can't cash your check unless you have some way to prove your identity. Isn't there anyone here that you know, or haven't you a letter or something in your pocket that tells who you are?"

The stranger shook his head despairingly and answered: "Nope, there ain't nothin'." Then a lightened expression came over the old man's face as he pulled a set of false teeth from his pocket and fitted them into his mouth. "See," he said, "these are mine; see, they identify me."

The teller cashed the check.

Polite

A little girl had always been taught to be very courteous. Very often, while playing with her friends, she would go into the house and come out with something to eat in her hand. No matter what time of day, and knowing full well it was impolite not to offer some to her little friends, she always said: "Well, I'd give you some of this, but it's my lunch."

Welcoming parades for popular heroes have the same depressing effect as rain upon sales. New York department stores proprietors say. Thousands of shoppers who entered the stores to buy rush to the street when they hear the band and cheers and in the post-parade excitement forget to make their intended purchases. One large department store estimates such losses at $40,000 to $50,000 each parade.

Extra Dividend

The Officers and Directors of the Willimantic Savings Institute take a great deal of pleasure in announcing the dividend which will be distributed to its depositors on April 1st.

For years this bank has added to its surplus until it has reached an enviable position among the mutual savings banks of the state, and the directors now feel that the depositors should have a share in this prosperity. They have therefore voted a regular dividend of 2¼% and an extra dividend of ¼ of 1% or 2½% for the six months ending April 1st.

They feel that the earnings fully justify this and hope that this increased dividend may be continued.

It is easy to bank by mail and we assure everyone prompt and efficient service.

Interest starts from the first of every month on deposits made on or before the fifth.

DEATH OF FRESCO PAINTER MAXIMILIAN F. FRIEDERANG

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP)—Maximilian Franz Friederang, who spent 30 years seeking the secret of the art of fresco painting as practiced by old masters, died suddenly yesterday as he left St. Ignatius' church, Brooklyn. He was 72 years old.

Among Friederang's best known works are the frescoes he executed in the Robin's room of the United States supreme court and in the senate library.

The artist was credited with having discovered Michael Angelo's secret of the creation of fresco tints, a method of painting a picture on wet plaster. Some years ago it was said that the secret would be bequeathed on Friederang's death to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. It now is in a safe deposit box.

APPLIES FOR INJUNCTION AGAINST LOVE MAKING

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP)—An injunction against love making was asked today from Justice Dike in Brooklyn supreme court.

Mrs. Ellen Fried appealed for a temporary order restraining her one-time friend, Miss Malvina Solomon, who she already has sued for alienation of affections, from making love to Emil Fried, retail shoe dealer.

Miss Solomon is Fried's cashier, but Mrs. Fried also sought an injunction restraining her husband from seeing the girl.

Mrs. Fried asked among other things that Miss Solomon be restrained from "wrongfully contriving and maliciously and wickedly intending to injure the plaintiff in her affections for her husband and her husband's affections for her," "from exercising improper influence over him" and "from enticing or alienating him."

Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church and there was a profusion of beautiful floral remembrances. Burial took place in Yantic cemetery and the committal service was read by Rev. Mr. Abbott. The bearers, employes of the Geduldig Greenhouses, were Harry Tell, John McNeeley, Dan Leone and Mark Pounch. Included in the large gathering of mourners were relatives from Providence, New York, Brooklyn and New London. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George G. Grant.

The Kurds Revolt Again

The Kurds are revolting again. A Turkish newspaperman perhaps would change the word "again" in that sentence to "yet."

Nearly 3,000 years ago, outlying Assyrian settlements were harassed by marauding bands of Kurds and in the fifth century B. C. the tribesmen attempted to annihilate Xenophon and his 10,000 retreating Greeks by rolling stones from high cliffs along the line of march, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "In the meantime, the Armenians who entered Kurd territory were either massacred or driven from the country.

"In spite of exciting events in the fighting history of the Kurds, the tribesmen were almost unknown outside the Near East before the World war. When a delegation of Kurds appeared at the peace conferences in 1919 newspapermen did not know who the sunburnt tribesmen might be. When their identity was revealed the Kurds went on the front pages and frequently have been there since.

"Four years ago the tribesmen revolted in an attempt to set up their own government, but Mustapha Kemal's forces subdued them. The scrapping of the Caliphate at Constantinople aroused them and nearly every change in old Moslem customs has irritated them. Revolt after revolt has been quelled but as soon as the Kurd replenishes his forces and supplies, he is ready to attack again.

"Most of the 2,000,000 Kurds in the Near East inhabit the eastern areas of Turkey, but tribes also are scattered over the northern part of Iraq and western Persia. Neither the Turks nor any other people has influenced the tribesmen. Now and then a Kurd will light his cigarette with a patent lighter instead of the old flint stone he once carried, and a few other modern devices have crept into his mountain village, but the close tribal life maintains the old racial customs.

"The Kurd farmers of the Iraq plains are more prosperous than the tribesmen of the hill country. Travelers climb the trails of Kurdistan for miles without seeing a village. When one does appear, it is usually situated in a well protected spot. Houses are placed without regard to building line and a bird's eye view of a village reveals a jumble of mud and stone structures.

"The peasant's house is a one-room structure which might be mistaken for a stable. The tribesman reserves one side of his abode for his animals his family occupies the other side. Kurds sit on the floor when they rest or eat, therefore they do not need tables or chairs.

"The tribal chief or headman fares better. He has a house for his family and a guest house where he lives and entertains his guests. He is offended if a traveler does not 'drop in.' Once the traveler has stopped, he must remain for dinner. The food is placed on the floor in the center of the diners. Should a guest stretch his legs toward another person, convey food to his mouth with his left hand, or fondle the dog, his host is offended. No knives and forks are to be found in the Kurd silver closest but if a guest has difficulty in feeding himself with his hands, a spoon will be handed to him. Few meals are served that do not include mast (curdled milk) the favorite dish of the Kurd. A little water mixed with the mast makes mastao, the Kurd 'national' drink. The tribesmen like vegetables but seldom serve meat.

"Under Moslem law, the Kurd may take four wives. Wives are bought, so the peasant usually has only one. The chiefs take the full quota. Wives are priced according to their rank. The tribesman can get a wife in exchange for a pony or goat, or one may cost the equivalent of $2,500. The wedding entails a season of merry-making in which the whole tribe joins but it takes less than a minute to dissolve a union. The man simply says, 'I divorce you' three times and the parties are free.

"To the foreigner, the Kurds seem to know little else than the 'art' of highway robbery. Many of the mountain tribesmen are adept thieves, but in the hills as well as the plains many Kurds earn honest livings by farming and cattle raising. Kurds are pastoral people, seldom moving from their villages except to migrate to higher altitudes during the summer for new pasturage. Now and then a whole tribe will move from a village. The tribesman takes his roof, the only valuable part of his hut.

"Life is hard in the mountains but the family has time to play. In the summer camp the young tribesmen spend their leisure moments playing touch-last on horseback. Children play a sort of hockey, with crooked sticks and wood balls. Now and then the traveler will see a deck of cards in a tent but they are usually used by the children. Gambling is not indulged in by the tribesmen, who after a hard day's work enjoying sitting outside their tents, smoking cigarettes."

Pirate Isles Now Aid Canal Commerce.

A recent agreement among the United States, Nicaragua and Colombia in regard to a handful of little islands and low-lying sand banks in the western Caribbean sea clears up a long-standing confusion as to their ownership and control. They are bits of land that, despite their smallness, may be of considerable importance in the years ahead, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. They lie from 40 to 225 miles off the eastern coast of Nicaragua.

"The group of isles, keys and banks, rising from relatively shallow water, and similar ones to the north, almost form a barrier across the Caribbean," says the bulletin. "Parallel to the eastern side of this near-barrier and close to it is the teeming ship lane that extends from the Panama canal to the passage between Cuba and Haiti and thence on to the eastern

BOSTON BRUINS WIN WORLD'S HOCKEY TITLE BEATING RANGERS

NEW YORK, March 29—(AP)—The Boston Bruins clinched the Stanley cup, emblematic of the world's hockey championship, by defeating the New York Rangers, 2 to 1, at Madison Square Garden tonight. The Bruins won the first game of the series in Boston last night by 2 to 0.

With their backs to the wall, the Rangers put up a gallant battle to retain the trophy they brought to the United States for the first time last year, but the Bruins would not be denied. Outplayed in nearly every department of the game, the Rangers held off the Boston attack through nearly two periods, then came back to tie the count in the third frame and battle the Bruins, to a standstill up to the last two minutes of the game. More than 18 minutes of the final frame had passed before Doc Carson, speedy young Bruin center, took a pass from Harry Oliver for the winning goal.

The victory gave the Bruins the unique record of going through a playoff series without a defeat. They eliminated Les Canadiens in the preliminary in three straight games to take the league championship, then defeated the Rangers twice on successive nights.

Tired from their hard preliminary play-offs and last night's game in Boston, the Rangers seemed hardly to have a chance. Their game was desperate rather than good from the very start. Only the great goal tending of John Ross Roach and the protection given him by Ric Chinic Johnson kept the Bruins from scoring frequently all through the game. Tiny Thompson, in the Boston goal, also did some fine work, keeping the Rangers from scoring while Carson headed most of the Bruin attacks.

Harry Oliver, the young sub winger who started in Boston earlier playoff games, tallied the first goal, 42 minutes before the end of the second period. He fought off the Ranger defense and sank a fine shot. A young Boston rookie star, Butch Keeling, evened the count with a surprise shot from the blue line that caught Thompson unaware.

The decisive goal came in Boston's last hard drive just before the end of the third frame. With three men close to the net, Harry Oliver shot the puck out of a scramble and Carson caught it to make a perfect shot. The play saw Roach out of position with no chance to save.

IS SMITH GREATER THAN BOBBY JONES AT 20?

NEW YORK, March 29—(AP)—When a young baseball star shoots forth, the custom is to label him a "second Cobb."

In golf they ask: "Is he another Jones?"

It is not strange, therefore, to find the boys comparing Horton Smith, the golf marble from Springfield, Mo., and Bobby Jones, St. Smith, they inquire, is he now as no hence his voting age Bobby was at 20 or 21? At least they are paying Horton the tribute of bracketing him with the career of the illustrious Georgian.

Horton Smith's tournament winning achievements at the age of 20 equal those of Jones for the reason that the Missouri "pro" is making golf his business. Not even Smith's foremost admirers would assert that at 20 he was capable of any greater succession of triumphs from coast to coast than Smith has turned in. This record alone is one of the best in years, closing brilliantly at Pinehurst and Pinehurst under heavy fire.

Before reaching any hasty conclusions, glance at the record for the U. S. open. Bobby Jones, at 18, was runner-up in his big test. At 21, he became American open champion for the first time. Smith, at 19, finished 44th at Oakland in his first open test. At 20 he moved forward to a tie for 29th place in the tournament at Olympia Fields a year ago, cutting his score from 312 to 307. The youthful pro will be 21 next May, and it will be time enough for comparisons after the returns are posted at the Winged Foot club in 1929.

RULE TO CUT ALLOTMENTS FOR ARMY GAME IN HALF

NEW HAVEN, March 29—(AP)—Allotments to Yale graduates and other local applicants of tickets for the Army football game this year, will be cut in half by order of the football ticket committee of the Yale Athletic association, it was announced tonight. Yale previously entitled to eight tickets will get only four, under the ruling. Other classmen will be the only exception, and they will get six tickets. The Army game usually draws the biggest crowd of the football season to the Yale bowl.

The ticket allowance for the Princeton game, to be played here instead of at Princeton, amounts in most cases to an increase of one. The Harvard allotments will be cut, in some cases, probably by one.

The only price change announced is that for tickets to the Dartmouth game, raised from $3 to $4. The Georgia game tickets will cost $5.

VELVETMEN CLASH WITH PLAINFIELD ON SUNDAY

The Velvetmen will clash with the fast Plainfield F. C. at the J. B. Martin grounds on Sunday afternoon. This is Plainfield's first appearance at the above grounds and should prove to be a good attraction as they are sure to bring down a strong team as they want revenge for the 7-4 defeat the J. B's. handed them in their home town a few weeks ago. A good crowd is expected to be on hand for this game. The Martin lineup will be chosen from the following players: Orcutt, Greenhalgh, Hargreaves, Erickson, Eccleston, Seidel, Labenski, Decelles, Houston, Thompson, Headon, Mathers, Benker and Shaw. Referee F. Knowles. Kick-off 2:30 p. m.

PUTNAM, March 29—Putnam high school sporting fans will this year be afforded with a variation of outdoor sports, and will not have to be content with baseball during the warm weather season for in addition to planning for a championship diamond nine, Coach L. F. Noyes today commenced to build air castles of a triumphant track team as he issued a call for cinder track candidates today, which was answered by nearly every member of his baseball squad with a few exceptions.

Track, for the first time in nearly a decade, will make its appearance at the local high school and will become a major sport. Last season a nucleus of a great track team was built from a few participants and the success of the few raw and inexperienced men fired unusual interest in the male portion of the student body, drawing out much material for the 1929 aggregation.

The much needed equipment, which was absent last season has been provided the successors of the boys and in the first workouts great promises were to be seen. "Tubby" Sherman, a member of the backfield quartet of Coach Noyes' 1928 eastern Connecticut football eleven, will head the Blue and White half milers. Last year Sherman in a number of events covered the distance in 2.16—the record standing at 2.11.

Bill Shann, seeking further athletic honors will represent his school on the track team and in a practice throw shot the javelin through the air to a distance of 125 feet, while the record in this class stands at 139. The fleet feet of Walt Cody and Leo Pominville, members of the 1928 track squad will be seen again in meets in which the Noyesmen will be represented in April.

Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Congregational church of this city, a track enthusiast, who developed the squad last year has volunteered his services to the team this year and will take full charge of the training.

SAM WILCOX SETS NEW RECORD AT YORKTOWN COURSE

That Sam Wilcox, former local golfer, is playing a brilliant game as a member of the William and Mary college team is shown in the following account of a match taken from the college paper:

Playing last Sunday in a foursome with Bob Kritzer, said to be one of the finest golfers in eastern Virginia, Art Matsu, former William and Mary athletic luminary, and R. D. Mullowney, manager of the college golf team, Sam Wilcox, captain of the Indian club-wielders, shattered the course record at the Yorktown Country club with a score of 70 for eighteen holes. The former record of 73 was tied by Wilcox one week prior to the establishment of the new low score.

In starting the afternoon's play which was to end by his breaking a record that has stood the assault of leading amateur and professional players of the south, Wilcox registered brilliant birdie threes on the first and second holes. These were followed by eight successive pars until the eleventh hole, when a strong headwind caused him to take a five, one over par. Poor putting on the fourteenth green resulted in a six, the only mistake on an otherwise perfect round.

Not daunted by the slight relapse, Wilcox holed a birdie four on the following hole, and the three remaining fives were reached in even pars. Officials at the links expressed the thought at the time that the record was one that would stand for years to come. A strong northwestern wind blew during the entire round and made Wilcox's 70 an exceptional feat, it was said.

His card:

3 3 4 4 4 4 5 3 4—34
3 3 3 4 5 4 4 3 4—36.

ACADEMY TRACK TEAM TO PRACTICE DURING VACATION

Track practice at the Academy will be continued through the Easter vacation daily sessions, starting Monday, will be held at 10 a. m.

Putnam high has been added to the schedule for Monday, April 29 here, thus making a total of five meets now slated. Two of them are at home. Putnam is reported as having a formidable list of trackmen and should give the Wildcats a stirring tussle.

The addition of the Putnam meet opens the local season eight days earlier than was anticipated and stiff work is slated until that time.

Coach Matthew J. Sheridan has five veterans with which to work and prospects for a good season are bright. The squad has been working out for three weeks and has progressed rapidly.

LARGE NUMBER PLAY AT GOLF COURSE

Many of the local golfers took advantage of the mild weather of Friday and the opening of the Norwich golf club course to get in a few holes as sort of a warm-up for the coming season. Thanks to Supt. Skelly the course was in excellent shape and was far better than might be expected owing to the recent rains. Among those to play the course were: Bert Gager, Walter Turner, Harry Ford, Eben Learned, Al VanWagenen, Massie B. Miller, Johnny Sayles, Dan Shea, and a number of others. All report a very pleasant afternoon and predict an exceptionally good season for the club.

LAYNE'S HOMER GIVES INDIANAPOLIS A WIN

BRADENTON, Fla., March 29—(AP)—A home run by Layne in the 9th inning gave the Indianapolis team of the American association a five to four victory over the Boston Red Sox here today. Charley Ruffing, one of the mainstays of the Sox pitching staff, scored a run in the 8th to tie the count, but in the ninth inning grooved one that Layne slammed to the club house. Each team collected nine hits from the offerings of two opposing hurlers.

BRACEY EQUALS RECORD FOR THE 100 YARD DASH

AUSTIN, Texas, March 29—(AP)—Claude Bracey of Rice Institute, Houston repeated his dazzling performance of last year by equalling the world's record of 9.5 seconds for the 100 yard dash at the Texas relays here today.

New meet records were hung up in the weight events, Behr of Wisconsin heaving the shot 48 feet five inches, while Baldwin of Texas hurled the discus for a new mark of 144 feet 10 1-2 inches.

MISS VAN WIE WINS TITLE IN MID-SOUTH TOURNEY

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 29—(AP)—To her other golfing triumphs, Miss Virginia Van Wie, brilliant Chicago links woman, today added the winner's laurels in the first annual Mid-South women's medal tourney. Her card of 162 for the 36 hole event gave her a three stroke margin over Miss Glenna Collet, of Providence, R. I., national women's champion, who finished in second place with a 165.

Two strokes behind Miss Collett was Miss Helen Hicks, 18 year old golf sensation from Hempstead, L. I., who added an 81 today to her 56 of yesterday for a final total of 167. Miss Marion Turpie, of New Orleans, finished fourth with 168, one stroke ahead of Miss Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, Ohio, who was in fifth place.

Throughout the two days' play, Miss Van Vle's golf was sensational. Her outward round of 38 featured yesterday's play and she was well on her way to another low score outward journey today when misjudged putts resulted in sixes on the fourth, fifth and sixth holes. Even with her putter refusing to work, she banged a 41 and made the journey over the homeward nine in the same score.

When Miss Collett began her final round, she was aware of Miss Van Wie's score. Needing a 76 to win or a 77 to tie, she stepped to the first tee and walloped a screamer straight down the fairway, holed out in par and then scored a birdie on the second. However, a pair of sixes on the 548 yard fifth and the short 154 yard seventh spoiled her chance, and she played both nines in 40.

COLLINS WEAKENS IN 9TH AND ROBINS BEAT BROWNS

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 29—(AP)—A ninth-inning rally, fabricated largely from five passes issued by Rip Collins, gave the Brooklyn Robins four runs here today, and enabled them to nose out the Browns by a score of 5 to 3. Rosenfeld's single off Strelecki and Herman's sacrifice fly capped the outburst. Glenn Wright returned from Miami, where he had been treated for his arm injury, and entered the game as a pinch batsman in the ninth. He walked and scored a run. The score

HOME RUNS WIN FOR REDS OVER MONTREAL

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 29—(AP)—Two home runs, one by Allen and the other by Crabtree, enabled the Cincinnati Reds to nose out the Montreal International league's 5 to 4 in an exhibition game here today.

Allen, centerfielder, drove out his home run in the fourth with none on base, and Crabtree, right fielder, collected his homer in the sixth, scoring Purdy ahead of him. Each team used two pitchers. The score:

GIANTS WIN 9TH EXHIBITION GAME BEATING PIRATES

SAN ANTONIO, March 29—(AP)—The Giants stretched their spring winning streak to nine games here today as the Pirates were humbled by 8 to 3 in the clash which marked the last day of the New York team's stay at the training base. The Pirates outbatted the Clan McGraw by 9 to 8, but Genewich and Scott were strong in the pinches. Travis Jackson cleared the left center field fence in the eleth with a titanic home run. The score:

CORNELL TO GIVE PRIZES FOR FORWARD PASSING

NEW YORK, March 29—(AP)—Cornell football, among other things, now has a prize forward passing contest.

To stimulate development of the aerial game, cups will be awarded, on the basis of spring practice performances to the player doing the best defensive work, also to the one demonstrating superiority as a receiver. The suggestion, together with the prizes, came from James K. Fraser, of New York, a member of the class of 1897, and were accepted by Head Coach Gilmore A. Dobie.

ILLINOIS RELAY TEAM SETS NEW RECORD

AUSTIN, Texas, March 29—(AP)—The four mile relay quartet of the University of Illinois bettered the world's inter-collegiate record at the Texas relays here today in traveling the distance in 17 minutes 40.2 seconds. The old mark set in 1922 by an Illinois team was 17:45.

McGraw Hit On Head.

SAN ANTONIO, March 29—(AP)—John J. McGrath, manager of the Giants, was momentarily dazed when struck on the head by a wildly thrown ball as he sat on the New York bench today before the start of the game against Pittsburgh. The Giant chieftain escaped serious injury only because he saw the ball coming just in time to dodge sufficiently to prevent its crashing into his temple. As it was, McGraw suffered no more than a bruise.

LOUGHRAN REALIZED BUT LITTLE OVER $15,000 FOR BOUT WITH WALKER

CHICAGO, March 29—(AP)—If there is such an ailment as a financial headache, Tommy Loughran, debonair Philadelphian, undoubtedly had one tonight.

The world's light heavyweight champion got what the boys call the Mexican standoff in his battle with Mickey Walker, ruler of the middleweights, in Paddy Harmon's new Chicago stadium last night. He saved his life and prized title, but lost most of his money.

When the Illinois state athletic commission checked over the gate receipts tonight, it was revealed Loughran received only $15,289 as his share of the receipts, with $50,000 going to Walker, who lost the fight.

Loughran guaranteed Walker $50,000 for a losing fight and $10,000 of he, Walker, had won. Loughron contributed $12,750 toward defraying the expenses of the 10 round semi-wind up in which Jerry Tuffy Griffith won a decision over Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen, Washington, assassin.

Loughran had agreed to take 55 per cent of the net receipts, which amounted to $141,890. This left him with $78,039, which he was forced to cut, under the terms of his contract, with Walker and help meet the expenses of the Lomski-Griffith affair. Walker did not receive a cent from the Chicago Stadium corporation, as Loughran had agreed to pay the challenger out of his 55 per cent.

This peculiar contract was a gamble on the part of Loughran. If the show had been a sell out, with the capacity aaatendance of 25,000, as Loughran had figured, the gate would have approximated $300,000. Figuring on this basis, his share, after paying off Walker and the other expenses, would have left her with approximately $102,500.

The fight, opening the new stadium, was a disappointment in attendance as well as performance. The paid attendance amounted to 14,554 with probably 2,000 or so complimentaries. The gross receipts, before the slice for government and state tax, was taken out amounted to $186,267.

Loughran found a bit of cheer in the fact, however, that he got a bonus of $25,000 from Promoter Harmon for placing his services under the direction of the Chicago Stadium corporation. This sum, together with the $15,289 he saved out of the 55 per cent gave him $40,289.

Loughran got the $25,000 several weeks ago, with the understanding the bonus ties him up for several more fights for the corporation.

Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, filed a protest with the state athletic commission today over the decision. His protest was based on the fact that Referee Davey Miller ruled in favor of Walker, with the two judges declaring for Loughran. The commission gave no consideration to the protest, ruling its officials were competent and that the verdict would stand.

NORWICH Y SENIORS WIN FROM SAYBROOK TOWNERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

SAYBROOK, March 29—In one of the best, if not the very best, games of the season seen on the local floor the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Seniors won from the Saybrook Town team, 55 to 53, in two overtime periods here tonight. The game was fast and furious from whistle to whistle and the scoring was heavy for both sides.

The game opened fast with both clubs fighting every inch of the way. The half time whistle found Saybrook topping the visitors by one point, 30 to 29. The second half was just as furious with the locals holding a slight edge until almost the last second. With 13 seconds of the game left and the score standing 40 to 38 in Saybrook's favor, Brown of the visitors broke loose, dribbled the length of the floor and shot, the ball settling through the hoop as the whistle blew. The game ended with the score 40-all.

Going into the first overtime period, Norwich broke away and soon scored ten points and with a few seconds left were leading by four points. It was then that Saybrook rallied and scored two baskets, knotting the count at 50-50.

At the opening of the second overtime period Saybrook shot into the lead, scoring three points. Brown then scored a basket and Pingree dropped in a foul try to even the count. Harris, fighting desperately, threw from far past mid-floor and the ball registered, giving Norwich the game, 55 to 53. The summary:

Yale Wins Fencing Title

NEW YORK, March 29—(AP)—Yale won the three-weapon championship of the Intercollegiate Fencing association here today for the second successive season, scoring a total of 14 1-2 points. The Navy was second with 13 and the Army, third with 12. Columbia qualified for the finals only in foils and sabres, but nevertheless took fourth place with 10 points.

"FLORIDA" ELEVEN BEATS CASEY'S "MICHIGAN" TEAM

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 29—(AP)—Harvard's "Florida eleven," as the football group coached by Charlie Hubbard is known, today defeated Eddie Casey's "Michigan" team, 6-0, in the first formal game of the Crimson's spring training season.

Hubbard's team scored when Birnie White, star on last year's Harvard freshman team, took a lateral pass from Art Hugueley, who played fullback, and raced 40 yards to the goal line. Fumbles were frequent during the four eight-minute periods game but the Harvard coaches were encouraged by the clever lateral and forward passing technique of both teams.

The "Florida" line functioned much better than the opposition, Coach Hubbard using Capt. Jim Barrett and Trainor, Harvard's best linemen, at tackle, and guard. Its backfield included Sam Putnam at quarterback and Greeley, who was with the varsity squad last fall, sharing the halfback posts with White.

Casey's team contained but one veteran, Wally Harper, who played in the backfield. The other positions were held down by members of last year's varsity and freshman squads.

PUTNAM MAN WINS E. C. CHECKER TITLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 29—Harry E. Burton of this city won the checker championship of eastern Connecticut by defeating Charles Ledoucier, also of Putnam, in the final match in the annual tournament played here today. Burton took three of the final matches, lost two, while five others were fought to a draw.

E. Hallen, also of Norwich. There were 13 contestants from all parts of eastern Connecticut. Ledoucier defeated Ellery Baker of Brooklyn to enter the final matches with Burton. Both C. E. Hallen and Joseph Gorman, the two Norwich entrants, were in the tournament. Hallen lost out early in the tournament, while Gorman was eliminated when he dropped a series to Burton.

In the first heat of the 150-yard breast stroke, Richard Hinch, of Northwestern, set a new national collegiate mark with 1:44.4, only to lose it in the second heat when George Kojac, Rutgers, clipped three more seconds off the record for 1:41.

The finals will be held tomorrow night.

Vermont Leaves for South

BURLINGTON, Vt., March 29—(AP)—The University of Vermont varsity baseball squad today left on its annual southern trip. Ten contests, the first with Georgetown at Washington tomorrow, are included in the schedule.

Naco.

"Naco, where United States troops have been ordered to protect American property, is a town of about 300 inhabitants lying astride the Mexican border 25 miles west of Douglas, Arizona," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Naco came into existence a generation ago with the opening of a huge copper mining camp at Cananea, Mexico, which lies a few miles south of the border town on a branch of the Southern Pacific railroad.

"The town is situated in a dusty plain with the San Jose Mountain of Sonora rising above it to the south, and the Huachuca mountain range lying in the west.

"Before the advent of the railroad, huge high-wheeled freight wagons and stage coaches, drawn by 8 or 10 horses plied between Tombstone and Bisbee, Arizona, and nearby Mexican towns, crossing the border at Naco. Then Naco was a small settlement with red adobe houses and weatherbeaten, wooden shacks, lining a street bisected by the International Line. Except for the addition of a few similar buildings, a depot, post office and customs house, few changes have taken place in Naco. The American portion of the town which is mostly residential is almost lifeless; but the gay border life on the Mexican side resounds all over the neighborhood.

"To the south of Naco lie the famous American - owned Turkey Track, Cananea, and San Rafael cattle ranches. In peace time the greatest excitment in Naco, during the day, is the passing of cattle from Mexico to the United States, and fuel, oil, lumber, food, clothing and other supplies to Mexican points.

"In the past crime and turbulence in Naco frequently brought American troops from the nearest garrisons at Douglas and Fort Huachuca in the Huachuca mountains about a day's march from the town. Raids across the border were frequent, and the water works of Bisbee, which are in the border town, were threatened. Bisbee lies 9 miles north of Naco. The water is pumped from Naco wells.

"During revolutions, many millions of dollars worth of concentrates and copper bars are transported from Mexico into the United States through Naco for protection against confiscation by warring Mexican factions."

Billie Intervenes

"Ad so the knight fell in love with the beautiful princess, and after a while he won her," said Ted Ainsworth to the small boy perched on his knee, and——"

"Oh, I know, Uncle Ted, 'and they lived happily ever after' now, didn't they?" Ted Ainsworth winced and gazed one long moment into the dancing fire before he answered.

"No, not exactly, Billikin. There's a lot more to the story, and—it's—well—just maybe it's not quite finished yet. You see, everything was wonderful; it was spring and the big wedding was to take place in the castle that summer. And then, no one knows just how it happened, but they quarreled, this knight and his princess. It was a dreadful thing and the knight said some things he didn't mean at all; and I guess the princess did, too."

"But why should they ever get mad at each other, Uncle Ted?" Ted stirred the logs with his foot and watched the flames leap higher. It was a late September evening and the fire had welcomed the young man and the boy after a brisk walk along the lake shore.

"They shouldn't, Billie-Boy, but a mean old ogre named Pride kept hanging around and spoiling things. You see, the princess, of course, had a lovely home and beautiful clothes and all the money she wanted. If she had married the knight she would have had to ride on his prancing steeds instead of in golden carriages."

"That's lots more fun, anyway," said Billie. "I wish I had a prancing steed."

"So she thought for a while, but one evening she reminded the knight of how much she was giving up and then they quarreled, and the princess left forever to take a long trip round the world."

"Why didn't he write and ask her to come back, Uncle Ted?" asked Billie.

"Well, he tried to, but that old ogre named Pride that I told you about kept telling him that she should write first."

"I'd shoot the ogre, I would," declared Billie.

"Perhaps the knight will some day, himself," answered Ted. "In the meantime, every night he does write a letter to the princess, telling her how sorry he is and that he wants her to come back, oh, so very much. He even addresses the letters, but he puts them away and some day after he shoots the old ogre maybe he will mail them."

"I'll bet the knight was lonesome after the princess left, Uncle Ted."

"Darn lonesome, Bill, old boy but he had a very favorite nephew who came for a long visit soon afterward, and this little boy made things mucc easier for the knight because he was such a good pal. He was just a little sad——"

"Something like me?" asked Billie hopefully.

"Quite like you, old man," said Ted, "only," glancing at the clock, "he was always in bed way before this—so run!"

One night three week later the logs were again crackling in the fire and Billie and Ted were having their evening story and romp.

"Tell me more about the knight and the princess, Uncle Ted. Didn't anything more ever happen?"

"Well, yes. Not long afterward the knight had a beautiful dream. He dreamed that his princess opened the door and smiled at him—and he——"

"Ted!"

The door had opened softly and there in the shadows, faintly touched by the firelight stood a girl smiling at the grownup boy and the little boy.

"Eleanor—why, you're—I thought you were in Egypt!"

"No, not Egypt, Ted dear. I'm right here for always, if you do still want me." By this time Ted Ainsworth had crossed the room and had swept the girl into his arms, while a small boy looked on in wonder.

"Want you! Eleanor! I've done nothing else for four months. But how——"

"Oh, I felt so ashamed, Ted after our fuss, and I missed you so; and then when I got your letters——"

"Letters?" queried Ted.

"I mailed some letters, I did," said Billie. "I found some nice fat ones in your desk, Uncle Ted, so I played postoffice. Next time I'm going to play knight and shoot that old ogre."

"I think you have already, Billie-Boy," answered Ted Ainsworth.—Chicago News.

The Hadramaut.

"Secreting a few coffee berries in his turban before paying a call is a delicate little attention on the part of a guest in the Hadramaut, a country in southern Arabia," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "The polite guest in the Hadramaut always carries his own coffee berries with him because it is too much to expect a host to supply coffee as well as conversation," the bulletin continues.

"Everyone familiar with the map of Arabia knows that the Hadramaut's southern border lies on the Gulf of Aden and the Arabian Sea but nobody knows just where its northern, eastern and western borders are. True the great Arabian desert lies to the north but the exact line where the Hadramaut leaves off and the desert proper begins has never been defined. Likewise, Oman lies on the east but no customs officer could ever tell when a traveler had one foot in Oman and the other in Hadramaut. No proper boundary line devides the Hadramaut from Aden and the upper Aulaqui territory on the west but this fact does not disturb the Hadhrami. It is only hard on mapmakers.

"Geologically and socially speaking, the Hadramaut is a land of contrasts. For ten miles in from the coast lies a strip of bleak, sandy plain. Following this comes a strip of high, arid plateau. North of the plateau lies a zone of high mountains and deep wadies or rivers, which make it an agricultural paradise. Farther north lies the great desert. Even the Bedouins of the Hadramaut contrast with the Bedouins of the rest of Arabia. They live in mud huts or caves and are but mediocre horsemen.

"In contrast with other Arabians, the Hadhrami are 'skyscraper builders.' In the towns, their houses average four and even five stories in height. The upper stories are painted gleaming white and against the intense blue of the Arabian sky form a striking but rather hard-on-the-eyes picture. Also in contrast with some other parts of Arabia, the houses are clean and well ventilated. The windows are not glazed but shuttered and on cold days little braziers of wood give the only artifical warmth. Picturesque features of the houses are the huge entrance doors decorated with painted arabesques and iron nails and heavy knockers of polished brass. Taking a bath in such houses is apt to be an impromptu affair although a bathroom may be found on each floor. The would-be bather must stand in the corner of a room where there are drains to carry off the waste water, and douse himself from a vessel suspended above him.

DANIELSON TOWNERS CLOSE SEASON TONIGHT AGAINST MILLVILLE TEAM

TONIGHT'S LINEUPS

Millville		Danielson
O'Neil	rf	Armington
Owens	lf	Adams
Pelouin	c	Williams
Murphy	rg	Poirier
Carroll	lg	Godreau

The Danielson Town team closes the basketball season this evening at the Danielson Town hall when the fast Millville club will be met in the third and deciding game of the series between these two clubs. Millville and Danielson have met twice before this season, each winning one game. Danielson dropped the first game by the margin of one basket, while in the second game Danielson nosed out Millville in an overtime period by one point.

From the results of the two previous games it is very evident that tonight's struggle for the final game will be well worth seeing. These clubs are about evenly matched and both play a brilliant game of basketball. The Millville team is made up of a number of college stars, including two from Boston colleges and two from Holy Cross.

Manager Cleveland will use the above lineup and as he has secured the services of Billy Schofield for this game it is probable that the former Connecticut Aggie star will see considerable action.

Danielson will be the place for basketball action tonight and a banner crowd is expected this evening. The management has made plenty of arrangements to accommodate the gathering.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

MARY'S LITTLE CHARM.

Mary had a little charm,
To her 'twas very dear,
And everywhere that Mary went
Her grace and charm were there.

She went to school, she went to church,
She rode on horse or sleigh,
But everywhere she kept her charm,
At home, at work, at play.

But that was years, long years ago,
Before the flapper came,
When girls were clad in spacious skirts,
And had some sense of shame.

But now, alas! poor Mary's charm
With all her graceful air,
Her modest smile and quaint reserve,
Are gone, I do declare.

For now she sports a boyish bob;
Her frock is all too rare.
Her skirt is high, her bodice low,
Her legs and arms are bare.

Her lips and cheeks are dashed with paint,
Her teeth bedecked with gold.
Her whole attire is but a feint,
Her bearing rather bold.

She goes a gait at any rate,
More rapid than of yore.
She rolls and smokes her cigarette,
And flirts with three or four.

What makes men stare at Mary so?
An anxious mother cries.
Why Mary's poise provokes the boys,
A knowing father sighs.

YOUR NEIGHBOR'S FAULTS.

In speaking of a person's faults,
Pray don't forget your own;
Remember those with homes of glass,
Should seldom throw a stone.
If we have nothing else to do,
But talk of those who sin,
'Tis better we commence at home,
And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man
Until he's fairly tried;
Should we not like his company,
We know the world is wide.
Some may have faults, and who has not?
The old as well as young;
Perhaps we may, for aught we know,
Have fifty to their one.

I'll tell you of a better plan,
And find it works full well;
To try my own defects to cure,
Before of others tell.
And though I sometimes hope to be
No worse than some I know,
My own shortcomings bid me let
The faults of others go.

Then let us all, when we commence
To slander friend or foe,
Think of the harm one word may do
To those who little know.
Remember curses, sometimes, like
Our chickens, roost at home.
Don't speak of others' faults until
We have none of our own.

A PHILOSOPHER.

To take things as they be—
That's my philosophy.
No use to holler, mope or cuss—
If they was changed they might be wuss.
If rain is porin' down,
An' lightnin's buzzin' roun',
I ain't a-fearin' we'll be hit,
But grin that I ain't out in it.
If I got deep in debt—
It hasn't happened yet—
And owed a man two dollars, Gee!
Why I'd be glad it wasn't three!
If some one came along,
And tried to do me wrong,
Why should I sort of take a whim
To thank the Lord I wasn't him.
I never seen a night
So dark there wasn't light
Somewhere about if I took care
To strike a match and find out where.

PLEA FOR THE NEW YEAR.

Let me be a little kinder
As I tread this fleeting earth;
Let me be a little blinder
To men's faults the while their worth
Thrills me with the mystic beauty
That is fairer than the rose,
As I humbly walk with duty
In the path that Jesus knows.

Let me be a bit more cheery
As I wander to and fro,
So that I may help the weary,
Bear the burdens of their woe.
Let me serve a little better
For the causes I adore;
In the spirit, not the letter,
Let me praise a little more.

Let me be a little braver
When temptation tries my soul,
So that I may never waver
As I struggle to my goal.
Let me have more strength to labor
For the goods surpassing pelf,
And in thinking of my neighbor
Let me give less thought to self.

THE JOY OF AN EDITOR.

Getting out this paper is no picnic.
If we print jokes people say we are silly;
If we don't they say we are too serious.
If we clip things from other papers
We are too lazy to write them ourselves;
If we don't we are stuck on our own stuff.
If we stick close to the job all day.
We ought to be out hunting up news.
If we go out and try to hustle,
We ought to be on the job in the office.
If we don't print contributions,
We don't appreciate genius.
And if we do print them, the paper is filled with junk.
If we change the other fellow's
If we don't we are asleep.
Now like as not some guy will say
We swiped this from some magazine.
WE DID.

PISCES: Many thanks, season's greetings in return.

CANTERBURY BELL: Many thanks; season greetings in return.

MUIR: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

TOBACCO HAS BEEN WELL AIRED

Dear Social Corner Sisters: There has been so much said about tobacco that I wonder how many ever worked on it? I have and I know for a fact that it is very dirty. I have seen the men spit on the leaves and have said to them, "I don't see how you can ever use tobacco, after seeing the men spit on it." To my surprise the answer was, "That doesn't hurt it any, it only gives it the flavor." So that must be why it is so well liked, so many different ones spit in it and most of them are colored people. It just brings the flavor out.

I was on a trolley not so long ago when a man wanted the motorman to do an errand for him. He offered him a cigar but the motorman said, "No, I thank you. I have lived for 53 years and I never used the dirty weed." I felt like getting up and shaking hands with him and saying, "Good for you." A school teacher I know of has lost her voice from smoking cigarettes and drinking and going on wild parties. So she lost her school.

One neighbor said, "I have no respect for a girl, once I see her smoking." Her son said, "Mother, you would be surprised if I should tell you some of the girls who smoke and you think are nice."

I for one don't like tobacco smoke and I once heard a doctor say, "Any one that uses tobacco is beneath a hog, for you wouldn't see a hog using it."

In regard to style, we are living in a new age and I think the styles are much nicer than in 1868 or in George Washington's day. Then they wore lace hanging over their hands and knee pants, yes, and even red velvet trimmed with gold buttons. We only see it now in the movies. I guess the men wouldn't care to see those days back any more than we would. When some ask, what has become of the old fashioned girl, are there any young men who would take them out if there were any?

I should say not. They would run a mile from them and I wouldn't blame them.

The saying is: "Every dog has his day," and it is about so. Just get out the old family album and laugh yourself sick. We don't have to go back so many years to think the styles of today are alright.

The one thing I don't like are the airplanes. They fly so low over my house that they keep me on a run wondering if they are going to knock the house down. What a noise sailing around. I guess I will get a gun and shoot the man bird.

Theoda: I have a nice slip from the rose you gave me. I will bring you one all rooted.

Commuter: The movies sure are a menace to our young people, and even older ones. Very few pictures without a murder in it.

THE FRIEND WHO STANDS BY

Dear Cornerites: I didn't think I would knock for admittance to our Corner page so soon again, but here I am. My thoughts go out to our dear writers who have put away their loved ones recently. The past month one dear sister, I. J. B., has given to God a dear sister and brother, as well as within the year her dear husband.

Then on reading The Bulletin this morning I read of one more of our writers who met with a sudden passing at his door after his day's work was over and was to spend the evening with his loved ones, when God called him. All my sympathy goes out to Adelle in her hour of trouble.

It brings to me this poem which I think is fitting to all those whose hearts are heavy in their bereavements. The poem is entitled: The Friend Who Stands By.

When trouble comes your soul to try,
You love the friend who just stands by.
Perhaps there is nothing he can do
The thing is strictly up to you:
For there are troubles all your own,
And paths the soul must tread alone.
Times when love can't smooth the road
Nor friendship lift the heavy load.

But just to feel you have a friend
Who will stand by until the end.
Whose sympathy through all endures,
Whose warm handclasp is always yours.
It helps somehow to pull you through.
Although there's nothing he can do:
And with a fervent heart we cry,
"God bless the friend who just stands by."

SPONGE CAKE

Social Corner Sisters: I am sending in a very good sponge cake recipe which I use a good deal.

Sponge cake: Take 3 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, about 1-4 teaspoon of salt and 1-4 cup cold water. Beat the eggs and sugar together for ten minutes. Add the dry ingredients, which have been sifted together, and the cold water and beat again. Bake in a moderate oven forty minutes. Flavoring can be used if desired.

Catnip: Thanks for the birthday card. Hope that you have had good health this winter.

CHARTER OAK

TALKS OF MANY THINGS

Dear Social Corner Friends: When spring comes some have to make changes. Perhaps some of the Social Corner friends might know someone who wanted a nice little farm. The advertisement was in Friday's Bulletin.

It is just out enough to be quiet and still it doesn't take but few minutes to get where there is plenty of travel.

I was very much interested in 33's letter this week. It was "food for thought."

Corona: I have been wanting to see that little boy. You will see me someday when the roads get dried up. One doesn't know how to appreciate a nice road until they go off on the country roads this time of the year.

Dr. Charles D. Palmer of Lansing, Mich., speaking before the annual convention says: "Sixty per cent of all babies born of cigarette smoking mothers die before they reach the age of two, due primarily to nicotine poisoning. It causes degeneration of the liver, heart and other organs."

Dr. J. H. Kellogg of Battle Creek, Mich., writes: "Smoking is much more injurious to women than to men."

A lady was in here the other day talking about plants that had lice. She said tobacco smoke was the best of anything for them. Tobacco soap in water is good to spray rose bushes, for I have tried it.

Ham, one of the sons of Noah, was the progenitor of the Negro race. (See Gen. 8:18-27).

NOT A BIT OLD-FASHIONED

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Having read the various opinions and criticisms regarding the short skirts; also the custom, that is universal all over the country, of smoking cigarettes, I noticed in last week's Bulletin an article written by one who claims the distinction of "being old fashioned and glad she is." No one reading her letter would ever doubt her claim to that state, for her views show so plainly that her contact with the modern life out in the world, as it is lived today, was indeed limited.

When she makes the statement that "smoking is filthy and every one who smokes is filthy," such an attack is atrocious. But perhaps one should pity rather than condemn such rural ideas. I would suggest to the "Wild Geranium" that she take a trip out into a city and observe the doings of the best people, before she attempts to censor, not only a few, but thousands of people from the highest social class of refinement. Such statements are a direct insult to those people.

Personally I do not smoke but were I twenty years younger I should enjoy it as I love the clean odor of either a cigar or a cigarette. I believe at my age, however, in keeping pace with modern customs and not be called a back number by people who progress with the times in which they live.

E. L. M.: I thank you for your kind thought of me. I certainly did enjoy the taste from our famous corner dinner—and also thank Estell for so kindly bringing it to me.

Just a Nut: That cake was delicious. You are a good old scout!

Dorothy Bradford: How did you know my love of fruit. Many times I thank you.

Bonnie Bell: You also did your bit, in fact, I hardly know how to express my deep appreciation to all the members who so kindly remembered me during my recent long illness.

Best wishes and Easter greetings to all.

ZULIEKA.

DRINKING IS WORST OF ALL

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: The question Jennie asked as to whether cigarette smoking and the wearing of short skirts affects the morals and health of girls and women has been pretty thoroughly discussed. The fact remains that they will do as they please about it. The least said the soonest mended.

Personally I like short skirts; they are easier to move about in. I remember when I was a little girl I knew a woman who lived on a farm. In those days every one wore long skirts but she wore hers extremely short. I thought she looked so odd, but come to think of it, she was very sensible and did as she pleased. And that is exactly what the young people are doing today. Of course there are a few who go to the extreme as there always have been.

I dislike smoking, its bad enough for men to smoke, but when you see girls and women pulling out a cigarette case and puff away like an old timer, they are going some. But to my way of thinking the worst habit of all is drinking. There is nothing so degrading, that so underminds the health of girls and women as drink and so many young people are doing it.

One morning when I was listening in on the radio, a recipe for orange marmalade was given. It was so good that I have made it the second time.

Orange marmalade: Put the peel of one orange, one grape-fruit and one lemon through your food chopper, or cut it in narrow strips and cut pulp in pieces; cover all with five pints of cold water and let stand 24 hours; bring to boil one and one quarter hours; let stand 24 hours; add 4 1-2 lbs of sugar and boil until firm. Makes ten glasses.

Milly: I tried your corn custard and it was delicious.

Mary France: I hear you have gone visiting.

Nema: Some time I will tell you how I cooked my Christmas goose. The geese haven't started to lay yet so we haven't had a real good custard pie, such as a goose egg makes. I saw a robin the other day, the first one, so spring is on the way, also house cleaning. My best wishes for all sick and sorrowing.

REGULAR HABITS IN CHILDREN.

Dear Editor and Sisters: Having heard many of my friends and acquaintances make remarks such as, "My children seem to be constipated most of the time, or I give my boys laxatives most of the time," etc., leads me to write this article. I have had absolutely no trouble along these lines with my two children. I credit three very homely articles of food with the success—namely, molasses, apple sauce and bran.

They have apple sauce at least three times a week. I vary this in several different ways in order not to have them tire of it. I give them molasses now an dthen spread on bread and butter. They even like a little of it clear. Bran they have every day sprinkled over any and every dish of cereal they eat. Just before bedtime they eat 2 to 3 teaspoonfuls, sometimes mixed with brown sugar or a bit of maple syrup and sometimes without anything. I manage to put in a little molasses, also bran, into every rule I make wherein I use sour milk; gems, Johnny cake and cookies. Part of the time I make bran bread, other times I use a little bran with the wheat flour.

SUNTAN.

MOTHS FROM CARPET.

Dear Sisters: To exterminate moths that have gotten into a Brussels rug or carpet, spread a rather heavy cloth, thoroughly wet, not dripping, over the infested spot and iron dry with a hot iron.

The heat and steam destroy both larvae and eggs and brighten the colors of the carpet. I use a towel folded once. Moths are usually found around the edge of the carpet.

To keep cheese, wrap cut cheese in a cloth well saturated with vinegar. This not only keeps the cheese soft, but prevents mold. This hint has saved me many, many dimes and I purchase cheese only in small quantities.

FLAT ROCK.

PRESENT GENERATION JUST AS GOOD AS OLD

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Bo-peep's letter brought back memories of my school days and of a teacher I thought a great deal of, Miss Florence Latham, whose home was in Warehouse Point. I am wondering if she was a daughter of the Thomas Latham Bo Peep speaks of and where she is now. Our memories are strange things stored full of the happenings of years, forgotten until something recalls them and then how clearly it all crowds back to us. I remember when I learned in school to name the towns as Bo Peep did, "Little fishes swim," stood for Lebanon, Franklin, Sprague and so on in rhyme through all the towns, so much easier to remember than without the rhyme.

So much has been written about short skirts and smoking I am not going to add anything only a good word for our girls and boys. I have none of my own. I never see a company of young people but what I wish some of them belonged to me. I don't believe any generation has ever produced a finer set of young folks than there are now. They can express their ideas in a clear understanding way and I am sure the young people around here are just as much opposed to girls smoking and things which are not right as the older ones.

The way they can conduct an evening's entertainment or lead a Christian Endeavor meeting shows they are all right. As for styles, it's natural for girls at a certain age to want to go to the extreme in style. Don't you remember when the collars were so high it seemed as if we would choke, and yet didn't you want yours just as high as you could possibly wear it in spite of the discomfort? I listen to Dr. Poling every Sunday p. m. over the radio and one thing he said I wish all could heave heard. He said "we owe our young people our help and advice as well as our criticisms." So let's stop knocking them and help them in all the better things in life.

I think the older ones need educating on good things. I was in hopes the bill before the legislature prohibiting the use of the cruel steel trap would pass; but no it did not, and so I suppose they will continue to catch and torture poor innocent animals.

Perhaps when the boys and girls of today, who belong to the Boy and Girl Scouts, get to the legislature they will be educated in kindness to animals so they will pass some more humane laws.

Some one asked how many S. C. sisters belong to the grange. I have been a granger over 20 years and a member of the National grange over 20 years and think the grange a fine order to belong to.

Sympathy to the sick and sorrowing ones.

DORINDA, Club 3.

EARLY PLANTING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Now that spring has arrived it is time to start the hot beds. If you cannot make a hot bed you can raise nice plants by starting the seeds in a flat. A flat is a box of convenient size and about 4 inches deep. It should be large enough to contain a sufficient supply of plants but not too large nor too heavy for easy movements from place to place. Holes bored in the bottom of the box will insure proper drainage and should be covered with pieces of flower pots so that the water may run off without removing the soil.

Fill the box to the depth of an inch with well-rotted stable manure from which all straw and hay have been removed. Add an inch and one half of garden soil to the manure, leveling off the surface. Scatter the seeds to be sown in the flat on this soil and cover them with a light sprinkling of soil and sand well mixed.

Seeds should be covered to about their own depth. Press down the soil and spray lightly with luke warm water. Care should be taken never to flood the flat, as this tends to wash the seeds together. A piece of window glass should now be placed over the flat and the glass should be covered with paper to exclude the sunlight.

As soon as the young plants germinate the paper may be removed and the glass taken from the flat as soon as the plants have well broken through the soil. Flats should not be allowed to dry out after the sowing of the seeds, neither should too much water be added to them as this will tend to rot the seeds. Use a spray when watering to get an even distribution of the water over the whole flat.

Flats should be set in a warm place, not in direct sunlight until the plants appear, after which they should be given direct sunlight. As soon as the seedling plants have developed three or four leaves they should be transferred to another prepared flat that they may have more room for growth. From this last flat they are generally transplanted to the garden when all danger from frost is past and the soil has warmed up somewhat.

I believe one of the sisters said she had water cress and I would like to know if she would send me a few roots. I am willing to pay for them or return favor in some other way. I wish the editor and all the sisters a very happy easter.

BLUE BABY.

WHERE IS PEDESTRIAN?

Dear Editor of Social Corner: Many thanks for check received. It was much appreciated and I was surely in need of a bit of good luck.

Does any one know anything about Pedestrian? It is a long, long time since she has written for the Corner page. I used to correspond with her but did not know her address.

Mitchie: I have not forgotten the very pleasant time I had at your home so recently. I wonder if you received the parcel all right. As you are so busy I know it is hard for you to write. If I do not hear from you I will write again for that is my style, is it not?

Hope to go for a walk and look for hepaticas to send. With spring time greetings to all.

HEPATICA.

ENJOYED CORNER MEETING.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: There are many nice things that can be said of Club 6's meeting. I fully enjoyed every minute of the day, especially the reading of the life of Club 6, which was very good although I failed to get the sister's name. In fact, all did their part with such a good spirit that was so pleasing. Oh, and the poor widow with so many children left and all ailing. Has the youngest gotten over her giggling yet? Tell the two other ladies I found my son at the stock company. It is here this week so I went to see "Tommie." My son said that wasn't fair because I saw it all and he missed the last act.

Now I want to see a big crowd April 10 even if the morning doesn't look bright. You will find the afternoon will be full of sunshine and cheer.

E. L. M.: Do you know I think I have an old hen setting on eggs for they are starting to peep.

Ignatz: Glad you have enrolled. I know you will enjoy us.

Libby: You, both, are welcome to Club No. 1, April 10. I know you enjoy us up here, also would like to see members from all clubs for it's getting to the end of the winter.

Club 4: I know many of you can't come but I hope some of you can make it.

Club 3: I missed seeing any of you folks this winter. Come over.

Scottie: I am so sorry.

Sister Ready: I would like to see you.

Bumble Bee: There is a place for you.

Bonnie: You are not forgotten.

Whirlwind: How about it and your friends? I suppose Foxglove can't.

Twice Twenty: You owe me one.

Neighbor Eveready: Is that where you are keeping yourself? I have missed you. I guess you must be teaching below. Now where there is a will there is a way.

Yours for a good time. EFFIE M.

A TRIBUTE TO AN ABSENT SISTER.

Dear Social Corner Members: This community is grieving the passing away of our kind friend and neighbor and also one of our Social Corner sisters, Nancy Peck (Mrs. William Babcock).

Tuesday a little after 12 o'clock she peacefully passed over the Great Divide into that beautiful land of rest and understanding. Our sister was a member of the North Stonington grange, also a member of the Baptist church. We will miss her smiling face and delightful readings at our social gatherings, and fully realize she went to the meetings as often as she could. I repeat we will miss her at church, grange and Social Corner, but in her own home in which she loved to work and plan for her family her absence will be most keenly felt. Our sympathy goes to her bereaved husband of whom she was a constant helpmate. For over 45 years they have shared their joys and sorrows together. We sympathize also with her four daughters. They have lost a loving mother who cared for them so tenderly. Her thoughts were always for her children and now her work is over and she is at rest.

While her friends here will miss her cheerful greetings and her helpfulness and merry ways, still the influence of her life will hover in the home and among her neighbors.

Sorry I was unable to attend our anniversary meeting at Westerly; but here on the farm there are so many things that need my attention I didn't feel as if I ought to go away and leave things to care for themselves.

The turkeys tell me each morning in their talk that they are looking around for their nests and if I don't stay at home and watch them, many eggs will be left to the crows and frost.

It certainly is too bad one has to be shut in from the outside beauties. This morning I was walking about in a woodsy lot looking for a turkey nest and I heard the birds sing so sweetly. They seemed so happy, I presume they were looking for a place to set up house-keeping. I took time to pull some very pretty moss. I do not know what kind it is but it stands like clusters of green feathering spikes. I went a few steps farther and found a lovely patch of partridge vine with a few red berries. I gathered some of that, and arranged the moss and vine in a glass dish; it's quite pretty.

REMEMBERS DEVIL'S HOPYARD

Dear Social Corner Folks: I believe it has been nearly a year since I sent anything to the Social Corner. I read the letters every week and am much interested in all of them. Was glad to see Glenwood's name not long ago.

It was Quid Nunc I think who gave a description of the Devil's Hop Yard. Really, I wouldn't recognize the place from his letter if I hadn't been there myself many times. Wish you all could have seen it 17 years ago when the laurel trees, on either side of the road were as high as the top of our carriage and varying shades of pink in the laurel blossoms were beautiful that sunshiny day in June.

I am glad you are going to lay off the bobbed hair, short skirts and cigarettes and feel that "The last is the worst" and "Least Said Soonest Mended."

Some are anxious to talk of yellow kitchens. I heard a lady say the other day she was going to have a green kitchen this year. No light colors for me. I love my kitchen. It has ivory colored walls, painted of course, and buff colored woodwork. The floor is covered with imitation hardwood linoleum and my oak kitchen cabinet completes the color scheme.

How many of the readers are interested in the Singing Towers, I wonder. Lately I have read quite a little about them and it was just from listening to the chimes here in our Saint James belfry that got me interested. During the Lenten season it has been very impressive at noon and in the evening to hear some of the old hymn tunes ring out right in the center of a busy city.

If not too late I will say, since it is near the Corner's anniversary, "Best wishes to the Corner and Social Corner Folks and hope this will be a bigger and better year than ever."

WINONA.

LIFE LIKE THE SEASONS

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: With the passing of winter many homes have been saddened when a loved one has been laid at rest and our sympathy goes out to the bereaved ones and where sickness lingers we hope for speedy recovery.

Strolling along in the warm sunlight, pausing to listen to the merry throated song bird thrilling its notes of mercy spring, gladness enters our hearts like the bird that is attuned to nature's greatest transformation. Soon the swelling leaf buds will be seen on tree, shrub and bush and soon tiny leaves will appear clothing the naked branches in a garb of green; birds flitting from tree to tree looking for a place to build the home nest and the sturdy leaves will soon be the canopy of the house as it clings to the parent tree.

Then the spring period will merge into summertime and the full growth of leafy branches will give the delightful shade to all mankind, to the beasts of the field and all creeping things of earth and summertime will again furnish outdoor sports and pleasures, some of which will be enjoyed beneath the wide spreading trees.

But summertime, like a fleeting show, will soon reach its fullness with its purple and golden hill sides and in the valley the signal that nature's full fruitage is at hand and the frosted fingers of nature kills the life flow of sumer virdure signalizing summer's reign is over.

Autumn coming forward presents a glowing picture of vivid coloring very pleasing to the eye as we view nature's canvas with its beautiful foliage which in a short time grows dim and the sturdy leaf of spring falls to earth and becomes a brown and withered leaf of autumn.

So our lives in the springtime of youth grasp for higher opportunities of life, moving onward with the passing years to their full fruitage and then to old age like the ripe leaves of autumn pass to our appointed way.

THE HORRORS OF ANDERSONVILLE PRISON PEN

Dr. Harrison's Story.

Social Corner Editor and Readers: After an enjoyable dinner, I was shown my room, which was the one occupied by the brutal keeper of the pen, Wirz, as sleeping quarters and office, previous to the building of a cottage for him and family, by the confederate government, on a lot joining that of Dr. Harrison.

Seated on the veranda at the doctor's cottage, after some questioning he told the following story:

I was a native of Philadelphia. I went to New Orleans three years before the outbreak of the rebellion. I entered a college of medicine and surgery, graduating from it a short time before the firing on Fort Sumpter. I was pressed into the confederate service, and after the establishing of the pen at Andersonville I was detailed there as physician and surgeon to the confederate guard, not from choice, but being compelled.

In the first place, no more unhealthy place could have been chosen, as there were swamps all around the enclosure, and a perfect morass inside, all breeders of fevers and malignant diseases. Fevers and bowel troubles were most prevalent, becoming chronic.

The supply of water was from a small, sluggish shallow brook, filthy from drainage before entering the stockade. Several times the brook became nearly dry, which gave little or no means of personal bathing or washing their clothing. The breaking out of the spring no doubt saved the lives of hundreds.

With no change of clothing, they soon became overrun with vermin. With the coming of summer, the natural accumulation of waste matter, with the greater portion of the banks of the stream flowing through the stockade, a filthy quagmire of human excrements, from the thousands confined there, brought diseases of the most virulent character. From the bites of insects and vermin they became covered with festering sores. Young men in the bloom of perfect health, when they came in prisoners, wasted away from hunger and disease; they became living skeletons, with not strength enough to fight off flies, breeders of maggots in the festering sores. Men burrowed in the ground on the steep side hill like rodents to escape the torrid midday sun, and the damp fever breeding night chill, from the surrounding swamps.

I saw them writhing on the ground in delirium, crying out for the loved ones in their far away northern homes. Others praying to heaven for death to end their suffering, naked or nearly so, burning with fever; starving and dying by scores nearly every day.

When first imprisoned they had a small variety of rations sparsely dealt out to them. Later the principal food was corn bread, made from coarse ground corn meal unsifted, wet up with the filthy water from the brook; baked hard, and dealt out to them on the ground, the same as one would ears of corn to a drove of hogs; from the same wagon that carried the dead to the cemetery. Some got more, some got less and some none, but their comrades divided with them. As the dead cart came in to pick up the dead, the guard at the gate would shout: "Open the gate, drive in the mules; another load of dead Yankees." A detail of the prisoners were ordered to hasten the loading, and to throw them promiscuously into the wagon. Life had barely left the bodies of some of them. A dozen dead bodies have been counted, lying side the stockade for days at a time, naked and putrifying in the sun, until they had to be handled with sticks. There was quite a bit of sickness among the guard, but they had medical treatment, nursing and shelter.

Men were put into the stocks for a day or more, without food or drink for some trivial infraction of Wirz's arbitrary rules. Tortures of various character was resorted to. The suffering became more and more intense from day to day.

The ladies of Americus, 10 miles below, hearing of the suffering of the prisoners, were touched with pity. They appointed a delegation to go to Andersonville to investigate the conditions. They found them worse than had been reported. They found many absolutely destitute of sufficient rags to fulfill the requirements of common decency. The naked portion of their bodies burned to blisters by the hot sun, flies swarming around their putrid sores. One of the most inhuman acts was this. The ladies returned to Americus and solicited from the towns people a car load of delicacies and clothing for the sick and naked and sent it to Andersonville, with a request that it be distributed among the needy and suffering ones. Instead of doing so, Wirz distributed it among his own men who were in no particular need of them. No doubt many lives would have been saved had the distribution been made to those sick and naked.

Wirz was a fugitive from justice from his native country, Switzerland. For his hardened and criminal nature, he was made superintendent of this prison. No man living could be more brutal. He was known to rejoice and make remarks like this: "Another load of d—d Yankees on the way to be buried; we can kill them here as fast as they bring them in."

About this time of the month that you are here, they were liberated. Soon followed the arrest of Wirz. I was sitting on my veranda early one morning when I heard a train coming from toward Macon, stopping at the station, saying to my wife that must be a special train, as there is no regular train due here for several hours.

Soon we heard the clanging of sabers; a squad of cavalrymen came marching up the street, turning through my gate, they quickly came up the walk onto where I was sitting. With drawn revolvers they surrounded me and demanded if I was Captain Wirz. "No, I am Doctor Harrison." "Can you tell us where we can find Capt. Wirz?" "No I cannot, but he lives in the next house, just there over the fence" (I pointing.)

Just then Wirz came hastily out of the back door and started on a run across the yard. Seeing him, they jumped over the fence and in an instant as many hands went onto the captain as there were men. With drawn revolvers, I heard them ask: Is this Captain Wirz? I didn't hear his answer, but heard one say, You are our prisoner. Wirz said "You must let me go into the house." "No you can't; come with us."

I heard some conversation as they marched down the street, but couldn't understand what was being said.

They soon passed out of sight with their prisoner. Not more than 30 minutes had passed from their arrival before they were on their way back to Macon. That was the last seen of Wirz by the people of Andersonville. This was the end of Doctor Harrison's story.

In due time Wirz was tried and condemned to be hung. On Friday, Nov. 10, 1865 this notorious and inhuman criminal, who has without doubt, directly caused more loss of life than any man that ever lived, expiated his crimes on the scaffold in the yard of the Old Capital Prison in Washington, D. C.

HAD TO PAY FOR CALENDAR

Dear Sisters: It has been a very long time since I wrote to the Corner, I have not seen a Bulletin in a long time.

First I want to thank a "Social Corner Member" for the pretty calendar I received. Let me tell you about it. We moved from Willimantic to Mansfield Center in June and I neglected to send the editor my new address. So I got a postal card from the Willimantic post office saying there was a card waiting for me with one-half cent postage due. I sent the amount due and instead of a card I received a box with the lovely calendar in it. I am not finding fault in regard to the half cent but we should make sure our packages are weighed before mailing them to avoid trouble at the other end. I was almost a week getting it. So now my address is Box 22, Mansfield Center, Conn.

I want to thank the many sisters who remembered me with cards on my birthday. It is so nice to be remembered. I have had a bad winter. I am better and hope to meet at some of the gatherings this summer.

Crimson Rambler and Scottie: I am sorry for you in your bereavement. It is so hard to part with our loved ones, but we are not supposed to know why they are taken. May you have strength to bow to the supreme will and have courage to go on.

Aunty No. 1: I look for you every Sunday when it is pleasant.

I. J. B.: Hope you can come out here this summer. Do you think you can? Was sorry I was sick at the time of Mary's funeral.

Sisters: Where I live on the hill we have had robins, bluejays for a long time.

BIDDY

A MONKEY WITH A MEDAL.

Dear Editor: I read an interesting item by M. Irving the other day and thought your readers might like it.

A monkey is a sailor's favorite pet, but few simians have ever reached the distinction attained by "Jenny," the service monkey of the British navy. She was a remarkable monkey in more ways than one. To begin with she hailed from the Andaman Islands, where no monkeys were supposed to exist; also she belonged to no known species.

She was about two feet tall and had a full ruff of thick hair on cheeks and chin, and a crest on her head. In 1846 she joined H. M. S. Vigilant as the property of Capt. Brown. During the four years she remained on the Vigilant she never turned in at night without her glass of grog and her pipe, which she smoked with great pleasure.

There was a chicken on board too sick to be eaten and so it was turned loose in the galley by the cook. Jenny adopted that chicken, nursing it for hours at a time in her arms as if it were a baby and making queer little crooning noises to it. The chicken got well, but Jenny made such a fuss when it was taken away from her that it was restored to her arms and remained her pet all through the Abyssinian campaign in which the Vigilant took part. When it ended Jenny was discharged with a first class certificate and silver chain and medal. Later Capt. Brown presented her to the zoo.

"Hello, Springtime."

Into yesterday the winter passes, daisies peer.
Mammy's fixing sulphur and molasses, spring is here!
Once again a young man's fancy tingles, he's in love.
And his old man's busy nailing shingles up above.
Birds sing sweet on trees and garden patches, pussy roams.
Woe to those the agile feline catches building homes.
Soon dead grandmas will be back in season with baseball
And Babe Ruth will be the greatest reason for it all.
You can't act like the canine in the manger any more.
When you find that springtime is the stranger at the door.

THE TIGER LILY LEGEND.

Social Corner Friends and Editor: I am sending the beautiful legend concerning the peculiar hue of the tiger lily. Among the Christian legends of the lily, we find the origin of the tiger, or turn-cap lily. All lilies were in the beginning white, and all held their proud heads erect, but on the night in which Christ suffered in the Garden of Gethsemane, some fell from grace. When the other flowers became aware of His agony, they withered away with sorrow and pity. Only one lily was indifferent, and when those three bitter hours had passed, this one still flaunted her spotless beauty in the light of the moon. The soldiers came, and as Jesus was led out from the Garden of Olives, he paused for a moment beside the tall stem covered with the white flowers. For a moment He gazed on them with pitying reproach for their blindness and hardness of heart, and touched by the love and mercy in His eyes, they hung their heads and blushed. So to this hour, the descendants of this proud plant look down and shame dyes their petals.

An English custom at Easter in the country districts (and one which still prevails) is the practice of "lifting" on Easter Monday and Tuesday, in purely a spirit of game and fun. Two strong men join hands across each other's wrists, and having thus formed a saddle, from the assembled crowd lift one man after another three times into the air. This custom is supposed to have been intended originally to signify the joy of Christians in the resurrection.

The victory of Easter is the victory of every faithful effort, of every loving deed, and of every patient stroke for the right. They do not die, these precious things, even though they fall to the ground. Like the bulbs, the roots, the seeds, they are kept safe to arise and bloom and beautify resurrection bodies, when the Easter Angel throws open wide the gates of Spring. (From an old scrap book.)

ARE WE BEHIND THE TIMES?

Dear Social Corner: Have just come in from seeing to the setting hens, and got well sprinkled by an April shower while out. Now the sun is shining again. If April showers bring May flowers, will March showers bring up our garden peas? I hope so.

Beers: I didn't forget the asters, but as for cosmos, though I admire them in others' gardens, yet they are a flower I have never cared to raise myself.

Aries—Sweet scented flowers by all means. Why not sweet alyssum? So easy to grow.

Eveline Burr: If I ever can find time I mean to write you. I have your Norwich address, but are you still living in Norwich?

Ann Tenna: Have so much to do that I should not have tried to write

LOCAL MAN AMONG PIONEERS WHO INSTALLED ELECTRIC PLANTS

Well over two score years experience in the installation and operation of electrical power plants is the record of James M. Fillmore, electrical contractor of Spring street. Mr. Fillmore, who started his career in electricity as a trimmer in the old Norwich Electric Co. plant in the early eighties, has had a varied and colorful experience in the profession during the past four decades or more from New England to the tip of Florida. He is one of the pioneers in the electrical industry and all but a few of his early associates have passed on.

Forty-four years ago this month Mr. Fillmore applied for a position at the Norwich Electric Light Company's plant. Early in life he had a natural leaning towards electricity and decided to make it his chosen profession. Those were the days, when electricity, as a commercial enterprise, was in its infancy. The modern plants of today, with their huge and almost unbelieveable output of electrical energy were unknown and un-dreamed of in the 80's.

It was on a frosty morning, in March, 1885, that Mr. Fillmore, walked into the plant of the Norwich Electric Light company and applied for a job.

He landed the job and went to work in the capacity of a "trimmer" in the plant. Within a short time he had acquainted himself with the then, crude generators and dynamos and not long afterwards, in addition to his duties as trimmer of the score of arc lamps which the town then boasted, he was sent out on trouble work.

While he was employed by the Norwich Electric Light Co., Mr. Fillmore, from time to time, substituted as night operator in the Norwich exhange of the Southern New England Telephone Co. Operating a switchboard in those days was a far different proposition than it is today. The switchboard, itself, was a crude affair and comparatively few families could afford a telephone. Few if any calls were put through during the night hours. It was in the early morning hours that the night operator's troubles started. Five to six o'clock was the night operator's busy hour, and, according to "Jim" as he is familiarly known to his numerous friends, it was the housewives' shopping hour.

Hardly had five o'clock arrived when the switchboard drops would start to fall, signalling the operator that subscribers wanted to get calls through. "Click" and a drop would fall. Give me Gardner and Reynolds market," would greet the operator when he answered the drop signal. Then click, click, click, would go a dozen drops one after another until it seemed as though everyone who had a telephone wanted to get an early morning breakfast order through to the butcher or grocer. There were no numbers in those days. Subscribers called for their parties by name and consequently the operator had to know all subscribers by name in order to complete the calls.

In the early spring of 1887 Mr. Fillmore left the Norwich Electrical Light Co. and in April of that year entered the employ of the Thompson-Houston Electric Co., of Boston, one of the forerunners of the General Electric Co. During the following three or four months he was employed in the testing room of the Thompson-Houston plant at Lynn and in the fall of that year Mr. Fillmore was sent with Charles B. Burleigh, also an early employe of the company and at the present time a widely known electrical engineer at the Boston office of the G. E. Co. to change over the power plant at Montpelier, Vt.

This was the first installation assignment given him by the Thompson-Houston Co. As Mr. Burleigh's assistant he went to the Montpelier plant where they changed over from a three wire direct incandescent to an A. C. machine. They were there most of the winter. The next summer Mr. Fillmore was back in the testing room of the Thompson-Houston plant in Lynn.

A short time later he was sent to Patchogue, Long Island, where he installed an A. C. machine. During the winter of 1888 and 1889 he installed an arc and A. C. plant at St. Johnsbury, Vt. When the installation of this plant was completed Mr. Fillmore received orders to report at the Nashville office of the Thomson-Houston Co., and from there was sent to Lebanon, Tenn., where he installed an arc and A. C. plant.

About this time he was transferred from the Boston office of the Thomson-Houston Co., to their Atlanta office. From then on until the Thomson-Houston Co., and the Edison General Electric Co., consolidated to form the General Electric Co., Mr. Fillmore worked out of the Atlanta office. Most of his assignments were on trouble work and there was plenty of it in those days. He remained with the General Electric Co. until they discontinued the construction of power plants in 1892. From that time construction jobs were let out by contract.

The General Electric offered Mr. Fillmore a position as superintendent of the electric light and water works plant in Griffin, Georgia, but he declined the offer as he did not particularly wish to reside permanently in the south.

He left the employ of the General Electric in 1893 and became associated with the Athens, Ill., Eilectric Co., where he remained for a year. In 1894 Mr. Fillmore decided to return to Norwich and has since made his residence here.

"I was a general all around man in the Norwich plant" said Mr. Fillmore, when asked to relate some of his early experiences.

Trouble work, said Mr. Fillmore, and trimming arc lamps, were my principal duties. In those days we had transformers with movable tops. It was quite a trick to insert a new fuse in these old time transformers. That reminds me of a ticklish job I had one night while I was installing a plant at St. Johnsbury, Vt. It was a rainy night and a fuse "blew" on the primary of the transformer that furnished current for the lights in the hotel and stores in the business section. In the pouring rain I climbed the pole, and in the darkness, I had no light with me, I removed the cover on the top of the transformer and loosened up the screws that held the fuse wire on the terminal board in the transformer.

Clinging to the pole I inserted a fuse under one binding screw but when I tried to get it under the other binding screw, it melted in my fingers. I tried another fuse with the same result. The third one I succeeded in slipping into place. This was an ordinary occurrence as it was extremely difficult to set a new fuse in those old time boxes, which were in the main, crude and more or less unsatisfactory."

It was while I was installing the power plant in St. Johnsbury that John Belknap was swept over the dam he had constructed to provide water power for the plant. When they filled the pond the dam bulged about a foot. Mr. Belknap went out in a rowboat with the intention of easing a floating tree from striking the dam too hard.

As I watched from a window of the plant I saw the small boat, caught in the strong current, disappear over the dam. A day or two later a diver from Boston recovered the body in the deep water below the dam.

They had quite a lot of trouble in those days, said Mr. Fillmore. I remember, he continued, one experience in particular which I had at Deland, Fla. The company had sent me to Key West on a trouble job. While I was working on the arc machine in the Key West plant I received orders to go to the Deland, Fla., plant where they were having trouble with their machine.

At that time everything was new to us. We had to feel our way along and get our experience on the road. They had an A. C. self exciting machine at Deland from which they had removed the regular pulley replacing it with a smaller pulley to increase the speed of the machine and the voltage which had fallen far below the requirements of their lighting system.

With a light load the lamps were O. K. but as the load increased the lamps dimmed badly. I told them the machine was all right but the "yoke" was off one point. They evidently had little faith in my diagnosis, as they didn't believe that was the trouble.

I told the plant manager to go to his board and throw in all the resistance he could on the rheostat. I rocked the yoke on the segment, and the lamps blazed up like arc lights. Quickly I threw the yoke back to its former position.

When we shut down that night we put back the regular pulley, rocked the brushes over one segment and the machine operated perfectly from then on. The primary voltage of those early machines was 1150 and the secondary voltage was 32.

Unfamilarity with southern customs and colloquialisms resulted in numerous amusing experiences while Mr. Fillmore was engaged in installation work in that section of the country. One of these incidents he said occurred shortly after his arrival at Lebanon, Tenn. I was assisting the manager of the local plant, B. W. Cox, a southerner, on some installation work. We were anxious to complete the job as soon as possible. One day, as noon approached, there was still an important piece of installation work which we both were desirious of finishing that day. Imagine my surprise when Mr. Cox said "We'll attend to that the first thing this evening! Why not do it right after dinner? I asked. That is what I mean, he countered, the first thing this evening. I was non-plussed for the moment but it quickly dawned on me that "evening" there designated the hours from noon until twi-light.

Another amusing incident I well remember occured during my stay in Lebanon. A Prof. Green, learned gentleman of Lebanon and a member of the staff of one of the well known Tennesee centers of education came one day to visit the plant, the installation of which had just been completed.

As I started for the board to throw in the switch and put the plant into operation I noticed the professor edging toward the dooway. Wouldn't you like to remain and see the plant in operation? I asked him. "No Sir," came the professor's answer, as he kept stepping backward to the door. "No Sir. It's deadly, sir, deadly sir," and with that he disappeared.

Groups of curious people from all around the locality used to visit the plant to see the mysterious machinery in action. We had to rope off the dynamos to prevent them from getting too close. This particular machine had a pecularity that repeatedly caused consternation among the unsuspecting visitors.

Frequently a blue spark under the toe of the brush would steadily increase in size and then, without the least warning, would disappear with a loud report. The entirely unexpected noise was invariably the signal for a hurried and confused exit from the building on the part of the startled and white faced spectators.

LANDSLIDES HAVE KILLED MANY NATIVES IN MADEIRA

"Madeira, recently stirred by a landslide which killed or injured a number of natives, owes its existence to violent volcanic eruptions in the past but the present generation is unaccustomed to catastrophoes," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The quiet, peaceful atmosphere of the island attracts health seekers while the perpetual balmy climate and picturesque scenery draw thousands of tourists from America and Europe. Eevn in the towns there is no clatter of steel-shod hoofs, rumble of cart wheels or rattling and backfiring of automobiles.

"Every boat which enters the harbor at Funchal, capital and largest town on the island, is met by native boys who amuse passangers by diving for coins in shark-infested waters," continues the bulletin.

"But the thrill of a short visit to Madeira comes when the traveler mounts a Madeira 'taxi' on runners. If time is short, two stalwart native boys can show the sights of the capital in a few hours, but the easy-going life of the inhabitants soon gets 'under the skin' of the visitor, and the slow-moving, bullock-drawn sled, upholstered in red, green and yellow striped cloth, affords a better opporttunity to get acquainted with the town.

"Up and down the hills the animal plods through narrow cobbled streets solidly walled with spotlessly white houses. Now and then the front of a building in adorned with exhibits of Madeira embroidery work and through the door small girls skillfully execute difficult patterns. Before some of these girls have reached their teens, their needlework has graced the tables and beds of some of the finest homes in six continents, for they begin embroidering as soon as they are old enough to handle a needle.

"The Madeira milkman, bearing a pole across his shoulders with a five gallon can at each end, stops long enough to watch a group of tourists bump over the cobbles. Dirty-faced boys, standing among tall bags of fuel brush, smile under small knitted caps with ear flaps turned up toward a fuzzy pompon. Women flower vendors, with a portion of their merchandise bedecking their thick, unbobbed hair, accost every passerby. Meanwhile, flat-topped sleds, piled with furniture, brushwood, groceries, wine casks and movables, come and go.

"Madeira belongs to Portugal nad Portuguese is the native language on the island, but British and American money is so attractive that signs in English are frequently seen on sharp fronts. One reads 'a cordial invitation is extended to all Madeira visitors to shop here.' Another invites visitors to write your cards here. Most prominent of all is a large sign extending over portion of the streets which reads, 'please come up (meaning up one of Funchal's hillside streets) for your real handmade embroideries, American and British cigarettes, and Madeira wine.'

"Most of the 179,000 inhabitants of Madeira live in towns occupying narrow ledges along the seashore. Behind some of them sheer cliffs rise more than a thousand feet. Funchal, with 25,000 inhabitants, occupies a ledge at the head of a broad bay, but the hills in the background, though steep, are also dotted with white houses set amid flower and vegetable gardens, fruits trees, and vineyards.

"Every tillable acre is cultivated in the interior valleys and ingenious have terraced steep rocky hills to increase crop production.

"The roads through the mountains are mere trails. In many places the hammock, borne by two bearers, is the only transport that can be used. Along the trails men and women carry hides filled with wine, sacks of potatoes, and wicker chairs to town. Frequently a man carries as many as as ten wicker chairs clustered about his head.

"Stone-walled, thatched-roofed huts dot the Madeiran countryside. Approaching one hut, the groan and squeak of the primitive, all wood, wine press is heard as it crushes luscious Madeira grapes. The barefoot occupants of another hut deftly weave wicker into chairs which might ultimately adorn American porches. It was in Madeira that the wicker chair industry began on a large scale."

UNCLE SAM'S BOATS TO PATROL YANGTZE RIVER

Ichang, China, 1,000 miles up the Yangtze river, will be one of the principal bases for the six new gunboats of Uncle Sam's Yangtze patrol that are just going into commission.

"The boats of this unique flotilla of the navy, situated half around the world from the United States will probably never anchor in a port of the land whose flag they fly," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "They were built in Shanghai; are of shallow draft suitable only for river use; and will probably wear out as their predecessors of the Yangtze patrol have, in service on China's greatest river.

"If the political and economic conditions were completely reversed," continues the bulletin, "one could understand the relations of the Yangtze cities and the Yankee gunboats to the sea by substituting the Mississippi river for the Yangtze and by imagining a flotilla of Chinese gunboats plying the Father of Waters. New Orleans would stand approximately in the place of Shanghai, the great doorway city to the river. Memphis would represent Hankow, huge industrial center, while St. Louis would stand about as far from the sea as does Ichang.

"Continuing up the Missouri river, one would find Kansas City about in the relative position of Chungking, while Omaha, 1,500 miles from the sea, would stand for Suifu, an equal distance from the mouth of the Yangtze. In the imaginary American Yangtze, the visiting Chinese gunboats would look to St. Louis (Ichang), as their chief base, but would spend most of their time patrolling the river above that point, ascending, during high water, as far as Omaha (Suifu).

"Ichang will be, as in the past, one of the most used bases for the boats of the patrol. The city maintains its commercial importance on the river because of the great Yangtze Gorges that extend from just above the city for a distance of more than 125 miles. Above the gorges the great river flows through China's richest province, Szechwan, a region teeming with people, producing much material for shipmen, and demanding great quantities of the products of the outside world.

"Farm products cost more than they used to."

"Yes," replied the farmer, "When a farmer is supposed to know the botanical name of what he's raisin' an' the entomological name of the insect that eats it, an' the pharmaceutical name of the chemical that will kill it, somebody's got to pay."—The Pathfinder.

this week, had it not been for you. My address is Mrs. B. C. Greene, R. D. 1, Willimantic. Please send your address so I can return the letter to you.

The letters on dress and manners have been very interesting. But I wonder sometimes when we pride ourselves on being old fashioned if we really are, or just a little behind the times, because we haven't decided as yet to tag along with the rest. Also I wonder if "good times" would return if we used as much cloth for our dresses now as we did years ago. Seems to me that at the time I used to buy ten yards for a dress, that many mills were shut down indefinitely or running only on short time. Haven't we all heard the cry "hard times" off and on all our lives? Isn't it possible that some of the manufacturers use that cry as a means of lowering wages, or go into bankruptcy to make more money for themselves?

BETSEY BOBBET.

THE SONG SPARROW.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I have been much interested in Canterbury Bell's letters about birds. Much of the pleasure I have gotten from birds comes from identifying their songs. One of my favorites is the song sparrow. He is a sociable chap and perched on a bush by the garden is one of the very first to tell us spring is here for he is often with us the first week in March. What the pansy means for constancy in the flower world so does the song sparrow among the birds hold its place in my heart because of the long season of its song. I even remember hearing one in early September though its voice then was rather scratchy and out of tune.

Some mornings in early April I step to the door and hear a rippling lilting song in the big, bare walnut tree and I know our friend the purple finch has arrived. We welcome him because like the song sparrow he gives us an abundance of music when many other birds are silent. He does not look purple to me at all but has a throat of rosy pink streaked with gray.

How many of us know the song of the indigo bunting? This bird is a hot weather singer and it's buoyant and cheering on a sultry mid-afternoon in July to listen to this small, brilliant blue bundle of energy.

And while we're talking of birds of brilliant plummage, let's mention the scarlet tanager. He does not rely on his gay cout alone, to please us for he can carry a tune almost as melodious as that of the robin red breast. One of the happiest memories of an early morning trouting expedition (an expedition, incidentally, in which I caught no trout) was seeing this bird and learning its song which I since have always been able to identify. And once you know his song you will be surprised how often you may hear it as you drive or walk along some country road in the late afternoon for this is also a favorite time of the day for the tanager.

Have you ever heard the song of the junco just before it goes north for the summer to build its nest and to rear its young?

On hearing the shrill "phebe, phebe" of the chickadee some day about the first of March did you mistake it for the deeper and wheezier "phoebe, phoebe" of our flycatcher friend who had not yet arrived from the south.

I have left to the last my favorite for real glory of song, the wood thrush, or as country folk were won't to call it "swamp robin." Rarely have I approached this bird near enough to identify it but how often has its high echoing notes greeted my ear on a calm May evening or following a refreshing spring rain. Notes coming from the edge of the forest and carrying to those that have ears to hear, sounds of church bells, borne on the west wind at eventide, music echoing across water, strains from a violin touched by a master hand.

If there are some of our circle who do not know the songs of our common birds do get acquainted with them if you have an opportunity and many golden moments will be yours.

"Here again, here, here, here happy year!
O warble unchidden, unbidden.
Summer is coming, is coming, my dear,
And all the winters are hidden."

BO PEEP.

SOME PARTY IN THOSE DAYS

Dear Editor and all the Friends: How do you all do this fine weather? I think it just fine and hope the weather will keep so. A sister said she was old fashioned, well, so am I. As for the short skirts, they are just horrid. If they had what we used to call "shoe-top length" it would be far nicer than above the knees, I think. I am sure I don't like the long train. They were street sweepers. If we have the sleeves elbow length I think that is all right.

It is awful to see the way women do dress today. I heard a man say there is no modesty or pride among the women folks today, they try to go as near without clothes as they can. It looks as if they were too lazy to put them on. Well, maybe that is it.

Well, I will tell you of my last surprise party. Now don't smile when I tell you how I looked after the party. I was working out one day when two sisters of the lady came to see me at dinner. Anna said, "Say let's have a surprise party down in old Skite." It is a fine day to be sure, I am all for it. So after dinner we put on our hats and started out giving invitations as we went. Well, we had to go through old Skite so we went on and came to Cal's house. He was home, so we gave him an invitation and told him to be sure and bring his fiddle. "Sartinly, I will be there, fiddle and all," he said.

Well, we went on into the old town calling on the young folks. Those we could not see we sent word that there was to be a party that night in old Skite. We had five miles to walk to get home. We arrived at Anna's at sunset. We had suppor then we started and others butting in with us as we went. There were a few there when we got there but soon there was a crowd. Then we started by singing old time songs. Then came party plays. When we got tired of that we had lunch. Of course, we girls carried cake and the boys brought candy, fruit and peanuts. A party was no party if there were no peanuts. Then the fun began. Oh Puss started it all as they said she did. Well, I accidentally tipped over my mug of coffee and of course it went down Squilling's back. My, how he did hop. Then there were banana peels that went down the other boys' backs. Then peanut shucks followed.

"Well," Cal sang out, "Say old Sue is all tuned and my elbow is hankerin' to go, so come on." So we formed two sets in the old kitchen and one in the other room. We danced for some time till I found the stove polish and a piece of rag. First thing Mr. Squilling knew he had a fine goatee and one good black eye. Now the other girls were not idle. In a few minutes there was a fine variety among the boys, but don't think we girls went Scott-free, not for one minute. Anna had one black eye and nose and a chin whisker, but don't think I got out of it. I had two good black eyes, a black nose, a fine chin whisker. Squilling sang out, "George, hold her hands, I am going to spile them pretty red cheeks for her. She has been a she-devil all night, now we will fix her." "Well," I said, "go to it, it will wash off sometime." I made up my mind I would get even so I found two little tacks. When Squilling got up I put them in his chair and did not put the points down. Soon he sat down but he soon arose and looked in the chair but found nothing. He sat down again but he arose a little sooner that time.

"It's some deviltry of Puss; I know that," he said.

Well, time went all too soon. Cal looked at the clock. "By Gosh do you gals know what time it is?" No, there was not one that knew it was half past one. Cal said "Gals get your duds on quick as you can. I am going to carry you hum and I have got to git hum so as to milk the cows for mother."

So we hustled never thinking of our faces. Well, when we got started, George said, "By gosh gals and boys, when you want another good frolic just come to old Skite and see George."

I was only working at that place for two weeks and my time was up on Saturday so I went away and I have never seen the old place since and only two or three of that merry fun loving crowd. What if we girls had been like the girls of today? Oh my, what a time we would have had to paint and powder over our faces.

Quid Nunc: Your letter in Saturday's paper was awful interesting as I had two cousins in that place. They called it the devil's death trap. One only lived a few weeks after being rescued from the place. One lived until two years ago; he was 80. He has told me many a fine tale of the sweet sunny south in war times. Tell us the rest.

Ann Tenna: That kitty was a fine behaved kittie today. I doubt if my Skip would be like that but she used to like a trip by auto.

Kentucky Wonder: I hope you are much better.

Cactus Blossom: How did you find those sweet potatoes this time? All right I hope.

L. T. H.: I hope you are better.

Aries: I hope you are fine.

I send my heart-felt sympathy to all who have lost dear ones and there are many sad homes. May God bless and be with you in your hour of trial and need.

MORE ABOUT CALIFORNIA.

Social Corner Editor: Have read with much interest the letter from "A New England Yankee" and he or she talks like one, I must say. Especially that bit about the boiling blood. As far as being one of the few persons who are "fed up" on this California bunk, I will say that the roads east are full of them. It may be a question in New England Yankee's mind whether I have ever visited California, but it is not question in my mind at all. I was in California 30 years ago, and have been in every state in the union besides Canada, Mexico, and almost every country in Europe, also Africa and Asia and South America. So I guess I am qualified to speak of a place as I find it. California is a beautiful state, where it isn't a desert, a land of sunshine when it isn't foggy or raining, a land of flowers and wonderful weather, in summer, maybe. But north of San Diego it is more weird than wonderful in winter. The western spirit is wonderful, especially on the part of the more or less famous "native sons and daughters." California is a progressive state, but not any more so than Connecticut or a dozen other states. She has wonderful churches, but I've seen better, and better homes and roads. I may be mistaken about a permit to stay in California, but I have on my windshield a permit with a definite date when it lapses, and if you haven't one you must have gone in by the bootleggers' route, i.e., around the Indian school at Yuma and so missed the inspection office, where all who go into California that way must unload themselves and baggage for inspection. I saw them burn up about a bushel of apples and oranges one day there, and make an old man and his wife unload all their household goods by the roadside. If New England Yankees had heard the lurid remarks of that old gent about California he could write a good book and I sure would appreciate it, especially if he quoted the aforementioned gent verbatim. I helped him out in cussing and loading up his stuff again and both of us are respectable citizens and they couldn't find a cootie on me, the old gent, or his wife, after searching. I am glad New England Yankee is spending a wonderful winter in California, but he, or she, would probably spend as good a winter in any state outside of Connecticut. For there are just as good states as either Connecticut or California and just as good people in any of them, and red blooded Americans in all of them. Connecticut or California has no monopoly on virtues, or civic pride. But California has some 15,000 auto licenses held up for further proof of ownership and it seems incredible that people who go there from other states should be put to so much trouble in such a simple matter. A bill of sale, paid in full, is good for a house, ship, or any other piece of property except an auto. There it is no good as proof of ownership unless it is sworn to before a notary public, as if a man with enough nerve, and enough lack of conscience to steal a car, would hesitate to swear before a notary that it was his own property, and so create a legal claim and warranty deed for it, which would be accepted in California, and a license given, and make it almost impossible to recover by the original owner from whom it was stolen. Think it over Yankee.

ATTENDS MEETING AND JOINS CORNER

Dear Editor: On Thursday March 12, it was my pleasure to spend the day at the Social Corner meeting held in Westerly. I enjoyed every minute of my visit. It was just wonderful to meet so many interesting friendly women.

We had a splendid dinner, after which there was a very amusing program.

I am very anxious to join the Social Corner and look forward with much pleasure to the next meeting.

I am enclosing a recipe which some of the members might like to try.

Orange Coanut Custard: 1 pint milk, 2 tablespoons corn starch, 1-3 cup cocoanut, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 2 oranges Put milk in double boiler. After the milk is warm add cocoanut in about 10 minutes. Drain off cocoanut. Put milk again in double boiler. Mix corn starch, sugar, salt and moisten with a little cold milk. Add to milk and cook 20 or 30 minutes after it thickens.

Beat eggs, add to mixture, cook a few minutes, remove from fire, add cocoanut and cool. Peel two oranges cut in small pieces, sprinkle with a little sugar. Just before serving pour custard over oranges.

I should like to take for my pen-name

PARENT-TEACHER

Dear Social Corner Friends: The Parent-Teacher association should assume full responsibility for the direction of the welfare of each preschool age child in the community, of course in connection with the school system, the home mothers, the school mothers and nurses, and the juvenile court authorities.

We have now to get along with too many persons who were trained not to think, and who are incapable of taking the ordinary incidents of life and to reason them out and so continually increase their fund of knowledge and their ability to understand and their helpfulness in the community.

The only way you can get them to reason is to have them write out reasons for and against the subject discussed. In home and in school they were forced to form the habit of remembering instead of being trained to think for themselves.

This condition of mind is the cause of much trouble. The criminal did not think where his act would take him. If he had he could never have been induced to commit it.

In the family the man or the woman or both, never formed the habit of thinking and reasoning and so are incapable of conducting themselves in a proper way in their new home.

Our work now is to stop the raising of people in that way. Thinking, reasoning persons, so trained from infancy up, is our work now.

It would be strange, wouldn't it, if all the material things were created subject to perfect natural laws and that only human beings were created erratic, criminal, independable, to do only the wrong, and you could not help it, or change them.

Human beings are just exactly what they are trained and formed into the habit of doing.

A child may live in the finest home and have superior parents and be just incapable or bad. Why? Just because he was never taught any of these superior ways. Perhaps left to learn from bad, inferior, untaught servants and companions.

When you take notes on the physical care given the child, take also how much time and in what mental and social teaching has been given him each day.

Divide your community children among your association visitors and have a home department which will include every mother and caretaker of every pre-school age child in your community. The home department will be your excuse for going into the home with your suggestions and helps.

In homes where it is evident that the children are having unhealthy or vicious training the help of nurses and the authority of the juvenile court should be brought to bear on the family and the conditions made right or the children removed. No man would be so ignorant or foolish as to try to make use of gas and electricity without learning the natural principles of both.

No woman should be so ignorant or foolish as not to learn the principles of child development.

We are taught that for good health we need the "Square Meal" with its four sides, containing the four elements: Proteins, energy foods, minerals, and vitamins, which we can find in animal foods, cereals, green vegetables and fruits.

And now we are taught that the infant has four natural feelings or emotions and these are discomfort, rage, fear and happiness and that these four emotions are the foundation upon which are built the habit patterns of his behavior which will make his personality as an adult.

It all depends upon what happens to him during his first five years.

The child does not have to be taught to cry, crying is the natural response to discomfort, restraint, rage and fear. What we have to do is to form the habit of being calm, happy, satisfied and reasonable.

The child should know that happy events will occur regularly each day at a definite time, and do not come because he has cried and gone into temper tantrums. Think of the child as a tender plant who must be trained gently by reason and without mental conflicts.

A child will not do well in a home where unhappiness and irritability is found, he needs cheerfulness and joy as much as proper food, rest and play.

A child needs to be trained to take pride in doing things he does not like to do, but should never be compelled to do this. When a child can sit up he will snatch your necklace or eyeglasses. Don't touch him or speak, just look cross and shake your head every time he starts to do this.

At this age get him something bright and pretty for his own, but do not let him form the habit of snatching and crying for your things. This is his first lesson in respecting the rights and property of others.

A nursing baby usually cuts teeth very young and will bite cruelly. Take hold of his arm and when he begins to bite, pinch gradually but gently, but be sure to ease up entirely as he stops biting, he thinks he hurts himself and does not try it many times if you are alert.

Ten good slogans to keep in mind: "Better Results This Year..; "Every Child a Cultured Child"; "Make Ours the Model Association"; "What This Infant Will Become Depends on His Care the First Five Years"; "Everyone in Our Community Is Either a Home or an Active Member of Our Parent-Teacher Association"; "Help in Any Way You Can"; "Form the Habit of Thinking"; "Give Your Reasons"; "School Attendance Is Compulsory for Every Child"; "Good Care Is Compulsory for Every Child in Our Community."

MARJORY

MORE LIGHT IN YELLOW KITCHEN

Dear Sisters of the Corner: Now I have started I think I will keep it up. I watch for my paper every Saturday and enjoy the corner so much. I see one of the sisters was speaking of a yellow kitchen.

I have one and surely enjoy it. Mine was papered in tile paper and dark graining. I took off every bit of paper, had the cracks and holes all filled up with prepared plaster. Then gave it two coats of cream yellow paint. The woodwork we gave one coat of light tan paint and then a coat of light oak varnish. It surely is a sunshiny room now.

Then I took my chairs and gave them two coats of light tan enamel. Before I had to use my electric lights a good deal on cloudy days. Now I hardly ever put them on in the daytime. I am starting soon to fix up a blue bed room just a little paint and bright cretonne do such a lot.

Daisy Dean: How are you making out? I am doing fine.

I see a good many sisters enjoy their radios. I do my work with mine going. My favorite is "Cheerio." He starts the day so good for me.

Well, I guess I have written enough for this time.

LOTUS.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Editor and Social Corner: Will try and select another pen name as I took the name of another sister.

Popcorn: You and I must love popcorn. Do you?

Hope I don't take another's name. Best wishes to the corner.

WHITE CHRYSANTHEMUM

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Clara Bow, Brooklyn's greatest gift to the motion picture public, has just been voted the favorite cinema star of 2,700 theatre owners and managers in all parts of the United States. The survey was conducted by a trade magazine, the Exhibitors' Herald and World, and results were just made public.

Colleen Moore, leader in the balloting last year, when Miss Bow placed second, is now herself in second place. Lon Chaney was voted the most popular masculine star.

Clara Bow's fan mail receipts have long marked her as the most popular film star with the public. She gets on an average of 35,000 letters each month and more by thousands than any other star of the stage or screen ever received in the history of the entertainment business.

Her latest production, "The Wild Party," is a vivid, dashing film of unfettered, flaming youth and the scenes are laid in the college campus and class-room of an exclusive institution. It is an all-talking film.

"The Wild Party" comes to the Broadway theatre for four days beginning tomorrow.

The story upon which the play is based was written by Warner Fabian, author of "Flaming Youth," and the adaptation was written by E. Lloyd Sheldon, assisted by John V. A. Weaver, who wrote the "American-ese" dialogue parts of the production.

Fredric March, young, dark-haired stage star, plays the leading romantic role opposite Miss Bow in "The Wild Party."

Palace Theatre

The vaudeville program which closes today at the Palace theatre is one of the best balanced bills seen here this season, with Bobbe & King in fun in an apartment house with two loose nuts; Winona Winters & Co., the little aristocrat of vaudeville; Burns & Francis in fun with the mail man; Musical Rowellys, a foreign novelty duet, and Floretty Trio, a sensational balancing threesome.

A photoplay as gripping as its title and as soul-searing as life is "The Grip of the Yukon" now at the Palace theatre.

Francis X. Bushman in the leading dramatic role gives a portrayal that brings a catch in the throat and tears to the eyes. In the tragic role of a Yukon miner, who is the only survivor of an icy catastrophe which carries away the only people he loves, Bushman gives a powerful and deep delineation.

"Behind Closed Doors," a Columbia production to be shown at the Palace theatre on Sunday and Monday, is an absorbing mystery drama, full of adventure, thrills, suspense, surprise and intrigue.

An exceptionally fine cast headed by Virginia Valli and including Gaston Glass, Otto Matiesen, Andre De Segurola, Fanny Midgely, Torben Meyer and Broderick O'Farrell, interpret the action. The production has been made under the direction of R. William Neill. On the same program, The Fighting Failure tells a breezy, snappy story of a clean fighter, facing assaults and plots of a group of rascals. It is the photoplay coming to the Palace theatre on Sunday and Monday. In its cast are, Cullen Landis, Peggy Montgomery, Sidney Franklin, Lucy Beaumont, Ernest Hilliard, Richard Travers and Eddie Diggins, coming lightweight champ of the world.

Breed Theatre.

Ever since the news leaked out that the enterprising manager of the Breed theatre had scored a beat by booking a special talking film he has been besieged by inquiring patrons. Now everything is set for the premier tomorrow night, so we are at liberty to give you some specific information. First of all there is the feature picture, "Should a Girl Marry?" produced by Trem Carr for Ravart release. Helen Foster is the lead, with Donald Keith, Wm. V. Mong and Dot Farley in support. Dealing with the vital question of the day the picture has a complete musical synchronization, with the dramatic high lights in dialogue and many sound effects. In addition to the feature there are five Filmtone novelty reels, including Shaw's Hawaiians, Val and Ernie Stanton, The Erin Tap Dancers, Filmtone Harmonists and the Radio Franks.

This is the first complete unit program ever offered to film fans and marks a new development in the motion picture field.

Strand Theatre.

Greta Garbo, more glamorous and alluring than ever, and John Gilbert, dashing, intense and handsome, give another remarkable example of their unique charm as co-stars in "A Woman of Affairs" a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture directed by Clarence Brown from Michael Arlen's story, "The Green Hat," will be shown at the Strand theatre tomorrow night.

"A Woman of Affairs" was directed by Clarence Brown and adapted by Bess Meredyth. The cast includes Lewis Stone, John Mack Brown, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Hobart Bosworth and Dorothy Sebastian.

Wood, Putnam & Wood.

On March 29th, 1904, Wood, Putnam & Wood company started in the advertising agency business as a copartnership. The members of this firm —John Wood, an experienced newspaper man; Marion B. Putnam, an expert accountant; Allen H. Wood, with a commendable list of magazine accounts—notified the Boston and New England papers that they were prepared to conduct an advertising agency with sufficient capital, a number of desirable accounts, and with agency training.

In 1904 they started with a co-partnership arrangement. Three years later they were incorporated, and moved their offices from 161 Devonshire street to the ninth floor of 111 Devonshire street, where they occupied new and larger quarters. Then years ago they again moved to the Oliver Ditson building, 178 Tremont street, where they are occupying the larger portion of the ninth floor of this building.

Many of their clients who came with them at the inception of their business are still doing business with them.

Before forming their own company, John Wood, Marion B. Putnam, and Allen H. Wood were associated with the Pettingell Advertising agency at 22 School street. Before that firm went out of business, early in 1904, Mr. Allen H. Wood resigned from the Pettingell company and started in business for himself, and in March of that year he took in Mr. John Wood, his brother and Mr. Marion B. Putnam.

Wood, Putnam & Wood company have been responsible for the success of a number of national campaigns, and are accredited today with handling over 60 accounts of New England concerns.

Mr. Allen Wood, the sole survivor of the original co-partnership, prior to his connection with the Pettingell company was with the Stephen R. Niles Co., and H. B. Humphrey, and is now in his 37th year of advertising service. He is president and treasurer of the Wood, Putnam & Wood Co., and a director in many companies. He has associated with him in his present business his son, Allen H. Wood, Jr., first vice president; R. Earl Dudley, second vice president; Charles J. Olson, copy chief; and Richard D. Northrop, account executive; David A. Besse, rate and statistical manager. His associates are men of known ability and well regarded in advertising circles.

NEW LONDON DRIVER BUMPS JUDGE E. M. BURKE'S CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 29—Probate Judge Edward M. Burke when returning to Westerly in his automobile Friday afternoon was a short distance this side of the Wequetequock chapel when a truck of The Shalett Cleaning & Dyeing Co., New London, reported driven by Thomas F. Connors of New London while in an intoxicated condition, hit Judge Burke's car, causing it to overturn twice and finally land against a stone wall. Officer John Smith of the Groton barracks was passing and arrested the New London man for driving while under the influence of liquor.

A grass fire on the vacant lot at the up-hill corner of York avenue and Cross streets, about noon Friday, was the cause of a telephone call for apparatus of the Westerly fire department. Fire Chief George E. Egger, driver Daniel Ashworth and men responded with the Seagrave pumper. There was no need for the motor-pumper, however, as the spread of the fire which had threatened adjoining property was stopped by the firemen, who made sure that the last spark was out before they returned to the Union street headquarters.

The following transfers have been recorded in the office of Westerly town clerk:

March 26. Nunziata Serra to Santo Fusaro and wife, Philomena, lots Nos. 30, 32 and 34 Central Park tract.

March 26. Edward J. Reguci to Annunziato and Nunziata Serra, lots Nos. 18 and 19, map of Central Park.

POSSIBLE FRACTURED JAW—C. D. HALL STRIKES POLE

Clifton D. Hall of William street, Pawcatuck, is a patient at the Westerly hospital suffering from a possible fracture of the jaw, cuts and bruises, as the result of his Pontiac automobile striking a telephone pole at the junction of Main and School streets. The accident, investigated by Lieut. George H. Champlin, occurred about midnight Thursday. Hall claimed to have been blinded by the lights of a passing auto which did not stop but proceeded on its way. Hall extricated himself from the badly wrecked machine and going to a neighboring house summoned aid. The ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps conveyed him to Westerly hospital where he was attended by Dr. L. H. Johnson. His condition was reported as not serious.

MANSFIELD CENTER

STEARNS FIRE THE THIRD IN LESS THAN THREE WEEKS

The burning of the large dairy barn on the farm of Robert E. Stearns during the thunder storm Monday evening was the third disaster of the kind to occur in this vicinity within less than three weeks. The complete disruption of telephone service on Chestnut Hill at the time of the fire made it impossible to summon help and it was through the efforts of Robert and Russell Davis, brothers, employed on the farm, and Robert Oliver Stearns, that the 22 cows on the second floor of the barn were saved. Mr Stearns and the two older sons were absent at the time. Neighbors who saw the fire through the dense fog of the evening gave valuable assistance in saving farm tools and milk room equipment; but as the flames spread with great rapidity they were unable to rescue the 13 head of cattle and two horses on the first floor.

Last week the house in Conantville occupied by the Lowell family and owned by their employers, the May Pollack company, burned to the ground, in the early morning. The week before, the house formerly owned by Mrs. David Munyan, near Gurleyville, and occupied by its New York owner, caught fire in the night. The house had been visited during the day by the owner, but being remote from neighbors, the fire was not located. The next morning the house was discovered in ashes.

A special program of Easter music will be given by the choir at the church Sunday evening at 7:30. There will also be special services and music at the morning service.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

SCOTTISH FARMERS KNOW GOOD PATURE PRACTICE

The most successful dairymen are first of all good farmers, according to O. E. Reed, chief of the bureau of dairy industry, United States department of agriculture. They appreciate the importance of raising a large part of the feed for their cows. In this connection, he says, the American dairyman might profit from the experience of the Scottish dairy farmer by giving more attention to the management of his pasture land.

During a visit to Scotland last summer Mr. Reed had an opportunity to study the pasturing methods in use there. On several farms, as well as at the agricultural experiment stations, a rotation and fertilization system of handling pastures was followed. At the Kilmarnock Dairy school, 65 cows were pastured on 42 acres of grassland divided into 7 fields of 6 acres each. The 65 cows were turned on one field and allowed to remain there for 4 days. Then they were turned on the next field for 4 days and so on until they had spent 4 days on each of the 7 pastures. Every 28 days they completed the rotation system. As soon as the cows were taken from each pasture it was harrowed with a spring tooth harrow to scatter the droppings. Then it was given an application of commercial fertilizer. By this system of rotation the production of milk amounted to 8,000 pounds per acre as compared with the average production of 1,000 pounds per acre under the ordinary method.

The rotation system made it possible to turn the cows on pasture earlier in the season and keep them on later than usual. The plan also provided a richer feed, since the short grass contains a high per cent of protein more nearly comparable to the grain concentrates. The pasture furnished the entire ration for all cows except those that produce as much as 50 pounds per day.

Pasture experiments similar to the Scottish system are now under way at the bureau of dairy industry experiment farm at Beltsville, Md. The results of these trials, when available, will give information as to the possibility of this system under our own conditions.

GROWING CHICKS NEED MORE PROTEIN

The increase in muscle and nerve tissue and in the total weight of growing chicks, is largely due to the protein content of the feed ration, according to Prof. G. F. Heuser of Cornell. Chicks grow rapidly in the beginning, Prof. Heuser points out. During the first month they have the fastest growth, and after the second month the rate of growth begins to decrease until the time of maturity. Since protein is needed for growth larger amounts should be fed at first, and less as the chicks grow older.

According to Prof. Heuser, the experiments at Cornell show that certain amounts of protein are best for chicks at different ages and that feeding more than these amounts will not give greater growth but that feeding less than these amounts is apt to result in decreased growth.

These experiments show that the best amount of protein in the feed for chicks from one to six weeks old is 20 per cent; for chicks of from 6 to 12 weeks 17 per cent, and for those from 12 to 20 weeks old, 14.5 per cent.

Large amounts of protein feed will not hasten maturity, but enough should be fed so that the best possible growth can be attained at the time of maturity and this will mean larger eggs and better production.

DUSTING FOR SPRAYING STOPS CUCUMBER WILT

The wilt disease of cucumbers and melons can be prevented by dusting or spraying during the first six weeks the plants are above ground, according to Dr. E. E. Clayton, plant disease specialist of the experiment station at Geneva, N. Y., who has been making a study of diseases of this sort on Long Island, N. Y. The plants must be kept covered with the protective spray or dust to prevent the striped cucumber beetle from feeding on the plants, says Dr. Clayton, because so far as is known this beetle is the only means by which the disease is spread from plant to plant.

The wilt disease of cucumbers and melons usually appears in July and the first evidence of trouble is the sudden wilting of the leaves on a single branch which is soon followed by the wilting and death of the entire vine. A satisfactory dust consists of gypsum or land plaster and calcium arsenate in proportions of 15 parts of the gypsum to one part of the arsenate. Lime is not safe to use, as it may injure the plants. A weak bordeaux mixture has been found best for spraying. This is made by adding two pounds of blue vitriol, four pounds of hydrated lime and three pounds of lead arsenate to 50 gallons of water. A stronger mixture is likely to stunt the plants and reduce the yield.

Both dusts and sprays have given perfect control of the wilt disease, even where untreated plants immediately adjacent have shown from 50 to 60 per cent loss. Five to seven applications of the dust or spray are necessary to insure complete control of the disease.

A SIMPLE METHOD OF ROOTING CUTTINGS

The two essentials for rooting cuttings are bottom heat and moist air—both hard to supply in the ordinary house. If one can obtain a large glass display jar, such as shopkeepers use for candies or nuts, cuttings can be rooted with a very small percentage of failure. Fill the jar one-third full of mason's sand, and moisten with warm water, then set in a sunny window. When sand is thoroughly warm, insert cuttings and firm the sand about them. Keep covered until the glass is covered with steam, then tilt the cover a little, replacing it at night. It is well to shade cuttings with paper when the sun is on the jar.

This method is especially good for rooting cuttings of begonias. Care must be taken to admit some fresh air each day or the cuttings will rot. The gathering of steam on the glass is a warning that fresh air is needed at once.

HINTS FOR THE FARM

Ewes should be put in a separate pen to lamb. It can be made of two light panels fastened together and placed in a corner. Then pen permits the ewe to see the rest of the block and prevents her from becoming excited. It keeps other sheep from trampling on the lamb, and the ewe is not so likely to disown her offspring.

The increased selling price of cattle which have received a supplement of grain on grass, as compared with that of strictly grass-fed cattle of the same quality, usually more than offsets the additional feed and labor costs.

Lumber from green sapwood of the southern yellow pine, the western pines and the red gum should be dried very quickly in an open outside pile to prevent blue stain or decay and not stored in a shed until thoroughly dry.

Early sowing of flax tends to reduce damage from both wilt and rust. No wilt-resistant variety is wholly immune. It may wilt rather badly if soil temperature is high while the plants are young, the wilt fungus growing best in high temperatures. Rust usually does not become very destructive until late in the season, and early sown fields may ripen early enough to escape severe injury.

Much loss of corn from root, stalk and ear rots may be avoided by discarding seed ears, which show external evidence of disease. Ears having shank attachments which are pink or brown, cracked or shredded, probably are diseased and should be eliminated regardless of their good appearance. Also, discard ears, if the kernels are dull in appearance, slightly brown on the germ side, or somewhat moldy where they have been attached to the cob.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Interesting extracts taken from The Norwich Morning Bulletin of fifty years ago beginning with the week of March 24, 1879, are in part as follows:

Monday, March 24, 1897—A number of gentlemen of this city have recently formed an organization to be known as "The Kit-e-mang association," and which is modelled in most of its features after the famous "Squantum association" of Providence, R. I.

The baseball season will open on Wednesday. The "Nut Crackers" of the West Side, it is said, will play a strong nine this season. The championship is conceded to lie between them and the Bostons.

Hundreds of ducks frequent the surface of the Thames river and afford good sport for local hunters.

Hundreds of cakes of ice floated down the river in the storm of Saturday night.

Tuesday, March 25, 1879—The Norwich Town reading room is not "free" as was stated in The Bulletin of Saturday last. All who use it are expected to pay a small quarterly fee for the privilege.

The West Side boasts of a private billiard table that has not had a moment's rest in over eight months. It is estimated that the number of miles that have been walked around its sides would girdle the earth several times, with many spare laps.

Several local hunters who went down the river after ducks, yesterday afternoon, returned with half a plug of tobacco and some valuable ideas about sea gulls, as the fruits of their sports.

A large flock of wild guease passed over the city at nightfall, yesterday; gone to join their sisters and their cousins and their aunts.

Wednesday, March 26, 1879—Two tramps was the entire harvest of the lockup on Monday night. One became homesick yesterday and consulted a spiritual adviser. He was considerably improved at night and will probably be able to resume the track tomorrow.

A Main street merchant carried his "grandfather's" clock down Broadway in his arms yesterday afternoon. He explained that that was the only way he could make the dummed thing go."

Mr. John Lalor, one of the first compositors in The Bulletin office, and at one time foreman in The Hartford Times office, died, on Sunday, at his home on Sanford street, Hartford.

At the New England Granite works, of which Mr. J. G. Batterson is proprietor, a fine monument for Mr. John F. Slater of this city is being executed.

Thursday, March 27, 1879—John Taylor of Niantic, who was so terribly affected by the death by drowning of his wife and two boys a fortnight ago, was presented on the day of that lamentable occurrence with $225.

James T. Mowry, son of Deacon Havilah Mowry, formerly of Bozrahville, died at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Tuesday. He was at one time accountant at the Mowry Axle and Machine company's works at Greeneville.

Our weather prophet announces that "that equinoctial storm" has been postponed for just one year.

The West Side announces green grass and opening peach buds as tokens of spring.

The inventory of the estate of Asa Otis, who died here March 12th, shows it is valued at $1,124,939.

Friday, March 28, 1879—O'Mahoney, the walker, says he is a bigger man than "Pinafore", and if things come to a focus he'll challenge him to walk a thousand hours in a thousand consecutive seconds.

Preston sportsmen are busy with the spring muskrat shooting. Some of the shooters are becoming so skillful that they can make a "bull's eye" on a water rat in every other shot.

Our "local weather prophet" says that yesterday's storm was really the "equinoctial", and that now we may expect fine settled weather. This settles the whole matter.

In Baltic and Taftville, the price of refreshments has degenerated so low that four cents buys the elder for the crowd—and that "the sisters and the cousins and the aunts."

Sea gull shooting is the amusement of the wharf.

Saturday, March 29, 1879—A team ran away in Greeneville on Thursday night and scattered the remnants of a fine carriage on a lamppost and the pavement near the railroad shop.

It is reported that "East Indian Perjanus are rapidly gaining favor among sinel gentlemen." We have thought so right along.

At the annual meeting of the Central Baptist Ecclesiastical society held Friday evening, L. W. Carroll was elected president for the ensuing year, C. H. Kenyon, vice president, J. H. Powelson, clerk and William Boath, president.

THE BROOKLYN SAVINGS BANK
DANIELSON, CONN.

BROOKLYN SAVINGS BANK WILL DO BUSINESS IN ITS NEW BUILDING FOR FIRST TIME MONDAY

Building Will Be Open to Public Inspection Following Banking Hours—The Structure is Beautifully Appointed in All Respects and is Most Modern in Eastern Conn.—Bank Was Incorporated 57 Years Ago With Appolos Richmond as First President—Surplus Account is $250,000 and Bank Has Reserves of $608,000.

THE new and truly beautiful home of the Brooklyn Savings bank pictured on this page will be opened for business next Monday, April 1, upon which occasion, following the regular banking hours, it will be open for public inspection from 5 p. m. to 9 p. m.

The new building is symbolical of the steadily increasing growth and stability of eastern Windham county's largest institution of savings and truly representative of the strength it has attained since it started doing business in a modest and careful manner in Brooklyn on a September day in 1872. Today its resources are in excess of $3,500,000.

Its ever increasing business made evident to its officers and trustees several years ago that more commodious and convenient quarters were a pressing need and that the providing of them could not be long deferred. After many informal discussions the matter of erecting a new bank building was given long and deliberate consideration at a meeting of the officers and trustees on July 20, 1927, and a building committee made up of J. Arthur Atwood, Frederick A. Jacobs, Sidney W. Bard, Frederick E. Bitgood and Irving W. Davis was appointed. An agreement had been reached that a new banking home would be constructed, provided a suitable site could be obtained.

Site Selected in October 1927

In the succeeding few months various locations in or near the business section were given careful consideration. In October, 1927, the site where the new building now stands was deemed the best available and the property, at the northeast corner of Main and Academy streets, was purchased from Attorney Arthur B. Bill, with a stipulation in the purchase agreement that possession should be given on March 1, 1928.

This arrangement was executed as agreed and shortly after March 1 of last year tearing down of a large frame business block that occupied the site was started and a dwelling that had stood on the property for upwards of half a hundred years was removed. In April of last year final plans for the new building were approved and ground broken for the foundations in May, the general contractors being Pieretti Brothers of Centerbrook, Conn.

In the eleven months that have since elapsed what has been termed one of the most attractive and finely appointed bank buildings in a town the size of Danielson in New England has been created. It is modern to the last degree. Of unique design, reminiscent of early colonial style, it represents a venture architecturally that already has received warm praise in various quarters.

Brick, Vermont marble and artificial stone enter into the exterior construction in pleasing harmony of style and effect. The front is particularly ornate and is given massive beauty through the use of four large marble columns, each about 13 feet in height. The roof is of slate and all gutters and exterior drains of copper. There is lawn space at the front and southerly side of the building, this to be seeded early this spring.

The interior is strikingly handsome. The main entrance opens on the public space, which is generous in size and finely appointed. This part of the building is open to the ceiling. There are five tellers' windows. To the left of the public space as one enters is the office of the treasurer. Also opening off the public space, to the left is a consultation room. To the right of the main entrance as one enters is a ladies' rest room and at the south or Academy street side is the community room, one of the finest in the building and to be made available to the public for meetings, conferences or other similar purposes. There is an entrance to this room from Academy street.

The working space for the bank staff is enclosed in an ornamental metal "cage" from which there is easy access to the vault at the rear of the building. To the rear and at the left of the vault is a machine room where posting, adding and other machines will be located.

This room has a specially built ceiling designed to deaden the noise of the machines and absorb much of the clatter they create when in operation. Cupnon booths are placed at the right of the vault, where there is also a small room for storage of supplies.

Curved Stairway

A gracefully curved stairway, also in a style hinting of colonial days, leads from the public space, at the south side of the bank, to the mezzanine. On this floor is the officers' and trustees' room, at the south side. On the opposite side is a room of similar size that also may be used for conferences. There is also on this floor a small room appointed for the use of female employes of the bank and still another room for storage purposes.

The decorative scheme is rich and pleasing. Old ivory is the predominating shade with a blending of soft, harmonizing tints for the walls. Ornate pilasters and other decorative designs added greatly to the beauty of the entire interior. All of the doors throughout the building are of mahogany, and this rich wood is also used for stair rails and for much of the trimming. The floor covering of the public space is of rubber tile and this material also is used in some of the small rooms. Other floors are of polished oak. The bases are of marble. The bank furniture is of mahogany.

The vault is the last word in such things. Its massive door, weighing 23,000 pounds is of the Don steel type and is proof against attack for a practically unlimited period by high pressure acetlyne torches or any other means of opening it except legitimately. Its interior provides space for several hundred safe deposit boxes of various sizes suitable for individual use and a set of six small safes that will be used by the bank for its own purpose. There is also shelf room for records and valuables of various kinds.

FREDERICK A. JACOBS
Vice President

The steel interior is set within a concrete interior through which is laced a veritable net work of wires, the majority of which are units in the electric burglar alarm that is a feature of the vault's equipment. The vault extends through to the basement floor, where there is another fireproof space for keeping old records and such materials as the bank may desire to store therein.

An interesting feature of the upper vault, which has a mirrored background, is a device that can be released only from the inside, to permit of the entrance of air and through which liquid food could be conveyed to anyone who might accidentally become locked within the structure and could not immediately released.

New London Man Directs Operation

From the beginning up to today as it stands completed building operations have been under the direction of Supt. Elias Wentworth of New London. A part of the agreement between the bank officials and the architects, Norton and Townsend of New Haven, was that Pieretti Brothers, the contractors, assign Mr. Wentworth as superintendent of construction here, this being recommended by the architects, who were entirely familiar with Supt. Wentworth's marked efficiency. Perfection has been fully justified. No detail of construction from the major to the most minute detail but has received his most careful supervision.

The bank is a monument to his skill in discharging a difficult assignment.

No description is possible here of all the detail that makes the interior of the bank so beautiful. It may suffice to say that the bank officials will welcome the public to inspect it from 5 p. m. to 9 p. m. Easter Monday, when it will be brilliantly illuminated and looking its best.

It will be 57 years on the first Wednesday of next May since the Brooklyn Savings bank was incorporated by the general assembly. The first incorporators were Appolos Richmond, Henry

At a meeting of the corporators on July 20, 1872, Appolos Richmond was as the bank's first president, Daniel C. Robinson, elected vice president, Cranson C. Crandall, secretary-treasurer, and the following trustees: John Gallup, John Palmer, Albert Day, Alva Wylie, Gideon Burnett, Willard Leavens and Enos L. Preston.

Began Business Sept. 2, 1872

Sept. 2, 1872, the bank began business in Brooklyn, a community then more outstanding as a county center than is the case in this day. Business was started in what was then the Windham County National bank building, on the east side of Brooklyn green. This property later became the property of the savings bank, the institution selling it in 1913 to the Brooklyn Town Library association, and it has since been devoted to library purposes.

The Brooklyn Savings bank from the very first adopted a policy of intelligent conservativeness that insured the success anticipated and which eventually achieved in even greater measure than was dreamed. The growth was not spectacular, but steady, and within a score of years from the time of its founding the safety and security of the Brooklyn Savings bank became a tradition that endures to this day in eastern Connecticut and depositors were attracted from many miles about, even from distant parts of the state. The fact that many of the depositors had to drive to Brooklyn or go there by stage to make their deposits was no deterrent to them. Comfortable fortunes have grown from some of the early depositors of the bank, which numbers today among its thousands of depositors grandchildren and great grandchildren of the early customers of the bank.

Apollos Richmond continued as president of the bank from 1872 to 1876, when he was succeeded in the presidency by William Searls who filled the office until 1878. Mr. Searls was in turn succeeded by William Woodbrige, who held the office from 1878 to 1889. Then in turn there came to the presidency Marvin H. Sanger, 1889-1898; John Waldo, 1898-1907; J. Austin Williams, 1907-1908; J. Arthur Atwood, who was elected in 1908 and who still remains as president.

BROOKLYN SAVINGS BANK, DANIELSON, CONN.

The vice presidents have been Daniel C. Robinson, 1872-1876; Charles G. Williams, 1874-1876; John Palmer, 1876-1878; Frank E. Baker, 1878-1894; John Waldo, 1894-1898; David Greenslit, 1898-1905; J. Austin Williams, 1905-1907; J. Arthur Atwood, 1907-1908; James M. Paine, 1908-1911; William H. Burnham, 1911-1925. Frederick A. Jacobs, elected in 1925 and still in office.

The bank has had but three treasurers since its organization. Cranson C. Crandall was the first, serving from 1872 to 1876. He was succeeded by Clarence H. Potter, who remained in the office until 1921, when, his health failing, he was succeeded by the present treasurer, Sidney W. Bard. In more recent years the office of assistant treasurer was created. J. Dyer was the first of these, being appointed in 1924 and continuing until 1926, when he resigned to become treasurer of the Cargill Trust company at Putnam. He was succeeded by the present assistant treasurer, Arthur F. Hughes.

Changing times and changing conditions made it appear advisable to some of the bank officials about 1910 that the bank should be removed to Danielson. Such a move was regarded as in the interest of the bank that it might have greater opportunity for growth. The matter of removal remained under consideration for a long time. The plan to remove it to this town was not unopposed, for Brooklyn justly had a great amount of pride in the institution and with real cause. However, there was a precedent for making such a change, for it was in Brooklyn, too, that the Windham County National bank began business well over 100 years ago, only to remove to Danielson in course of time, for the same reason that actuated those proposing the savings bank should make a similar change.

Moved to East Brooklyn

Opposition to removing the bank from Brooklyn to Danielson was of considerable strength. But the bank did move, not to Danielson proper and the town of Killingly at first, but to the West Side (East Brooklyn), where it was located in October, 1913, after having done business in Brooklyn for just over 41 years. In the East

Brooklyn location the bank was in a building next to the Quinebaug store. Immediately following the removal, the business of the bank began to increase, as had been predicted would be the case. Making it more convenient of access to a great majority of its depositors and to many other people brought a quick increase in the deposits. The bank remained in its East Brooklyn location until April, 1915, when it removed to Danielson proper, taking the quarters vacated by the Windham County National bank, which institution had gone into its new building, in the Phoenix building. It has since done business there, but will use it for the last time today, opening for business in the new banking home next Monday morning.

On July 1, 1915, officials of the Brooklyn Savings bank voted to consolidate with the Windham County Savings bank, an old established and competing institution here. The consolidation eventually was brought about, the Brooklyn bank absorbing the Windham County Savings bank, and the name of the latter disappeared in local banking activities.

The consolidation was brought about during the World war, but prior to the entrance of the United States into the great conflict. However, this territory, in common with all the United States, was reaping the financial harvest accruing from the vast amount of business created here by the war, and thousands of workers found themselves earning more money than ever had been their lot before. Much of this surplus came to the Brooklyn Savings bank, a great deal of it in new accounts that since have grown in a very pleasing manner. This week the bank's depositors numbered 7,824, representative of every community within miles of Danielson. As the growth of the bank's resources has been constant even since its earliest days, doubling since leaving its original location in Brooklyn, so it continues to be. Each six months finds the earnings of the bank ample not only for interest and other charges, but sufficient so that very substantial amounts are added to surplus and other reserve accounts each six months.

The Brooklyn Savings bank has the proud record of never having missed a dividend in the nearly 57 years it has been doing business. Here is concrete proof of the stability of the bank, evidence of the scrupulous care exercised in its management and of the able manner in which its funds are invested. At the present time its surplus account is $250,000, and its profit and loss account $358,000, a total of $608,000 in reserves. Over and above this certain of its investments have a far greater market value than their book values.

The modern home which the bank has provided for itself fulfills a pressing need of the institution. Its business has grown to such proportions that the quarters it has occupied for the past 14 years had become wholly inadequate. In its new home the bank has provided for the future needs of the institution as well as for the present. Incidentally the location of the new building marks the northward progress of Danielson's business section. It so happens, too, that, since the bank obtained the location for its new building the Eastern Connecticut Power company purchased a site on the opposite side of Main street for its Danielson division headquarters, developed it and is now occupying it. There are forecasts to indicate that other business buildings will rise in the vicinity within a comparatively short time.

The official board of the bank as at present constituted is made up of J. Arthur Atwood, president; Frederick A. Jacobs, vice president; Sidney W. Bard, treasurer; Arthur F. Hughes, assistant treasurer; trustees, Charles Bragg, Central Village; Dr. George M. Burroughs, Frederick E. Bitgood, Ernest R. Warren, Joseph N. Lavallee, Herman M. Coulter, New Bedford, Irving W. Davis, Fred W. Tillinghast, Central Village, Thomas J. Seaton, Moosup, Edward A. Sullivan, Judge Sabin S. Russell and Herbert H. Pepler.

List of Corporators

The list of corporators is: Attorney Arthur G. Bill, Charles Bragg, J. Arthur Atwood, Frederick E. Colvin, W. Irving Bullard, Fred W. Tillinghast, Sidney W. Bard, Frank Hoxie, Fayette L. Wright, Lucius B. Cranska, Albert S. Field, Charles E. Burnham, Frederick E. Bitgood, Arthur C. Tillinghast, Dr. W. W. Adams, Dr. George M. Burroughs, Ernest R. Warren, Frederick R. Jacobs, D. E. Jette, William J. Craig, Charles E. Austin, Clark Congdon, N. Lorne Greig, Clare N. Turner, Joseph N. Lavallee, Herman M. Coulter, Irving W. Davis, Everett T. Tillinghast, Enoch H. Douglass, Thomas J. Seaton, Elmer C. Wood, John Z. LaBelle, Edward C. Tillinghast, Alfred L. Reed, Edward A. Sullivan, Arthur Van Woodworth, Judge Sabin S. Russell, Herbert H. Pepler, Judge Oscar F. Atwood and Stuart M. Ellsworth.

In addition to the general invitation that has been issued to the public to inspect the new building Easter Monday from 5p. m. to 9 p. m., invitations have been sent out to various banks and bankers throughout the state and to financial institutions with which the Brooklyn Savings bank has connections in nearby states. The bank's staff, including Mrs. Muriel F. Hughes, Miss Beatrice S. Maynard, Sidney R. Bard and J. Kendall Hargraves, will assist during the inspection hours with officers and trustees of the bank in welcoming all who come and showing them about the building, which is certain to be a revelation to those not already familiar with its interior arrangement and detail.

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICE AT TRINITY CHURCH

The Suffering That Heals was the topic of the Good Friday sermon given Friday morning by Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown at Trinity Episcopal church. There was a large sized congregation. Archdeacon Brown took as his text, Isiah 53:5—He was wounded for our transgressions; he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him and with his stripes we are healed.

He said in part:

The question of the justice of vicarious suffering which is so often a trouble to us, may be left to one side in view of its great service to man. How vain it is to talk about the justice of a practice which succeeds, as this does, where all other have failed; and which, moreover, proves itself so much in harmony with our moral nature. But, surely, the last shred of objection to vicarious suffering is removed where the suffering is voluntary as well as vicarious. And, in truth, human experience feels that it has found its highest and its holiest fact in the love that being innocent itself, stoops to bear its fellows' sins—not only the anxiety and reproach of them, but even the cost and the curse of them. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

And it is in this sense that Jesus laid down His life for man. Innocent, as He was, He gave His life as satisfaction to the Divine law for the guilt of His people. His death was no mere martyrdom or miscarriage of justice; in God's intent and purpose, but also by its own voluntary offering, it was an expiatory atoning sacrifice. God made Him a sin-offering for many, and He acquiesced in God's intention. By His death He did homage to the holy law of God. By dying for it, He made men feel that the supreme end of man was to own that law and be in a right relation to it, and that the supreme service of man was to keep others to a right relation. As it is said in this same chapter, "My servant, righteous himself, wins righteousness for many, and makes their iniquities his load." In fact, what the suffering servant of the Lord, what Jesus set out to do by His suffering and death was to lift the deadness of men, to take their guilt upon His head, to attempt to arouse them to it, to attempt to deliver them from it. And so it was that, when brought to his lowest estate, the suffering servant was nearest his exaltation. In death he was nearest to life. For we read "When thou shall make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in His hand. He shall see of the travail of His soul, and shall be satisfied." What a countless seed has traced all its blessings to, and finds all its hopes upon, the Cross of Christ! Has not Jesus indeed "seen His seed? Has He not "prolonged His days"? His days as a unique power and force among men? Has not "the pleasure of the Lord"—the promotion of righteousness—prospered in His hand? And may we not say that, as He looks out of and beyond the sorrow He endured while on the earth, He sees its fruit in an ever-increasing reign in the hearts of men, and is satisfied; satisfied with the results of His pain and death. Indeed, it was this great end to which Jesus looked forward; it was this great end in which He found His satisfaction while yet in the midst of His suffering. For Jesus has not had to wait for the results to multiply in order to find His satisfaction. It was while He was being made an offering for sin that He "looked out of the travail of His soul and was satisfied." For first, He knew His pain to be God's will for an end outside Himself. "I have a baptism to be baptized with and how am I straitened till it be accomplished; Father, save me from this hour, yet for this cause came I to this hour; Father, Thy will be done." All opportunities to escape this hour Jesus regarded as temptations.

And, secondly, we are told Jesus "dealt prudently, had insight." The will of God in His suffering was no mystery to Him. He understood from the first why He was to suffer. The reasons He gave were two, first, that fidelity to God's truth could bring with it no other fate in Israel, then secondly, that His death was necessary for the sins of men, and as men's ransom from sin. In giving the first of these reasons for His death, Christ likened Himself to the prophets who had gone before Him in Jerusalem, but in the second He compared Himself with no other, and no other has ever been known in this match himself with Jesus. When, then, men stand up and tell us that Christ suffered only for the sake of sympathy with his kind, or only for loyalty to the truth, we have to tell them that this was not the whole of Christ's consciousness; this was not the whole of Christ's own explanation. Christ always spoke of His suffering as remedial and redemptive. He was sure of His power to remove men's sins, and was never more emphatic about that power than when He most felt those sins' weight. And this confidence distinguishes Him from all others who have felt the weight of their people's sins. Moses might be willing to die for his people, but he never thought of claiming that his death would make them righteous. Jeremiah underwent a lifetime of martyrdom for his people, but he never ceased to feel the mystery of his pain and of God's will in it. But Jesus was sure of His power. And He has seen His seed; He has made many righteous; He suffered a chastisement or discipline by which peace has come to untold millions; and truly has He proved all through the ages that "He was wounded for our transgressions; He was bruised for our iniquities; and that with His stripes we are healed."

POETRY

Something Better

Always something better
If we look at life that way,
No matter what the pessimists
May have to sing or say;
Always something better
Than you thought could ever be
When it's always something better
That you try to know and see.

I could find the shadows also
If I only looked for them;
I could find the dust and drivel
Where I looked for diadem;
But it's always in your vision,
How you lift your eyes and go
To the better thing that happens,
To the laughter and the glow.

Always something better
When the heart is like a song,
And you want to have things better,
And you want to miss the wrong;
Always something better
Than you've ever known before—
And the wisest of us find it
Waiting for us at the door.

—Baltimore Sun.

The Little House Across the Way

The little house across the way
Has gracious windows, wide and bright,
Where children's faces smile by day,
And little shadows dance at night.

All day the door just swings and swings,
As little folk dash in and out,
While in the kitchen someone sings—
Someone with happy heart, no doubt!

Bright mornings, on the porch they sit,
Or swing beneath the apple tree;
The little house seems used to it;
Its shadow broods them tenderly.

But, when they all go off to walk,
(The happiest of all happy bands),
Without their tide of merry talk,
It seems forlorn as empty sands.

It seems so like a sheltered nest,
Securely set, though branches sway,
Where Love and Peace have found their rest—
The little house across the way!

PASSENGER IN B. V. D'S, DREAMING, JUMPS FROM TRAIN AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 29—Walking about the platform of the union station in scant raiment, in fact B. V. D's, is something unusual, even at 4 o'clock in the morning, but that is just what employee there observed today when a young man was found shivering in his undies at the north end of the station. The fellow had been a passenger on train No. 4, bound from New York to Boston. He occupied a sleeper and when the train was leaving the station it started with such jerk that the passenger was aroused from his slumber. He had been dressing a few seconds before and in his dream he fancied the train crashing through the South station, Boston. Not realizing that he had been dreaming the passenger jumped to the platform. His feet striking the cold concrete, it awoke him. Then he realized that he had leaped from the train in his sleep. Station Master James Finnegan was informed of the passenger's predicament and escorted the latter to the station where he was provided with a pair of shoes, suit of overalls, and raincoat. The passenger boarded the next train for his destination and it is safe to say that he did no further sleeping.

TOM MIX CHASE AT DAWN OF DEFIANT AUTO THIEF

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 29.—Cornelius Axson, a youth with a police record, was in the city court today charged with the theft of a Cadillac coupe belonging to Patrick J. Clifford, 169 Ocean avenue. Axson was arrested after a spectacular chase by two police officers. The case was continued to Monday next, for the prosecution was not prepared to proceed with the case today. Axson furnished a surety on his bond of $1000.

Clifford placed his car in the garage at the rear of his home last night and shortly after midnight he discovered that the garage had been entered and the automobile was missing. A report of the theft was made at police headquarters and Patrolmen Thomas Cavanaugh and Frank Linehan were sent out in one of the patrol cars in an endeavor to find the machine. About 3.45 the officers spotted the stolen machine passing through Bank street and the driver was given a signal to stop, but instead of doing so, he applied the gasoline and attempted to get away. Officer Linehan drew his revolver and fired several shots in an attempt to intimidate the driver, but to no avail. The speeding auto was driven to Shaw street, with the police car close behind it. After the Cadillac had made the turn from Bank street to Shaw street and before Axson could again speed away, the police car pulled up alongside the stolen auto. Policeman Linehan jumped from the running board of the police car to the running board of the Cadillac and compelled Axton to come to a stop. He was then arrested and taken to police headquarters. Officer Linehan damaged his uniform and received bruises to his arm and ribs when he made the leap from one machine to the other.

Axson has served six years in a reformatory and is said to be distantly related to Clifford. The former has been residing of late on Bank street.

MONTVILLE WOMAN-ANNOYER SPENDS THE NIGHT IN A CELL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 29—Another woman-annoyer, of the type that applies his practice to attendants of motion picture houses, operated in New London today, and although he occupied a seat at the Garde theatre for a while this afternoon, he reposes tonight on an iron bunk in the cell room at police headquarters where he awaits presentation in the police court tomorrow morning. John Carlson, of Montville, came to New London about 3 o'clock and a short time afterwards went to the theatre and took a seat beside a young woman who was with escort. Carlson began to make himself obnoxious immediately, for he started rubbing against the young woman. The latter informed her escort of what was taking place and he suggested that she use a pin on her annoyer. This she did and it had the desired effect for Carlson changed his seat and went to another part of the theatre, where he continued his practice. The woman to receive his attentions this time went to the box office and made a complaint. Patrolman Arthur Feeley was notified and, Carlson being pointed out as the annoyer, the latter was arrested. The specific charge made against Carlson is breach of the peace.

Engineer Comstock Home

Edward Comstock, 141 Blydenburg avenue, employed as engineer by the New Haven railroad, returned to his home tonight, having been a patient at a New Haven hospital several weeks for a form of stomach trouble. Mr. Comstock has been greatly benefitted by the treatment received, but is in a highly weakened condition.

J. L. Tribbia, of State street, was in Essex this week, calling on acquaintances.

A fellow who was intoxicated and in danger of suffering serious injury or perhaps death, was arrested this afternoon in the freight yard of the Central Vermont railroad by Special Agent Ploof. He was locked up and will be in court tomorrow.

Many Tramps Sheltered

The tramp room at police headquarters continues to be filled nightly of late because of the low temperature. Most of the applicants for lodging declare that they have sought employment and cannot obtain it, but receive assurances of work within a short time. In the meantime, the men are without funds or a place of shelter.

The next and what may be the final police lecture will be given Wednesday afternoon, at the police court room. Judge Victor Prince will address the members of the 7:30 a. m. and 11:30 p. m. details. The officers have heard six lectures, intended to produce greater efficiency among the personnel of the department through their increased knowledge of law.

Four more automobile drivers have been deprived of the privilege of operating their automobiles. Today Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. B. Stoeckel issued an order suspending the licenses of Charles W. Strickland, 21 Fitch avenue; Cornelius J. Harrington, 75 West street; Frederick Morris, 1001 Ocean avenue and David C. Hurt, 42 Nameaug avenue.

Mrs. Robert B. Chappell is spending a few days in New York.

Joseph Souza, 5 Trumbull street, Stonington, was arrested yesterday afternoon by State Police Officer John Smith charged with driving without a license and driving without registration. He will be presented in the Waterford town court next Monday. Souza was driving on the Boston Post road about 5.30 o'clock and in a reckless manner. Officer Smith, who was patroling the highway ordered Souza to stop and when the latter did so it was discovered that the driver was without the necessary credentials to permit him to drive.

Edwin Orsstand of Brooklyn, N. Y.: Mrs. Elmer Lewis and infant daughter, 1001 Ocean avenue; Miss Mary Cavanaugh, Stonington; Mrs. Edward Ernest and infant son, Waterford and Mrs. John Tucker, 2 Terrace court, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Two arrests were made today for violation of the city's parking ordinances and both drivers will be in court tomorrow. Gordon MacIntosh 31 Blinman street, is charged with parking too close to a fire hydrant on Bank street and Eugene Murphy, 14 Hamilton street, is charged with parking on a crosswalk on Green street. Both arrests were made by Patrolman Clyde Murphy.

The crew of the fishing trawler Petrel, who quit the boat at the plant of the American Fisheries company, Groton, yesterday because of differences over working conditions, went to New York last night, some by train and others by steamer. Wants Avenue Concreted.

James Williamson of Montauk avenue is circulating a petition requesting the city council to include in the annual appropriation not less than $25,000 to be used in concreting Montauk avenue from Bank street to Willetts avenue. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Moving Pictures at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

At 4 o'clock tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon at the Norwich Y. M. C. A., motion pictures in keeping with the season will be shown.

The well-known story of "The Good Samaritan." Robber bands still infest the wilderness of Judea as they did in the days when Jesus told the parable that made such a deep impression. The scenes were staged near the inn of the Good Samaritan.

The "Wells of Palestine" and its streams mean much to the life of that locality, and on account of the scarcity of water, they form a common meeting place for native sociability. This reel is one of real interest as it portrays the setting of several of the teachings and acts of the Christ.

A reel on "The Prodigal Son" is an impressive picturization of the events of the famous Bible story of the young man who went away from home, and wasted his substance with riotous living. We see the young man asking for his portion of the inheritance; we see him in want feeding the swine; on the homeward way; the meeting of father and son; the dissatisfaction of the elder brother, and the festivities following the return of the prodigal.

These pictures make their own strong impression.

The adult public is invited and youth 14 and over will be admitted.

United Congregational Church

Meetings and services next week at the United Congregational church will include the following:

All boys and girls of the church school and junior home-time are invited to an Easter party given by the Sodalitas at the Community house from 4 to 6 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The cabinet of the Woman's Guild will meet on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the home of the president, Mrs. Frederick W. Lester, 47 Osneco street.

The Charitable circle of King's Daughters meets in the junior department rooms of the church school at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, to tie quilts, after which they will enjoy a basket supper and hold an evening meeting.

The Junior Guild meets at 7:30 Wednesday evening, in the junior department rooms of the church school to continue work on the box for China.

The Philathea class meets on Friday evening, at the home of Mrs. Alfred G. Bliven, 12 Williams street; Mrs. Bliven and Miss Marion Beebe, hostesses.

If a man rides a hobby it is useless to ask him to dismount and walk.

TRUCK DRIVER HELD UP AND ROBBED AT TRADING COVE

Brandishing guns, three masked men held up and robbed James Montassa, local truckman, of $92, at 6.45 o'clock Friday night at a lonely spot on the old New London turnpike, near Sandberg's boarding house, at Trading Cove, Montassa, had driven to a house in that vicinity to make a collection for some wood he had sold and delivered. He was driving his Ford truck home, when the three men suddenly appeared in the road, halted his machine, and ordered him to get out of the truck.

After taking his money he was told to start walking and keep walking, under penalty of being shot. Montassa hurriedly left the spot as directed, and spread the alarm as soon as he could reach Sandberg's boarding house.

A telephone call was sent to police headquarters and Captain Thomas P. Murphy notified the state police at the Groton barracks. Captain Murphy also notified Constable Lucius A. Fenton and detailed Sergt. Matthew Delaney to accompany the constable to the scene.

No trace of the highwaymen could be found, and it is thought that they either escaped by making their way through the woods in that section or in a machine. Montassa did not see any machine at the spot he was held up.

He told the police that there were three men, all armed and all wearing masks. He described two of them as thick set, and one as a short man. All wore rubber boots, according to Montassa.

Sergt. Webber and Officer Peter Bush of the Groton barracks upon their arrival, immediately went to work on the case.

FOCH MEMORIAL SERVICE ARRANGED BY MSGR. NEALE

Editorially, the Meriden Record of Thursday had the following leader, which will interest the friends of Monsignor Neale, a former assistant pastor of St. Patrick's church, Norwich. His Excellency Governor Trumbull was among those in attendance at the Foch memorial service described:

Simply, solemnly and beautifully, the mass of requiem as celebrated by Rt. Rev. Msgr. John Neale at St. Rose's church Tuesday brought to Meriden people an opportunity to pay their respects to the memory of a good man, as well as a great soldier. As one has come to expect of any undertaking in which Monsignor Neale is the moving spirit, there was a perfectness and completeness of arrangement which appealed.

The simplicity and beauty of the mass itself was emphasized by the finished interpretation and tone of the choir and organ. As the sombre beauty of the church echoed with the vibrant chords of "The Star Spangled Banner," there was awakened in the breast of every patriot a feeling of appreciation and understanding of this country's part in the great drama in which Foch was such a potent figure.

Then, as if to emphasize the leveling process noted during the war when creeds, nationalities, politics and social distinctions were lost sight of, "Nearer My God to Thee" revived memories poignant with joy and sorrow alike.

The sounding of Taps and the playing of the "Marseillaise" provided the legitimate dramatic touches which illuminated the service without in the least detracting from its solemnity and impressiveness.

The monsignor again illustrated his marked ability, to say much in little. His eulogy of only a few minutes' duration was so direct and forceful, so simple and convincing, that it made a deep impression. He subordinated this feature to the service itself, the ritual to which the distinguished Frenchman whose memory was being honored, was devoted.

THE CRUCIFIXION GIVEN AT CENTRAL CHURCH

The cantata, The Crucifixion, a meditation on the Sacred Passion of the Holy Redeemer, written by Rev. W. J. Sparrow Simpson, M. A., with the music by J. Stainer, was very impressively given by an augmented choir at the Central Baptist church Friday evening before a capacity audience. It was given under the direction of Frederick J. Maples, director of the church choir, the solo parts being taken by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, baritone, and Mr. Maples and Robert Gray, tenors.

During the recital, which was presented entirely by local talent, the large congregation listened with appreciation and at its conclusion liberally complimented the choir members, organist and director for the splendid rendition. The soloists rendered their numbers with marked ability, especially Rev. Mr. Abbott, and the ensemble numbers were beautifully given. The accompaniments by the organist, Miss Louise Fuller, added to the pleasure of the evening.

The cantata was given as follows: Recitative, Mr. Maples, The Agony, solo, Rev. Mr. Abbott; recitative, Mr. Maples and Rev. Mr. Abbott, Processional to Calvary, chorus; solo, Mr. Gray; recitative, Rev. Mr. Abbott; hymn, The Mystery of the Divine Humiliation, all; recitative, Rev. GAVE FINAL LENTEN TALK AT LOCAL Y. M. C. A.

With parlors filled with business men and others, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London concluded his series of Lenten talks at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Friday noon.

General Secretary Edwin Hill presided and Rev. H. H. Conklin offered prayer. The hymn was "Alas and Did My Saviour Bleed".

Just before the address, a beautiful potted plant was presented to Rev. Mr. Danforth, and Rev. C. H. Ricketts in a few well chosen words told him of the deep appreciation in which he is held by the officers and friends of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Louis Mell rendered a vocal solo with good effect. The general secretary stated that on account of illness, the president, Herbert B. Cary, was unable to attend the series, but that he had followed closely the report of the meetings in the daily papers. Mr. Cary sent greetings to all the men, with special remembrance to Mr. Danforth.

The topic of the concluding address was: "With Christ in Jerusalem," and Mr. Danforth spoke in part as follows:

We have reached the last stage of our Lenten journey. It is 7 miles and 33 years from Bethlehem where we started. And, in addition to the thoughts of Friday noons, we have in other ways and other places been in thought following our Master through the events of the last week of His earthly life.

On Sunday we saw the multitude who cried Hosanna and strewed palm branches in the way of the King who came in the name of the Lord. We followed Him into the temple and saw its cleansing and return to its true purpose of prayer. We heard the children cry out in His praise. But we also saw the dark looks of those hateful foes who sought to compass His destruction.

Then He teaches as one who has much to say and little time in which to say it. Yesterday we were in thought with Him in the quiet upper room where he took a towel and girded himself and washed the feet of His friends. And, if their Master did that, they also should wash one another's feet. The same Master had broken bread for them and told them of his broken body; had poured the cup and blessed it in token of His shedding of His blood. Service and sacrifice were both taught in ways the world can never forget.

The Garden of Gethsemane is only a little way outside the city gate. But Christ went out free and was brought back a prisoner. The traitor had done his work, led the band with swords, and had betrayed his Master with a kiss. How that kiss must have burned! The world's worst miscarriage of justice swiftly followed. Caiaphas, Herod and Pilate each had Him before him, and Caiaphas won.

Under the roof of what is now an orphanage they show an old Roman pavement with the marks of soldiers' games upon it. There the sentence was pronounced. Along the Via Dolorosa we pass humble and thoughtfully to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. The place of crucifixion and of burial, the "Place of a Skull", has for many centuries been a place of pilgrimage and prayer for all Christians. We bow in reverence as we think of the crosses, the malefactors, the Lamb of God, the mocking multitude, the little group who were faithful unto death, the mother into whose face the infant had looked up, and into that same face the Crucified looked down. Then the tomb and the stillness.

It was not the seal of a ruler upon the stone that troubled the disciples. It was the seal of death upon the silent figure within that made them so sad. There were only two sounds outside: the muffled tread of sentinels and the soft sobs of weeping women. A radiant form appears. The sentinels became as dead men. Aching hearts are comforted by the Risen Redeemed. It is Easter. Christ has risen.

The rest of the story of Jerusalem you well remember. Forty years later the city was destroyed. Slowly its desolate waste was restored. A few centuries pass and the followers of the Prophet take possession. Crusades are organized in Europe to rescue the Holy Sepulchre. They succeed for a time. More centuries of the Prophet's followers. Then the Great war and General Allenby marches in on foot, not wanting to ride where his Master had gone on foot.

It is a most interesting city to visit. Go there when you can. It adds to your Bible the book of your own experience. And then, when you reach the last book of your Bible, you see the vision which John saw on the Island of Patmos. The city which you see descending from Heaven from God is the New Jerusalem. Why? Because Christ walked there so long ago, and walks forever with you and me. We may not all go to Jerusalem, but we shall all meet in the New Jerusalem. God grant it!

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICES AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

Three great congregations at St. Patrick's church commemorated the anniversary of the death of Christ Good Friday. In the morning at 8 o'clock, Rev. John J. Reilly read the mass of the Pre-sanctified, the Sacred Host consumed having been consecrated the previous day with that of Holy Thursday. Father Reilly read the Prophecy from Osee 6, 1-5, the lesson, which was Exodus 12, 1-11, Psalm 139, and the narration of the Passion of Our Lord, according to John, 18-19. Following the special prayer, with supplications for all orders and conditions of men, he began the ceremonial of the veneration of the cross by repeating three times, in Latin, "Behold the wood of the cross on which hung the Saviour of the world." Preceded then by the procession of altar boys, he brought the Blessed Sacrament from where it had remained in the repository on the altar of the Blessed Virgin since the consecration of Maundy Thursday. While the remainder of the sanctuary was in the violet of penitence and the altars bare of adornment, this marble altar was most beautifully decorated with annunciation lilies. Father Reilly finished the mass with the prayer, "In the spirit of humility and with a contrite heart let us be received by Thee, O Lord; and grant that the sacrifice we offer in Thy sight may this day be pleasing to Thee." There was no music, either of voices or organ. Then the congregation proceeded to kiss the cross, as the crucifix was presented by the rector and his two assistant priests.

In the afternoon at 3 and again in the evening large congregations attended the services.

COMPLAINT FILED AGAINST A. G. SPALDING & BROS.

WASHINGTON, March 29—(AP)—The charge that A. G. Spalding & Bros. sporting goods firm of New York, were paying leading professional golfers a yearly salary to use and recommend the firm's gold balls was made today in a complaint filed against the Spalding concern by the federal trade commission.

The complaint, which alleged unfair methods of competition, also charged that the Spalding firm gave many gold balls to leading players and to golf players employed as instructors.

"When said golf players win, or finish close to winners in golf tournaments," the complaint said, "respondent corporation or the corporations which it owned, controlled and managed caused advertisements to be placed in magazines of general circulation stating that the winners and those finishing close to the winners used the golf balls made by it or the corporations which it owned, controlled or managed, without disclosing that said players were obligated to use said balls, thus misleading and deceiving the public into belief that said players used said balls because of their superior quality."

Hearing on the complaint was set for May 3rd in Washington.

WOMEN OF CONGRESS ARE PARTIAL TO BLACK

WASHINGTON, March 29—(AP)—Black seems to be the congressional fashion note in the 71st congress in which eight women, more than ever before in the history of the country, will occupy seats in the house.

The five women who were members of the 70th congress wore black frocks most of the time, and the three newcomers have worn the subdued color on virtually all public occasions.

Idle curiosity is misnamed, for it works day and night.
